REDEMPTION

OF

TIME

The Duty and Wisdom of Christians in

EVIL DAYS.

OR

A Practical Discourse

Shewing what

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITIES

Ought to be redeem'd; What

MISSPENCES of TIME

Are to be avoided: with convincing

R E A S O N S, Quickning

MOTIVES,

And proper

DIRECTIONS

For the right Improvement of pretious Time.

Ву 7. W.

LONDON, Printed for Nathanael Ranew at the King's Arms in St. Paul's Church-yard, 1683

DEMPTION

HIME

of they and woldem of Christians us.

IL. DAYS.

50

Tactical Discourse

TAL OPPORTUNIT

the in oc redorm de What

A DAA

916.876.57 7 3 33 34

in the second of the second of

CATECE ON PRESENTE Various and has the dealers of the desire of the desi

Ь

To the

Gentlemen and Inhabitants of HAMMERS MITH.

Honoured, Worthy, and Well-beloved Friends,

He great and good God made Man Lord of the * whole Earth, but this is not the highest Preferment, and utmost Advancement that he is capable of, and destin'd to. The incorporeal and diviner Part of him fufficiently discovers, and evidently demonstrates that he pertains and belongs to another World. Tully brings in Cato delivering this high point of Philosophy, that this [a] Earth and earthly Body, into which the Soul is funk at present, is a place extreamly contrary to a divine Nature, and to Eternity. This Earth is but our [b] Inn, faies he, in which as Travellers we are to lodg in our Journey, hastening through Time to Eter-

* Gen. 1. 28. Pfal. 8. 6. & 115. 16.

[a] Est animus eulestin, ex altissimo domicilio depressim. Es quasi demersim in terram, locum divina natura, asormeaitque contrarium. Cic. in Cat. Maj. seu de senect.

[6] Ex visa ifta discedo, sanguam ex hospisio, non tarquem ex domo. Commorandi enom nasura deversorium nobie, non habirandi dedit, Id. ib.

ternity; not our House and Home in which we are to dwell continually. This World is appointed only as a Passage to a better place and state: We are now in a way of Preparation for it. This World (as [c] one saies well) is the great Laboratory for perfecting of Souls for the next. We are here indeed to make but a fhort flay ; yet we must not repine at the brevity of this Life, but ought to be content with that space of time which is allowed us for our Life on Earth; and to take care, that in [d] whatfoever Att we are appointed to appear, we perform our particular parts well, though they prove but short ones that are assigned and committed to us, in the great Comedy acted in the Theater of this inferiour World: for (as the forementioned Philosopher acknowledgeth) a short time of Life is long enough to serve us to live well and bonestly. It concerns us only to endeavour, to use and improve what time God pleases to afford us, in doing those things which will fit and diffose us for a happy Eternity, and make our Translation and Removal hence gainful and advantageous, comfortable and desirable to us.

God

272

th

ba

DH

us

go

bu

Lu

ex

S

245

w

th

in

be

fe

b

·a

η

L

P

[[]c] Sir Mat. Hale's Contempl. M. and D't part, p. 263.
[d] Neque enim histrions, ut placeat, peragenda est fabula: mado in quocunque suevit activ, probetur: nec sapienti s sque ad, plaudite, vivendum. Breve enim tempus atatu satu est lungum ad bine homestéque vivendum. Cic. lib. cit.

God hath prescribed a course of convenient means to be observed and used by us in this Probation-state. [e] He does not lead us to a Life of Bleffedness (as St. Hilary tells us truly) through thorny difficult Controversies, and knotty bard Questions. He would have us, not difpute, but live: for (as the * Prophet informs us) He bath shewed thee, O Man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love Mercy, and to malk Lumbly with thy God? And (as the | Apostle expresses it) The Grace of God that bringeth Salvition, bath appeared to all Men; teaching us, that denying Ungodline Sand worldly Lufts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godtily in this present VVorld .. He requires us to believe in order to Practice and Obedience.

God has given us but a [f] few things to be believed; (as Bp. Forbes was wont well to observe) but he has plainly ordered and appointed a great many necessary things to be done by us. We must t do his Gommandments, that we may be blessed, and have right to the Tree of Life, and enter in by the Gates into the City. We must * by patient Continuance in well-doing,

A 4 See

* Mic. 6. 8. || Tit. 2 11, 12.

† Rev. 12. 14. * Rom. 1 7.

ich

19 ace tra-

ell) for t- a

re-ith

ur

d

ar,

gh

nd

in

(as

g-

us

ly

ne

se

рy

en-

d.

:

m

[[]e] Non per difficiles Questiones ad beit.sm vitam nos ducit [[]f] Pauca credenda, multa facienda. Confid. Mod. & Pac. in epitt. Præf.

feek for Glory, and Honour, and Immortality.

The Scope and Drift of the following

Treatise is, to shew you particularly and fully, how to redeem the Time of this Life, so as to gain a glorious Immortality.

As for the Matter of it, it is useful to infiruct you in the Divine Arithmetick, to make you wifer than [g] brutish Sinners, that know not how to number their Days: It is apt to engage you upon an early, present Industry; a diligent, speedy Care of your Time, and of your Souls; and is a Manudustion to the Exercise of a great part of Practical Religion.

The Style of it is plain, familiar, and easy to be understood by all, which renders the Treatise the more generally useful. Some affect a Language so gandy as is not consistent with the Gravity of Theology. Others discourse in so strong a Style, that by their losty Words and Expressions they shoot quite over the Heads, and so miss the Hearts of too too many of their Auditors. Some paint the Glass, till they darken the Window, and keep out the Light. Seneca prosesses, that he does not

ap-

bot

lity all

mu b fici

Di

and

Go

ban

02

Me

in

Wo

thi

no

for

if I

A

27.34

Pr

C

min dife

for 491 es:

INM

OCCA

[[]g] The Philosopher affirms that Man is therefore the wisest of all Creatures, because he alone can number; and they note this as an effectial difference between them, that Bruta non number and it. Bruta non number and it is been been that Divine Arithmetick which the Psalmist prays for, Lord teach we for to number our Days, that we may apply our Hearts unto Wisdom. Dr. Stoughton's Heavenly Convertation. 84.

approve of any jejune and dry Discourses about the great and weighty matters of Morality; for Philosophy, fays he, does not renounce all Wit and Ingeny: but he does not allow much labour to be laid out upon Words. [b] A fick Man, fays he, does not feek a Physician that is eloquent, but that is able to cure his Disease: no more than the Passenger regards and enquires, whether the skilful Pilot, or Governour of a Ship, be a very comely and bandsome Man? Thou hast as much business upon thee, fays he, to heal the Distempers of Mens Minds and Manners, as a Phylician bas in a Plague-time; and art thou imployed about Words? be glad if thou canst be sufficient for things. I have not studied for great Words, nor labour'd for high Language; but only fought out * found, wholfome, healing words.

It may be, some candid, courteous Reader, if he see Occasion, may make the same or like Apology for me, as Seneca once did for Fabianus Papyrius, when Lucilius had taken no small Prejudice against certain Books of that Philosopher, lity.

ing

lly,

in-ake

OW

to .

775

Ex-

alv

the

fect

ith

rfe rds

the

na-

als,

out

ot ap-

ifest

ote

29.94_

s is

ays

oply

'cr-

[[]h] Non quarit ager medicum eloquentem, fed sananem, Sc. non erit, quare gratuletur siis, quod inciderit in medicum etiam disertum: boc enim tale est, quale si perituu gubernator etiam formosus est. Quid aures meas scalpus? quid oblectas? alind agetur, urendum, secandum, abstinendum sum. Ad hac adbibitum es: curare debes morbum reserem, gravem, oublicum. Tinnum negotis habes, quantum in pistilentiamedicus: cura rerbia occupatus es? jamdudum gande, si sufficis rebus. Sca. cp. 756

"Υποινόντουν λόγων, 2 Tim. 1.13.

fopher, because his Style was not elaborate and polite, but feem'd to him to be [h] low and mean: [i] He formed Manners, not Words, says Seneca; and wrote to the Minds, not Ears of Men. It does not become a Philosopher to be studious and solicitous about Language. He was not negligent in his Style, says he, but only not over-careful about it : and therefore you will find nothing fordid or slovenly in it. His Words are chosen, not affected. His Discourses are not flat and low, but pleasing and plain. Look on the whole Body of the Book; though it be not trim, 'tis honest. Would you have him set himself to so small a thing as Words? He addicted himself to the Greatness of Things. And you may perceive by what he bas perform'd, that he felt what he wrote. What ever be delivers tends all to Profit, and a good Mind: Applause is not sought for, or look'd after by him.

I shall only speak for my self in the Words of Salvian; [k] We that are greater Lovers of

Things

Thi

mor

the who ded

tain

may proj

fri.

and

to

and

2 1

pro

the ged

giv

the

but

Fest

fay Pr I ui

to

wa

Rad

[b] Effundi verba, non fingi.

[[]i] Mores ille, now verba composuit; & animu scripsit ista, non auribus, &c. — Electa verba sunt, non captata. — Ad profectum omnia tendunt, & ad bonam mentem: non quaritur plausus. Sen. ep. 100.

^[6] Nos qui retum magu quam verborum amatores, utilia potini quam plausibilia sestamur; --- In seriptiunculu nostru mon lenocinia esse volumus, sed remedia, qua scilicet non tam etiosorum auribus placeant, quam agrotorum mentibus prosint. Salvian. Præsat, ad libros de Gubern, Dei.

Things than of Words, follow what is profitable more than what is plausible; nor do we seek that the empty Ornaments of the Age, but that the wholsome Emoluments of things may be commended in us. We would have our Writings contain, not Enticements, but Remedies, which may not so much please the Ears of the idle, as profit the Minds of such as are sick.

The Design and Aim of this Discourse in its compositre was, not to tickle the Ear, and strike the Fancy; but to warm the Heart, and reach the Conscience, and direct the Life; to teach Men how to live, and how to die, and how to attain a blissful Life after Death.

I here present you with a plain Discourse in a very learned Age. I have prepared and provided for you, not fine Manchet, but rather Barley Bread, fuch as [k] Bucer encouraged holy Bradford, for want of better, to give unto the People. As St. Peter faid to the lame Man, * Silver and Gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee : In the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk: 1 fay to you in like manner; I have no rich Present to offer you; but such as I have give I unto you: I would, under God, be a means to help you to find your Feet, and walk in the way of God's Commandments, and run the Race that is fet before you. I

rate

low

not nds,

hilo-

Janfays

bere-

n it.

Dif-

and

ook;

you

rds?

ings.

bas

Vbat

good

af-

ords

bings

i ifta,

quari-

utilia

nostris n tam rosint.

^[4] Fox Acts and Mon. 2 vol p. 1456. * Acts 3. 6.

I was induced to make these Papers publick, not only to fatisfy the Defires of some Friends, but because I found so very little perform'd by others on this Subject, which I thought deserved a larger and fuller Handling: And that by my own appearing in it, I might oblige my felf above all others to a greater and stricter care of my own Time, and might leave some wholsome Counsels, and seasonable Helps to a holy Life, to my own Children, Friends and Acquaintance; and do some lasting Service to your Souls; and when I shall be dead, may by these Papers continue to speak to you and yours: * For God is my record, bow greatly I long after you all, in the Bowels of Jesus Christ. I have you in my Heart; and + my Heart's Defire and Prayer to God for you is, that you might be faved.

I shall only here crave your leave to put you in mind of a few very necessary things.

I. Let me earnestly exhort and beseech you, that you would worthily and becomingly act the parts of Men, and Christians. Live as thosethat have rational Souls, noble and immortal Spirits within you; and do nothing repugnant to the Light of your own Minds and Consciences. Yea live as those that have the benefit and advantage of Divine Revelation.

Let

Let no

thems

of any

rectly

and r a false

on a

that t his W

perfw

in an

their find i

Sinne

everl

thou

the C

and g close

at C

into deca

mer

any ty (

ing

^{*} Phil. 1. 7, 8, + Rom. 10. 1.

Let none that name the Name of Christ allow themselves in the constant, consident Practice of any notorious, scandalous Sin or Vice, direally and expressly contrary to the holy Word, and righteous Law of God; proceeding upon a falle, imaginary Supposition; venturing upon a fond, ungrounded, foolish Presumption; that the Mercy of God will at last prevail against his Wisdome, Holines, Justice, and Truth : perswading, promising, flattering themselves in any evil Way, that God (according to their Idea and Model of a Deity) will never find in his heart to punish the unreclaimable Sinner, and obstinate final Impenitent, with everlasting Misery, and eternal Torment; though he has over and over threatned it in the Gospel, and though it stands with * good and great Reason that he should do it. Walk closely according to the Rule, and maintain at Conversation becoming the Gospel of Gbrist.

2. If any of you, upon fearch and enquiry into your felves, shall find in your selves any decay of Piety, declining in Godliness, abatement of Strictness, neglect of Watchfulness, any slackness and remisses in Duty, any vanity of Mind, and carelesses of Spirit growing upon you; if you can perceive you have less blick,

ends,

d by

deser-

that blige

trict-

fome

ps to

and

ce to

may

and

tly I

rist.

De-

right

put ech

ngly

e as

im-

ing

and

the

ion. Let

[&]quot; See p. 439, 440, 441. † Phi'a 1. 27.

* left your first Love; * Remember from whence you are fallen, and repent, and do the first works: recover, maintain, encrease the old Warmth: † Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die. Fortify natural Principles, suscitate your natural Powers, ftir up the Gifts and Graces of God in your felves.

[1] Min is no Star, but a Quick Coal Of Mortal Fire: Who blows it not, nor doth controll A faint Desire, Lets his own Ashes choke his Soul.

Look up to Heaven continually for the help and benefit of Divine Influences, Illuminations, Impressions; and receive not the Grace of God in vain; but up, and be doing; go in the Strength of the Lord, and work out your Salvation with fear and trembling.

3. Take heed of the Prophanation, and beware of a partial, formal observation of the Lord's-Day: Where it is partial, it is likely to be formal. Read attentively and frequently the earnest Exhortation to a thorough Redemption of the Lord's-Day, Chap. 2. pag. 32,

* Rev. 2. 4, 1. + &3. 2. [1] Herb, Poem. Employment, p. 71.

10 7

Red

way

Adv

porol

thall

posi

nota

lear wor

was empl

a fb

of ?

fays Reli

but

·It is

rest

I an

Iba

by 1 the

the .

of n

the

the 258

Fortural God

bence

first

to 73. There you are inform'd, that a due Redemption of the whole Lord's-Day, is the way to redeem all other Days to the greatest Advantage, * as to Spirituals, and as to Temporols too. And in reference to this latter, I shall here confirm what is said there, by propoling the Experience, and producing the notable, considerable Testimony of a wise and learned, a great and very good Man, the worthily renowned lateChief JusticeHale, who was (as Seneca says of good Men) natus ad exemplar, born to be an Example to others: In a short Discourse of his about Redemption of Time I find these Words; [m] Be sure, fays he, to fpend the Lord's-Day intirely in those Religious Duties proper to it; and let nothing but an inevitable Necessity divert you from it. -It is that which will sanctify and prosper all the rest of your Time, and your secular Employments. I am not apt to be superstitions, says he, but this I have certainly and infallibly found true, that by my deportment in my Duty towards God, in the Times devoted to his Service, especially on the Lord's-Day, I could make a certain conjecture of my success in my Secular Occasions the rest of the Week after: If I were loose and negligent in the former, the latter never succeeded well; if strict, grace go your help

nina-

the kely ent-Re-

32, to

See p. 66, 67.
 [m] Sir Mat. Hale's Contempl. Mor. and Div. 1 Part, pag. 258, 259.

strict, and conscientions, and watchful in the former, I was successful and prosperous in the latter. And again; in a Godly Letter to his Children * (of whom be travail'd in birth that Christ might be formed in them) he freely opens his mind in these remarkable Words to them; [n] I now write something to you, says he, of your observation of the Lord's-Day, because I find in the World much Looseness and Apostacy from this Duty. People begin to be cold and careless in it, allowing themselves Sports and Recreations, and Secular Imployments in it, without any necessity; which is a fad spectacle, and an ill presage. And he there makes this Profession and Declaration to them; I have found by a strict and diligent Observation, that a due Observation of the Duties of this Day, has ever had joined to it, a Blessing upon the rest of my time, and the Week that has been so begun, has been blessed and prosperous to me: And on the other side, when I have been negligent of the Duties of this Day, the rest of the Week has been unsuccessful and unhappy to my own Secular Imployments; so that I could easily make an estimate of my successes in my own Secular Imployments the Week following, by the manner of my passing of this Day: And this I do not write lightly or

Gal. 4. 150
[*] In his Directions for keeping the Lord's-Day, in a Letter to his Children, Ibid. p. 324.

01

fe:

W

C

W

fai

for

red

fin

ble

of

yo

de

1

DOT

The

take

[0]

or inconsiderately, but upon a long and sound Obfervation and Experience. You see how this was much upon his Heart, and how teady he was to remark this upon all Occasions.

4. Let me charge and pressit upon your Consciences, that on a Lord's-Day, you would be so kind and charitable, so true and faithful to your Souls, as not to lose the Season of a Sucrament, if you can by any means redeem it. Let none among you live in a sinful, shameful Disuse, and an unwarrantable inexcusable Neglect of the holy Sucrament of the Lord's Supper. Let me solemnly invite you in the moving pathetical Words of the devout Herbert,

[o] Come ze hither all, whose taste Is your waste;
Save your cost, and mend your fare.
God is here prepard and drest,
And the Feast; God in whom all dainties are.

God in whom all dainties are

I do not call you to a Prophanation, but to a worthy Participation of this facred Ordinance. They that do customarily live unholily, must needs receive unworthily. Are they fit to partake of the Lord's Supper, who allow themselves

n the e lat-

o bis

that

y o-

Gys

be-

d A-

cold

and

it,

acle,

this

bave

that has

bas

the

Du-

been lm-

nts

ing

btly

or

rter

^[0] The Invitation.

solves in the Love and Practice of any known Sin? Are they disposed to eat Christ's Flesh, who will not abstain from stessly Lusts, but usually walk after the Flesh? Are they prepared to drink Christ's Blood, who commonly drink in Iniquity like Water, and frequently drown themselves and others in Drink? Are they that walk unworthy of their Baptism, in a condition to venture upon the holy Communious?

I invite you to all that is duly previous and preparatory to the Duty, and to a right and requisite manner of the performance of it.

Come, but take God along with you, whenever you intend to come. By the help of God, you may receive this Sacrament as you ought. Excuse not your Asstinence and Forbearance by pretending your Unsitness: but set your selves in good earnest, with an honest, willing, resolved Mind, under God, to sit your selves; and you shall quickly find, that God will readily assist and enable you, promote and surther you in the way of your Duty.

Come, but competently understand the nature and ends of this Ordinance; and impartially try, and examine your selves before you come. Come with a hearty willingness to part with your Sins fur him, who lost his Blood, and laid down his Life for you; and with a sirm Resolution to live to him, that died for you. Labour by habitual Devotedness to God, and by continual circumspect walking

and

WO

Cata

par

dtt

CO

Ch

ba

an ex th

N

ti

and holy living to be in a general diffolition for whethy Receiving. A well-ordered Conversion is the best Preparation for the Community on, and will most certainly make all other Preyparations more easily.

Conre, for I tell you plainly, it is not at your own liberty and choice, to come, or keep away. There is a special Mandate for your coming, * This do in remembrance of me, says Christ. He does not only simply allow, or barely recommend it to his Church; but as a Langiver, strictly commands and requires it; and as a dying Testator, orders and enjoins the Observance of it. Christ says as clearly and expressy, Do this; as God in any Precept of the Decalogue says, Thou shalt not do this. Now the Law of Christ should be more for cible and prevalent with you, than any Statute, or Law of the Land, to accelerate the Practice of this Duty.

There is as much Danger in an unworthy Refusing this Sacrament, as there is in an unworthy Receiving it. You can go for no more than Half-Christianis, if you totally abstain from this Ordinance; which is, equally with the reception of the Sacrament of Baptism, a Badg and Cognizance, Note and Character of your Discipleship; an Evidence and Demonstration, Sign and Expression, Token and Testilefb,

but

pre-

only

Are

ina

ions

and

en-iod.

ght.

nce

our vil-

our

ote

na-

arore

eß

his nd

li-

to ng nd

^{*} Luke 22, 19. 1 Cor. 11. 24, 25.

W3.

mony of your Profession of Christianity. live in a constant Neglett of this Sacrament, is a manifest Violation of your Baptismal Vow. You promised at your Baptism, that you would obediently keep God's holy Will and Commandments, and walk in the same all the Days of your Lives: But how apparently do you break this part of your Vow, by living in a long continued course of Disobedience to this so reasonable Command of Christ? Yea, this unchristian Practice of yours, is, by interpretation, a kind of Renunciation of your Baptifmal Covenant, entred into in your Infancy: you do, in a manner, openly difoun and difavow it, when you will not yield, at Tears of Discretion, to renew and confirm it; though often minded of it, frequently required, and called upon in the Name of Christ, to do it in the Use and Celebration of this Sacrament. And by being so utterly averse and unwilling to bind your selves by this means to Christ, and to ratify and strengthen your Covenant with him, you feem to quit your Part in Christ, and to disclaim all Interest and Propriety in the precious Benefits purchased by his Blood and Death; and to be guilty of the baself Ingratitude, and greatest Unkindness imaginable, in refuging to remember in a folemn manner your Bleffed Saviour, who has to lovingly remembred you, and been, with fo much charge and soft so great a Benefactor to you; and when you have very greedily

UMI

in.u

nefi

hib

this.

not

will

you

dem

foni

felv

fent.

able

upt

of L

latio

you

you

and

put

ged 1

the]

perf

to T

that

to re

in unworthily undergaluing the inestimable Bear nefits of his Death and Passion, sealed and exhibited in the right Use of this Sucrament wol

When Christ has faid in plain terms, Dow this will you, in effect, dare to fay, Wo will not do this; we will break a known Law, and will not regard the Authority of Chiff ? Will you perlift in fuch Omission as you cannot juflify, but are forc'd, if reason'd with, to condemn your felves for & gor and and harding and

s d d e

i.f.

n t.

n

d

1-

1-

1-19

n

Can you be so meak, and short in your read foning, as to think, you referve to your felves a freedom and liberty to fin for the prefent, without any great Danger to you, by ablenting your selves from the Sacrament, which would closely tie, and straitly bind you up to a frider way, and more exact course of Life? never confidering, that by your relation to God, and dependance upon him ; by your early Covenant made in Baptism; by all your hearing, or reading the Word of God; and by every Prayer you have in all your Life put up to God, you are already strongly obliged to all that Duty, which the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper would further engage you to perform. grapping, and greatest

Will you put off this Sacrament from Time to Time, and fatisfy your felves as prefent, that you purpose to prepare, and receive here after? why this is just as feolish and abourd, as ... to refolve, that when you have very greedily swallowed much more Boison, then you will take the benefit of an Antidoto; that when you have stuffed your felves with traft, and fill'd your selves with abundant crudities, and by to doing weakned and defirered your April petite; or by long Fasting quite lost your Ston. much; then you will buften to a Feast a That when you have finibility fid the Riches of Divine Goodness and Grace, made mare light of Christ, and of his pretious Blood and Benefus and grieved his Spirit by longer Dehus, and Non-improvement of Golgelifeafons and golden Opportunities; then you will feek Reconciliation to God, Union to and Communion with Christ, Purgation from Sin by the Blood of Christ, and the Confolation of the Spirit of Christ, L'You may delude your felves with Intentions and Refolutions to remember Christ in the Sacrament at fothe bonvernent Season bereafter + but if you neg+ lechand defer it now, you may lofe your Sen-As and Momony, before ye have mother Occafion offer'd you of remembring Christ in this Sagriment 2 You may wait hand depart and Christ may some to you in particular fludge ment, before you can enjoy another Opportuminy of our the Table and Supper of your diordin We may tell of your Death, and Then to others where you by top in your Graves, before the Time comes that you thould frem firsh year Lord's Death, in the celebration of the

th

m

to

it

cé.

fo

by

[el

ing

Wi

CC

fel

th

Fe

ho

as

ne

T

bo

Bi

on

fo

And if you should the holy Communion. communicate upon a Death-bed; the Sacrament fo late fought and received, is very unlikely to affure Heaven to you when you die, when it was never defired and uted by you, as a neceffary Means of helping you to Holiness, and fo of leading you on to Happiness, all your Life long.

will

herr

and.

and

Apr.

Ston.

hat

sof

Hare

and

De-

fea-

you

to

om

oh-

ude

one

the

eg+ en-

cca

this

and

do:

tu

our

hers

be-

hem

of

the

Let not Limble, honest-hearted Christians debar and deprive themselves of this Ordinance, by over-looking, or mis-judging their own Qualifications: But finding, that they regard no Iniquity in their Hearts; and feeling in themselves vehement Longings and earnest Breathings after Christ, and continual Hungrings and Thirstings after Righteousness; let them own with thankfulness any measure of Grace dilcernible in themselves ; and not deny to themselves what Christ so freely affords and offers them; but when invited to this Spiritual Feast, draw near with Faith, and take this holy Sacrament to their Comfort, and tife it as a means of Supplying their spiritual wants and needs.

Come, yea frequently come to the Lord's The Sacrament of Baptifin is the Symbol and Seal of our Regeneration, or New Birth; and therefore it is to be received but once: But the holy Communion is the Symbol and Seal of our spiritual Nutrition; and therefore, in reason, we are to receive it aften.

.te at a When

When Christ appointed that this should be done in remembrance of him, can you think he intended only a single, or seldom remembrance? Did not Christ himself, in giving that Command, and enacting that Law, intiod mate, insimpate, and suppose a reiterated, first quent remembrance of himself, when he said, "as oft as ye drink it; the Apostle subjoining as often as ye eat his Bread, and drink this Cop Will he then accept and take it kindly as your hand, if ye do it so seldom, as is next to a total Ourision of it? Did the Primitive Christians communicate every day, or at least every Lond's Dois and can you content your selves to live many Weeks. Months, and Tears without it?

Did you but know and understand, consider and meditate of your own spiritual great. Necessation, Wants, Weeknesses, and of the certain, considerable Advantages of a frequent Participation of the boly. Communicates you would quickly find a Law within jour, selves, to bind and oblige you a strong Argument and Impellent within your own Breasts, a pressing powerful Motive in your own Basons, to draw you to the Sacrament of the Lord's Suppers, you would as soon forget to take your daily Breast, as neglists to receive this blassed Sacrament, upon larry good Occasion, and fix Opportunity offer'd to your and the Among 1 Cor. 11. 15, 26.

UMI

food tod

vou

ber

Lon

ful

yet

mah

ever

the:

Cai

form

yet

CCI

you

the

you

has

Ser

mo

ing

fet

Ch

the

m

V

Among all your Gares, take special care to feed and nourish, to strengthen and comfort, to cleanse and say your Souls. Among all your Saylour, to meet with your dearest Lord, and to receive the seasonable, plentiful, rich *Supplier of the Spirit of Jesus Christ.

Will you pretend to palme a Sermon, and yet unworthily flight the Sacrament & feem to make conference of hearing two Sermons usually every Lord's-Day 3 and yet let your receiving the holy Communion twice or thrice a Tear. at most , Suffice your Souls , and Satisfy your Confeiences? Have you been frift to bear fome thousands of Sermons in your time ; and yet fo flow, some of you, as not once to receive this holy Sacrament in the many Tears of your whole Lives; though fo very many of the Sermons preach'd to you, urg'd and pref'd you, with due Preparation, to receive the Communion? Know ye not, that the Sacrament has, in fundry respects, the advantage of a Sermon? for in the Sacrament there is a Sermon to the Eje, as well as to the Ear. Preach. ing alone cannot possibly so clearly and lively let forth the Evil of Sin, and the Love of Christ to you; as the visible Representation of the Crucifixion and bloody Death of Chrift, made in this Sacrament, by the breaking of the

.65 .24 11 10

be

he che

ingy

ntied

fred!

id

bs

Villy

od-

ate

kes?

G+7

at 197 nt

pu .

tage:

f.

0

)-

d

it.

^{*} Phil. 1. 19.

the Bread, and pouring out of the Wine before you, is apt to do. Belides that; The Sacrament calls you to a more solemn previous Examination of your felves, than a Sermon does; and requires you publickly to renew your whole Covenant with God and Christ; whereas a Sermon ordinarily engages you to fome one or few particular Duties only : And the Sacrament is a Seal and Confirmation of the Covenant on God's part, of all the great and precious Promifes made in Christ to penirent Believers, as well as a Ratification of the Covenant on your part. Again; The Sairament has a lingular Virtue and Efficacy, to join and unite you more nearly and closely to Christ your Head, and to knit and cement you more firmly and strongly one to another in Christian Love. And is moreover a powerful Instrument, and effectual Means of conveying fpiritual Strength from Christ, and Grace sufficient to enable you to perform the Covenant made and repeated by you, and to practife the Precepts explicated and inculcated in the very many profitable Sermons preached to you.

5. You that are Parents, and Masters of Families; in the Fear of God, set up the Duties, and maintain the Exercises of Christ's Religion in your Families. Let Prajer, and Reading the sacred Scripture, and a course of Catechizing, be things they are used to, and well well

* A

Lan

old.

He

Go

tha

Con

Tr

the

the

Ab

to.

be

ri

H

bi

bi

well acquainted with. Refolve with Fosbua, * As for me and my House, we will serve the Lord, And row deliberately with holy Daold, I will walk within my House with a perfect Hear. Walk to closely and constantly with God, and be to faithfully obedient to him, that your Worldren may fare the better for your Covenant Water in him, and relation to him. Train, Bleed, and foring up your Children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Teach them to liftow, fear, love, and ferve God; & with Abraham, command your Children & your Houfkold, that they keep the Way of the Lord : This will be a means to propagate Religion to Policrity. Suffer not your Children to have their Heads, and Humours; but labour betimes to break them of their Wills, lest by their Stubbornnes and Disobedience they break your very Hearth at laft. Adomijah was a Person unlikely ever to come to good, when his Father was to indulgent to him, as + not to diffleafe him at any time, in faying, Why half thou done so? Follow the Direction, which St. Aufin gives, to teach Men to do the Works of Abraham; [p] Kill sinful Pleasures, says he, and flay youthful Lusts in your Children; by this means you will offer such a Sacrifice to God, as Abraham did.

* Jos. 24. 15. † Pf. 119. 2. 1 Eph. 6. 4. * Gen. 18. 19. † 1 Kings 1, 6.

ie be-

The

vious

rmon

enew

rift;

u to

And

n of

reat

eni-

the

ira-

join

rist

More

ian

ru-

III-

ent

rery

of

R-

e-

of

d

11

[[]p] Omnu qui trucidat filiorum voluptates, tale faci ficiam offert Deo, quale Abrabam. Aug.

Let this Thought often arise in your Minds, that the young Plants, that stand in the little Nonrieries of your private Families, will, according to your care, or neglect of them, grow up to be good and nieful, or vicious and noxime Members, in Church and State, and so the [4] Publick will be prefited, or prejudiced, by your well or ill ordering the Dispositions and Manners of those that belong unto your charge.

Restrain and regulate the rude and loose manners both of your Children and Servants; Labour to instil good Principles into them; and to render all your seasonable Instructions, prosperous and prositable by your good Examples: [r] Domestical Examples are very notably leading, and drawing, and wonderfully powerful and instructial. Your Children and Servants, they have their Maintenance from you, Dependance upon you, and are much inseriour to you; and ready to consorm themselves to you.

worker and deer , on histo being all exem-

You

you ha

rupt ?

proces

Exam

ofthe

riages

your!

ereth

Mafte

Serva

to (4

Seaw

comm

fanal

godl

char

empl

priv

disc

[[]q] Gratum eft, quod patria civem, populoque dedifti, Si facii, ut patria si idovem. Juv. sat. 14.

⁽r)

-- Velocisu & citiso more a arma analyzada corcumpunt viriorum exempla demostica, magnus 132 analyzada

(n n subrans animos autoribus, roma a arman adal ari suculta

You that are Parents, is it not enough that you have conveyed and communicated a corrupt Mature to your Children ; but will you proceed to deprave them further by your ill Examples, and to draw forth the Corruption of their Nature into manifold actual Miscarriages and Transgressions? Will you make your Children as far as ever lies in your power, the Children of the Devil ? You that are Masters, will you make your Servants the Servants of Sin, and bind them Apprentices to the very Devil? Will you dare any longer to (1) corrupt and debauch your Children and Seavants, by your frequent Drunkenness, common Swearing, vain and loofe Talking, Profanation of the Lord's-Day, Atheistical, ungodly Living? Let Governours of Families charge themselves to give better Examples.

6. Yea, let every one of you study to be Exemplary, in every relation and capacity, in every relation and capacity, in every carriage and deportment, both within the private Family, and before all the Neighbour-bood round about you. Let this consideration discourage and deter you from being ill-exemplary, ds,

tile

וישלם

PW

helo

by

nd

ur

e s

3nd

303

Sec.

00000 1374 pog

chab

1.24

3.

plary, that if at last you should go to Hell your selves, your own Damnation will receive aggradation from the Damnation of others who have been Simuers and Sufferens through your ill Examples : Which may be the reafon, why * Dives defired to keep his Brethren out of the place of Torment Nay, St. Austin goes a great deal higher, in those very notable Words of his, which deferve to be pondred in your most serious Thoughts; (n) If thou halt given an ill Brample, says he, than shalt one Day give an account for so many wicked Persons, as then hast shown an ill Exami ple to, though they have not followed thy ill Example. For it is no thank to thee, that they did not imitate and take after thee. If thou dost not sincerely repent, and faithfully endeavour, to the utmost of thy power, to me claim those who by thy means have become vicions; thou shalt at last be forely punished, not only for those that have miscarried, but for all those that might have miscarried, as if they had indeed miscarried through thy ill Example; because if God had left them, thy ill Example was enough to make them miscarry for ever.

7. And

177

ever

pro

tha

and play

1 ber

oft

idle

that

mo

live

and

Wo

Lif

wer

bown

Auc

Ap

fua

fela

05.1

10

tau.

. C

^{*} Luke 16. 28.

⁽u) Quantifeunque exemplum mala conversationis, etiamsi non sum sis sequantur, aliques prebuerit, pro tantis se malis rationem noverst redditurum. Aug. serm. 163. de Tempore.

Lord the fitter but you should be very sent 7. And laftly; Remember and confider every day of your Lives, what are the true and proper ends of Life. Think, and conclude, that you were not fent into this World to eat and drink, to lie down to fleep, and rife up to play. Be asbamid to come short of meer Heathens: Bluft to read what Cato in Cicero fays of himself; (w) No body could ever yet find me idle and unimployed. With Curius Dentatus, that noble and worthy Roman, count it (x) more eligible to be dead indeed, and not to live at all, than to be dull and dronish, idle and unactive, ufeless and unprofitable in the World. Reckon with your felves, that (y) Life is a business, not good cheer: That your work and bufines in this World, is, not to labour for the Meat which perisheth, to seek and study to satisfy a delicate, wanton, luxurious Appetite, and to take your fill of carnal, fenfual, corporeal Pleasure; to * lay up for your selves Treasures upon Earth, to theap up Silver as the Dust, and prepare Raiment as the Clay; to acquire secular Grandeur, and Honour;

Hell

-10 bers

dgue

rea-Bre

St.

very

be be hts ;

he,

nany

cami-Exc

they

hou

en-

1 1 1 1 L

e vi-

not

or all hey

ple;

amfor

And

iamsi

⁽w) Nemo adhue convenire me valuit, quin fuerim occupa⁽x) Se malle mort wum effe, quam non vivere. (7) Herb. Poems, Employment, p. 71.

Mat 6, 19. Luke 11, 21. † Job 27, 16. Zech 9 3.

Laborare in titulum Sepulchri, (as (2) Seneca fpeaks) to take unwearied pains for a pompous ambitions Funeral, an bononrable Infeription upon your Monument, a fwelling Trtle upon your Tomb-stone; but to store your selves with such good things, as will bear you company beyond the Grave, enrich and ennoble you, and render you worthy, and tonourable for ever in another World. Give all Diligence to be vertuous, and gracious; to get (a) great power over your selves, and to become your own Men; which the fore-cited Moralist tells you, is absolute Liberty, and an inestimable Good: To govern your selves, and to inspect, and do good to others: To lay out your selves for God; to * lay up durable Treasures in Heaven; to gain and obtain the Praise of God; tot pres toward the Mark, for the Prize of the high Calling of God in Christ Jesus; | So to run, that you may obtain an incorruptible Crown ; and have * an entrance ministred unto you abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jefus Christ.

[2] Sen. de brev. vit. c. 19. in fine.

[a] Abfolusa libertas eft, in faipfum babbre maximam potestatem. Inastimabile bonum eft, summ fieri. Sen. ep. 75.

* a Pet, 1 11.

1572

die

1

YO

wh

rea

the

Fn

28.0

and

WI

and

to

pre

if y neg

Infi

der

YOU

the hea

wh

Wo

Quidam dissonung etiam illa qua ultra vitam sunt, moles magnas sepulchrorum, & operum publicorum dedicaziones, & ad rogum munera, T ambittos as enrequias. At mohurcule isonum sunera, tanguam minimum vintime, ad sacre & ad cereos ducemda sant. Id. ib. c. 20. in fine.

^{*} Mat. 6. 10. + Phil 3. 14. | 1 Cor. 9. 14, 25.

diens Epistle to you: It is large, from an flears enlarged toward you. I will detain you no longer from the Treatise it self; to which you will find many Quotations annexted: Let none condemn them, before they have read them: It may be, then you will judg them pertinent, pregnant, pleasant.

Fruits of my Ministerial Labours among you, as a Token and Testimony of my cordial Love, and unfained Affection to your Souls.

with your selves, that when the most important Truths are, not only deliver d in Publick, and spoken in your Eurs, but brought home to your Honses, put into your Hands, and presented to your Eyes 3 how you can escape, if you will not lay them to your Hearts; but neglect and reject such means and helps of your Instruction and Salvation. O read, and consider them, and lay your Consciences closer than your Eyes to them? If they prevail not to reform and amend your Lives and Manners, they will come in, and witness against you, and heavily condemn you another Day.

Now that the only wife and good God, who put it into my Heart to undertake this Work, and effifted me in it, to the End of it; b (for

4 4 53 1 1 1 8 3 12 TO

eneca

om-

T

1804

YOU

all

5 10

ted

an

ind

lay

he

for 11-

12-

ng.

1

² a Cor. 6. 11.

(for though * I laboured, yet not I, but the Grace of God which was with me) would graciously vouchsafe to guide and direct your Minds and Hearts into the Knowledg, Belief, Confideration, Love, and (c) Practice of the great and weighty Truths contained in it; and would effectually bless and prosper it, (and all other serious, profitable Discourses, that have been already in somewhat more than 20 Years of my Ministry among you; or shall hereafter, by me, or others, be further made unto you;) to the spiritual Edification, and eternal Salvation of your Souls, is the earnest Defire, and hearty daily importunate Prayer of,

Dear Friends,

Your Servant in the Work

Of the Ministry.

For Jesus fake,

JOHN WADE.

THE

^{* 1} Cor. 14. 10. [c] Noneft beatm qui fcit illa, fed qui facit. Sen. ep. 75.

Grace oully dinds Configreat and dall have lears fter,

ou;) lvaand

k

3.

THE CONTENTS

Of the several CHAPTERS in the following Treatise.

CHAP. I.

THe Coherence of the Words. The Text divided. The Dostrine propounded. pag. 2. The Method laid down for the clearing and opening of it. What it is to redeem the Time: the Phrase in the Text may signify these four Things; 1. To buy back the Time that is past: In what sence that may be done. 2. To buy up the Time that is present; that is, to forgo or part with any thing for it; and to make it our own, and use it for our spiritual and eternal Advantage. (p. 5.) 3. Not only to buy it up, but to buy it out; to get it out of the hands of the Devil, and the World, and the distracting Cares, and tempting Pleasures of it. (p. 10.) 4. To use all Wariness and Wisdom of Behaviour to secure our selves from Snares, and to preserves our selves from spiritual Dangers, and from running rashly and unseasonably into any temporal Suffering and Calamity. (p. 11.)

b 2

CHAP.

KKKKH

CHAP. H. Hoar to ben prion to

What the Time is that ought to be redeemed, largely explained. Opportunity more than Time: 'tis Time with an Aptneß and Fitness it has for some good. The Opportunity to be redeemed is either General, or Particular: (p. 14.) The General is all the Time of our Enjoyment of the glorious Light of the bleffed Gospel. (p. 15.) The Particular Opportunity fivefold. 1. The Morning of our Age. The well-redeeming your younger Daies will be most acceptable to God, (p. 24) will make you more ferviceable to others, and prove most profitable to your selves. (p. 26.) They that redeem the Time of their Touth, are likely to redeem their riper Years. (p. 27.) Instances of those that have redeemed their youthful Daies. (p. 28.) 2. The Morning of the Week; the first Day of every Week. (p. 32.) Magistrates, (p. 47.) Ministers, (p. 48.) People, (p. 49.) Masters (p. 50.) and Servants, (p. 52.) Poor and Rich, (p. 54.) Should study to redeem this Opportunity, and take beed they redeem it not by halves. (p. 55.) Our Observation of the Lord's-Day a good help to the Redeeming of all the fix Daies foll mping, both as to Temporals, and as to Spirituals: (p. 66.) and a means to prepare us to keep an eternal Sabbath in Heaven. (p. 68.) Carefully redeem the Lord's-Day, and every Day after thew in thy Life that thou hast redeem'd it. (p. 72.) 3. The Morning of every Day; (p. 73.) That is an Opportunity of giving God the first and best of our Time. (p. 74.) By redeeming the Morning, we are likely to redeem the whole Day following. (p.76.) 4. The Society and Company of the most Religious and Godly: in which we have an happy Occasion both distributed I store the

Pi

es

The

of doing and of receiving good. (p. 78.) 5. The special Seasons of practising and performing Particular Duties, of getting and encreasing, acting and exercising Particular Graces, must be observed, embraced, and improved by us. (p. 79.)

CHAP. III.

The Grounds and Reasons why we ought to redeem the The special Reason laid down in the Text; because the Daies are evil. (p. 83.) What to be understood by evil Daies. Daies are said to be evil, not inherently, but adherently, or concomitantly; by reason of any finful, or penal Evil that befalleth in them. The Evil of the Day, is either General, or Special: General; the Shortness and Trouble, which does accompany the Time of this Life. (p. 84.) The Particular Evil of the Day is, when any special Evil takes place in such a Time. The particular Evil of the Apostles Times threefold. It stood, 1. in dangerous Errours and false Doctrines. (p. 85.) 2. In the vicious and wicked Lives of scandalous Professors of the Gospel. (p. 94.) 3. In sharp and hot Persecutions. (p. 109.) How far these several Evils are to be found in these our Daics. (p. 86, 95, 123.) Our redeeming of the Time, and endeavouring to grow better our felves, is the ready way, and only means to make the Evil Daies (p. 108.) better.

CHAP. IV.

Six other Reasons added to that in the Text. We ought to redeem the Time, 1. Because our Time is afforded us by God to this very End and Purpose, (p. 128.)

2. Because we have all of us lost much Time already,

b 3

ely

me be

of

ed

.)

A

r-

er

of

(p. 137.) 3. Because the Time, that remains, is very short and uncertain, and our Special Opportunities far shorter, and more uncertain; and she Work, we have to do, very great. (p. 141.) 4. Because we can neither bring Time back, when once it is past unimproved, nor any way prolong and lengthen out the Daies of our Lives, when Death comes to put an End and Period to them. (p. 158.) 5. Because we shall all be certainly called to an Account for our Time. (p. 161.) 6. Because this Time is all we can redeem, and upon this short Moment of Time depends long Eternity. (p. 165.)

CHAP. V.

The Use and Application of the Doctrine. Ought we to redeem the Time ? Then 1. Let not the Men of the World think strange, that serious and conscientious Christians do not lose their Time as desperately as they do. Good Men know the Worth of Time, and understand the great Consequences and weighty Concernments of well or ill husbanding of it. (p.171.) (Use 2.) Let us all examine our selves, and see whether we have redeem'd our Time, or no; bewail and bemoan our Loss of Time. (p. 172.) (Use 3.) A seasonable sharp Reproof of Several Persons, who are grofly guilty of misspending their Time. 1. A Reproof of those that misspend their Time in Idleness and Lasiness. (p. 179.) Ideness a Sin against our Creation, (p 180.) against our Redemption, (p. 182.) against our Bodies and Souls, against our Neighbour; (p. 283.) and an Inlet to many other Sins. (p. 186.) 2. Such Persons are justly censurable, who misspend their Time in excessive Sleep and Droufiness; which wastes, not only much of our Time, but the best of our Time too. (p. 190.) Im-

UMI

In

973

(1

Q.

(

2

L

Immoderate fleeping naught on any Day, but worst of all upon the Lord's-Day. (p. 191.) 3. Many misspend their Time in impertinent Employments. (p. 192.) 4. Many lose much precious Time in vain Thoughts. (p. 194.) 5. In vain Speeches. (p. 1992) 6. In vain Pleasures. (p. 209.) In Curiofity about Dreffing and Trimming the Body. (p. 206.) In making dainty Provision for the Belly. (p. 207.) In using unlawful, (p. 210.) or abusing lawful Recreations: either using them unseasonably, or else immoderately. (p. 211.) 7. In excessive, immoderate, worldly Cares. (p. 219.) 8. Some Persons are to be reproved for misspending their Time in Duties. 1. By performing them unseasonably. (p. 224.) 2. By doing them formally. 226.) Time lost in Duties by unseasonable Performance, two Waies: I. When one Duty thrusts and justles out another; and so the Duty is mistimed. (p. 224) 2. When Duty is perform'd at such a Time when we are most unfit for it. (p. 225.)

CHAP. VI.

The fourth and last Use is of Exhortation, (p. 229.) to Magistrates, Ministers, (p. 230.) the People in general. (p. 231.) Six quickening Motives to press the Duty of Redemption of Time. t. Consider how notably Jesus Christ redeem a the Time, when he was here in the World. (1.) He redeemed the Time to save m. (p. 232.) (2.) He redeem'd the Time, to be an Example to m. (p. 233.)

2. Consider further, that as Christ did once redeem the Time, to save ms; So the Devil does daily redeem the Time, to destroy m. (p. 236.) 3. Consider, how very notably many of the Saints and Servants of God have improved and redeemed their Time.

M771-

oxk.

ause

past

Out

an

ause

our

we

de-

5.)

me

of

en-

ely

ne,

bty

lee ail

...]

ho

A

Ss

yt

77, ft

e

(p. 241.) 4 Consider, that it is an Act of Spiritual Wildom to redeem the Time, (D. 252.) and meer Madness, and gross Folly, not to redeem the Time. (p. 253.) 5. Consider, that if now thou losest and squanderest away thy Time, thou wilt at last be forced thy self to condemn thy foolish Negligence, and to justify the Care and Diligence of others, that were wifer for their own Souls than thy felf. (p. 257.) 6. Consider, that do what we can to redeem our Time, we shall never repent at last of any Care we have had to redeem it, but shall certainly blame and find fault with our selves for being so careless of our Time, so negligent of good Opportunities as we have been. (p. 259.) Serious considerative Christians do blame themselves for their Loss of Time, even in their Life-time : (p. 260.) But they are especially sensible of it, and exceedingly ashamed of themselves for it, at their Death. (p. 262.)

CHAP. VII.

Direction 1. If ever we would redeem the Time, we must endeavour to be throughly convinced of the great Value, and real Worth of Time; In respect of the Price paid for it: In regard of the Use and End to which it ferves : (p. 268.) Considering what precious Thoughts the more improved Heathens had of Time: (p. 269.) And what damned Spirits, (p. 271.) and dying Persons who have not made their Peace with God, think of Time. (p. 272.) Direct. 2. If we would well redeem the Time, we must examine our selves, and call our selves to a serious Strict Account for the Spending of our Time. (p.277.) This was the Precept of Pythagoras; (p. 278.) and the Practice of Sextius, Seneca, (p. 279.) and Titus Vespalian. (p. 277.) Dir cure

Direct

Con

mill

Direc

live

Pre (p.

all-

van

con

one

tog

YOU

Go

3.

29 4.

Pi

be

01

bi

co

Dir

Dire

Direct. 3. That we may rightly redeem our Time, let Conficience have some Authority with us, and procure some Reverence from us. (p. 284.) Stand much in aw of thy own Conscience, (p. 285.) which will either acquit and absolve thee, or surely judg and condemnthee. (p. 286.)

Direct. 4 If ever me would redeem the Time, we must live and act, and do every thing as in the Sight and Presence, and under the Eye and Inspection of God. (p. 286.) The Apprehension of God's all-feeing, all-searching Eye, will be of excellent Use and Advantage to us at four times especially; 1. Actually consider that God sees you, when you ordinarily vilit one another, and at any time feast and make merry together. 2. When Buying or Selling, remember you are manifest in God's Sight, (p. 291.) that Godstands by and sees your Dealings. (p. 292.) 3. Consider this in your secret Retirements, (p. 292.) and in your private Families. (p. 294.) 4. When-sver we come to the publick Worship of God, let us seriously consider, that we stand in his Presence, and are in his Eye. (p.295.)

Direct. 5. That we may wifely redeem the Time, let's be fure to propound a good End to our felves in all our Asions, (p. 297.) and do nothing deliberately, but what we can fafely and freely, warrantably and comfortably ask God's Assistance in, and Blesling upon, when we go about it. (p. 300.)

Direct. 6. We must be sure to give our selves to Prayer, as a special Way in which, and principal Means and Help by which we may redeem and improve our Time aright. And here, 1. Be careful to keep up set and stated Times of Prayer: (p. 302.) of seret Prayer, (p. 303.) and Family-Prayer. (p. 304) 2. Be ready to betake thy self to Prayer, upon special, extraordinary, emergent Occasions.

Att

(Z.)

teem

now

wilt

gli-

ers,

(p. eem

are

une

of

we

ri-

6-

e-

of

2.)

we

at be to e-

of

Sy

(+

es

3. Use thy self to frequent, sudden, ejaculatory Prayers to God. (p. 313.) This is the Priviledg of Ejaculation, that it is a gaining of Time for the Exercise of Religion, without any Prejudice or Hindrance to your Calling. (p. 318.) Direct. 7. We must set our selves to the frequent diligent reading, and ferious studying of the sacred Scriptures. For 1. This is a gaining and making advantage of all that Time past which the Scripture gives us the History and Account of. (p. 320.) 2. Our Reading the boly Books of Scripture, is a well improving the present Time that is employed in this Religious Duty: for, 'tis an honouring of God; and a means of attaining divine Knowledg, (p.323.) beavenly Grace, (p. 324) and spiritual Comfort. (p. 325.) 3. It is moreover a means and help to the right redeeming of our Time for the future. (p. 327.)

Direct. 8. If we would effectually redeem the Time, we must give our selves to frequent and serious Meditation. (p. 347.) Set some Time apart for this Duty. (p. 348.) Think of the four last Things especially; 1. Of Death; of the Day of thy own particular Death, (p. 349.) and of the Time of the general Dissolution of the World. (p. 367.) 2. Of the Day of Judgment. (p. 376.) 3. Of the Joys of Heaven. (p. 388.) 4. Of the Torments of Hell.

(p. 432.)

Co

an

OI

T

th

P

Dire

Dire

Direct. 9. If you would redeem the Time, you must labour to spiritualize even your ordinary worldly Employments; and must take care that your natural, as well as civil Letions partake of Religion.

(p. 453.)

Direct. 10. If we would wifely redeem the Time, we must make a good Choice of our Friends and Acquaintance, and a good Improvement of our Company

Company and Society with them. (p. 463.)

Direct. 11. We must remember and consider, perform and answer our solemn Sacramental Vows, Occasional Promises, and Sick-bed Resolutions. (p. 488.)

Direct. 12. Lastly; If we would effectually redeem the Time, we must not give way to any Delay, but strengthen and settle our Resolution against any farther Procrastination. (p. 495.)

Errata

dden, pis is ng of

Pre-

18.)

dili-

icred

king

oture 20.) well this iod; 23.) omand fu-27.) we itauty. lly; lar ral the of iell.

2.) laily cuion.
3.) we de-

Errata in the Treatife.

Pag. 50.L.12. read warming. 64.L.22. Affembling. 143 14. fall. l. 16. feifeth. 157 l. 6-ment. 270. l. 14 their. 287. l. 17. be to be. 334 l. 1. Mouth. 349. l. 25. dele I Ufe. 378. l. 27. concern'd. 396. l. 30. will be. 398. t. 6. Apritude. 486 l. 23. Servants. 530. l. 1. ufe his.

Errata in the Quotations.

Pag. 63 l. 1. read Conftant. III. l. 7. 15. Annal. 137. l. 6. adbuc -- offe. 331. l. 4 na 34506: 342. l. 2. Hox 42009. 390. l. 2. divinorum animorum. 459. l. 2. futurantur. 484. l. 3. read p. 332. 486. l. ult. 33.

In the running Titles of the Epifile, for [Preface] read [Epifile Dedicatory.]

UMI

The

Redemption of Time a good Duty in evil Daies.

Ephes. 5. 16. Redeeming the Time, because the Daies are evil.

CHAP. I.

The Coherence of the Words. The Text divided. The Doctrine propounded. The Method laid down for the clearing and opening of it. What it is to redeem the Time: the Phrase in the Text may signify these four Things; (1.) To buy back the Time that is past: In what Sence that may be done. (2.) To buy up the Time that is present; that is, to forgo or part with any thing for it; and to make it our own, and use it for our spiritual and eternal Advantage. (3.) Not only to buy it up, but to buy it out; to get it out of the hands of the Devil, and the World, and the distracting Cares, and tempting Pleasures of it. (4.) To use all Warines and Wisdom of Behaviour to secure our selves from Snares, and to preserve our selves from spiritual Dangers, and from running rashly and unfeasonably into any temporal Suffering and Calamity.

B

The

4. fall.

17. be

.1.6. LT:

Ale

HE whole Chapter contains feveral Exhortations, fome to General, and others to Particular Duties. (1.) To General Duties, fuch as concern and oblige all forts of Christians; from the first to the 22th Verse. (2.) To spe-1.

11

in th

rend

Tim

past

ver,

forn

ly ir

ly li

But

ly t

and all c

our

the

and

ing

in u

ord

rece

Ca

ferr

cial and particular Duties, which relate particularly to Husbands and Wives, in their Carriage and Behaviour one towards another; from the 22th to the End.

In the former Part of the Chapter he gives general Exhortations, to a following of Gcd, verf. 1. to a walking in Love, in Imitation of Christ, vers. 2. to the fleeing of Fornication, and all Filthiness and Impurity, so much as in Word, or only by way of Jest; from the Beginning of the third, to the end of the fixth verse. To have no familiar Converse, no intimate Communion and Fellowship with the Wicked, but rather to reprove their evil Deeds, and wicked Works; from the feventh to the fifteenth verse. And to that end to walk circumspectly and wifely, and to express their Circumspection and Christian Wisdom by this excellent good Effect of it, the Redeeming of their Time; in the 15th, and 16th verses; See then that ye walk circumspettly, not as Fools, but as wife, redeeming the Time, because the Daies are evil.

The Words of my Text do easily break into these two Parts; (1.) A Duty, redeeming the Time; and (2.) a special Ground and Reason of the Duty, because the Daies are evil. I begin with the former.

It is the Duty of a Christian to redeem the Time. For Explication of the Duty I shall shew

I. W. at

1. What it is to redeem the Time.

II. What the Time is, that is to be redeemed.

I. What it is to redeem the Time. The Word in the Original imports and fignifies feveral things.

1. The greek Word εξαγρεφζόμενοι is commonly rendred redimentes, redeeming. Now to redeem Time, is properly to buy back the Time that is past, to regain Time formerly misspent, to recover, as it were, the Jewel of Time that has been formerly lost. Time once let slip is indeed physically irrecoverable. We can never truly and properly live one Day, one Hour of our Livesover again. But in a moral Consideration Time is accounted as regained:

(1.) When we feriously consider, and [a] sadly think upon our former evil Waies; [b] weep and wail over our past Sins, lament and repent of all our lost and misspent Time, and wish with all our Hearts and Souls that we had ordered aright the whole Course of our Conversations, and lived and acted alwaies as we ought; and by condemning our selves for our old Follies, undo (as far as in us lies) whatever formerly we have ill done.

And (2.) when by double Diligence, and extraordinary Care, and Endeavour, we do that in the

2 re-

s feve-

Gene-

or Du-Duties,

ige all

ne first

cular-

e and 2th to gene-

1. to

rf. 2.

and

y of

nd of

o in-

Wic-

and

enth

and

and

ft of

and not the

nese and unse

at

^[4] Ovortebat quidem, si seri posset, revivere me (ut ita loquar) denuo, quod male vixi; sed quia hoc non possum, faciam recogitando, quod reoverando non possum. Bernard. serm de Cantic. Ezechix Regis.

[[]b] Tempus redimimus, quando anteastam vitam quam liferriendo perdidimus, flendo reparamus. Gregorius lib. 5. E post. Moral. c. 28.

remaining Part of our Life, which should have been in fome good measure done before, and which is ordinarily work enough for a Man's whole Life: As a Traveller that has staied too long by the Way, when he finds the Day is far fpent, and that it is not long to Night, he puts on, and makes all hafte and speed, and goes as many Miles in a few Hours as he did before in many. Or, as a Merchant who has fuffered very great Losses, doubles his Diligence in his future Traffic, and fo gets up his E-Itate: in which Sence both the Traveller and Merchant are said to redeem their Time. Christian, by his Activity and Industry extraordinary, does , as it were , recover his lost Time, he does in effe ?t redeem it. To live much in a little Time, is in a manner as good, as if the very Time past were really lived over again: it is in some sence as much as if the same Time were return'd into our hands, because the same thing, which should have been done in the whole course of our Life, is effectually done in some one Part of it better employed than the rest of it.

Neither is this any Encouragement to a wicked Person to loose and let go the present Time, because it may be redeem'd again after a sort; for they that thus redeem it, must pay full dear for it; and 'tis very uncertain, whether he that now lets it slip, shall ever have the happiness to redeem it hereafter, though at the highest Rate that can be That is the first particular, it is to buy back the Time that is past: and this comes nearest to the Latin Word [redimentes] [redeeming] the Time.

2. The Greek Word ¿ξαγος αζόμ γιοι does not necessarily suppose a former Possession of what is now bought, the forther and the is profile if fignithen Time way fession ( forgus f

thing

or g

what mak

all T

to b curi
Wa
littl fma
that

thei

est 1

.

bought, but properly fignifies [c] buying only, or the parting with one Thing for the purchasing of another. The word is properly rendred emercantes, and may be well translated buying the Time. pedlewas then may fignify, not only to buy back the Time that is past, but to buy up the Time that is present: and this is rather intended by the Apofile in the Text. Now if we take redeeming here to fignify no more than buying or purchasing, it speaks then these [d] two Things; (1.) Redeeming the Time is the forgoing of any thing that would any way hinder us from taking the Time. (2.) The making it our own, by using and improving it to all possible Advantages: as in buying a thing [1.] we pay the Price of it, then take it into our Poffellion and Use.

(1.) Redeeming, or buying the Time, it is the forgoing of any thing that would any way hinder us from taking the Time: For if you part with nothing, fays [e] St. Austin, and yet get something you had not before; you either found it, or had it given you, or got it by Inheritance: but when you part with somewhat to purchase somewhat, then you buy a Thing.

Beza upon the Place, makes the Redeening here to be a Metaphor taken from Merchants, who very curiously and carefully consider what the several Wares and Commodities be, and ever preser a little Profit before much Pleasure, and choose a small Gain before great Delights. We daily see, that they who use Markets and Fairs will lay aside their Pleasures and Recreations, and often lose.

B 3 their re been

hich is

e Life:

Way,

at it is

l hafte

Hours

t who

Dili-

his E-

1 Mer-

us the dinary,

locs in me, B

t were much

nands

been

tually

than icked

be-

; for or it;

v lets

em it in be.

k the

o the

ime,

t ne-

now

ight,

[[]c] A Lapide in loc. [d] Eayne in loc.

[[]e] Perde aliquid, ut Deo vaces : Ex co quod perdis, pres:um eff temporis, &c. August, in text. Hom. 10. inter 50.

their fleep, and their fet meals, and deny them-Telves many Conveniencies for the present, that so they may closely attend their Businesses, and know and take their Advantages, and may not lose any good Bargain, but be fure to meet with the best [g] Wares, and to lay out their Money for the choicest Commodities. Thus, in a spiritual Sence, we should be greedy and covetous Buyers of the Time; we should be wise [h] Merchants, let any thing go to gain the Time; be willing to bestow our Care, Pains, [i] Labour, Diligence, which is, as it were, our Money, which we give for the Commodity of an opportunity of doing or receiving good: be ready to forgo and part with our Ease or Pleasure, our Profit and temporal Advantage, our Honour and Esteem in the World, rather than lose the blessed Occasion of trading for Heaven, and improving our Time for fpiritual Advantage. [k] Sectorius the Roman General, in his Passage into Spain, yielded to pay the Tribute demanded by certain barbarous People, that inhabited the Pyrenean Mountains, over which he was to pass; at which his Souldiers were offended, and faid, that it was too much Shame and Dishonour for a Proconful of Rome to pay Tribute to vile barbarous People: but the wife Commander gave his Souldiers this fober Answer, that he bought a Commodity, which such as affire to high Enterprizes, must take up readily

[] A Lapide in loc.

read

more

deen

any hard

here

ption

of T

To flee

and us fro

faies

away

Lei/

the

Tin

to th

ful,

Fait

even

Bar

tho

id ef

pena

beli

nobs

Chr

T

So

[[]h] No Man is a better Merchant than he, that lays out his Time upon God, and his Money upon the Poor. Bp. Taylor's Rule of Hol. Lif. c. 1. p. 3.

^[1] To redeem the Time, is properly, to buy the security of it at the Plate of any Labour and honest Arts. Id. th. cap. 1. sec. 1.

^{[&}amp;] Pletarch. in vita Sertorii.

7

readily at any Rate. And should not we be much more willing to give any Rate for the spiritual Redeeming of Time? surely we should not stick at any thing; we should not think Time dear, or an hard Bargain, whatever it costs us.

Somewhat to be fure it will cost us; and Calvin here puts the Question, quodnam erit pretium redemptionis? what Price must we give for the redeeming of Time? The Price is plainly this, [1] faies he, To shun the infinite Snares that would entangle us, to free our selves from the Cares and Pleasures of the World, and to renounce and part with whatever would hinder us from using our Time aright. To redeem the Time, faies [m] Zanchy, is only not to suffer Time to slip away unfruitfully, that we may enjoy our Pleasure and Leisure; but rather than lose our Time, to suffer the Loss of any thing. He is faid to redeem the Time (faies the Reverend [n] Davenant) who yields to the worst Conditions that can be, so they be but lawful, that he may be able to cleave to God, to hold the Faith, and to keep a clear and a good Conscience. Whatever he paies for it, he counts this a very good Bargain. * Daniel would redeem Time for Praier, though he ventur'd his very Life for it. † David had B 4 [1] Calvin. in-loc. [m] Zanchius in loc.

hem-

hat fo

know

e any

r the

f the flow

b is,

ving

Eale

age,

than

ven,

age.

in-

by

yre-

hat

eo-

ers

lily

his r's

Fie

I.

[[]n] Dav. in Coloff. 4. 5. Vos adhortor ut redimatus tempus, id est, ut quovus pretio tempus hoc salutare faciatis vebis liberum ad serviendum Deo. Potius patimini bonorum temporalium dispendis, quam ut ea cum aliquo salutus aut Euangelis dispendio velitus retinere. Estius in text.

Tempus tedimere, est, occasionem & opportunitatem, qua se nobis offert, deligenter captare, & cum damus etiam aliquo & jactura commodorum nostrorum illam arripere. Crelius ethic. Christian, p. 32.

^{*} Dan. 6, 10. † 2 Sam 6, 20.

had rather be mockt and despis'd by Michal, and lose his Honour, than part with a special Opportunity of dancing before the Ark. A fincere Chriftian had rather be fcorn'd and nick-nam'd, reproached and reviled, than neglect any special good Season of honouring his God, and advantaging his own or others Souls. The Apostles would * fuffer Shame, endure Reproaches and Imprisonments, rather than omit any Occasion of teaching and preaching Jesus Christ. Rather than the Primitive Christians would lose any Advantage of ferving God, and confulting their Souls good, they would † fuffer joyfully the spoiling of their Goods: yea, rather than lose that, they would lose their very Life and Bloud. | I am ready, not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem, for the Name of the Lord Jesus. This was the Price St. Paul was ready to give to redeem the Time for Christ's Service. [o] Moses, the adopted Son of Pharaoh's Daughter, a Person brought up at Court, who had the Education of a Prince, and large Expectations of rare and extraordinary temporal Advantages; when he came to Age, and well understood the inviting alluring Circumstances of a temporal Felicity, and was most capable of tasting the Pleasures of a prosperous State, and Courtly Life; this Moses, at this

* Acts 4. 41. † Heb. 10. 34. | Acts 11.13.

this !

and

of b gair

Ret

and

Peo

fifth

Sor

ing

Ser

his

fur

en

Pe

So

va

va

W

no

ar

T

i

[[]o] Musculus, communibus suffragius Prior electus, rejecit eum homorem: iatelligens nimirum hoc agere Satanam, ut à pio proposite ipsum retraherer, E hoc quasi vinculo injecto, huic vita generi magis obstringeret, anio, i nque propaganda veritatis studio arcentem, hu quasi homorum E deliciarum lenocinis emoliciet. Melch. Adam, in vit. Musc. p. 372.

Heb. 11. 24, 25, 26.

this Time, was willing to part with the Pleasures and Treasures of Egypt, and refused the Honour of being called the Son of Pharaoh's Daughter, to gain an Opportunity of bearing the honourable Reproach of Christ, and of suffering out of Choice and Election most comfortable Affliction with the People of God. And so the famous Galeacine Caracciolus, a Courtier to the Emperour Charles the fifth, Nephew to Pope Paul the fourth, and the only Son, and lawful Heir of the Marques of Vico; being powerfully wrought upon by Peter Martyr's Sermon (like another Moses) [p] he freely for sook his Marquesdom, the Riches, Honors, and Pleafures of Italy, and of the Emperour's Court; to enjoy God, and the Purity of the Gospel, and the Peace of his Conscience, and the Fellowship and Society of the People of God, in a mean and private Condition in a poor Geneva; notwithstanding variety of mighty entifements from his Father, his Wife, his Children, and Acquaintance, to renounce the Profession of the Reformed Religion, and to return to Popery. To redeem, or buy the Time, it is to part with somewhat to gain the Time. And then,

(2.) To improve and make the best of it for our good. To buy the Time is [q] to make it our own: now we make the Time our own, when we make a special Advantage of it; when we employ and lay it out in doing whatever we do to the * Glory of God, when

and

ppor-

Chri-

, re-

anta-

rould

ison-

hing

Pri-

they

ds:

und

the

ady

rice.

ter,

du-

are

hen

ing

0-

at

his

d

is

4-

[[]p] See Calvin's c'edicatory Epissle to Galeacius, before his Commentary upon the sirst to the Corinhians.

^[9] de sed est raseot est "tolor mier. Sie Scholia. "tolor mierm moistold, quando in spso bene operamur, ut placeamus Dec. Linch. m loc.

¹ Cor. 10. 31.

when we spend it to the good † of others, when we use our Time to || work out our own Salvation with Fear and trembling , to make our (*) Calling and Election sure, to get and grow in Grace, to provide for our precious immortal Souls, and to settle and secure our everlasting State and eternal Welfare. That is the second Sense of the Words.

3. Exampodicoaixaie iv, it is not only to buy up the Time, but also to buy it out: and this is the most proper rendring of the Word. As when you fee others watch and wait for a Commodity which is for their turn, and you presently clap hold upon it, and lay down the Price of it, before any one else can get it into their hand: So, to redeem the Time, it is to gain it out of Hucksters hands, as I may fay. Pleasure and Play, on the one side; or overmuch Labour and excellive Care for the things of the World, on the other fide; thefe, or fuch things as these, have got the Poliesion of our Time at present, or at least are ready to seise and lay hold upon it. Now we should not suffer them to engrossit, but by all means strive to keep it out, or else to recover it out of their hands, that we may make a special Use and Benefit of it. Our Time must be gain'd out of the hand of the World, yea out of the hand of the very Devil, who is continually busie to get Possession of it. Since the World is so corrupt, the Devil seems, faies (r) Calvin, to exercise such a Tyranny, that our Time cannot be consecrated

crateo

deeme

Phra

the S

use b

Word

the 1

ing t

Can

fave

Sna

arti

evi

[HA

pta

fide

ma

of

evi

Sea

Pi

pr

he O

le

1

[†] Gal. 6. io. | Phil. 2. i2. (*) 2 Pet. i. 10.

crated and devoted to God, unless it be after a fort re-

4. The learned [s] Dr. Hammond faies, that the Phrase of Redeeming the Time, of gaining or buying the Scason, seems to be a Proverbial Expression, which use had made to signify more than the very Letter of the Words imported: and he produceth several Instances out of Authors, from which he gathers, that the meaning of redeeming, or buying out, or gaining the Time, is this; for Christians to use good Caution and Cunning, Wisdom and Dexterity, to fave themselves from Spiritual Dangers, and the Snares that are near their Souls: to use all prudent artificial Devices; to preserve themselves from the evil Times in which they live; Times of carnal Sen-Juality, and high Corruption; and so of great Temptation, and present Danger to their Souls. Befides this primary meaning of the Phrase, he saies it may be applied also to that other Prudence for avoiding of Persecutions, as those are expressed in Scripture by evil Daies: not to throw our selves upon Dangers unseasonably, where there is no probable Advantage in our Prospect: but to speak and exhort when it is likely to prosper, and at other Times to refrain. And this, saies he, may properly be styled gaining the Time, watching Opportunities; and when interposing would prove gainles, then to hold the peace, and expett some fitter Seafon. And in this latter Sense the most learned [t] Grotius expounds the Phrase : Redeem the Time, faics he; that is, by any Pains and Labour, and by all fair Language, and respective Speeches, and innocent condescending Carriages, avoid the Dangers of

when

ition

Cal-

d to

ter-

the

buy

the

Ou

ich

on

lfe

he

I

e;

he

or

ır

d

n

^[1] Annotat, on Ephel. 5. not. (e) [1] Grotius in loc.

the Times you live in, and lengthen out your own Tranquillity.

Thus I have opened the First Term, and shewn you what is meant by the εξαγοραζόμιζου, commonly translated [redeeming] the Time. The Phrase may signify these four Things, to buy back the Time that is past; to buy up the Time that is present; that is, to forgo and part with any thing for it, and so to make it our own, and use it for our spiritual and eternal Advantage. Again, not only to buy it up, but to buy it out; to get it out of the hands of the Devil, and the World, and the distracting Cares, and tempting Pleasures of it. And lastly, to use all Warines and Wisdom of Behavious, all prudent and pious Arts, to secure our felves from Snares, and to preserve our felves from spiritual Dangers, and from running rashly and unfeafonably into any temporal Suffering and Calamity.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

What the Time is that ought to be redeemed, largely explained. Opportunity more than Time: 'tis Time with an Aptneß and Fitneß it has for some good. The Opportunity to be redeemed is either General, or Particular: The General is all the Time of our Enjoyment of the glorious Light of the bleffed Gospel. The Particular Opportunity five-fold. (1.) The Morning of our Age. The well-redeeming your younger Daies will be most acceptable to God, will make you more serviceable to others, and prove most profitable to your selves. They that redeem the Time of their Youth, are likely to redeem their riper Years. Iustances of those that have redeemed their youthfu! Daies. (2.) The Morning of the Week; the first Day of every Week. Magistrates, Ministers, People, Masters and Servants, Poor and Rich, Should study to redeem this Opportunity, and take heed they redeem it not by halves. Our Observation of the Lord's Day a good help to the Redeeming of all the ax Daies following, both as to Temporals, and as to spirituals. (3.) The Morning of every Day; that's an Opportunity of giving God the first, and best of By redeeming the Morning, we are likely to redeem the whole Day following. (4.) The Society and Company of the most Religious and Godly: in which we have an happy Occasion both of doing and of receiving good. (5.) The special Seasons of practising and performing Particular Duties, of getting and encreasing, acting and exercising Particular Graces, must be observed, embraced, and improved by us.

II. What

Tran-

ewn

The

back

t is

ning

for

not

of

the

it.

ba-

ur

es

ly

id

II. 17 Hat is the Time that is to be thus redeem'd. What is meant here by Tov xaleiv. This Word is sometimes used largely and indifferently, to note Time in common; which is only the Succession of so many Minutes, Hours, Daies, or Years, one after another, from the Beginning of a Man's Life to the End thereof. So xaip is is all one with xe ov . But most properly xase is taken in a narrower Sense than xe évo, and is used to denote, not Time simply, but [a] Opportunity, Time with Advantage. Opportunity is the Cream of Time, the Flower of Time. And in this Sense we must take the xaze ov here in the Text: not only for the passing away of Hours, and sliding away of Minutes, for the bare Space, and mere Leisure of any thing; but for proper Seasons, fair Occafions, good Hours, and fit Opportunities: Opportunity is Time with an Aptness and Fitness that it has for fome good, with a fuitableness and serviceableness to our use and Advantage: 'tis a meeting of Time and Meanstogether, for the accomplishing of our End, and the effecting of any Work or Business.

Now Opportunity is either General or Particular.

The

on

Li

tu

ou

tin

to

W

gr

ci

ar

CC

gi

V

b

1

[a] Πολλός εν καιρώ γρόν Φ. Tempus actionis opportunum, Grace dinascia. Lat ne appellatur Occasio. Modestia sut & prudentia est scientia opportunitatis; idoneorum ad agendum temporum. Cic. l. 1. de Ossic.

Obique in opportunitate multum est sium, & plurimum prodest, suo rem quamque facere tempore; quemadmodum alieno eandem facere, sape etiam nocet: --- Certe vel primum est prudentia officium, vel inter prima, occasionem & videre & non pratermittere. Crellius Eth. Christ. p. 33.

The General Opportunity to be redeemed.

The whole Course of our Lives is a General Opportunity of doing and receiving good. We are to look upon all our Time, which we live under the glorious Light of the bleffed Gospel, as an happy Opportunity of laying out our felves for God, and for our own and others Advantage. When God continues the Gospel among us; when he daily calls us to Faith and Repentance; when he stands ready with Strength and Affiftance; when he publisheth great and precious Promifes; when the golden Scepter is held out by God to us, as it was to * Esther by Ahasuerus; when gracious Offers, merciful Tenders, kind and loving Invitations are made and repeated, and very fweet and comfortable Encouragements propounded and affured to penitent Sinners in the Ministery of the Word; this is + space given for Repentance: this is a golden Season of Grace, in which we may have Christ, and all his precious and faving Benefits, upon the reasonable Terms and acceptable Conditions of the Gospel. When the Trumpet of the Jubile foundeth; when Liberty to the Captives, and the Opening of the Prison to them that are bound is proclaimed; Behold now is the accepted Time; behold, now is the Day of Salvation : O | receive not the Grace of God in vain : lose not so long and large a Season: make your Advantage of the Time of the Gospel, be thankful for it, and faithful in the Use and Improvement of it: close with the Gospel, and daily and earneftly

s-re-

xal-

on-aies,

ning

os is ès is

ıfed

rity ,

eam

enfe

nly

vay

ure

ca-

)p-nat

r-

et-

h-

or

n-

ie

^{*} Efter g. 2. † Rev. 3. 2i. | 2 Cor. 6. i, 3.

nestly endeavour and pray that it may be made effectual to you.

Repent, believe, sincerely obey in this thy Day.

Repent: think upon thy Waies, be forry for thy Sins: hate them, for sake them: repent with a Repentance from dead Works, never to be repented of. So change thy Mind, as to change thy Manners, to reform and alter the Course of thy Life for the future. So truly repent, as to take care to bring forth Fruits meet for Repentance.

Believe, not with a bare historical, a meer intellectual Faith; not with an idle, dronish, wholly ineffectual Assen; but with a [b] practical, active, operative Belief.

So believe the Word of God, as to take it feriously, and in good earnest, for the only Rule of thy Conversation, in Matters necessary to Salvation. So firmly receive and assent to the Divine Testimony, as to have thy Heart rightly assected, and thy Life powerfully influenced by it. So cordially believe the Truth of the Gospel, as to resolve, and on all Occasions to endeavour to carry suitably to such Belief; to live and act as a Person that does indeed believe it, and to answer the end for which Di-

Credere in Deum est credendo amare, credendo diligere, credendo in eum ste, & membris ejus incorporari. div

800 as t fpe

Ma

and 25 bra

COL

W

as

to

an

C

G

qu

CO

fe ce

m

Da

th

CE

tŀ

[[]b] Fortasse unusquisque apud seipsum dicet: Ego jam credidis, salvus ero: verum dicet, si fidem operibus tenet: vera etenim fides est, qua in boc quod verbis dicet, moribus non contradicit.

Fidei nostra veritatem in vita nostra consideratione debemus agno cere. Greg, Hon. 29. in Euang.

Putasne Filium Dei lesam reputat quisquis ille est homo, qui ipsium nec terretur comminationibus, nec attrabitur promissonibus, nec praceptis obsemperat, nec consiliss acquieses? Nonne is, etiamsi fatestur se nosse Deum, fastis tamen negat? Bernard. in Octav. Pasc. de tribus Testim. in coelo & ter, sem. i. p. 88.

divine Truth was revealed, which is the bringing us to good Lives.

So yield Assent to the Doctrine of the Gospel, as to close and comply with the Terms of the Gospel, and heartily to consent to the whole Duty of Man, contain'd and delivered in the Word or God and Cospel of Christian and Gospel of Christ.

le ef-

rthy

th a nted Van-

e for

e to

inolly

ive,

eri-

of ati-

Te-

and ally

and

to

oes

rich

Di-

di-

im

it.

W MS

re-

7948 ni-

11.

So affent to the Commands of the Gospel as true, as withal to love and like them, to choose and embrace them as good, and as good for thee, yea as incomparably better for thee to observe, than any other Rule that possibly can be respected by thee, whatever they cause thee to lose or suffer here in this World. So give your undoubted Assent to them, as to cleave closely, and stick invincibly to them, against all stattering, or affrighting Temptations to the contrary; and still to engage, and charge, and provoke thy self, to conform thy whole Heart and Life to them.

Farther; So affent to the Truth of the Gospel-Promifes, as to take care to perform the necellary Conditions of them: to trust in the Promises of the Gospel with an obediential Affiance, with an obsequious and dutiful Reliance: to trust in them, according to the Tenour of them: to trust in the Promifes of Pardon and Remission, in the Exercise of sincere and unfeigned Repentance: and in the Promises of Sanctification, in the Use of Gospel-Ordinances and Means, and diligent Improvement of the Grace of God already communicated and received: and in the Promises of Life everlatting, in the way of new and fincere Obedience. Affent to the Promises, not only that they are true and real; but that they are also the most valuable that can be; *exceeding

^{*} a Pet 1 4.

treding great and precious Promifes: fo as to prefer the Promifes of God above all the Proffers of the World, as better than any thing that the Devil can offer, or the World afford.

Farther yet; So affent to the Truth of the Threatnings of the Word, as to fear and stand in aw of them, and to study to avoid those Sins, which will put thee in Danger of temporal and eternal Sufferings; and to keep thy self free from the Fear of the Menaces of Men, while thou art in the way of thy Duty to God.

Believe the whole Word of God; and Believe in all the Persons of the holy and blessed Trinity. So assent to the Truth of whatsoever is spoken in the Scripture of God, and Christ, and the Spirit of God and Christ, as deliberately to choose God the Father, Son, and holy Ghoit, for thy Portion and Treasure, thy Happiness and chief Good.

To bring thy Heart to own, love, honour, ferve and worship God the Father, as thy good and bountiful Creator and Preserver, and very merciful God Redeemer by Jesus Christ: and freely and gladly to consent to have God the Father for thy Covenant-Friend, and reconciled gracious Father.

And to accept, with all Love and Thankfulness, even a crucified Christ, for thy only Lord and Saviour, to bring thee to God, thy chiefest Good, by reconciling thy Person and Nature to him; to recover and bring thee back both in Heart and Life to God: and to rest and rely upon Christ, and on God only in and through Christ, for Justification, Sanctification, and eternal Salvation, according to the Promises of the Gospel.

Cor-

her

the

to ne

ter

WI

his

bu

to me

ne

un

ou

Pe

T

bec

m

of

cf

fu

hi

C

ft

F.

Cordially receive him in all his Offices. And

here.

pres of De-

the

d in

de-

rom in ffed

' IS

the ofe thy bief

ur,

nd

ci-

ly

or a-

ſs,

y

1. Accept of Christ as a Priest, to fave thee by the offering of himfelf a Sacrince in thy flead, and by making Intercession on thy behalf. And labour to answer the ends of his Death, by Purity and Holiness of Heart and Life: and to act becoming his Intercession: to live so, as it may be fit for Christ with Honour to present your Works and Services to his Father, to be accepted by him: to do nothing but what is worthy of fuch a Mediatour as Christ is, to present unto God on your behalf. Now tell me, is any act of Prophaneness, Sin and Wickednels, a fit Action for Christ to take, and present unto his Father for Divine Acceptance? Certainly our Actions must have the Truth, though not the Perfection of good Works: for otherwise twere a Thing unbefeeming Christ to prefent them, and unbecoming God to accept them : for in so doing, Christ must become a Patron of Sin; and God an Owner of the Works, and an Encourager of the Workers. of Iniquity. Other take care that your Actions be fuch as may be fit to be presented by Christ unto his Father, and to be accepted by God, in and thorough Christ. This is the Way to honour Christ confidered as a Priest.

2. Accept of Christ as a Prophet, to teach and infiruct thee; thorowly to seach both thy Head and Heart: and be willing and forward to learn of Christ, and to be taught by him the Truth as it is in Jesus, and to prosit both by his Dostrine and Example.

3. Accept of Christ, not only for thy Priest and Saviour; and for thy Prophet, Teacher and Instructour, but for thy wise and holy Law-giver, and for thy soveraign King and Governour, to rule and to reign over thee. Give up thy felf in hearty Subjection to the Person and Authority of Christ, and [6] vow and be ready to perform fincere Obedience to all the Particular Commands of Christ. When others cry, these are hard Sayings, who can bear them? do you profess that his Commands are not grievous; and do thou fay from thy very Heart. I delight to do thy Will, O Christ. Love and Delight in the Laws of Christ, and choose and strive to keep and observe them, when others censure, break and violate them. While other Men dishonour Christ, and put him to an open Shame, and cause his worthy Name to be blasphemed; let thy Life lead Men to high and excellent Thoughts of Christ, and of his Laws, and Waies, and Government. This is the right Acceptance of Christ, so * to receive Christ Jesus the Lord, as to purpose and endeavour to walk in him.

and and

And then for the other Act of Faith; Have not only a bare Opinion of Christ's Fidelity, but trust in Christ with a practical Trust: So thoroughly trust him, as to venture all thy Happiness on him in his own way. Trust him so far, as to be sincerely and heartily willing to leave and for sake all to solow him: to part with Sin, and the World, yea Life it self for him, who will not suffer thee to be finally [c] Credere se in Christ in quonodo dicit, qui non sacit quod Christins sacere pracepis? aut unde perveniet ad pramium sidei, qui sidem non vult servare mandati? Cyrianus de Eccles.

* Coloff 2.6.

fina

all!

vifi

Bel

ly C

Con

San

for up

cre

Ch

Spi

Fri

Fai

and

let

for (pe

con

the

Ho

ter

Ch

of

is i

oth

we

Th

an

on

D

Quid est credulitat ve fides ? opinor fideliter bominem Christo credire, id est, si clem Deo esse, boc est, hdeliter Dei mandata servare. --- Christsani homines insideles sunt, si bona sibi à Deo assenta cerruperint. Salvian. de Gubenn. Dei, lib. 3.

finally a Lofer by him: to be ready to relinquish all that thou feelt and possessible here, for things invisible, which Christ hath promised to render to the Believer in the other World.

And so believe what is said concerning the Holy Ghost, as heartily to believe in the Holy Ghost: Consent to take him for thy Teacher, and Guide; Sanctisser, and Quickner; Advocate, and Comforter.

Enter into folemn Covenant with, refign and give up thy felf to the Worship and Service of the sacred Trinity. Be fully resolved to live to God and Christ; and to worship in the Spirit, to be led by the Spirit, to walk in the Spirit, and to bring forth the Fruits of the Spirit.

Believe, and learn to live by Faith; and let thy; Faith work by Love, and shew it self by good Works, and be productive of the Obedience of Faith. And let thy Obedience be voluntary and cheerful, uniform and universal, constant and perpetual.

Thus, thus improve the precious Season of Gofpel-Light, Grace, and Strength, by plainly and fully coming up to the Terms, and faithfully performing the great and necessary Conditions of the Gospel. Honour and glorify the Lord Jesus Christ, by entertaining, and walking worthy of the Gospel of Christ.

There was a memorable Statue fet up in the Isle of Rhodes, in honour of the Sun, which once a Day is faid to shine upon that Island, be the Air in all other Parts never so overcast with Clouds. But we enjoy a greater and higher Priviledg than they: The Sun of Righteousness shines upon this our Island, and affords the Light of the blessed Gospel, not only once every Day, but all the Day long every Day: And now shall we be so blind and unchank-

i 3 ful,

arty

rut,

Obe-

nrift.

can

eart,

De-

ve to reak

THOO

aufe

Life

rilt,

ent.

78-

en-

not rust

ruft

his

rely fol-

yea

be

ally

pood

des,

clef.

ifto

Des

ful, as to take no notice of it; so idle and careles, as to make no use of it? Since the Light of the Gospel does clearly and sweetly beam out in our Faces, when the Air is dark abroad, and many other places are cover'd with the thick Clouds of Ignorance; let us * rejuce in the Light, and | walk in the Light of the Glorious Gospel, as Children of the || Light, and of the (*) Day; and then we shall be as so many Statues set up in Honour of Christ the Sun of Righteousness, that shines in his Lustre and Strength upon us,

But belides the General Opportunity of the Continuance of the Gospel, which is afforded to many all their Life long: I say, besides this, there are some Parcels and Pertions of our Lives, some Daies and Hours of our Time, that are Particular and special Opportunities above others; as namely these tollowing.

The first Particular Opportunity to be redeemed.

1. The Morning of our Age: the Time of Youth, and Health, and Strength: this is an Opportunity of providing for Eternity: this is a ht Scafon of working out our Salvation; of laying up in store against a Time of Sickness, an Hour of Weakness, and the Day of Death. This is a Time, wherein [a] both Body and Mind are strong and vigorous,

* Joh. 5. 35. + 1 Joh. 1. 7. | Eph. 5. 8.

go pa

W

Pa

10 ber

ch

Te

(u

th

de

th

1

th

tr

fa

h

p

E

1

T

[[]a] Juvenos possumue discore, possumue sacchem auimaim, E adnuc trastabilem, ad meliora convertere: bec tempue idenoumest laboribue idoneum agitandis, er studia ingeniis, E exercent, per opera corporibus. L'od superest, segnime E languicide est, E propièr à fine. L'orimue quisque tanquam opsimue disriplaceat, E religatur in nostrum, Den. ep. 194.

gorous. This is an Age meet for Impression, capable of Instruction, and fit for Action. The Wife Man calls young Men to redeem this choicett Part of their Time : to think of him early, who lov'd and minded us fo early (Ecclef. 12. 1.) Remember now thy Creator in the Daies of thy Youth, Ithy choice Daies while the evil Daies come not, nor the Tears draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no Pleafure in them. The Daies of Youth are good Daies : the Time of Health and Strength is a good Time indeed: Now the Understanding is quick and perceptive, the Memory strong and retentive, and the Body able and fit for Service and Employment, The Daies of old Age, they are evil Daies: then the Eyes grow dimm, the Ears dear, the Hands tremble, the Legs are feeble, and the Memory fails. Old Folk they can't do as they have done: they can't follow the Markets, and manage Household-Businesles, and order the Affairs of their Families and Callings, with fuch quickness and dispatch as formerly. Now, if Old Age be unfit for any Action, then'to be fure 'tis most unfit for the Exercises of Religion; it is most weak and strengthless here. Pray tell me, what wilt thou do to remember thy Creator then when thy Memory fails thee? Wilt thou be fit to turn to God, when thon art unable to turn thy felf in thy Bed? how canft thou ferve the Lord thy God with all thy Strengeli, when almost all thy Strength is gone?

Such of me as have been prodigal of this precious Time, let us lay our Lofs to heart, and mourn in fecret for it. What a fad Confideration is it, that many of us have made our felves uncapable of taking Solomon's excellent Counfel. They that have already fpent their Youth in youthful Lufts, they are not in a Capacity of remembring their Creator in

4

fs,as ofpel

ces,

pla-

nce;

ight,

ma-

of

gth

nti-

any

are ales.

and

lefe

th,

on to

in k-

e,

/i-

15

the Daies of their Youth. All that fuch can do, is only, with an holy Shame, and Godly Sorrow, to remember in Confession before God, that they have not remembred what in due Time they ought to have remembred; and to beg of God, that for Christ his sake he would not in Judgment remember their non-remembrance; but that he would in Mercy remember them, though they han't as they ought remembred him.

But now for fuch, as have not as yet past the Daies of their Youth; O let them prize, and presently improve these precious Daies and Hours; O year have of (as the wise Pittaeus once said) know Time, know this particular Time; lose not, if possible, a Minute of it. 'I will be grievous to * possess the Sins of your Touth in your Old Age.

Now for your encouragement to redeem this Part of your Time, consider seriously these few Things;

1. I hat the early Redemption of your youthful Daies, for the Honour, and Worship, and Service of God, will be very pleasing and acceptable to him. God of old required that the first ripe Fruits, and the First-born should be dedicated to him: and his Sacrifices he would have to be young; to show that he delights in the Flower of Age, and well accepts the + kindnesses of our Youth. As in the distilling of Waters, that which is drawn off first, is the strongest, and sullest of Spirits; and the last is the weakest and smallest; Or, as in the pouring out of a Bottle, or drawing out of a Vessel (to use [c] Seneca's

* lob13.26. † Jer. 2. 2.

neca?

come

moit

foth

wor

him

Gcd

him

his 7

pra

lots .

you

tho

not

7 h gre

]:c1

Lu

mu

Str

un

we

Bu

be

W

do

ta

lo

3

[[]e] Quemadnoulum ix amphora prinkn quod est sincerissemum ssince survivismen quodque surbi knque subsidis : sic in astate nostra, quod optimum in princest. Id exhauriti in aliss possio passmur, ut nobis secen reservenus. Sen. ep. 108.

need's Similitude, that which is pureft and cleareft comes forth first; and that which is thickest and most dreggy, finks and remains at the Bottom: fo the [d] best of our Daies run out first, and the worlt at last. Now 'cis a Difgrace to God, to give him the Devil's leavings: it is a Contempt cast upon God, to give the Devil the Flower of your Age, and him the Bran. Suppose a Landlord should come to his Tenam, and entreat him to fet before him somewhat to eat; and he should reply, Excuse me, I pray Sir; there are a Company of Villains and Varlus, which I am at prefent providing fer; but if you will be pleased to stay a while, you shall have those broken Scraps which they shall leave : would not this be a strange, rude, unseemly Behaviour? Thus, thus it is with the most of us: God is our great Landlord, and he comes, and moves, and folicits us to ferve him: but we have fleshly filthy Lutis that war against our Souls; and yet these must be straight provided for: they must have the Strength of our Bodies and of our Souls. This is unworthy, dishonourable Dealing with God, and we little think how ill he takes it at our hands. But how welcome are they to God, who prefer God before the Devil and the World; and honour God with their very first choice, and virgin Love! Who do not stay, as it were, till they are weary of Satan's Service, and then take a new Master; but follow God even as foon as they can go, feek and enquire early after him, and bind themselves in their Youth to him.

2. The

0, 15

, to

t to

for em-

d in

hey

the

ent-

6.31

ne,

ole,

the art

ew

ful

T-

10

5,

nd

W

C-

g

ie

e

of

[[]d] O sima quaque dies miseris morta ibin ari Prima sugst: subennt morbi tristique senettus. Virgil. Georg. lib. 3.

2. The well-redeeming of your younger Daies, as it will be most acceptable unto God, so 'twill make you more useful and serviceable unto other. Thou canst hardly do any considerable Service either to God, or the Church, or the State, if thou makest it late before thou beginness to be well employed. He can do but a little Work, that takes none in hand till the Sun is a setting.

3. The redeeming and husbanding of the Time of thy Youth is apt to prove most profitable to thy felf. The earlier Men fet out in the Morning of their Age, the farther they may walk in the Waies of God's Commandments in the Day of their Life, and make more Progress in the Path of Holiness. The fooner you begin, the more work you may do, and fo may receive the greater Reward : Yea, be Gainers here, as well as hereafter, by being thus butie betimes. He that makes Religion his Buliness in his Youth, may easily lay up a Stock of Grace, and of comfortable Experience, which may be of much use to him. If thou beginnest young, thou maiest get abundance of Grace into thy Heart before thou art old: Thou maiest go from one Degree of Grace to another, from Strength to Strength: thou maiest be almost a perfect Man in Christ Jesus, by that Time others are but new-born Babes, if thou wilt but begin betimes. But a late Christian cannot probably be an eminent Christian; As a Man that begins the World late, can hardly grow a very rich Man : Or, as we say of Bees that fwarm late, they get not any great Store of Ho-Manna was not to be met with but in the * Morning: Who would misspend, or neglect the Morning-Season of his Life, and lose that Portion of

of he

and g lean!

that

the ?

riper

good

bitu

Pros

Dev

exp

mer

ter :

(ha

to 800 is t

m eal

[]

wh

th

ta

Y

^{*} Exod. 16, 21,

of heavenly Manna, which he might have gathered and gotten in it? Who would have a thin Crop, and lean Harvest, by later sowing his Sted? Sow early, that you may reap the more plentifully.

4. Confider moreover, that they that redeem the Time of their Youth, are likely to redeem their riper Tears: They have not only more Time to get good, but a greater Diffosition, and a stronger habitual Inclination to be, and to do good. A young Saint, and an old Devil; is a curfed and an absurd Proverb: There is the greatest sear that a young Devil will prove an old Beelzebub. Who can ever expect, that a Tree that is [e] barren in the Sammer, should bare and bring forth Fruit in the Winter? It is faid of the Trees of Righteousness, that they shall bring forth Fruit * in old Age : not then begin to do it, but shall cominue still to do it. + It is good for a Man, that he bear the Toke in his Youth : It is true of the Yoke of Christ; They that bear it in their Youth, there is hope they will count it an easie Toke, and not offer to throw it off afterwards. [f] | Train up a Child in the Way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it. [g] What the Vessel is first season'd withal, it will have a talte of a long Time after. Remember God in your Youth, and you will hardly forget him ever after.

[e] Estatis tempus est fructificandi tempus : Que astate stevilis est, hyeme facunda non erit. Muscul.

Daies,

'twill

others.

either

u ma-

ploy-

s mone

Time

by felf.

their

ies of Life,

mess.

y do,

a, be thus

Buli

ck of hich

ung,

eart

one

1 to 173 born

late in; dly hat

To-

the

the

ion

of

^{*} Pfal. 92. 14. † Lam. 3. 27. || Prov. 22. 6.

[f] Fingit equam teat ra docsiem cervise magifier tre viam, quam monitrat eques: Vinaticus ex quo Tempore cervisuam pelem latravit in aula, Militat in fylvis catulus. Nunc adhibe puro Pectore verba, p. er, nunc te melioribus offer.

^[8] Quo semel est imbuta recens servabit odorem Testa din. Horat, ep lib. 1, ep 2,

5. Consider once more, 'tis plain and evident Some young ones have redeem'd the Time of their Youth: do you follow and imitate their Example. Holy David was able to fay, * Thou are my Hope, O Lord God; thou art my Trust from my Youth. † Good Obadiah feared the Lord from his Youth. It is faid of Abijah the Child of Jeroboam, that in him there was found fome good I hing, some Seeds of true Piety toward the Lord God of Israel; that is, in regard of the Worship of God: and it is the Commendation of this young Man, that he was not only truly Godly, but pious and religious in a wicked. and flagitious | Jeroboam's House. You know, *) Samuel in his Childhood ministred before the Lord. And (+) Timothy [b] from a Child had known the holy Scriptures: He began betime in Religion, in holy Learning and Knowledg; and gave fuch Proofs of forwardness therein, whence it might be, and was prophesied concerning him, that he would become an eminent Instrument in the Church of God, in communicating to others the Light of faving Knowledg, wherein h mfelf fo early had made so good a Beginning, so great a Progress.

We read of the elect Lady's Children (1) walking in Truth; that is, in Sincerity and Integrity of

Faith

* Pfal. 71. 5. + 1 Kings 18. 12. | 1 Kings 14. 13.

Faith

the Ta

Rule

ly ab

* at t

(whi while

God

Fear

to re

get t feek

of the

Fait

the

Aut

Ido

pur

fiah

em

dic

EA

bo

to

ite

^{(*) 1} S.m. 2 18. (+) 2 Tim. 3.15. 1 Tim. 1.18. [h] Hoc non vulgare crat adjumentum, quod à pueritia affuefaltum erat Scriptura lestioni: num hac longa exercitatio muito instructiorem reddere hominem potest adversus omnes in muito instructiones. Itaque prudenter olim cautum sur, us qui destinatur verbi Ministerio à pueru erudirentur in solidiore pietaite dostrini, ad oque sacras literas penitus imbiberent, ne ad ipsum munus accederent movi adhuc G syrones. Atque hoc in singulari Dei beneficio ponendum est, si quisita suerit à teneva Scriptura cognitione imbutus. Cal in in 2 cp. 2d Tim. c. 3.15. (1) 2 cp. Joh. 4.

Faith and Manners, or ordering their Actions as the Truth prescribes, and living according to the Rule of the Gospel. Our Saviour Christ was early about his Father's Business: we find him at it * at twelve Years old. † 'Tis faid of that good King Josiah, that in the eighth Year of his Reign (which was the [1] fixteenth Year of his Age) while he was yet young, he began to feek after God. Certainly his Heart was feafoned with the Fear of God in his Childhood, when first he began to reign: But now in his Youth, as foon as be could get the Reins of Government in his Hand, he began to feek after God: that is, to endeavour the Setling of the true Religion, and publicly to manifest his Faith in God, and Zeal for his Glory: And in the twelfih Tear (when he had attained to more Authority) he began to act most vigorously against Idolatry: And in the eighteenth Year he had quite purged the Land, and the House of the Lord. v. 8.

And it's well known concerning our English Jofiah, King Edward the fixth, that he was most exemplarily holy in the Daies of his Youth. How did he honour the Bible, and Word of God! [k] When one of his Play-fellows proffer'd him a boffed-plate Bible to stand upon, and heighten him to take down somewhat he desired, which then stood above his Reach; perceiving it a Bible, with holy Indignation he resused it, and sharply reproved the Owner thereof, as counting it unsit to trample that under his Feet, which he was to

trea-

rident outh :

Holy Lord

d 0-

faid

there

true

S, in

om-

onked.

ord.

the

in.

uch

be,

uld

of

Of

ad

k-

of th

^{*} Luke 2. 42, 49. † 2 Chron. 34 1, 2, 3.

^[1] Adolescens jam reeia administr vionis factus compos ; nam susela durabat and simum anns 33. simulatque ad regni gubernasionem liberiorem per venss. Syroof Cris. in 2 Par 34. 3.

treasure up in his Head and Heart. And upon the Day that he was crowned King of England, when three Swords were offered him, to fignify that he was King of three Kingdoms, England, France, and Irland; [1] he is reported to have ia d, There is one Sword wanting yet: and being asked what that was, he faid it was the Bible: that Book is the Sword of the Spirit, fadhe, far to be preferred before all these. He was constant, servent, and fuccessful in his private Devotions. [m] How did his faithful Prayer wonderfully recover Sr. John Cheek his School-matter, who by his Phyticians was quite given over for a dead Man! How did he promote and carry on the Reformation of Religion, from idolatry and Superstition, in this Land and Nation! And when the Emperour Charles the fifth fent an Embaliadour with a menacing Mellage of War, in case his Coulin the Lady Mary should not be admitted the free exercise of the Mass: and the Counc I thinking it fit to gratify the Emperour, engaged Arch-Bishop Cranmer, and Bishop Ridley to press the King with Pol tick Reasons for the toleration there f; the King refused upon Scripture-Grounds to condescend there into: and when he found them still urgent, and very importanate with him; at last he illenced them with his Tears, and ftopt their arguing with his Weeping, and forc'd them to weep in company with him. It is [0] reported of the early and eminently holy Mr. Joseph Allein, that, when but a School-Boy, he was observed to be so studious, that he was known as much by this Periphrasis (the Lad that will

will n

the L

felf,

by hi

Age.

Praid

not !

Perf

men

a yo

that in P

the

Hou

of th

beca

Chi

Prai

wha

Aff

nift

1 hore

Stu

ren

the ear his

^[1] Wolfius Lection. Memorab. [w] Fuller loc. cit. p. 415.

will not [p] play) as by his Name. And when in the University; he so demeaned and carried himfelf, that he deserved to be called the Scholar, who by his good Will would do nothing else but pray and study. Yea so early, as about the eleventh Year of his Age, he was noted to be very diligent in private Praier, and so fixed in that Duty, that he would not be diffurbed, or moved by the coming of any Person accidentally into the Places of his Retirement. And 'tis remarkable, what is storied [9] of a young Child, who died about five or fix Tears old, that he would so beg, and expostulate, and weep in Praier, that sometimes it could not be kept from the Ears of Neighbours; fo that one of the next House was forced to cry out, The Praiers and Tears of that Child in the next House will sink me to Hell: because the forward Piety and Devotion of the Child, did reprove and condemn his neglect of Praier, or his flight Performance of it. what a Degree of good Understanding and holy Affection had [r] that Child of Mr. Owen the Minifter arrived? who was but about fourteen Years old when he died: and in his Life time would often write [9] Mr. James Janeway's token for Children, p 30, 35.

[7] Mr. White's little Book for little Children, p. 106, 107.

n the

when

at he ance,

here

what ok is efer-

and

v did

Fohn

cians

1 he

ligi-

and

s the

lage

ould

and

our,

dey

toire-

he ars,

and 15 oly

oy,

vas

bat

vill

150

[[]p] Bibentibus & colludentibus aliu, spfe sumto libro in silvulam vicinam sessenti e tantisser in sila vel ad ligendum consident, vel ad meditandum deambulans, donce sps. m bora cana domum revocaret. Melch. Adam in vit. Musiculi, p. 369. Bishop Andrews, from his first going to Merchant-Taylor's School accounted all that Time lost that he spent not in his Studies. He studied so hard when others plaied, that if his Parents and Massers had not forced him to play with them also, all the Play had been mare'd. His late studying by Candle, and early rising at sour in the Morning procured him Envy among his equals, yea with the Ushers also, because he called them up too soon. The serm preached at the Fun. of Bp. Andrews, p. 17.

write very ferious Gedly Letters to his Brother, which shewed his great Piety, and happy improvement. And how favourily and fp ritually he exercifed himself in Meditation notably appears in this Instance; that though he much delighted in young Lambs, yet one Day his Mother bringing a Lamb, newly fallen of an Ewe of his; and thewing a little Difpleasure, that he should take no more notice of her bringing it to him : He told her, that as he faw the Lamb in her Arms, he was thinking of the Lamb of God, how he presented him to the Father: and that the Lamb his Mother brought him, was but a poor thing for him to rejoice in, for he had far higher Matters for his Joy. Some young ones have redeemed the Time of their Youth; Odo you fo too. Be able to fay upon better Grounds than the young Nan in the Gospel, that all God's Commands you have kept from your Touth up. The Time of Touth is a special Seafon of doing, and receiving good: That's the first

The second Particular Opportunity to be redeemed.

2. As the Morning of our Age, so the Morning of the Week, the first Day of the Week, is a special Time to be redeem'd. Let this Day be religiously observed by us, which was applied and consecrated, separated and appropriated to sacred Uses, and holy Offices, by the bleiled Apostles; who were either commanded by Christ to do it, when for forty Daies after his Resurrection he instructed the Apostles, and * spake to them of the Things pertaining to the Kingdom of God: Or, having received the holy Ghost, Christ's Agent or Advocate, promised and sent to inspire their Minds, to teach and shew fhew

Matte

rily gu Chrif

and S

Jewill

Cerer nial I

to be

this L

of the

rated

be no

over

impr

nal F

lent

App

whic

fingli that

veri Chr

era

kep

him

ftile

the

it w

Was

^{*} Acts i. 3.

shew them how to manage Affairs, and order Matters relating to the Church; were extraordinarily guided, and divinely directed by the Spirit of Christ, in this weighty Business of the Surrogation and Substitution of the first Day in the place of the Jewish Seventh Day Sabbath, which was partly a Ceremonial Rest, and was joined with the Ceremonial Law, ([a]the Services and Rites whereof were to be observed in the Tabernacle and Temple upon this Day) and was a distinguishing Sign, and Part of that Partition-wall whereby the Jews were feparated from the Gentiles; and was therefore fit to be now removed and laid aside: And were moreover plainly lead to it by the Providence of God, which imprinted and put a most notable Character and signal Honour on this Day, and made it more excellent than any other, by Christ's Resurrection, and Apparitions, and the Spirit's Mission upon it; which were a remarkable pointing, and special fingling out of this Time; and a clear Intimation, that this very Day should be publickly kept, and univerfally observed, in perpetual Honour of the Lord Christ. [6] As the Sacrament is called *A Ginvov xuelanov, the Lord's Supper, not only because it is kept in Remembrance of the Lord's Death, till his coming again; but because it was instituted by the Lord himself: So the first Day of the Week is expresly filed + nutea nue land the Lord's Day; not only because it is observed by the Church in Memory of the Refurrection of the Lord Christ; but because it was appointed by the Lord Christ, because he was the Author and Ordainer of it, either immedi-

[a] Lawfon's Theo-Polit. p. 182, 183.

1 Cor. 11. 20, 13, 16. † Rev. 1. 10.

other,

svere-

exer-

in this young

amb.

Little

otice

as be

Lamb

that thing s for

Time

fay

the

from

Seafirst.

ning

cial

illy

ra-

les,

ho

ien

ed

er-

ed ond w

^[6] Words that have their Termination in xee fignify actively atly by himself, or mediatly by his Apostles. And we cannot imagine, that there shall ever occur a sufficient Reason for the [c] Alieration of this to any other Day; for we can never look to receive a richer Benefit in this World than Redemption by Christ, who rose from the Dead; and Sanctification by the Spirit, sent down from Heaven on this very Day. We can never have greater Blessings to remember on another Day, and therefore the Sanctification of this Day must be perpetuated to the End of the World.

On this Day especially the Apostles performed those Offices, which are most proper and most agreeable to a Sabbath-Day. * There was a Convention and Congregation of the Disciples on the first Day of the Week, to break Bread; and St. Paul preacht to them the same Day: And though the Apostles preached, and celebrated the Lord's Supper on & ther Daies of the Week; yet why are these Things mentic n.d as done on that Day particularly and remarkably, unlefs it were for fome fingular Eminency of this above any other Day; and because they were bound to do those Duties on this Day more than on any other. And the Apostle gave expres Order, that the Collection for the Saints, a Work especially fit for a Sabbath-Day, should be made particularly on the first Day, that is, [d] every first Day of the Week; which was the fore-ordain'd and

chilto

Affe

the \

God

home

onto

For,

the l lemr

poin

the :

we !

this

fpen

men

pect

celel

on I

fore

Nur

Day

inter

not

WOI

Cu-

7

1

Ju a

$00T

reli

E B

sgn

A

T

[[]e] Who that is well instructed would endure to hear of a Pope Sy vester, that durst presente to alter the Day, decreeing that Thursday should be kept for the Lord's Day through the whole Year; because on that Day Christ ascended into Haven, and on that Day instituted the blossed Sacrament of his Body and Blod. Bp. Hat's Peace-maker, p. 198. ex Hospinian. de session of the Christ.

rustomary Day of the Christian religious, Church Assemblies. Upon for [v] against) the first Day of the Week, every Person was to lay apart what God should move and encline him to offer.

The Preparation and Separation of it was to be at home, every Week: but the Collation and Contribution to be in the publick Congregation, every Lord's Day. For, [f] it was not reasonable for any to come to the Lord * emply, upon the Day of the most lolemn Christian Aslembly. And this Day was appointed for the Oblation of their Alms, because of the inestimable Benefits, and infinite good Things we this Day had beltowed upon us.

And the Church of Christ has constantly observ'd this high Day, ever fince the Apostles Daies, and fpent it in Reading, Exhortation, Praier, Sacraments. [g] The Primitive Christians were fufpected to worship the Sun, because they used to celebrate the Sunday. It was an [b] usual Question put of old by the Heathen to the Christians, before ever they offer'd to torture and martyr them; Num Dominicum servasti? Did yourkeep the Lord's Day? To which they answer'd, Christianus sum, intermittere non possum. I am a Christian, and dare not omit, or give over the Observation of it.

This is a Day, in which God is to be folemnly worshipped and served; and Christ to be publick-[h] Bp. of VV. Speech in the Star-Chamber, Opusc. p. 74.

And

cur a

to any cive a

on by tifica-

n this

ngsto

e the

to the

rmed

greention Day of

cht to

offles

on 0nings

d re-

Eml-

they nore

cpreß

ork hade

first and cu-

of a eing

the

ven.

and eftin

[[]e] Bo. of VV. Opufc. Speech against Mr. Trafe p. 73. nara way out Barrey So the VVord is used Mark 15. 6. gard of sogney. The Sense is, against the Featt.

^[/] Hammond's Par. * Exod. 13.15. Deut. 16.16. 1 [8] Si die Solis latitja indulgemus , alid longe ratione quan religione Solis, f cundo loco ab en fumin , qui diem Saturni otto & victus cecernunt, exorbitantes & i fi à Judaico more, quem sgnorant Tertul. Apol. c. 16.

ly magnified and glorified: A special Season to be laid hold on, a particular Opportunity to be improved for our Soul's Good. This is a special Day of Grace, in which (as I may say) the Mim is going, and in which we may take our Stamp of Holiness. [i] This is the gainfullest, the joyfullest Day of the Week: a Day of Harvest, wherein we are to lay win store for the whole Week, nay, for our whole Live. This is a Market-day for our Souls, in which we may trade for Eternity. This is a Day in which we may hear and understand the Things that belong unto our Peace. Pious and pathetical is that of the divine and holy Mr. Herbert, (Sunday.) O Day most calm, most bright,

The Week were dark, but for thy Light:
Thy Torch doth show the Way.

(Sundaies.)
They are the fruitful Beds and Borders In God's rich Garden: that is bare, Which parts their Ranks and Orders.
On Sunday Heaven's Gate stands ope; Blessings are plentiful and rife, More plentiful than Hope.

This is a Day, in which the most precious Commodities that ever the World saw, or heard of, are set forth: in which the Riches and Treasures of the Gospel are opened, Christ himself offered, his Merit and Spirit tendred; Pardon and Grace, Light and Life, Strength and Comfort held out and exhibited. This is a Day, in which no Pandon.

God God

and

fpir

which

our

Eye

celle

us)

fell

Brea

thir

clot

mou

and ritu

of P Chr

ply

Thi.

is o

the

in

fpe: Rel

joy Go

Gr

Sur

Da ly i

of

joi

^[1] VVhole Duty of man. Partit. 2. fect. 18.

to be be imal Day is goof HoDay of Live.
hich we which hat bes that ra's Box is opened, but in which the Cabinet of God's Jewels is unlocked, and his precious Gifts and Graces difpensed. This is a Day, in which a spiritual Mart, a divine Fair is publickly kept: in which, with the wife Virgins, we may buy Oil for our Lamps; buy spiritual Eye-falve, to anoint our Eyes, that we may fee (as our Saviour counfels excellently); buy the Truth (as the wife Man advises us) and be perfwaded fo well to like it, as never to fell or part with it : buy Wine, and Milk, and Bread, to fill and fatisfy our empty, hungry, and thirsty Souls: buy white Raiment, that we may be clothed, and that the Shame of our Nakedness may not appear: buy the Christian's compleat Armour, that we may be furnished for our Warfare, and well provided against the Assaults of our Spiritual Enemies: buy Gold tried in the Fire, that we may be rich: yea, in which we may buy the Pearl of Price; in which we may receive and lay hold on Christ, and all his Benefits; and embrace and apply the great and precious Promises of the Gospel. This is a Day, in which the Word of God's Grace is opened and applyed; and the holy Sacraments, the Seals of the Covenant, frequently administred: in which we have the Priviledg of hearing God fpeaking unto Sinners, and wooing and befeeching Rebels to be reconciled: and in which we may enjoy the glorious Liberty of speaking our selves to God, with an holy Boldness at the Throne of Grace; and pouring out with one Accord our Supplications and Souls in Praier to him. This is a Day of folemn Rest from servile Offices, and worldly Works: A Time of drawing nigh to God, and of meeting the Lord in his own Ordinances; of joining with the Saints and Servants of God, in the Worship of God, in Praiers to God, and the

fures ered, race, d out

Com-

d of,

ndora's Praises of him: of having Communion and Fellowship with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ, through the blessed Spirit; and of enjoying a kind of Heaven here upon Earth.

The Lord's Day, you see, is a special Season of Grace and Mercy: O let's be spiritually thrifty of this Opportunity: Let's not live as if we were of the same Mind with the modern carnal Jews, who think (as the learned [k] Bustorf tells us) that steeping excessively on their Sabbath is a great Honour done to God.

Let's not content our felves with an idle Rest: Let our Rest be the Rest [1] of Men, and not of Beafts; and the Rest of holy Men, as holy: Let's not only cease from secular Works, but exercise our rational and spiritual Faculties in heavenly and divine Employments; and fet our felves to Works of Piety, Charity, and Mercy. Let us redeem this Time out of the Hands of the Devil, the World, and our own carnal, cozening, corrupt Hearts. Do not offer to work the Works of your Calling, the Works of the Flesh, the Works of the Devil, on the Lord's Day: Take heed of ferving the Devil more upon the Lord's Day, than on any other Day, than on all the Days of the Week besides. Let not the Lord's Daybe leisure for the Devil; as if the first Day of the Week were Damoniacus potins quam Dominicus; the Devil's and not the Lord's Day. Let not any Temptations, or Delusions of Satan, keep and detain us from the publick Ordinance, divert

Bene

fual

the P

ligio

lodg

tions

on t

Con

vant

ford

Han

ket-

ly II

tual

not.

and

Pric

mak

char

Loi

leep

The

we

Tir

goo

wa

due

tat ord ver

Re

[[]h] Tempore Sablati matutino, non tam citò quan solint alias, cubitu sugentet, in lucem multam, voluptatis cetà magis quam Sabbati debità coleiula causa, stertuat. Quanto enim voluptatis isti pius percipiunt, tanto se devocini sabbatum colere statuant. Euxtors. Synag. Judaic. c. 11. initio.
[1] Lawson's Theo-Pol, p. 179.

yert our Attention at it, and hinder our Spiritual Beneut by it. Let not any kecreations, and fenfual Pleatures, upon this Day especially, hinder the Performance or Family-Duties, and private religious Exercises. Let not vain Thoughts this Day lodge within us, and justle out heavenly Meditations. Let not worldly impertinent Discourses, upon this Day, thut out more profitable Christian Conferences.

low-

rift.

kind

n of

y of

e of

who

that

nour

est:

t of

not

our

di-

orks

this

and

Do

the

on evil

day,

not

the

uàm

ay.

an,

di-

ert

lint ertd 00-1479

The Lord's Day, it is the most considerable Advantage, the most notable Opportunity that is afforded us, and the best Price that is put into our Hands all the Week long. You have feveral Market-daies in the Week for civil Anairs, and worldly interests: but you have this one only for ipiritual and eternal Interests and Advantages. O do not neglect to great Salvation as is this Day offered and tendred to you. Having such an excellent Price in your Hands, O be not fuch Fools as not to make a good and a right Use of it. [m] Mr. Richard Capel, pressing the strict Observation of the Lord's Day, would usually fay, that we should go to sleep that Night with Meat in our Mouths (as it were) The Lord's-day being our best Opportunity; if we mis-spend that, we cannot be faid to redeem the Time.

Now that we may redeem the Lord's-day to good Effects, and useful Purposes, let us not be wanting to put our felves in a fit Preparation for the due Observation of it: not only by previous Meditation of the Day, and the Duties of it; but by ordering aright the constant Course of our Conversation, and labouring for habitual Sanctifica-

[[]m] Mr. Valentine Marfbal in his Preface before Capel's Remains,

tion. Let us every Day live as those that expect to have Communion with God the next Lord's-day. Let us act fo regularly all the Week, that nothing may be done by us, which may breed any strangeness between God and us, and hinder our delightful Converse with him on his own Day: that on that facred, feparated Day, we may not bring the fresh Guilt of any gross and wilful Sin along with us, which may make us blush and be ashamed to come into his Presence. Let us walk so circumspectly every Day, that upon the Return of his own Day, we may meet him with a pure and clear Conscience, with clean Hands, and clean Hearts, and may be made joyful in his House of Praier. That we may keep the Lord's-day holy, let us strive and fludy to live holily all the Week; and be fo provident and diligent, as to finish and dispatch in the fix Daies all kinds of fecular Works, and common Employments; that no Sin committed on the one hand, nor any Business of our Calling omitted on the other, may diffurb and flacken our Attention, distract and discompose us in the Exercife of our Devotion; but that we may cheerfully and fruitfully spend the Lord's-day in the Lord's Work. Let us every Day carry our felves fo spiritually, and perform our Closet and Family religious Duties to confcionably and constantly; that we may be the fitter and readier to fpend this choice, felect Day in the folemn Worship and Service of God; and may go through the feveral Duties of it with less Tediousness, and more Delight. Let us be with God some part of every Day, that fo we may grow into Acquaintance with him; and may talte the Sweetness, and experience the Gainfulness of Communion with him; and long for the return of the Lord's-day, that we may meet and enjoy

enjo

Opp

him

ufin

ter

tion

ver

our

and

isp

ear Ti

tal

Ou

ce

M

enjoy him in the publick Ordinances, and have Opportunity of larger and freer Converse with him. Let us pray to God every Day, that so, by using our selves to the Duty, we may be the better disposed to join in Praier with the Congregation on the Lord's-day. Let us read the Bible every Day, and daily do whatever we know to be our Duty; and this will make us more apt to hear, and the better prepared to receive the Word that is preached on the Lord's-day.

And when the Lord's-day comes, let us get up as early as may be, that so we may have the more Time before us to work the Work of God in: And take some Pains to prepare our selves in private, for our better Attendance upon the publick. Ordinances; and rimely [n] resort to the Place of publick Meeting; Follow the Counsel of holy Mr. Herbert;

[o] Sundaies observe: think, when the Bells do

Stay not for th'other Pin: why thou hast lost A Joy for it worth Worlds. Thus Hell doth jest Away thy Blessings, and extreamly shout thee, Thy Clothes being fast, but thy Soul loose about thee.

And when thou art come into the Church, watch over thy Behaviour there: make thy felf all Reverence pect to s-day.

othing

range-

elight-

at on ng the

With

ed to

rcum-

of his clear

earts,

That

strive

be fo

oatch

and

d on mit-

At-

xerfully

ord's

Diri-

ligithat

this

Ser-Ou-

ht.

hat

in-

nd

oy

[[]n] Quisquis incolit civitatem, in qua extat Synagoga, & insbi non precatur cum catu publico, is est qui merito dicitur malus vicinus. Dictum Maimonidis, rence and Fear. Open thy Ears; but shut thy Eies to all distracting Objects.

^[0] The Church-porch, p. 14.

[n] Who marks in Church-time others Symmetry, Makes all their Beauty his Deformity,

As the same Divine Poet pathetically expresses it.

Let God and Angels see your most devour Behaviour; and serious Composure, the whole Time of Praier: And give all diligent close Attention to the Word of God; read and preach'd. Do not carp and catch, jest and jear at the Preacher's Language or Expression. Do not shew by your vain and prophane Carriage, your ridiculous Gestures, and unseemly Actions, your Laughing and Whispering, Toying and Talking, that you slight and contemn the [o] Foolishness of Preaching.

And when, on the Lord's-day the Lord's Table is richly furnish'd with a spiritual Banquet make not needless and frivolous Excuses to absent your selves from this Marriage-feast. If any croud in, that have not a Wedding-Garment; let not this make you fay out, that have one. Lose not your Portion of this heavenly Food, because of others imprepa-Though others eat and drink their own Damnation, let your Faith feed on Christ to your own Salvation. By your frequent receiving of this Sacrament, shew your real Sense of your own need of it, your high prizing and valuation of it, your hearty Thankiulness to Christ for it, your Obedience to your Lord, who does not only wonch fafe it as a Priviledge, but command it as a Duty: Do this 172

[] The Church-Porch, p. 15.

mand and

Toke

Obsi

Sins

Bloc

of C

neß

the

and

Chi

a P fus

oui

fpa

VO

an fp

na

fo

ne

dr

fo

210

C

17

21

[[]o] God calleth Preaching folly. Do not grudg to pick out Treatures from an earthen Pot. The Church-Porch, p. 15.

in Remembrance of me. Perform this easie sweet Command of thy dying Lord and Saviour, who has freed and delivered thee by his Death from the heavy Toke and grievous Bondage of Jewish Sacrifices and Observances. O let our Hearts, at such a Time, be broken and bleed at the Remembrance of our Sins, which brake Christ's Body, and shed his Behold in the Sacrifice and bloody Death of Christ, represented in this Sacrament, the odioufneß and baseneß of your own Sins: and resolve to be the Death of that, which was the Death of Christ; and rather to die, than willingly to do that for which Christ died. Abhorr the Thoughts of wilfully chooling fo great an Evil, as once brought fo great a Punishment upon so great a Person as the holy Jefus, the well-beloved Son of God. Confider ferioutly upon this Occasion, that if God would not fpare Christ, when he, who knew no Sin, was, by voluntary, charitable Allumption of our Guilt, to answer for our Sins; to be fure then he will not fpare us, if we wilfully run on in Sin, and obstinately allow our felves therein, notwithstanding fo convincing a Demonstration of his fin-hating Holiness and vindicative Justice. Upon due Meditation draw this Conclusion, (which is the excellent Reafoning of the [p] learned Grotius) that if God would not pardon the Sins, no not of penitent Persons, unles Christ did substitute himself in their Room, and stand in their Stead, to bear the Funishment; much les will be suffer unreclaimable Rebels, and contumacious Sinners to go unpunished.

When

Lies

It.

avi-

e of

n to arp

lage

and

and per-

and

le is not

ves

hat

ike

on

a-

Nn

ur

nis

ed

ur

li-

it

in

ut

[[]p] Facilis est collectio, si Deus ne respissentibus quidem peccata remittere voluit, ness Christo in panas succedente; niuliò minus inultos sines consumaces. Grot. de Satistact. Christis

When Christ is set forth, in this Sacrament, crucified before your Eies; think, how he intended and aimed at our Mortification and Sanctification, in his Death and Passion: * Who gave himself for m. that he might redeem sus from all Iniquity, and purify to himself a peculiar People, zealous of good Works: + Who his own felf bare our Sins in his own Body on the Tree; that we, being dead to Sin, should live unto Righteousness. Let us yield, that Christ should have his End in his Death; and never allow our felves to live in Sin, which will render us uncapable of receiving the Benefit of Christ's Death. Think, how the Unholiness of our Lives is a greater wrong to Christ, than the Jews being the very Death of him: because (as the [9] learned Dr. Jackson notes) it is more against the Will, and Liking, and good Pleasure of our Saviour; whose Will was regulated by Reason, and was a constant Rule of Goodness: for, though a painful, shameful Death, and that inflicted by his own People, went much against his human Will; yet he chose rather to die, and to fuffer the most afflictive Circumstances of Death for us, than to fuffer us to live and die in our Sins, and in the Servitude and Power of Satan.

Shall we pretend, when we approach to the Table of our Lord, affectionately to remember a loving dying Saviour, and to defire to have his Memory continued and transmitted to Posterity; and yet so much forget him, upon the return of any Temptation, as to repeat that which was the Death of him? Shall we weep at the Sacrament, and seem to be hugely troubled for those Sins which were the Cause of Christ's Sorrows; and yet go about again to

* Tit. 2. 14. † i Pet. 2. 4.
[9] D. Jackson, Vol. 3. p. 343, 344, 345.

COL

Re

wh

WC

Rep

D

D

10

21

VC

1 tk

37

I

to destroy, and to crucify Christ afresh? Shall we commemorate at the Lord's Supper our wonderful Redemption by the precious Blood of Christ; and when we have done, shall we do the Devil more work and fervice than the Lord Christ? O what a Reproach is this to Christ, and what a Sport to the Devil that they, that pretend to remember Christ's Dying for them, should not find in their hearts to live to him! [q] St. Cyprian brings in the Devil boafting and bragging against our Saviour, and insulting over us filly and finful Wretches, in this manner; I have endured no Buffetings, nor born Smitings with the Palms of Men's Hands: I have suffer'd no Scourgings, nor under-gon the Croß for any of thefe: nor have I redeem'd my Family with the Price of my Passion and Blood-shedding: yet shew me, O Christ, so many, so bufy, fo painful, fo dutiful Servants of thine, as I am able to shew thee every where of mine. Bring forth, if thou canst, such a Number of Persons, who devote themselves, and give their Labours, Estates, and Time to thee; as I can easily produce of those, who do all this to me.

When thou professes to remember that Christ died for thee, O die to that for which he died: Offer thy self to him, and lay out thy self for him, who once offered himself for m, and in the Sacrament offers himself to m. Think no Duty too much for him. For Shame, for Shame, do not ferve

t, cru-

d and

n, in

for m.

purify

orks:

2 the

unto have

e of ink,

ong

of tes)

boo

ted fs:

hat

his

to ns,

1-

V-

e-

d

y

n

[[]q] Ego pro istu quos mecum vides nec alapas accepi, nec stagella sustinui, nec crucem pertuli, nec sanguinem sudi, nec samiliam meam pretso passionu G cruoru redemi ; sed nec regnum illus caleste promisto, nec ad paradisum restitutà immortalistate denuo revoco: Tuos tales, Christe, demonstra: --- viz tui miu pertuntibus adaquantur, qui à te divinu mercedibus G pramisi calestibus honorantur. Cypr. de Opere & Kleemosynis, p. 220.

ferve any longer a bloody Murtherer, inftead of a blelled Saviour and merciful Redeemer.

Let our Thoughts and Meditations dwell upon the Demonstration, given us in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, of Christ's exceeding, incomparable Love to Mankind. See there, how contrary the Iweet and kind Nature of Christ is, to the cruel and execrable Nature of the old Tyrant, the Devil: For (as the learned [r] Dr. More very well observes) whereas the Devil (who by unjust Usurpation had got the Government of the World into his own hands, tyrannizing with the greatest Cruelty and Scorn, That can be imagined over Mankind) thirfted after bumane Blood, and in most Parts of the World required, the Sacrificing of Men; which could not arise from any thing elfe but a Salvage Pride, and Despight against wis: This new gracious Prince of God's own appointing, Christ Jesus, was so far from requiring any such villaincous Homage, that himself became at once one grand eand all sufficient Sacrifice for us, to expiate the Sins of "all Mankind, and so to reconcile the World to God. Shall not all this disengage us from Sin and Satan, and win and gain us over to Christ?

And let Christ's Death make thee study to do fomething answerable to the dearest love of the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has dealt so graciously with thee, as to transfer the Punishment from thee upon his Son; and so bountifully with thee, as to give his own Son for thee, and to thee. Obless and praise God, by studying to do such good Works, as may provoke others to

- bless and glorify him.

And when you come home from the publick Ordinance, take heed you do not entangle your felves with

with

Pov

ter, fpe

on, ly l

of !

fica

nal

WE

On

ma

da

fic

ftr

2216 ell

C

fu

[[]r] His Myfiery of Godfinefs. p. 133, 245.

with Bufineffes, or Recreations; which have as much Power to render the publick Duties ineffectual, after, as before their Performance: But carefully fpend that which is not Church-time, in Meditation, Praier, Reading, favoury Speeches, heavenly Discourses, and the conscionable Performance of fuch Duties as tend to your own and others Edification.

of a

upon

nt of

mpa

rary

cru-

De-

well

atson

Own

orn

bu

ired.

any inst

ng,

in-

and

of

od.

in,

do

he

as

he

i-

e,

Let Magistrates redeem the Lord's-day, by personally frequenting, open owning and countenancing the publick Worthip of God, and Ordinances of Christ; and by improving the utmost of their Power for the Glory of God, and Honour of Religion, in the zealous Prevention, or speedy Reformarion of the Lord Profanation of the Lord'sday; and vigorous promoting the general Sanctification of it: out of ferious Confideration, and a strong Conviction, that the Preservation and Continuance of Religion doth much depend upon the due Observation of the Lord's-day : And that a Diselteem, and Neglect of the Sanctification of that Day, does quickly cause a lamentable Decay of Christian Piety, and hasten the infliction of [s] fearful Judgments upon a Land and Nation.

Let them do this, in initation of the brave and holy-spirited * Nehemiah, who testified against, and contended with the notorious Profaners and Violators

^[1] It is somewhat remarkable, and not altogether to be neglected, tha even in this Nation, upon the publick Allowance of Sports and Recreations upon the Lord's day, which is our Christian Sabbath, Civil and bloody VVais, and Ruin of the Royal Family, should so shortly follow; and that the Hand of God should be most against those, who by VVriting, VVords, or Practice, had maintained the lawfulness of that Doctrine. Lawfon's Theo Point. p. 181.

² Nel.em. 13. frem is: to 22.

tors of the Sabbath-day; and would not fuffer the open felling of Victuals, and Wares; the trading with Commodities, and carrying of Burthens, and doing the fervil Works of their ordinary Callings on that Day. Did not your Fathers thus, faies he; and did not our God bring all this Evil upon us, and upon this City? yet ye bring more Wrath upon Israel by pro-faning the Sabbath.

Let Magistrates see to the Observation, and look to the Sanctification of this Day; and so become the happy Instruments, and bleffed Means of the subfifting and flourishing of Religion in the World; of keeping up in the Minds and Hearts of Men a Sense of God, a Sense of Sin, a Sense of Duty to God and Man, a Sense, or believing Apprehension of a certain Reward or Punishment, a Sense of Heaven and Hell, a Sense of Eternity: of begetting and preserving a Tendernessand Quickness in Men's Consciences, which are apt to be roused and awakened under every Ordinance: of maintaining the Life of Religion and the Power of Godliness: of upholding the outward Worship and Service of God, and heightning and increasing the inward Honour, and hearty Love and Fear of him: All which depend, in a great measure, upon Magistrates securing, what lies in them, the due and facred Observation of the Lord's-day.

Let Ministers redeem the Lord's-day; not by composing their Sermons, or committing them to their Memories on that Day, (which Toil and Task is fitter to be the Labour of other Daies) but by striving to work their Sermons and Discourses upon their own and others Hearts and Consciences. Let them spend that Day in [4] wrestling with God

122

in fe

thei

OWI

divi

fter

ann

kin

cio

din

of t

ly

WO

Re

the

by

mo

CII

D

fic

fe:

H

tı

al

tl

[[]u] Dexterius loquentur cum hominibus, qui print tota mente cum Deo fuerint collocuti. Erafm.

in secret, for Assistance in, and a Blessing upon their publick Employment: In first confessing their own Sins in their private Closets; and in begging divine Gifts and Graces, to make them able Minifters of the New Testament; in setting right their aims and ends in all their Exercises and Undertakings; and in imploring the special, spiritual, gracious, powerful Presence of God with his own Ordinances. And then in humbly confesting the Sins of the People in the publick Congregation, in earnestly praying for their Souls, and praising God for his wonderful Mercies in the Mediator, for the happy Restauration of sinful and miserable Mankind, and the Communications of himself to the lost World by Jesus Christ: In propounding and pressing the most found and folid Reasons; the most convincing, cogent Arguments, to engage them to their Duties; and in giving, with the greatest Expresfion of Affection, the most proper Directions, and feafonable Counfels, to guide them in the Way to Heaven.

And, Let the People redeem the Lord's-day, by privately reading, or hearing read, some Part and Portion of Scripture, which would feafon their Hearts, and make them more teachable, when they hear the Word publickly read or preach'd: By praying for themselves to the Shepherd and Bishop of their Souls; and by praying for their Minister to the chief Shepherd, that Shepherd both of Shepherd and Sheep, of Pastor and People, that great Prophet and Teacher of his Church; that he would teach their Teacher, instruct their Instructor, and so lead and guid him by his Word and Spirit; that he may fafely conduct them by found and feafonable Doctrine, and winning Example, in the Way everlasting. Yea, Let them redeem the Lord's-day, by attending

UMI

er the

ading

, and

gs on

; and

upon

y pro-

look

come

fub-

rld;

en a

nsion

e of

get-

ls in

and

ing

fs:

of 40-

rich

cu-

er-

m-

to sk

y

ing on the Lord without Distractions; by joining in the publick Prayers; by being present at publick Baptism, that they themselves may be minded and remembred of their own Baptismal Vow and Covenant: By worthy and frequent receiving the baly Communion of the Body and Blood of Christ; By diligent hearing the Word preacht; By ferious Meditation on it, and conscionable Practice of it; and by charging themselves, and humbly desiring God to help them, to walk worthy continually of the Means, Mercies and Priviledges they enjoy: By maintaining heart-warning Conference; By charitable Visitation of, and Ministration of sea-Sonable, suitable Counsel and Comfort to any sick and weak, afflicted or diffressed Persons: By acknowledging all their Offences to God, and Amendment of the same; and by endeavouring heartily to reconcile themselves charitably to their Neighbours, where any Difference or Displeasure has been.

You that are Masters and Governours of Families, redeem the Lord's-day for your selves, and cause your Families to redeem it. The Lord of the Sabbath commandeth, that thou, and thy Son, and thy Daughter, thy Man-servant, thy Maid-servant, and all within thy Gate, keep that Day holy. Set not, suffer not your Servants to work, nor your Children or Servants to play on this Day. Be as much ashamed to see your Child or Servant steal and take God's Time to themselves, as you would be to find them pilfering or stealing from your Neighbour. You can keep your Servants close to your own work all the Week-daies: See that they neglect not the Work of God on the Lord's-day. Will you make them labour for you fix Daies together, and will not you cause them to serve God one Day in seven?

Be

G00

for

Go

and

Ser

Sei

by

Se

bl

D

to

tl

Be at least as much concern'd in Case of neglect of God's Service, as you are at any Time when your own Work and Family-business is neglected. Do it for God's fake: Shew that you love the Honour of God, and not only respect your own Commodity, and look to your own Advantage. Do it for your Servant's fake: Make it their Buliness to do God Service, that they may be approved and rewarded by him. Yea do it for your own sake. Make your Servants God's faithful Servants, that fo they may prove more faithful to you; and that God may bless them in your Service; and that your Work may thrive and succeed in their Hands. On this Day especially, call thy Family, thy whole Family to Family-duties: prepare them for, and halten them to the publick Ordinances. It is reported of [w] Dr. Chaderton, the first Master of Emmanuel-Colledg, that he was married three and fifty Years, and yet in all that Time he never kept any of his Servants from the Church, to dress his Meat; faying, that he desired as much to have his Servants know God, as himself. And it was the Custome of the Reverend and pious [x] Dr. Gonge, to forbear providing of Suppers the Eve before, that Servants might not be occasioned thereby to fit uplate: neither would he fuffer any [y] Servant to stay at home for dreffing any Meat upon the Lord's-day, for the Entertainment of Friends, whether they were mean or great, few or many. Take your

[] M. Clark in his Life.

oining

publick

ed and

nd Co-

the bo

erious of it:

firing

ally of

njoy:
By

fea-

7 fick

y ac-

lear-

heir

fure

lies,

ause

thy and uf-

ren

ha-

ke

nd ou all

he

[[]x] See his Life among Mr. C'are's Lives of ten Em Div.

^[7] Die Dominica et in festis, licet etiam ciborum lautiorem apparatum habere 3 quamvit in eis parandis ne mijo a imtediamiur, & servorum anima detrimentum non necessarium incurrant, summoptre curandum est. Bixtes Meth. Th. part. 3. c. 14. p. 172.

Family to Church along with you; and when you return home again, examine; catechize, inform, instruct them, recapitulate the Sermon, read the Scripture and good Books to them, what practical, prohtable, necessary, faving Truths on them; sing Pfalms among them, and pray most heartily and affectionately with and for them.

And you that are Servants, who have little leifure. most of you, on other Daies; and who live, too many of you, in such profane and ungodly Families, where you hear not so much as one Praier put up to God, nor one Line of the Word of God read, nor one serious Word spoken of God all the Week long: what reason have you carefully to redeem the Lord's-day? to redeem it in publick, by devoutly attending to the Prayers that are made, and the Word that is both read and preacht in the publick Congregation : And to redeem it in private, by taking all possible Occasions to retire and go aside by your felves, to confider in fecret the needs of your Souls, to examine your Hearts and States, to review your Lives and Actions, to humble your felves in Confession of Sin, and to pour out your Souls in Prayer for Pardon and Grace; to read the Bible, and some instructive, practical Writings of the most judicious, experimental Divines; apt to inform your Judgments, and to work and prevail upon your Affections: to fet your felves to meditate of God, to draw out and engage your Hearts to God; rather than to lavish out, and throw away those precious Hours, in foolish Talk, and frothy Discourse; or in gadding abroad, and walking idly in the Fields, and recreating your Bodies rather than your Souls, and in thrusting God, and turning Religion wholly out of your Minds and Hearts, and nourishing your felves in IgnoIgn

and

Liv

thr

wro

yo

en

fu

lie

cl

fe

Ignorance of God, and Unacquaintance with him, and in Encreasing the Atheism of your Hearts and Lives, and hardening your own and others Hearts, through the Ensinarements of the World, and the Deceitfulness of Sin.

But, it may be, you will fay, you are hard wronghe all the Week long; and you have reason to take your ease and pleasure, and to rest and recreate your tired Bodies one Day inseven, that so you may endure your Labour, and go through all your

Work the better.

form,

d the ctical,

fing

and

fure,

too ilies,

t up ead .

reek

the

utly

the

lick

ta-

by

our

re-

our

our

ad

ri-

5;

nd

to ur

r

I answer; that your very Ceffation in any meafure from your wonted Labour, is an ease and relief to your weary Bodies: and that the very change of your Work and Occupation from fecular fervile Employment to spiritual divine Worship and Service; and the Diversion of your Minds from worldly Businesses to the Offices and Exercises of Religion (if you would but acquaint your felves with them, and use your selves to them) would be delightful and refreshing to you: And the Peace and Quiet, Joy and Comfort of a good Conscience, in the faithful Discharge of your Duty to God, and a tender Care of your immortal Souls, would strengthen and hearten you to bear all the Burthen of the hardest Labours of your domestick Ministeries; in confideration, that your heavenly Father, Lord and Master, will accept and reward your Works of Piety, and bleß and prosper the Works of your Hands, in the Houshold-businesses, and Familyemployments, incumbent on you, and belonging Rather break your Sleep, to rife the earlier, than lose the Opportunities of that Day: Or, chuse to leave, and live out of those Families, in the which you are forced to live without God, are debarr'd from his Service, and can have no Liberty allowed you to mind God and your Souls, on a Day that was purposely ordained and appointed for your spiritual Proficiency and Improvement.

Let the Poor of this World redeem this Day, by taking this Opportunity to labour spiritually for the Meat which perisheth not, but endureth to everlasting Life; and by hearing the Gospel preach'd-in this Season to them, to become rich in Faith, rich in Grace; to know, and to partake of the Grace and Favour, the Love and Kindness of our Lord Jesus Christ; who, though he was rich, yet, for our Sikes became poor, that we through his Poverty might be made rich. You that are poor, and mean, and low in the World, and who cannot take fo much Time as others to worship and enjoy God on the Week-Dajes, fee that you well improve this Day. Now you are released from secular Businesses and common Services, and your Bodies rest from their hard Labours; be fure that you firitually bufie, and holily employ your felves in the Service of God.

Let me likewise charge them that are rich in this World, to redeem this choicest Part of their Time; and in it to endeavour to be rich toward God, rich in God; to lay up for themselves a Treasure in Heaven; to obtain the true, certain, durable Riches; which, when they fail, will never leave them; but when they remove, will bear them company into the other World.

And here let me hint to you of the Gentry, what [z] Dr. Panl Michlewait once urged and prefled in a Sermon at the Temple; that Gentle-folk, of all People, are obliged to a strict observation of the Lord's-day.

Week

their

are

The

felv

for my ty t vat:

Im

th

G

fo

ol

^[2] Fuller's Church-Hift, B. 11. p. 146.

day. The Gentry, in comparison, rest all the Week long: their Cheeks are not moistened with Sweat; their Hands are not hardened with hard Labour; they are not tired and wearied out with pains-taking: They who take their Pleasure, and recreate themselves every Day in the Week, have nothing to plead for Recreations on the Lord's-day. Though, for my own part, I should be far from indulging a Liberty to any, to take such Recreations as hinder the Devotions due to any part of the Lord's-day, and are Impediments to the Sanctification of it aright. Let all industriously redeem the Lord's-day.

And take we heed we redeem it not by halves: but let's religiously observe, and coverously redeem the whole Lord's-day.

We are bound in justice to God to do it; because God has fet a Day, not a Picce of a Day, apart for himself, and requires this Portion and Tribute of Time to be paied to him, who has graciously given us all our Time. We should be as much, yea more afraid, to steal God's Time, than Mens Goods. Do not only observe the former Part of the Day, repairing to the Church or Chappel in the Morning, but commonly and customarily absenting your felves, and growing quite weary of any fuch Duty in the After-noon: for God has allotted and appointed a seventh Part of our Time for his own Worship and Service: but if you keep only one half of the Lord's-day, you give God but a fourteenth Part of your Time : Nay, of one Day in feven, I fear, too many spare him no more, than that Time only, which their Morning-Attendance takes up in publick on the Lord's-day. And here I appeal to their own Reason, whether it be a meet and fit Thing, that rational Persons, created by God, and redeemed by his Son, should afford to the E 4

ouls,

oint-

ta-

this

in

ace

ord

our ght

nd

he

ay.

ir

e,

of

is

the Worship and Service of God and Christ, and the great concerns of their immortal Souls, but rive Hours at most of the whole Lord's-day; and it may be no more of the whole Week) and shall spend those Hours in a formal; customary, cold and heartless Worship of an infinitely holy and just Deity, the tremendous, impartial Judg of Angels and Men.

Grudg not to give God one whole Day in feven, who largely and liberally grants and allows fix whole Daies in seven to you: and who designs a greater Benefit and Advantage to you by your Ob-Tervation of this one Day, than possibly can accrue to you by the carefuliest and painfullest worldly Improvement of all the rest. O believe, and consisder, that the taking out of this one Day, and fetting it apart for fuch an excellent Service, and high Employment as you are called to in it, is certainly the greatest Gift of all. How can you be loth to spend one Day in seven in Familiarity with Heaven, in communion with your Maker, and Fellowship with your Saviour ? Let us all call the Christian Sabbath, the Lord's-day, a Delight: take as much Contentment and Satisfaction in doing on this Day the Exercises of Religion, as Men usually take in doing the Works of their ordinary Calling: take as much Pleafure in God's Service, as others take in Sin and Vanity. Let us spend the Lord's-day, as becomes those, who profes that they love God better, and delight in him more than in any Thing in the World: Spend it as they that are glad of so honourable, and profitable, and pleasurable an Employment, as the publick and private Worshiping of God. Let us go to the House of God with Let the Church, on the Lord's-day, be a Banquetting-house, and not a Prison to us. Do but bring your selves to spend the Lord's-day with

1841

Deligh

of it in a

Crea

And

day,

lings

atio

ptio

tern

than

a blic

on

rea

and

the

WI

th

in

an

le

Delight, and then you will keep it to the End of it The Jews were bound to keep a whole Day holy, in a grateful Memory of the leffer Benefits of the Creation, and their Deliverance out of Agypt: And shall not we solemnly observe the whole Lord'sday, in a thankful Remembrance of greater Bleffings? not only of the Goodness of God in our Creation, but of his Grace and Mercy in our Redemption, and Deliverance from Hell, and Death eternal. We have greater Engagements to do it, than they : not only greater Motives, but greater [a] Means too. We have greater Variety of publick Exercises on the Lord's-day, than they had on their Sabbath : We have more Scripture to reade in private than they had: We have the Old and New Testament; many Expositors upon them; many good Practical Theological Tractates written: We have more Knowledg afforded us than they had; more Grace offer'd us to do the Duties incumbent on us: Now we that have more Means and Helps, how can we offer to put God off with less Duty, and smaller Service, and shorter Performance?

Nay the very Heathens, guided by the Light of Nature, held it reasonable, that the Daies consecrated to their Gods, should be devoutly, and totally observed with Rest and Sanctity. [b] Macrobius tells us, that, on their holy Daies, the People came together to spend the whole Day in learning Fables, to be conferred upon. And will you, that call your selves Christians, resust to come together on the Lord's-day, to spend one Hour in

t rivo

may

hose

tles

the

fix a

Ob-rue

ldly nli-

ing

mthe

in ith

b-

ch

ny

in kę

in

as

r,

le

-

n.

^[4] See Mr. Camdrey's Sabbathum redivivum. p. 563, 564.

the Morning, another in the After-noon, in learning the Mysteries of the Gospel, and in receiving faving Instructions out of the Word of God?

You that give your Bodies two Meals every Day, will you feed your Souls but once on the Lord's-day? Give me leave to deal with you in the winning Words of that sweet Singer of our Israel: Speaking of the Lord's-day, saies he;

[a] Twice on the Day his due is understood;
For all the Week thy Food so of the gave thee.
Thy cheer is mended; bate not of the Food, Because 'tis better, and perhaps may save thee.
Thwart not th' Almighty God: O be not cross.
Fast when thou wilt, but then, 'tis gain, not loss.

Consider, that your own, and your Families spirienal Necessities do require and call for a most strict Observation of the whole Lord's-day, and a faithful Improvement of all the Helps and Advantages The Works of your Callings, and your worldly Occasions and Employments, do, in a manner, take up fix Daies of the Week; and you have but one whole Day in seven to provide for the Needs of your immortal Souls: Now the Nece lities of your Souls are far greater than those of your Bodies: your firitual, eternal Estate, is of nearer and higher Concern than your outward and temporal Estate: And will you not labour then to improve every Hour, and endeavour to redeem every Minute of this one Day? Do but seriously think with your felves, how much work you have to do in this one Day; and then tell me, whether in reason and Prndence you can spare any Part of it, yea or no. What have have y

for yo

vants?

wards

bound

Day?

ber an bless

feafo

fpenc

ably

ker,

127101 be in

and

ing

god

Itia

and

im

and

qua

no

G

Lo

di

pai

in

in

C

li

^[4] Church-porch, p. 14.

y Day, 's-day? vinning Speak-piri-

trict

aith-

ages

rld-

ner,

but

s of

our

cs :

her

e :

ry

of

ur

ne

H-

at

re

learn.

ring fa-

have you to do for God, for your felves? What for your Families? for your Children, and Servants? How many and great Mercies of God, towards you, and yours, and all Mankind, are you bound to recount, and to be affected with on this Day? Ought you not still, on this Day, to remember and confider, and folemnly and heartily to blefs God and Christ, for the capital Mercies of Creation, and Redemption, and for the gracious feafonable Sending of the Holy Ghoft; and to fpend fome Time in speaking highly and honourably of these Benefits, to the Praise of your Maker, and Glory of your Redeemer? Are not you ignorant of many Things, in which you ought to be informed? and have not you need then to fpend fome Part of the Lord's-day in reading the Bible, and fome felect Books of found Divinity: in hearing the Word preach'd, and in Conference with godly, understanding, and well-experienced Chri-Itians? Are you not too great Strangers to God, and your felves? and have not you need then to improve fome Portion of this Seafon in Meditation and Self-examination, that you may get more Acquaintance with God, and your own Hearts? Have not you the Sins of the whole Week past to confess to God in fecret, and to beg the Pardon of, every Lord's-day? when you have leifure from your bodily Labour, is it not fit you should take some pains in conquering the Corruptions, and mortifying the Lusts of your own Hearts, and in wrestling with God in Praier for his Strength and Grace? Can you idle away your Time, and take your Pleasure on the Lord's-day, when you have Families to inform, and Children and Servants to catechize and instruct? Let your Consciences tell me, whether it be better, on the Lord's-day, to spend Your your Time in unnecessary Divertisements, in fruitless Vilitations, in vain and frothy Discourses; to talk freely together of worldly Businesses; to judg the Preacher, to censure your Christian Neighbour: Or to commune with your felves, and to labour to edify your own Families: To teach your Children the Doctrine of Adam's Fail, and of the Redemption wrought by Christ: To acquaint them, what Sin and Corruption they brought with them into the World; and how they have encreased it fince they came into the World: That the Wages of Sin is Death: To tell them what Christ has done and fuffered, to free and deliver them from Sin and Death; and what they must do, to be capable of partaking of Christ's faving Benefits: To ground your Servants in the Principles of Religion: To take account what they remember of the Sermons they heard that Day, and to examine how they have profited by the publick Ordinances. You fee what a great deal of Work you have to do, and what a little Time you have to do it in : You have but one whole Day in feven; It concerns you then to be very faving of this whole Day: [c] To be as far from

from c

Recrea

emplo

ly Buf

ther i

Blood

you 2

make

whic

woul

fix L

worl

of th

Hon

that

exp

use

hol

fine

ly

Ol

Su

Si

7

[[]c] Quicunque hise sacris ita serio se exercent, ut ipsorum & familia necessitau p'ant postulat, locum nullum relictum esse questioni iste carm iliser de liranzium inventient. An licitum sit die Dominico aut otiari, aut indere, aut epulie, aut inanzium, aut mundaria non plane necessariu tempus sacrum conterere te qui sespsim & alios vere novit, ut o diei negotia & commoda oblata; & verbo divino de rebus spritualibus & aternis vere credit; o issum o aternis vere credit; o issum o aternis necessare; neque sustra totum, quantim sixti potest, in sacris colocare; neque sustra o sun novebit; an liceat ladis vel aliss inanibus id perdere, quan, an isceat saguinem suminanter sundre, & aurum oblatum respecte, o in canno projece: Carvalis quipates.

from disputing, whether it be not lawful to use Recreations and Sports on some Part of it, or to employ some Hours of it in any unnecessary worldly Businesses; as from putting the Question, Whether it be not lawful vainly to spill your own Blood; or to make a refusal of Gold that is offer'd you, and to cast it contemtuously into the Dirt.

'Twill but little avail you, to make the utmost worldly Advantage of all the other six Daies, if you make not a sufficient spiritual Improvement of this, which is more considerable than all the rest. What would it profit you, if, as God made the World in six Daies; so, you could gain the whole World, by working hard the six Daies; if, by gross neglect of the Lord's-day, you at last lose your own Souls?

The Church of England, in her pious and useful Homily of the Time and Place of Praier, declares, that in the fourth Commandment God has given express Charge, that his obedient People should use our [d] Sabbath-day (which is now our Sunday) holily; and rest from their common and daily Businesses; and also give themselves wholly to heavenly Exercises of God's true Religion and Service.

And in his Majestie's Royal Proclamation for the Observation of the Lord's-day, all his Majestie's Subjects are bid to take notice, that, by the Law, the resorting to divine Service, enjoined on that Day, does comprehend the entire Day, and entire Service, both Morning and Evening.

Yea,

pe animus, & sui & rerum spiritualium ignarus, dis utationum talium author est plerumque & promus-condus. Baxter. Method. Theol. part. 3 c. 14. p. 172.

in fruit-

fes; to

to judg

hbour:

labour

r Chilne Re-

them,

1 them

fed it

Wages

done

n Sin

capa-

gion:

Ser-

how

You

and

ave

1 to

far

om

3

Je

/18 16,

la

To

^[4] And truly it is strange, that some, who have a dearness, year fondness for some VVords of Jewish Extraction (Altar, Temple, and tie like) should have such an Antipa hy against the Sabbath. Fuller's Church-Hit, B. 11. p. 144.

Yea, every Lord's-day Morning, you your felves make this open Confession, and publick Praier, in the Congregation, after the Reading of the fourth Commandment; Lord, have Mercy upon us, and encline our Hearts to keep this Law: As much as to fay; Lord, we acknowledg we have neglected this thy Day: We pray thee, pardon all our unchristian Sabbath-breaking, for the Time past; and give us Grace, to observe the Christian Sab bath better for the future. Now will you confess in the Fore-moon, and transgress in the After-moon? Will you beg pardon in the Morning, and fin again the very same Sin before Night? Will you open your Mouths, to ask God's Grace, to fanctify and keep holy the Sabbath-day; and, it may be, profane it in a graceless manner, as soon as you are out of the Congregation? If the Lord's-day ought to be observed at all, it is to be kept both Parts of the Day. And for those that commonly stay away in the After-noon, I would ask them, what their Employment is at home in the mean Time? Do not some of them spend the After-noon in fleeping, or walking, or talking, or drinking, or gaming? while others are jointly confelling, and praying, and praising, and hearing? If God requires a Day, is this to fanctify a Day to the Lord? to worship God in the Morning, and to dishonour God, and serve the Devil, and divers Lusts, in the Afternoon. Do you spend your Time as religiously at home, as you might do at Church? Do you catechize, read, and pray, and fing Plalms at home in the mean Time? If you do, you do it unfeasonably; and plainly break the Lord's-day, by ordinarily performing private Duties in the Time of publick Ordinances: The Lord's-day being chiefly appointed for the publick

UMI

Wor-

Worl

Worfh

to Go

etrine or Ca

good :

For,

Ord

grac

Chr

mu

you

din

no

Go

an

fet

p

Worship and Service of God; The most [d] publick Worship being the highest Honour that can be done to God and Christ.

Reading a Sermon, or fome Catechistical Doctrine, at home, in the Time of publick Preaching or Catechising, though, in it self, it may be a better composed Sermon, or Exposition; yet is not so good as hearing a Sermon, or Exposition, at Church: for, the publick Ministry of the Word, is a divine Ordinance, which has a special Promise of God's gracious Presence: Matth. 28. last: Go, teach, says Christ, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the End of the World: You are therefore bound to frequent and attend upon it.

felves

in the fourth

and and

lected

ir un-

past;

Sab

confess

moon?

fin a-

Ou o-actify

y be, u are

M, it

hote

ould

the

Af-

on-

ng?

to

ers

Dur

nd

lo, he

u-

he

k

You must not mis-time and mis-place Duty: You must not read at home in private, when God calls you to hear in publick : You must not use one Ordinance, in contempt, or neglect of another : You cannot hope to profit, if you do. You can't expect God's Presence, and look for the Gift of God's Grace, in a way of Disobedience to his Command, and Neglect of his appointed Means. When God fets up the Ministry of the Word in any Place, his Spirit then opens his School, and expects that all, who would be taught for Heaven, should come thither : Now whether is it most fitting, that a Scholar should wait on his Master at School, to be taught; or the Master should run after his truant Scholar, at Play in the Field, to teach him there? as the accurate Preacher, [e] Mr. W. Gurnal, does well illustrate it.

More-

[[]d] The fixth Council at Confiant decreed, That who foever was absent from the Congregation three Loid's-daies together, without necessity; if he was a Minister, should be put from the Ministry, and if he was a private Man, he should be cast from the Communion of the Church.

[[]e] Chrift. Armour, a part. p. 552. in quarto.

Moreover, in Attendance upon publick Preaching, there are the Praiers of the [e] whole Congregation put up for a Blesling upon the Word that is spoken and heard; which is an Advantage, that can't be enjoyed in private Reading.

There is also somewhat in this; that the lively Voice of the Preacher is more affecting, and powerfully working, than private Reading.

And as for reading the Scripture, and Booksof Theology, it is to be feared, that they care but little for reading, who pretend fuch reading, to excuse their Absence from publick hearing.

But grant you do read; yet certainly the Scripture and good Books were never written to divert and hinder you from publick Hearing, so long as you are able to go to the publick; but to sit you for it, and help you in it. Nay, the Bible, and good Books, forbid you to stay at home in Time of publick Worship and Service; and command you to be present at publick Praier, Baptism, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, Cateching, Preaching: * Not to for sake the Assembly of your selves together, as the manner of some is.

Take notice further; that if you, then every one, as well as you, may stay away, and read a Book at home; and so, what will become of all publick Assemblies?

Once more, consider; you know not how much you may lose by but once neglecting a publick Ordinance.

* Heb. 10. 15.

nanc

when

affen

Resi

so a

may long

be t

Da

pro

the

me

fte

in

pr

h

[[]e] Deus fluris facit preces in ecclesia qu'am domi fastau, non ob locum, sel ob considerationem multitudinis fidelium Deum communi consensu invocanzium. Rivet. Cath. Qeth.

Preach-Congrethat is owerooks of re but

Scridiversing as u for good

ig, to

f puu to icraachtoge-

one, ook lick

dice.

2012

nance. [f] † Thomas, by reason of his Absence, when Christ appeared to the Disciples, that were assembled together, lost the Advantage of receiving Satisfaction concerning the Truth of Christ's Resurrection, and lay a whole Week in Unbelief.

That may be spoken in thy unnecessary Absence, so agreeable and congruous to thy Condition, as, it may be, thou maiest not meet with the like, for a long time after, if ever after. The Devil may be busic to detain thee from the publick, that very Day or Hour, when he knows well enough that is provided and prepared, which is most suitable to thee, and apt to work upon thee.

Obj. But he that preaches, is a Man of weak Parts, mean Gifts, and very ordinary Abilities.

Answ. But if he be an approved, ordained Minister; be conscionable in his Place, and unblameable in his Life; and if what he delivers, be found and profitable; blame your own Hearts, if you do not profit by him: and take more Pains with them in hearing: and fee that your Carelefness or Prejudice cause not your unprofitableness. It is a remarkable Saying of the Reverend and Holy [g] Mr. Arthur Hildersam: 'I am perswaded, saies he, there is never a Minister, that is of the most excellent Gifts (if he have a Godly Heart) but he can truly say, he 'never heard any faithful Minister in his Life, that was so mean, but he could discern some Gift in him, that was wanting in himself; and cou'd receive some profit by him. You know, a Torch may be sometimes [†] Joh. 20. from 19, to 29.

[[]f] Thomas mersio privatur communi fratrum suorum gratia, quod tanguam wagus aut erraticus miles ab unitatis vexilo discefferat. Calv. ib. in vets. 19.

^[] Hilderf, on John p. 241.

times lighted by a Candle; and a Knife be whetted and sharpned by an unhewn and unpolish'd Stone, And it is considerable (which the same judicious Author adds there) that 'the Fruit and Profit that is to be received from the Ministry, depends not on-'ly, nor chiefly upon the Gifts of the Man that preacheth, but upon the Bleffing, that God is pleased to give unto his own Ordinance: and God does oft give a greater Blessing to weaker than to stronger Means: and therefore despise not any sound Ministry, because of the meanness of it.

Obj. But some may say, The Exercise is too long, and the Season is too hot or cold, to come twice a

Day.

Answ. But let me ask you; Could not you willingly stay, in any Season of the Year, as long again at a Play? 'Tis the Coldness of your Hearts, and your frozen Affections, that make you plead, either the Heat, or Coldness of the Weather, in exeufe of your Absence from Church-Assemblies : and, I pray, feriously consider, whether Hell at last won't prove too hot, for wilful, careless, causeless Sabbath-breakers.

I shall further offer two Things to your Consideration, to move and provoke you to a careful and diligent Redeeming of the Lord's-day.

Mot. 1. The right Redemption of the Lord's-day is an apt and likely means of redeeming the whole Week tollowing :

Of redeeming it as to Temporals : Tredeeming it as to Spirituals:

1. As to Temporals: They that ferve God fincerely on the Lord's-day, will use all Diligence and good Confcience, in their Calling and Trading on the Week-day. And their Pains-taking and honest Dealing, is likely to bring Gcd's Bleffing on th

faithn

to Go

that f

who

you if one v

a spi

foit

fix 1

ther

thei

and

tha

mil

tha

Tea

Go

111

W

tl

on their outward Estates. Besides, They that faithfully worship God on the Lord's-day, will seek to God for a Blelling on the Week-day: and they that seek it are likely to find it.

Once more; God won't be wanting to those, who would not be wanting to him: God will bless your Daies, for your Blesling and Serving him one whole Day in feven.

2. Or Observation of the Lord's-day, as it is a spiritual, wife redeeming of that special Season; fo it is a good Help to the Spiritual Redeeming of all the fix Daies following. The more Liberty Men allow themselves upon the Lord's-day, the more loose their Hearts are, and negligent of good Daties, and religious Exercises , all the Week after. They that play not on the Lord's-day, will hardly fo much as fay a Praier all the Week long. that hear not a Sermon on this Day, will fearcely read a Chapter the whole Week. They that rob God of his due on the Lord's-day, will rarely deal juftly and honestly with their Neighbour on the Week-day. But if we keep holy the Lord's-day, then every Week-day will have a Tincture and Sayour of the Lord's-day. Our being Spiritual on the Lord's-day, will put us into a very good Frame of Heart, will awaken Principles of Conference, compose our Minds, fix our Wills, call in and set in order our Affections: Our Santification of this Day will feafon and fantify us, fit and difpose us for a close and holy Walking with God all the Week after. If we attend upon Gcd, and converse with him on this special Day of his own Appointment; we shall find a sensible spiritual Vigour, a divine Power, and heavenly Strength, to carryus through all the Daties of the whole Week following, relating either to God or Man. If we earneitly hetted

Stone,

licious

is that or one reach.

give

ive 4

eans:

long,

ce a wil-

arts,

ad,

ex-

nd.

aft

ess

li-

rd

e

nestly redeem the Lord's-day, the Observation of that Day will have a strong and mighty Instance on our Lives on other Daies too: We shall endeavour to carry our selves after it, suitably to it: to live, and walk, and act continually, as those that have newly, or lately enjoyed so blessed and happy an Opportunity; as those that have heard of God, heard from him, spoken to him, had to do with him: we shall labour to live in pursuance of the End and Design, of the Work and Business of the Lord's-day.

Mot. 2. Our Santification and good Improvement of the Lord's-day, will fit and prepare us to keep and enjoy a bleffed Reft and eternal Sabbath in Heaven. They that delight in God here, will much more delight in him hereafter: and those whom God delights in here, he will delight in for evermore. They that keep holy the Christian Sabbath here, shall be translated and admitted to sanctify and celebrate an everlasting Sabbath in Glory hereafter.

[g] He that loves God's Abode, and to combine With Saints on Earth, shall one Day with them shine,

But on the other side, your gross continued Neglect, and wilful, resolved Profanation of the Lord's-day, will unsite and unqualify you, to keep a glorious sestival, and a joyful, happy Holy-Day in Heaven.

God can take no Complacency and Delight in you, if you can take no Complacency in him, no Delight in his Sabbaths, no Pleasure in his Worship and Service. They that resule to fanctify a Sabbath, and totally to rest on that Day from their world-

WOT

real

they.

not

Day

shal

that

ma

Da

the

no

to

an

^[8] The Church-porch, p. 15.

worldly Labours, and fecular Negotiations; have reason to fear, lest God sware in his Wrath, that they shall never enter into his Rest. They that will not rest from their Works and Pleasures on this Day, have cause to conclude, that in Hell they shall have no Rest, neither Day nor Night. They that will do their own Works on the Lord's-day, may expect to suffer for their evil Deeds in the Day of the Lord. They who wilfully absented themselves from God's House, on God's Day, have no ground to hope, that God will receive them to Communion with himself in his heavenly Kingdom.

And as God can take no delight in you; fo, if you pollute and profane, break and violate the Lord's-Day, neglect Religion, contemn the Worship, and despise the Service of God; if you changed your place, you would there no more delight in God than you do here. Heaven would be a Burden, Heaven would be an Hell to the unfuitable Spirit of an irreligious, profane, voluptuous Person. Thou that art meary of Praiers, and Praises here, what wouldst thou do in Heaven tro? there is nothing else there. You that are sick of a Sabbath here, and long till it be over, and can't endure to think of spending a whole Day in Religious Exercises; what wilt thou do in Heaven? where there is a perpetual Sabbath to be kept for ever. Thou that hatest the Commumon of Saints here, I wonder what thou wouldst do in Heaven; where, next to the Fruition and Enjoyment of God in Glory, the best Entertainment will be the Company and Society of the holy Angels, and of the blelled and glorified Saints to all Eternity.

F 3

I have

tion of endea-

it : to fe that happy

f God,

of the

of the

ement

p and

e de-

de-

nore.

here,

Cce-

fter.

ine.

egthe

in

in

no

r-

ir

I have given you some Motives, to perswade and engage you to the due Observation, and right Redemption of the Lord's-Day: Now what are you refolved upon? Shall your former Profanation of this Day be the present Burthen of your Spirits, and Sadness of your Souls? Will you live as those that are convinced, that Religion depends upon the Sanctification of this Day, and your Salvation upon Religion? Will you forbear any more to break into God's Inclosure, to encroach upon God's Propriety, facrilegiously to engross God's Day to your selves, or to make bold with any Part of it, for worldly Employments, or vain Pleasures, or fuch Recreations as are apt to prove Lets and Hindrances of your Duties and Devotions? and be careful to give God that Portion of Time which is his due? Will you for the future fequelter your felves from worldly Cares, Affections, Affairs, on this Day? and hence orth dedicate the Lord's-Day to the Honour of God and Christ? Will you, not only cease to cenfure those serious Christians who dare not lose this choice Time, and precious Opportunity, as profanely and desperately as formerly von have done? But will you so consider the Worth of this Time, and fo far weigh the great Confequences, and weighty Concernments of the well or ill spending of it, as to count it bonourable, and keep it boly; without intermixing of fecular Matters, or including profane Thoughts, and introducing inconvenient, improper Difcourfes, in any part of it? Will you labour to walk accurately, exactly, precifely, on this Day? and

IMI

and I

of T

Eng

who

Rell

and

Fan

tua

tha

th

and not be afraid of being [h] too strict, of being too holy on this holy Day? Tis an excellent Saying of Tully, Nemo pius est qui pietatem caves: The plain English of which is this; No man is truly godly, who is afraid of being too godly. Will you soobserve [h] He keeps the Lord's-day best, that keeps it with most Religion, and with most Charity. Bp. Taylor's Rule and Exerc.

of Hol. Lef chap. 4 fec. 6. rul 8. Hypocrites are out diffuting the Obligations to their Duty, and a king, How do you prove that it is a Duty to pray in my Family, or a Duty to observe the Lord's-day, or to come constantly to the Congregation, --- or to repeat Sermons, --- and the like ? -- It these ungodly Wretches had one spark of spiritual Life within them, and any talle and feeling of the matt rs that concern their own Salvation; instead of asking, How can you prove that I must pray with my Family, or that I must keep the Lord's-day, -- they would be readier to fiv, How can you prove that I may not pray with my Samily; and that I may not fancify the Lord's-day? and that I may not have Communion with the Saints in Holiness 2 --- I can perceive in many that I converse with, the great différence between an Heart that lo-es God and Holinefs, and an Heart that feems religious and honest without fach a Love. The true Convert perceiveth so much fweetness in Folv Duties, and so much spiritual advantage by them to his Soul, that he is loth to be kept back; he can not foare these Ordinances, --- no more than he can spare the Bread from his Mouth, or the Clothes from his Back; year or the Skin from his Flesh, no nor so much. He loveth them; he cannot live without them. - And therefore if he had but a bare leave from God, without a Command, to fanctify the Lord's day, and to live in the holy Communion of the Saints, he would joyfully take it, with many thanks; for he need not be driven to his Rest when he is weary, nor to his spiritual Food when he is hungry. -- But the unfanctified Hypocrite, that never leved God or Godlines in his Heart, he Itands questioning and enquiring for some proof of a Necessity of these Courses, And if he can but bring himself to hope that God will fave him without fo much adoe, --- away then goes the Duty. --- He never was Religious from a true Predominant 1 ore to God, and an holy Life, but for fear of Hell, and for other inferiour respects. Mr. Baxter's Direct. and Perfma, to a found Converf. from p. 371, 10,376.

wade

Now

for-

Bur-

that this

Will

In-

fa-

ves,

for

or

and

and

me

fe-

le-

th

od

22-

fe

,

n

h

-

f

ferve the Lord's-day, as you were ready to promife you would, when you lay last upon a Sick-Bed? and as careless Sinners commonly wish they had, when they come to lie upon a Death-bed? Will you make every Sabbath here on Earth, resemble in some Degree that eternal Rest, which you hope to hallow more perfectly in Heaven?

Seriously consider, how many Lord's-daies you have lost already, and what reason you have to obferve and improve those that remain. Do you know bon few fuch Dajes you shall ever enjoy more? It may be this Lord's-day may be the last, Before the next Sabbath comes, thou maiest be called to a reckening for neglecting and mis-spending all that are past. Thou art not fure, that ever thou shalt pray in publick more: that ever the Liberty shall again be afforded thee, of hearing another Sermon preach'd to thee: Thou maiest never enjoy such a bleffed Opportunity to take pains with thy Family, and to fave their Souls from Death, before thou diest. If God shall please to put such Prices into thy Hands, God give thee an Heart to make use of them.

Carefully redeem the Lord's-day, and every Day after shew in thy Life that thou hast redeem'd it. Make it appear by the Frame of thy Actions, and Course of thy Life all the Week long, that thou halt been under spiritual, powerful, quickening Ordinances the last Lord's-day. You that enjoyed Communion with God on the Lord's-day, have no parley with Satan, no familiarity with Sin, no fellowship with the unfruitful Works of Darkneson any of the Weekdaies following. Be fure you every Day avoid those Sins, which you folemnly confess'd the last Lord's-day, and live over the Praiers you made that Day : and live up to the Sermons you heard that

that I Doctr

perfo

whic

keep

on th

WTO

that

obta

in 1

COL

dan

Da

that Day; and obey from the Heart that Form of Doctrine, which that Day was delivered to you. Perform every Day those Resolutions and Promises, which you made to God on the Lord's-day; and keep the Covenant you renewed at the Sacrament on that Day; and maintain the Warmth that was wrought on your Souls by the Word and Spirit on that Day, Use every Day the Grace you ask'd, obtain'd and receiv'd on the Lord's-day; and act in the Strength and Power of Christ, which was communicated and given in to you, in your Attendance upon him in his own Ordinances, on his own Day.

This is the fecond particular Season, and special Opportunity, that is to be carefully redeem'd by every Christian; The Morning of the Week, the Lord's Day.

to pro-

Sick-

they

-bed ?

, re-

which

you

o ob-

you

ore!

efore

to a halt

hall

non cha

mi-

ore ces

ike

ay

kę

en

es

h

And I have purposely treated so largely concerning the Redemption of the Lord's-day, because it is so despised in the Judgment, and disregarded in the Practice of the considers Men of this dissolute and degenerate Age,

The third Particular Opportunity to be redeem'd.

As the Morning efevery Week, the first Day of the Week, so the [1] Morning of every Day, is a spe-

^[1] Dr. Gouge was very conficientious in the expense of his Time from his Youth to the very Time of his Death. His cuftom was to rife very early both in the Winter and Summer. In the Winter-time he confiantly rose so long before Day, as that he alwaies perform'd all the exercises of his Private Devotions before Day-light: And in the Summer-time he rose about four a Cleek in the Morning; by which means he had done half his Work before others began their Studies. If he happen'd to hear special Season, that ought to be redeem'd and improved by a Christian, to spiritual Advantage. The Morning is an Opportunity of giving God the very first, and best of the Day; and the chief of our Life, Spirits, and Strength. In the Morning our Spirits are recreated and repair'd, and our Bodies strengthned and refresh'd with the Rest and Sleen of the Night past: and our Minds are vacant, and not disturb'd with those Images and Representations of Things, which the variety of worldly Employments in the Day usually fill and possess us with. In the Morning our Minds are most free, and our Affections most lively (as those strong Waters are fullest of Spirits, which are first drawn) and our Hearts not so entangled and encumbred with the Things of the World. In the Morning we are clearest and fittest for any thing; and therefore, to be fure, fittelt for God, and the Worship of God; freest and freshelt for holy Duties, spiritual Services, and religious Exercifes. The Morning is as much a Friend to the Graces, as to the Mufes. As the Morning is a special Time for Study, so for Duty: As it is the best studying Time, so it is the best praying Time.

The

The

ning th

we hn

Morn

contin

the A

Morr

* the

brou

gave

of th

Mo

the

the niy

thy

the

(+

any at their Work before he began his Studies, he would fay (as Demosthenes spake concerning the Smuth) that he was much troubled that any should be at the Works of their Calling, before he was at his. In his Life among Mr. Clark's Lives of ten Em Div. p. 116, 117. He continued in King's Colledg for the space of nine Tears, and in all that Time (except he went forth of Town to his Friends) he was never absent from Morning-Prasers in the Chappel, which used to be about half an Hour after five a Clock in the Morning; yea, he used to rise so long before he went to the Chappel, as that he gained Time for his Secret Devotions, and for reading his Morning-task of the Scriptures. Ibid p. 97.

The People of God have ever accounted the Morning the fitteit Season for Devotion: And therefore we had, that holy [k] Job rose up early in the Morning, and offer'd Burnt-offerings: Thus did Job continually: Not only in the Morning, but early in the Morning; in the very Beginning, or first of the We read how God commanded, that Morning. * the first of the first Fruits of the Land should be brought into the House of the Lord : So here, Fob gave God, not only the first Fruits of the Day, but the earliest Time in the Morning, which is the first of the first Fruits of the Day; the Morning of the Morning (as I may so speak). So David chooseth the Morning-feason: 1 My Voice shalt thou bear in the Morning , O Lord ; in the Morning will I direct my Praier unto thee. It is a good Thing to | hew forth thy loving-kindness in the Morning. (*) I prevented the dawning of the Morning , and cried. And again ; (+) When I wake, I am still with thee, faies he; He gave God the first of his fixed and settled Thoughts. Is is recorded of our olelled Saviour, that he (1) rofe up in the Morning, a great while before Day, to go into a folitary Place to pray. And 'cis faid of the Apostles, that they [+] entred into the Temple early in the Morning. So we should enter into our Clofets early in the Morning; and make it our first business and employment to converse with God, and commune with our own Hearts, to betake our felves to Praier, and to [1] Reading of the Scrip-

nd im-

intage.

d the

of our

e our

Bodies

Sleep

and

enta-

rldly

ree,

Wa-

and

are to od;

vi-

as

As

eft

be

[[] b] lob 1. 5 See Mr. Caryl on the place.

^{} Exod. 23.19. † Pfal. 5.3. | Pfal. 42.2. () Pfal 119.147. (†) Pfal. 139 18. (†) Mark i, 35.

^[4] Acts 5, 21.
[4] Who reade a Chapter when they rife, Shall ne'er be troubled with id Eyes.

Herbers 8 Poem-Chains and Knots.

Scripture, and to give our felves to Meditation.

And furely (as a [m] great Divine faies excellently) If Men would give some divine Precepts or Sentences full possession of their Morning Thoughts, these would serve as so many Armed Men, to keep out the Suggestions of the Devil, the World, and the Flesh, from entring into their Hearts. [n] The filling our Minds, and possessing our Hearts with serious holy Thoughts in the first place, as soon as ever we wake in the Morning, is an excellent Means to prevent those frothy vain Thoughts, which are apt to arise in empty Hearts: As, you know, the taking a good Draught in the Morning, is the way to keep out the Wind, which would offend and trouble an empty Stomach. When we first open our Eyes in a Morning (as a [] worthy Doctor does well illustrate this matter) many Vanities and Businesses stand like earnest Suiters, or as diligent Clients at Lawyers Doors, waiting to feak with our Thoughts, and ready to press and croud in upon us: but let us speak with God first, and he will say something to our Hearts, will fix and lettle them for all Day.

The Morning is a special Opportunity to be carefully redeemed; and the rather to be redeemed, because by redeeming the Morning, we are likely to redeem the whole Day following. If a Watch or Clock be wound up well in the Morning, 'twill go right, and keep true all the Day after: So the winding up of our Hearts by devout Meditation in

the

the N

ceedi

ing.

are l doin

in st

Day

Wor

lov

ful

me

dy

ne

OU

in fic

TI

n

[[]m] Dr. Jschon, V 3. p. 92.
[m] Posces ante diem librum cum lumine, si non Antenies animum studius & rebus honestu; Invidia, vel amore vigil torquebere. Horat. Ep. l. 1. ep. 2.
[o] Dr. Tho, Goo. win of the Van. of Thoughts. p. 32.

Medita
ceeding ing.

are lii

thefe

Sugfrom
Day, Linds,

holy wake

vent

arise

ig a

teep

an na

ate

like

ers

dv

th

ill

the Morning, will be a means of our regular Proceeding to the Close and End of the Day following. If we awake with God in the Morning, we are likely to walk with God all the Day long. Our doing God service in the Morning, will stand us in stead all the Day after: will engage and oblige us, dispose and encline us to keep a Decorum all the Day, and to do nothing unworthy of our Morning's Work.

The serious Consideration of the Goodness and The ferious Confideration of the Goodness and loving Kindness of God towards us, his Watchfulness over us, Protection, Preservation, Refreshment of us the very Night past; will make us study to render fuitably to fuch a Mercy; and to live to him all the Day, who gives us, as it were, a new Life every Morning. Our labouring to get our Minds and Hearts, early and throughly polleft in the Morning, with quick and lively Apprehenfions, and powerful, deep Impressions of the glorious, divine Attributes and Perfections, of God's Greatness, Holiness, Justice, Omniscience, Omnipresence, will keep us close to God and our Duty all the Day. Our being with God in the first place, as foon as we are up every Morning; this will feafon our Hearts, spiritualize our Affections, aw our Consciences, and be a means to regulate our Actions, and to fanctify our Employments, Carriages and Converfes the whole Day following.

Whereas if we neglect God in the Morning, God may justly leave us to our selves all the Day after. If we venture to go into the World, before we have first gon to God; we rashly rush into Danger, because we take not God along with us; whose Prefence, Guidance, Grace and Strength, is our only Safety and great Security against the Malignity

àud

and Evil of the World. If we don't in the Morning, and Beginning of the Day, implore the alvine Prefence and Aniltance, and beg God's Providence over us, Direction of us, and Blelling upon us: If we feek not God, before we feek the World, before we feek our felves, we are likely to do nothing but mif-carry in every Thing all the Day: We are apt to be caught in every Snare, to be overborn by every Corruption, and overcome by every 1 emptation: and therefore be fure to redeem the Morning-Season.

The fourth Particular Opportunity to be redeemed.

4. The Society and Company of the most Religious and Godly, is another Special Opportunity, to be presently laid talk hold on, and faith ully made good tile of.

You have here an occasion of doing good, by your ferious and favoury Speeches. Honest Hearts will presently close with them, receive and embrace them, entertain and accept them, and not slight and reject them, scoff and mock at them.

Further; You have here an occasion of receiving good, from other's furtable and feasonable Discourfes: you may be edified by their Gifts, profited by their Graces, quickned by their Affections, encouraged by their Examples, recovered by their Reproofs, directed by their Counsels, affished by their Praiers, instructed, strengthned, and comforted by their Experiences. When you come in company with able, godly Ministers, or knowing, experienced Christians, you may put Cases, and have them resolved: propound Doubts, and have them fatisfied: you may light your Candle by their's: you may kindle your Coal at their Fire, and

and ft way. prized good carna (white courf and ciety > fing and Gra for and ved > > to is a lib ha go M

Se ne yi

UMI

and stay and warm your self well before you go away. Godly Company is an Opportunity to be prized, and improved. Whenever you enjoy good Company, make the best of it. Let not carnal Bashulness, nor a vain and worldly Heart (which is apt to seek idle and unprositable Discourse) hinder and deprive you of the Prosit and Benefit, which may be reaped by godly Society:

The last Particular Opportunities to be redeemed.

5. And lastly; The particular Seasons of practifing and performing particular Duties; of getting and encreasing, acting and exercising particular Graces; these have a special, commodious Fitness, for the doing, or receiving some particular Good, and ought accordingly to be embraced and improved by us.

More di-

Pro-

ling

the v to

the

e, to e to 1 ious

be

od

ur

ill

ht

ng

1-

y

ir

y

-

n

When we know a Person (a good Man especially) to be in real Necessity, and great Extremity, then is an Opportunity of exercising Charity, in giving liberally according to our Ability. When another has wronged and injured us, then we have gotten a good Occasion of exercising Charity, and shewing Mercy, in free and full Forgivenes. When a Brother is fallen into Sin at any Time, then it is a Season to *restore such an one in the Spirit of Meekness. When any Person is slexible and tractable, yielding and pliable, being melted and molished by an afflictive Providence, or moved and enclined to hearken to us, by Dependance on us, Expectation from us, or any Relation and Obligation to us; we have a fair Opportunity to deal with fuch an one, at fuch a Time, for the furthering of his spiritual and eternal Good.

[.] Gal. 6. 1.

When any are cast upon Sick-beds, and are somewhat awakened and softned by God's Hand, then they are prepared for your Hand; you may the more easily work upon them. When any have newly received a Benefit from us, or hope to be shortly beholden to us, and so are ready to think well of us, and to take all well from us; then we may reprove, admonish, exhort them, with a comfortable Hope of happy Success, and good Effect.

The Conscience of a Man is a nice and fullen Thing; and if it be not taken at fit Times, there is no meddling with it.

And so likewise in respect of our selves; when we have received any fresh Mercy from God, or are actually enjoying the Bleslings of God, and tasting how good and gracious the Lord is, then is an Occasion of stirring up our selves to Praise and Thanksgiving. When we lie under an heavy Affliction, then it is a Season of acting and exercifing Faith, Repentance, Patience: a convenient Season for Self-Examination, sound Humiliation, earnest Supplication, and thorough Reformation. When we find a fecret Chearfulness of Spirit, then it is a Season to spiritualize our Joy and Gladness, to think upon God's Mercies, to recount his Benefits, to fet forth the Praises of our Creator, Preferver, and Redeemer. * Is any merry? let him fing Pfalms. When we find any Sadness growing upon our Spirits, then it is a Season to spiritualize our Sorrow and Sadness: to mourn and grieve for our Sins espeespecia and ac Onc Spirit

Work
Minds Heart
ny go
good
on to is a fi

take grea the Ang > blow how Spin

> > we fur bu

Ten

or PA ti

^{*} Jam 5 13.

especially: to weep in secret for them, to confess and acknowledg them, and pray against them.

Once more; When at any Time [p] the holy Spirit of God, joining with the good Word of God, or concurring with the Providences and remarkable Works of God, does strongly work upon our Minds, and sweetly and powerfully move and thir our Hearts and Affections: When the Spirit initills any good Motions into our Souls, and kindles any good Defires in our Hearts, and kindly draws us on to holy Purposes and good Resolutions; This is a special Opportunity indeed: This is Temporis Articulus, the very Nick of Time, which must be taken on a fuddain, or it's presently lost to our great Disadvantage. Do not fail to strike, while the Iron is hot. Step into the Pool, whenever the Angel stirs the Water. Lanch out immediately, whiles Wind and Tide ferve. When you feel any gentle Gale, spread open your Sail: This Wind blows when and where it lifteth: You know not how foon this Wind may turn. Whenever the Spirit knocks, open the Door: [q] you know not how foon he may have done, how quickly he may be gone. Delicata res est Spiritus Santius, saies Tertullian; The Spirit of God is a nice and delicate Thing:

h foch

of his

d are

Hand,

may

have

to be

think

n we ith a

good

Tullen

here

vhen

or or

and

n is

and

Af-

rci-

ent

on,

On.

ess,

e-

eng

n

r-

18

The bythe length, but by the length, but by the weight; not by its greatness, but by its worth. Let us not manfure our Daies (as we do) by the motion of the Sun which we fee, but by the shining of the Sun of Rightcoufness upon our Souls: not by the celestial Bodies, but by the celestial Inspirations. —Asto the purposes of Holiness, and getting neuer to Heaven, one moment, when the Spirit of God is upon us, and strongly possesses our Mind with good Things, and breaths into us hong Affections, is worth many Hours, yea Daies and Years when that is not with us, or doth not so powerfully incite us. D. Patrick's Div. Arithm. p. 37, 38.

Thing: it is foon offended, and quickly grieved And therefore subject your selves to the Working of the Spirit; and work with the Spirit, while the Spirit is at work : Gladly receive every Impression of this immediate, gracious, free Operator: Welcome every Suggestion, of this blessed Monitor: Let every Inspiration find thee, as the Seal does the Wax, or the Spark the Tinder. Kindly entertain all its Visits, and readily obey all its Motions: follow them home; don't check and quench them, stifle and smother them: Never suffer them to die and decay, to languish, and perish, and come to nothing. Do the Particular Duties, the Spirit calls you to: Get, and grow in the special Graces, which the Spirit is ready to beget and encrease in you. Run freely and willingly, fo foon as ever you feel and perceive that the Spirit draws you. If you don't stir when the Spirit moves, and act when it works; you may drive and chase away the Spirit, and so lie dull and dead, graceless, and helpless, and hopeless for ever.

And thus I have open'd and explain'd the Duty; and shewn you particularly, both what it is to redeem the Time, and what the Time is that is to be redeemed.

The Sum of all is briefly this; that our whole Life-time, and every particular Occasion afforded us in it, must (whatever it cost us) by all means be laid hold on, and improved by us, for the Glory of God, and our own and others spiritual Advantage.

CHAP.

 T_{i}

be

CHAP. III.

The Grounds and Reasons why we ought to redeem the The Special Reason laid down in the Text; because the Daies are evil. What to be understood by evil Daies. Daies are faid to be evil, not inherently, but adherently, or concomitantly; by reason of any sinful, or penal Evil that befalleth in them. The Evil of the Day, is either General, or Special: General; the Shortness and Trouble, which does accompany the Time of this Life. The Particular Evil of the Day is, when any special Evil takes place in such a Time. The particular Evil of the Apostles Times three-fold. It stood (1.) in dangerous Errours and false Doctrines. (2.) In the vicious and wicked Lives of scandalous Professors of the Gospel. (3.) In sharp and hot Persecutions. How far these several Evils are to be found in these our Daies. Our redeeming of the Time, and endeavouring to grow better our selves, is the ready way, and only means to make the Evil Daies better.

The Special Reason laid down in the Text.

Come now to the Grounds and Reasons of this Duty. There is a special Reason laid down in the Text. I shall first fully speak to that, and then I shall add some others to it. The Apostle here present Christians to redeem the Time, with this Reason or Argument, because the Daies are evil.

Now

grieved. Working while operableffed

as the

Tinder.

obey all

ck and ver fuf-

nd pear Du.

ow in

to be-

ingly,

Spi-

pirit

and

lead,

ity;

be

ole ed

be

e.

Now what is here to be understood by [evil Daies]? Daies are said to be good or evil (saies [a] Mr. Bayne) according to that which befalleth in them: As a good Time, when matter of Commodity or Merriment is in hand: and an evil Time, when the contrary. The Hebrews call those Daies evil, which are full of Troubles and Dissipational Countries (saies [b] Beza). Daies are not morally evil: They are said to be evil, not inherently, but adherently, or concomitantly, by reason of any moral and sinful, or penal and troublesome Evil, that prevails and takes place within the compass of them.

Now the xarla windeas, or Evil of the Day (as Christ * calls it) is either General, or Special.

The General Evil of Daies or Times.

1. The General Evil, is the Shortness, [c] Trouble and Misery which does accompany the Time of this Life. Of this Jacob speaks: † Few and evil have the Days of the Years of my Life been. In this sence (saies [d] St. Austin) the Daies were ever evil since Adam's Fall, because Mankind has been subject to Misery ever since. Let us ask the Children newly born, saies he, why they begin with weeping, that are capable of laugh-sing.

[a] Bayne in loc. [b] Beza in loc.

* Matth. 6. 34.
[c] Omnia ad qua gemimus, qua exparescimus, tributa re ta sunt. Sen Ep. 96.

ing.

langh.

crying

Proph

neffes

it for

to go

Tim

is to

Wo

ted

ther

fpe

we

for iti

T

f Gen. 47 9 [4] Dies malos dua res faciunt, miseria hominum & malieia, &c. 1sos suros qui nascuntur interrogenme ; quare à ploratu incipiant, qui & ridere possunt. Nascitur, & statim plorat: post n'sco quet dies ridet. Quando plorabat nascens, propheta sua calamitatu erat. Lachryma enim sestes sunt miseria. Nondum loquitur, & jam trophetat in labore se sustrum, in timore. August. in Teat, Hom. 10, inter 50.

ing. The Child is born, and cries immediately: he laughsnot till I know not how many Daies after. By crying as soon as it came into the World, it became the Prophet of its own Calamity. Its Tears are the Witnesses of its Misery. Before it is able to speak a Word, it foretells the manifold Labours and Sorrows it is born to go through in this World.

We may likewise reckon into the general Evil of Times and Daies, that [e] common Wickedness which is to be found in the World in all Ages of the World. No Time or Age, but may be denominated evil, from the [f] evil Men and evil Manners thereof.

y [evil

(faies

falleth

Com-n evil

those Diffi-

ally e-

, but

moral

pre-

m.

(as 011-

of 200 ies n'e

er

h-

g.

2. The particular Evil of the Day, is, when any special Evil takes place in such a Time: And thus we must understand the evil Daies in the Text, of some Particular Evil that reigned in them; because it is spoken with an Eminency of those Times.

Now the Evil of those Times was three-fold; There was the Evil of Errour: the Evil of Loos-ness of Life and Manners: and lastly, the Evil of Persecution.

The first Particular Evil of the Apostles Daics, and ours.

r. The Evil of those Times stood in the Errours and false Doctrines, which were vented and broached 3.

[e] Dies mali sunt, id est, tempus hujus vita plenum est tentationibus & laqueu peccasorum. Estiv in loc.

[[]f] Mali sunt, non à temporis vit.o, sed hominum qui in tempore vivunt, ld. ib Non sui natur à : sed propter homin un maistam, qua in ilies grassaur. Sunt sgitur misli, i. c. persecterum ab impies hominishme plens. Zanch. in loc.

ed in the Church, and began to spread like a Gangrene. That which made those Daies Evil, was, the great Danger from Seducers, by reason of their * flight and cunning Crastiness, whereby they lay in wait to deceive: Lay in wait, as a Thief to rob; or as a Fowler, to take silly Birds: and † made Merchandise of People with feigned Words: And by good Words and fair Speeches, by plausible Pretences and Discourses, deceived the Hearts of the Simple, of easy and seducible Persons. That which made those Daies evil was, those (*) damnable Heresies, slily brought in by false Teachers: and the (†) Errour of the Wicked (asit is called by St. Peter). Such Errour in Judgment, as disposed Men to Wickedness in their Conversations.

Now this Evil of Errour, is to be found in ours, as well as in the Apostles Daies. The Times we live in, are Times of Seduction, erroneous Times. What a strong Head has Atheisin gotten in this our Land, in these our Daies! God governs the World now by Wisdom, which might fufficiently convince Men of his Deity: But because there are now no more visible sensible Appearances of his Power in the World, in the immediate exemplary Punishment of Sinners, therefore they fear and acknowledg him no more. And how doth Atheism in Life and Affection lead too too many to a radicated Atheism in Judgment and Opinion? How many of the Gentry of this Nation are miserably tainted and poisoned with it? So that our Nation comes far short of the State and Condition of the Heathen

Rome

and B

bave

and g

have far a ser a

tino

in lik

mad

wid

mor

Stat

vine

facr

torr

VIOU

Day

OWI

Effe

ring

con

and

and

the red

Da

du

Na

Dec

XIM.

W

^{*} Eh 4. 14. † 2 Pet. 2. 3.

^{(*) 2 14. 2. 1. (†) 2} Pet 3. 17.

Rome, which Cicero thus describes; [g] In Piety, and Religion, and in this one piece of Wisdom, that we have known and acknowledged that all Things are ruled and governed by the Power of the immortal Gods, we have excelled all Nations and People in the World. How far are we this Day from deserving such a Character as this?

When Atheism, Socinianism, Arminianism, Antinomianism, Quakerism, Popery, have broke inlike a Floud: when Errours and Herefies have made fuch an Imrode upon us, and fpread fo far and wide among us: When fo many fo boldly deny the Providence and very Being of God, the Immortality of the rational Soul, and a Life and State of Retribution in another World; the Divine Authority, Perfection, and Perspicuity of the facred Scriptures, the eternal Duration of Helltorments, the Divinity and Satisfaction of our Saviour Christ, the divine Institution of the Lord's-Day; deny the Necessity of the Moral Law, difown Original Sin, and any fuch Thing as Special, Effectual, Discriminating Grace, infallibly securing the Event as to the Elect: affert Perfection, contend for Papal Infallibility, plead for Idolatry, and gross Superitition; and delign, and endeavour, and hope to make Popery become the Religion of the Nation; it concerns you furely carefully now to redeem the Time.

The Evil of Errour mightily prevails in these our Daies. Seducers and Impostors are subtil and industrious; and Errour is of a catching, spreading Nature: therefore (as St. Paul said to the Corintage of thians)

Gan-

was,

on of

they

of to

and

rds:

lible

s of

That

nna-

ers :

by

ofed

MYS,

We

nes.

this

the

tly

are

his

ary

ac-

lim

any

ed

ar

en

nć

[[]g] Pietate, ac Religione, atque hac una Sapientia, quod Deorum immortalium numine, omnia regi, guberum i que perfecximus, omnes gentes massonéfque superavimus.

thians) * I fear, lest by any means, as the Serpem beguised Eve through his Subtilty, so your Minds should be corrupted from the Simplicity that w in Christ. Take heed that the Leprose get not into your Head: (In that case, you know, the Priest was to pronounce a Man tutterly unclean.) That Errour take not Possession of your Mind, for that is the Eye, the leading Faculty: and it it slip into the Mind, and Judzment, it will steal and creep into the Conscience, and that is so active a Faculty, that it will engage all. O do your utmost and belt endeavour to keep your selves clear and free from the foul and infectious Errours of the Times you live in. | Beware, less ye being led away with the Errour of the Wicked, fall from your own Stedfastness.

1. Be not too credulous. (*) Believe not every Spirit: not every one that pretends to a Spirit of Truth, acting and breathing in him. Now the Air abroad is so petitlentially infected, take heed what Air you suck in. Be very wary what Money you take, since the Markets are so full of adulterate Coin.

2. Be careful to avoid the Meetings, and to shun the Society of Seducers. From (†) Men of corrupt Minds, and destitute of the Truth, from such withdraw thy self: Don't venture to keep them Company, and to take their Breath, who have the Plague of wicked Errour upon them, and whose Converse is Death, and the eternal Ruin of your Souls. Forbear to hear their Discourses, or to read their Writings. You are bidden indeed to (||) trythe Spirits that is, to try all you hear; but you must not be bold to hear all, when you can shift it. The Wise Man

Man

ledg

in v pen

En

you

cip

ar ar

S

ch

C

^{* 2} Cer. 11. 3. † Levit 13. 44. # 2 Pet. 3 17. (*) 1 Joh. 4 1. (†) 1 Tim. 6. 5. (4) 1 Joh. 4 1.

Man forbids that; * Ceafe, my Son, to hear the Infirmation that caufeth to err from the Words of Knowledy. Remember the fad Event of Eve's Rashness, in venturing to listen to the Discourse of the Serpent.

Serpen

s should

Take

d: (In

lounce

lead.

Judg - e, and

ge all

your lest

5 fall

every

it of

Air

vhat

уоц

rate

hun

rupt

ich-

m-

QNe

rfe

or-

ri-

s : be

fe

ın

3. And that you may be the better fecured from Errour, labour to get a good Understanding of your Catechism: to be well grounded in the Principles and Essentials, and settled in the radical sundamental and practical Truths of Religion, and throughly acquainted with the Necessaries to Salvation. Do not stick to say with [b] Luther, I confess, I am still a Learner and Studier of my Catechism. Learn it your selves, and teach it your Children and Servants, understandingly.

The want of Peoples being well instructed, and throughly grounded in the Principles of Religion, is a great [i] Reason of the many Errours that have been so rise in these late Times. Men have not lyen sast in the Building, upon the Foundation; and therefore it is, that they have so easily been tumbled up and down like loose Stones. Converse with your Catechism.

4. And confirm your Belief of the Divinity of the Scripture, by getting rational Evidence, and an inward Sence and Experience of it. And fearch, and study the Scriptures; and compare the Doctrines taught by Men with the Word of God, and try and examine them by that Rule.

5. Again;

* Prov 19. 27.

[h] Fareor me Carecb fmi descipulum.

^[1] If this Duty of Catechifing be neglected, we may preach our Lungs our, if we will, but with little Effect; When we have spent all our Wind upon the Ears of our People, their Hearts will be still apt to be carried away with every Wind of Doctrine.

Bp. Hall's Peace-maker. p. 201.

5. Again; Beg the Spirit of Truth, to lead and guide you into all necessary Truth. As it is not a strong Constitution that will secure you from the Plague, so it is not your best Parts that will preferve you from the Insection of Errour, if the Spirit of God do not keep and protect you; if the Spirit of Christ, the Spirit of Truth withdraw from

vou.

6. Add to all, your earnest Endeavour to get your Hearts * renewed, and feafoned, and * Itablish'd with Grace; which will prove an excellent Preservative, a soveraign Antidote and Defensative against the Contagion and Infection of Errour. Any Errour will eafily flip into an ignorant, uncatechized Head; and an unmortified, unfanctified, ungracious Heart. The t filly Women, that were led captive, were fuch as were laden with Sins, led away with divers Lusts. So they were | ungody Men, who turned the Grace of our God into lascivionsness, and denied the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, They that walk in loose Garments, foon take Wind : Loofe Lives will gather in and breed loofe Principles. If you don't take in fufficient Ballast of Grace to fettle you, you will be toffed to and fro, and carried about with every Wind of strange Dostrine. If you want a good Biass of Sincerity for God, carnal Interests and Ends will easily mis-lead you. If you be devoid and destitute of Grace, you will be proud and conceited, rash and unwary, you will never distrust your felves, you will never weigh and confider Things well before you take them up. Want of Grace, will also breed an Itch of vain Curiofity in your Minds, and cause you to linger and hanker hanke

Wills

fland

ten b

what

ly fe

your bout

thei

Go

you

An

tal

fol

te

CC

^{*} Rom. 12. 3. H.b. 13. 9. 2 Per. 3. 17, 18.

hanker after Novelties. Further; your depraved Wills will have a malign Influence on your Underflandings; and your carnal Affections will too often bribe and pervert your Judgments: fo that whatever your Wills and Affections are vehemently fet upon, must be allowed by the Authority of your Judgments, and fecretly, if not openly maintained and pleaded for. Those various Opinions about the Chief Good, might arise and proceed from their Over-affection to some created and inferiour Good. Your foul Stomach will infect your Brain : your unfound Heart will cause a corrupt Head. And an ill Life will engage you to entertain and take up fuch corrupt Principles, as may favour and foster your Viciousness, give allowance and countenance to your Wickedness. Your Sin will become the Root of Errour. If you be loth to be ruled by the Laws of Christ, you have a Temptation from your own Luits to turn to Antinomia-As Luther faid, that Every Man had a Pope in his Belly; So, every wicked Man has an Heretick in his Breaft. And let me moreover tell you, that without Grace you will never tafte and favour, rellish, love and like the Truth; or have any fensible, fweet, experimental Knowledg of it, which may engage and keep you close to it. The Truths of God are fo fuitable to a gracious Heart, that it quickly closeth with them: But the Errours of the Wicked are flatly against such and such practical Impressions upon the Soul of a Christian. A gracious Person has a good Complexion and Constitution of Soul, which difgusts and disrelisheth whatfoever is contrary to it. And therefore many an Errour lies but unevenly and untowardly in a good Man's Mind, when presented to his Thoughts; And when an bonest-hearted Christian hears some Sermon or ad and is not

m the

pre-

e Spi-

e Spi-

from

llent

nfa-

Er-

ant,

cti-

hat

ins,

dly

vi-

rd

s,

or Discourse that is erroneous; though he be not able handfomly to detect, and logically to lay open the Nature, and Danger of the Errour; vet it goes against him; he cannot down with it; he finds a strong Antipathy against it, he has (not by Infiration, but by real [k] Impression on his Soul) a Witnes within himself against it; an imward Sense, that disapproves it; a new Nature, that nauseats. rejects, and rifes against it. Just as the Sea, by the Strength of its Nature, casts up, works out, and purgeth it felf of those Straws and Sticks, that Filth and Dirt, that Frippery and Trash, which flowed into it with the River-water. And therefore get a Principle of Grace into thy Heart, as ever thou wouldst keep Errour out of thy Head. And be fure to * hold a good Conscience, that you may be able to hold the Doctrine of Faith. + Hold the Mystery of the Faith in a pure Conscience: Like heavenly Manna, let it be kept in a Pot of pure Gold.

By all means labour to be || found in the Faith; and () hold fast the Form of found Words: Resolve, by the Help of God, to () hold it fast against all Temprations to let it go: Hold it sait in Faith and Love: Let the Grace of Love even glue you to the Truth, and constrain you to a firm Adhesion to it. (†) Receive the Love of the Truth, that you may abide in the Truth, and may not be given over to strong Delusions, to believe a Lie.

(||) Contend earnestly for the Faith, which was once delivered unto the Saints, Vigoroully oppose fundamental

(†) 2 Thefl. 2. 10, 11. (1) Jude 3.

ment al

prefly

Article

Truth

but no

(All 7

very l

tend a

to be accor

thous

chief

will 4

Tiles

into

may

thof

in T

felv

HOY

(as her

for tal

be an

al

th

Y

^{[&}amp;] See Mr. Baxter's Unreason. of Infid. His 2d Discourse there, on 1 Joh. 5. 10. p. 116, 117, 127, 128, 158, 161, * 1 Tim. 1. 19. † 1 Tim. 3. 9. || Tit. 2. 2. (*) 2 Tim. 1. 13.

mental Errours, fuch as directly, or reductively, exprefly, or by necessary Consequence, destroy the Articles of our Faith. Contend for fundamental Truths: for these especially, and most earnestly; but not for these only. Contend for all Truth; (All Truth is valuable) for the least Truth: The very Parings and Filings of Gold are precious. Contend as well for that, which is not acknowledged to be necessary to Salvation; as for that which is accounted commonly and ordinarily necessary, though not with an equal Contention. We are chiefly to look to the Foundation, or else the House will certainly fall: But yet we must look to the Tiles of the House too, or else the Rain will beat into the House, and in time the very Foundation may rot, and moulder, and perish. If we neglect those Truths which are not fundamental, we may in Time be brought to neglect Fundamentals themfelves.

Yet in smaller Errours be content to bear what you cannot cure. Very good Christians may have (as it is said of St. Cyprian) navos in candido pectore; here and there a Mole or Mark in otherwise a fair and clear Breast. Very honest Hearts may have some lighter Errours in their Minds, some Mistakes or other in their Judgments, which ought to be prudemly tolerated, rather than brotherly Peace and Union be broken and violated, or Christian Love and charitable Affection be withdrawn and alienated. Wisely and carefully distinguish between those Differences in Opinion, which are as the striving of one Israelite with another (which is the Lord [p] Verulam's elegant Comparison) and those pernicious damnable Heresses, which are as the fighting

be not

v open

yet it

e finds

Infpi

oul) a

Senfe,

feats,

5 by

out,

that hich

ere-

ever

And

nay

the

ea-

ire

b;

7e,

all

d

ne

0

^[] Advanc. of Learn. 1. 9. p. 473.

ing of an Egyptian with an Ifraelite: You must, with Moses, be mild and gentle, tair and peaceable in dealing with the former; but sharp and severe in oppug-ning and suppressing the latter.

Take care that you your selves don't desperately fall into the gross and grievous Errours of the Times you live in: And take all Opportunities, according to your Abilities, to inform and instruct, to gain and win and bring over the erroneous and incredulous, to the * acknowledging of the Truth, which is after Godliness.

That is the first; Redeem the Time, because the Daies are evil: Daies, in which dangerous Errours and false Doctrines are vented and propagated.

The second Particular Evil of the Apostles Daies, and ours.

2. The Evil of the Apostles Times stood in the vicious and wicked Lives of scandalous Professors of the Gofbel.

The Daies are Evil; that is (faies [m] Calvin) all Things are full of Scandals and Corruptions: infomuch as it's hard for those that are good to be kept free from hurt, to be preserved untainted with the Infection of the Times.

And in this Sense, the Daies we live in, are evil Daies too.

The

ve

ar

ne

in

V

ar

m

ch

Si

u

fe

CE

u

So

0

17 dı

fi

fa

S

p

[[]m] Dies males effe dicit, h. e. omnia scandalis I corruptelis effe plena, ut difficile sit pios manere illasos. Calv. in be.

not

The present Age, is an ungodly Age. | Iniquity everywhere abounds. Great and groß Irreligion and Profaneness, extreme Loosness and Licentiousness, boundless Sensuality and Voluptuousness, immeasurable Gluttony and Drunkenness, beastly Wantonness and Uncleanness, prodigious Pride and Haughtiness, bitter Animosity and Revenge, malicious Slandering and Backbiting, rath and uncharitable Judging and Cenfuring; Lying, Swearing, Subornation, Perjury, Curfing, Sabbath-breaking; Unthankfulness, Unfruitfulness, Want of Humiliation and Reformation under Variety of fore and fevere Judgments, Carelefness of God's Providences, Contempt of his Word and Ordinances, Abuse of his blessed Spirit, Playing and Drolling with Scripture, Mocking at Religion, Scoffing at Holiness, and Enmity against Purity and the Power of Godliness, are now rife and common, the reigning and crying Sins of this Land and Nation.

Now what should me do, to make a good Use, and due Improvement of such evil Daies as these? I anfwer;

with n dea-

ppug-

erate-

of the

nities,

truct,

is and

Truth,

canfe

eroug

pro-

254

e vi-

fthe

vin)

info-

free

In-

evil

The

relis

1. Are the Daies thus evil? let us then, in a right manner, be troubled at the Evil of them. It is faid, that * righteous Lot, dwelling among the filthy Sodomites, in feeing and hearing, vexed his righteous Soul, from day to day, with their unlawful Deeds. [He] vexed [himfelf;] was attive in it. Saint Peter expresses more in this than in the former Verse (as Calvin observes) to wit, that Lot did [n] voluntarily and willingly afflith himself: He did it freely; he was

+ Matt. 14. 12. * 2 Pet . 2. 8.

[[]n] Nempe gadd voluntaries cruciatus justus Les subierie, not fore dto it. He [vexed] himself; & Baodure. Tis [o] a Metaphor drawn from Torments, (says Gerhard) [p] The same Word is used to set out Hell-Torments. This good Man continually tortured and tormented himself: He lived a grievous painful Life; labouring no less, than if he had laien upon the Rack. It was a kind of Hell upon Earth to him, to see and hear such Things among them. They gave him Ground and Cause enough of Trouble and Grief, by their implecties and impurities; and his righteous Soul could not but work upon that Matter, and vex and afflict himself therewith.

The gross Wickedness of ungodly Men, is contrary to the gracious Temper, and new Nature of a good Man: and therefore he is no more able to bear it, than the Stomach can bear that which it vauseates. As a musical Ear will be offended with any harfh Sound; So Sin grates upon a godly Man, and is a Discord to him. At his new Birth there was implanted in his Nature a true Zeal to the Cause and Interest of Righte ousness and Goodness in the World: an inward Sense of its Beauty, Excellency, and Usefulness in the World: and a clear Conviction, and strong Apprehension of the Vanity, Unprofitableness, and Mitchievousness of Sin in the World. The righteous Man has a real Dislike of, a mighty Prejudice, and inward Antipathy against Sin, as Sin: He hates Sin, and loves Holiness heartily, wherever he finds it; and really wishes that there were no such Evil as Sin in the World. He is of another Spirit than wicked Men are: of a better Constitution, of a purer and more refined [0] Est "exaphora deo mentis dusta. Gerhar, in loc.

[p] Traig your er Baravois. The Rich Man being in Torments, Lune 10.23.

refine

is dir

there

meets

him.

other vily a

mpani :

Riv

keep !

beca

fpife

thy V

ved

ofth

of th

he v

Rep

had cou

YOUT

bed

Ab

VOI

In i

the

Af

COM

YOR

rea

nic

So

refined Temper. His new Nature and Disposition is directly contrary to that which is evil! and therefore, whenever he sees it, wherever he meets with it, it is a Vexation and Torment to him.

So holy David seriously laid to heart the Sins of others, was deeply affected with them, and heavily afflicted for them. * Horrow hath taken hold upon me, because of the Wicked that for sake thy Law. Rivers of Waters run down mine Eyes, because they keep not thy Law. + My Zeal hath consumed me ; not because I have Enemies, and these Enemies despiseme; but, because mine Enemies have forgotten thy Words. I beheld the Transgressors, and was grieved; because they kept not thy Word. () The Zeal of thine House hath eaten me up; and the Reproaches of them that reproached thee are fallen upon me. When he was in Trouble, he testifies his Sorrow for the Reproaches that fell upon God, as if he himself had been reproached. And the Prophet Jeremy could fay; (†) My Soul (hall weep in fecret Places for your Pride. And the Saints in Jerusalem are described to be (||) Men that figh, and that cry, for all the Abominations that be done in the midst thereof. - And you know St. Paul is very famous for this Affection: In the case of the incestuous Person he wrote unto the Corinthians [] with many Tears, out of much Affliction and Anguish of Heart. I fear, lest when I come again (faies he) my God will humble me among you, and that I shall bewail many which have sinned already, and have not repented of the Uncleanness and Fornication, and Lasciviousness which they have commit-evizev.

(fays

Holl-

tured

sinful

upon

him,

They

and

d his

Mat-

con-

of a

to

h it

ith

an,

ere

the

in el-

ar

ni-

in

al

4-

es

1-

le

Pfal. it 9, 53. | Verse i36, 139. | Verse 148. () Pfal 69. 9. (†) Jer. 13. 17. (1) Ezek. 9.4. [] a Cor. 2. 4. [†] a Cor. 12. 21.

ted. * Many malk, (saies he) of whom I have toldyou offen, and now tellyon even weeping, that they are the Enemies of the Croß of Christ.

1. O that it might be thus with every one of us; Let a Time of others Sin, be the Time of our Sorrows Let it greatly trouble us, to fee our good God wronged, our heavenly Father abused, and his hoby init and good Law broken and violated; To fee the Gospel dishonoured, and Religion discredited: To fee Satan pleased and honoured, and his Kingdom strengthned and advanced by the Wickedness of the Wicked: To see the precious Souls of Sinners hazarded and endangered by their own wilful Sin and Wickedness: To observe rerional Creatures living like mere brute Beafts; Baptized Christians acting like very Devils incarnate: To find Men rebelling against Light, resisting a Reproof, loath to be reclaimed, hardned in their Sin; and hating to be reformed: To fee fo many Fools and Mad-men beforted and bewitch'd, cruel to their own Souls, and Enemies to their own Peace; refusing all Helps of Health and Cure, contemning the Means of their Recovery, fond of a Disease, in love with Slavery, devoted to their Enemy, courting their own Mifery and Calamity, chuing Death rather than Life, eternal Life; walking apace in the broad Way that leadeth to Deftruction, running on in the Way to Hell, the Way that goeth down to the Chambers of Death: To behold so many stabbing themselves to the very Heart; greedily swallowing their own Poison, running into Pest-houses and infected Places drowning themselves in Destruction and Perdition, and casting

cafting

quench

24 A

and MI

Wicked

redital

ness b deboug

voking

ing and

the La

abode create

ment

hangi

down

betro

Misch

Sins:

broug

Wick

to us

perple

other.

then

entic

in th

felv

have

ther

Lan

[.] Phil. 3. 18.

cashing themselves into intolerable, eternal, un-

2. And let us moneover mourn to fee fo much Hura and Missing done in the World by others open Sin and Wickednes: To fee Sin become to fashionable and creditable: To behold so many corrupted and infecped hardned and confirmed in Sin and Wickednels, by the ill Examples of loofe Livers and vicious dehoushed Persons: To discern the heinous, provoking Sins of notoriously wicked Persons hastening and pulling down Judgment after Judgment upon the Land of our Nativity, and the Flaces of our shode: To see Sin spread, this spiritual Plague encreate, and a Cloud of divine Wrath and Judgment gathering, and growing thick and black, and hanging over our Heads, ready to drop and shower down upon us. Let us be so publick spirited, as to betroubled, exceedingly troubled, that so much Mischief, publick Mischief, should be done by others Sins: That so many should be drawn into Sin, or brought under Suffering, by the common and open Wickedness of the Wicked.

3. Farther yet; Let it be a Thing very grievous to us, to meet with a Sort of Men, who instead of perplexing and tormenting themselves with the Sins of others, do please and delight, recreate and resresh themselves with the Sins of others; Do tempt and entice them into Sin, and hearten and harden them in their Sin: Who are so far from troubling themselves at others Sins, that they * do the same, and have pleasure in them that do them: Who make themselves merry with those Sins which make the Land mourn; That will laugh at Lewdness, and

H 2

oldyou

re she

of us;

orrow

God

is ho-

To

ifcre-

and

the.

Cions

their ran

Bap-

ate:

g . a

heir

any

ruel

WA.

re,

of

eir

у,

al-

)e-

he

1:

e-.

n,

in.

d

Rom. 1. 31.

make a mock at Sin, and hear the Relation of another's Wickedness with an inward Tickling, and fecret Delight; As if the Reproach and Dishonour of God were a very good jest, and the eternal Dammation of immortal Souls were a Thing fit to make fort with.

4. Once more; Let it make our very Hearts ake to take notice of some, who instead of vexing them. felves with the unlawful, ungodly Deeds of the Wicked : do daily vex and afflift themselves with the lawful and godly Deeds of the Righteous: Who milerably trouble and torment themselves with the Goodness and Holiness, and not with the Vileness and Wickedness of others: Who storm at others Strictness, and fret and fume at others Forwardness in the Way of Holiness; and are mad at heart, that any that live among them refuse to run with them into all Excess of Riot: To whom the very Presence and Company of a good Man is oftentimes as offensive and troublesome, as would be the visible Appearance of the Devil among them : Who heartily vex to hear at any Time any ferious, favoury, good Discourse from them; and aretormented before their Time by the gracious Lives, and good Conversations of serious, conscientious Christians.

5. And after all; Let it be no small trouble and grief to us, to find so few troubling themselves with such Matters as these. That Men, too generally, should only regard themselves, and mind their own Bags, and Backs, and Bellies, and Bodies; and feel nothing but that which touches their outward Estates, and nearly concerns their worldly Interests; but wholly neglect and disregard the Cause and Interest of God and Goodness in the World. That so many, so patiently, can see, and hear, and bear

UMI

any o

can b

care

and I

Men

ne s 1

it en

with

the S

little

Min

ftru

to.

Tre

Th

litt

dies

Mil

про

kin

Cithe

fal

Fi

ne

fe

of H

ju

of

fe

of ano ing, and ilhonour al Damto make arts ake, ng themhe Wicwith the : Who vith the lilenes t others rwardnad at torun e very ntimes

, faretor-Lives, ntious visible

hear-

hould Bags, I noates, but t fo bear any any open and common Wickedness; and if they can be reflected themselves, matter it not much tho? God be dishonoured: So they themselves be pleased, care little or nothing though God be displeased : and if they themselves can but get gain, let God. and Religion lose what they will for them. Men should count it a piece of over-much Righteouf ness to take any notice of others Faults; and think it enough to cry God mercy for their own Sins, without afflicting and tormenting themselves with the Sins of others. That Magistrates should be fo little fensible of daily Affronts done to God. That Ministers should see their Flocksrunning on to Destruction, and have no more Bowels of Compassion. That Masters of Families should not at all lay. to heart their Servants Offences, and frequent Trespasses against their heavenly Lord and Master. That Parents Hearts should even ake again, if any little Hurt or Illness come to their Children's Bodies; and their Bowels never yearn at all, though-Mischief and Misery, through Sin and Iniquity, fall upon their Souls to all Eternity. That Men should kindly do their Neighbours any friendly Offices in Civil Matters; relieve them, if in Want; vilit them, if they be fick; pull out their Ox or Ass, if fallen into the Ditch; and if their House be on Fire, presently run and help to quench it: and yet never be affected with the fad and lamentable firitual Estate of their Neighbours. That Men should fee and fuffer those about them to make Shipwrack of a good Conscience, to lose their Peace, lose Heaven, lose their God, lose their Souls; to be just falling into Hell-fire; to grow violently fick of the Plague of the Heart; to die in their Sins before their Eyes, and perish in their Iniquities before their Faces; without fetching one Sigh, or H 3 dropping one Tear for them, or speaking one Word to them; or lending a featonable Hand to help them. How ought they to be afhamed, that can be pationally affected in other Matters; and yet have no Paffion, no Trouble, no Tears, for the common and dangerous Sins of the Times and Places in which they live, and to which they belong? Let us be affected with their Wan of Affection upon to great and pregent an Occasion.

Are the Daies evil, in respect of evil Men, and their evil Manhers? Let us be troubled at the Evil of trie femilials of dully All them, That's the first.

2. Are the Daies thus evil? Let me then fee that we be not made wor fe by them. Let's * have no Fellow ship with the infinitful Works of darkness (as the Apofile adviseth) t Let's be blameless and harmless, the Sons of God, without Rebute, in the midft of a crooked and perverse Nation (as the lame Apostle exhorteth) Where you fee the Apostle argues from the il Quality, and bad Condition of those among whom they conversed: for (as [p] Grains observes) the Lives and Manners, both of the fews, and unconverted Gentiles, were at that Time exceeding corrupt.

And here the Argument holds thefe two

(1.) It concern'd the Philippians to be fincere and upright, [9] because they lived with such wicked Persons, who were ready to slander that [9] Qual agerent inter malot, qui pro anims sui pravitate etsam bene facta criminarentur. Eftius in loc.

which

AFTTA this I

Day (2

fatio

ttoo our /

Mar ppor

talio

Sins

ces the

nor

But

and

ing

and

no

rei

COT

VI

pl

Ve H

tl

2

^{*} Eph. 51-11. + Philip. 2 15.

[[]p] Etant quim co tempere mores Judgorum & Gentium non conver farum ad Christum cor ruptujums. Grotius in loc.

which was good; and therefore would be fure to argravate that which was bad. So Estims. And this fame Duty greatly concerns our felves this Day, for the same reason.

ing one

and to

that ons c rs, for es and the of

afion.

and

vil of

the

ellow

Apo-

the

boken

eth)

e ill

hom es)

1179-ding

WO.

cre

ich

tat

ch

108

10

(2.) It behoves us to be careful of our Converfation, in the midst of a wicked and adulterous, a trooked and perverse Generation, [r] that we our selves be not corrupted and deprayed with the evil Manners of those among whom we live. So Zanchy upon the Place. Let's be careful to avoid all Octalions of Sin, and to relift all Tempeations to the Sins, which reign and abound in the Times and Plates wherein we live. Though we dwell among the Wicked, let's not communicate in their Sin, nor give any countenance to their Wickedness: But beg and wife God's Grace and Help, implore and employ the divine Strength, for the overcoming and conquering the Temptations both of Men and Devils: And heartily bless God, that we are not left and forfaken of God, and given, up to the reigning Sins and Vices of the Times. Let's not be conformed to this World; to the evil Customs and vicious Manners that generally prevail and take place in it; nor follow a multitude to do evil. If never so many should stab themselves at their very Hearts, or drown themselves in the Thames, or fire their Houses with their own Hands to consume and destroy themselves; would this induce any wife Man to do the like? Why then should any offer to * drown themselves in destruction and perdition, to throw themselves into Hell-fire, and to cast away their Souls for ever, because many others do fo? When H 4

[[]r] Ut nihil ab illis malitia S pravitat is nobis affricari finamme. Zanchius in loc.

^{* 1} Tim. 6. 9.

When Vice grows into Fashion Singularity is a Vertue. When Sanctity is counted Singularity, hapby is he that goeth in a Manner alone; and walks unweariedly in the holy Path, though he has but few to bear him company in the narrow Way to Hea-Though the common Vote should go against us', yet, with holy * Joshua, let us be singular in our vertuous Choice and plous Resolution, Let us, with Noah, be upright, and walk with God, even when t all Flesh have corrupted their way. Let us, with Lor, be righteous even in Sodom; and keep our Garments undefiled and unspotted with the Flesh, even in a Sink of Sin and Uncleanness. Let's use all possible Arts and Means, to retain our Healthfulnes in a very bad and corrupt Air : to keep the Spark of Grace alive in the very midst of the Ocean: to preserve and maintain a gracious Dispofition in the mids of a Deluge of Temptation. Let us labour to be like Fish, sweet and fresh in falt Water : like Pearls or Jewels, farkling in a Dunghill: yea, to be like the Sun, thining upon a Dunghill; whose pure Raies and clear Beams are no way polluted with the Filthiness of it. Let's endeavour to be righteous among the Unrighteous, and zealous among those that are careless and negligent of God and Religion : And let the Coldness of the ambient Air without, not extinguish or weaken, but fortify and strengthen our supernatural Heat within. Though we live in bad Times, yet let's keep our felves free from the Evil of the Times. freer we keep and preserve our selves from the Taint and Infection of the common Corruption, we shall the more notably reprove and condemn, difcourage cour

web

let u

keep

the I

if w mor

let 1

eva

ho

tal

Me

ke

an W

tu

fh m

to

f

[#] Josh. 24. 15. + Gen. 6. 12.

courage and discountenance the reigning Sins and abounding Vices of the Times we live in. Though we be in the World which lies in Wickedness, yet let us not be of the World; but pray to God to keep us, and endeavour to keep our selves * from the Evil of the World.

Let not us be the worse for these evil Daies, for if we be made worse by them, we shall also make them worse. Let our Care and Endeavour be, to be good in evil Daies: and as the Evil of Sin abounds, let us encrease in Holiness. Farther;

3. Let us labour, as to be good, so to do good in evil Daies: As to be good our selves, so to make others good in the worst Times that can be : By a holy and exemplary Conversation to be instrumental to their Conversion; and, if it be possible, a Means effectual to bring the very Worst and Wickedelt home to God. In the † midst of a crooked and perverse Nation, let us shine as Lights in the World, holding forth the Word of Life. By our vertuous Lives, adorned with excellent Actions, let's thine as fo many Stars before them: and be as fo many Lights fer up in Towers, to direct others how to fleer aright their Christian Course, and safely to arrive at the Port of eternal Rest, and the Haven of heavenly Happiness. Let us pity and pray for those who pity and pray not for themselves: let us exhort, admonish them; rebuke, reprove them; and | fave them with Fear, pulling them out of the Fire. Let us labour in this manner to make the evil Men of the Times as much better as we can.

By

hap-

walks

s but Hea-

ainst

Let

God,

Let

with nefs.

our

e 0.

Let

Wa-

bill:

ollu-

to

lous God

iem

for-

nin.

our

the

the

n, lif-

ige

^{*} Joh. 17-15. + Phil. 2.15, 16. | Jude 23.

By way of Morive, Confider ferioully these three Things.

Mot. 1. That if we grow bad in evil Times, we can fetch no excuse from the Times for our Sing. Men are apt indeed to translate the blame of their own Actions upon the Times and Places in which they live. [5] Seneca complains of fome, too ready to do fo in his Daies : that would argue, and plead thus for themselves; I am not ambitious, but no man can live otherwise in Rotte. I am not extravagantly sumptuous, but the City enforces great Expences: it is costly and chargeable living in the City. But wby do we deceive our felves (fays he)? This Evil is not from any Cause without us, it is within us, it is feated on and flicks in our very Bowels.

If our Minds and Hearts were well disposed, and rightly enclined; Temptations would prove like Fire falling upon [t] uncombustible Matter.

Evil Times and Places are indeed an Occasion of Sin; but the Caufe is, our own Hearts and Wills. If we would carefully watch over our felves, and above all keepings keep our Hearts, we might keep our felves * unsported from the World, in the corruptelt Times and Places; as well as others, recorded in Scrip-

[5] Tatelligas tua vitia effe, que puta rerum. Non ega ambitiofus fum, fed namo aliter Roma porest vivere. Non ago fumgenofus fum, fed Orbsiepfamagnas impenfus exigit. Quid uts decipionus ? non est extrinsecus malum nostrum : ingra nos est, in visceribm ipsu sed t. Seneca Ep. 50.

[t] Nec interest ex quan magna causa (ira) nascatur, sed in qualem perveniat animum. Sic ignis non refert quan magnus , fed quo incidat : nam etiam maximum folida non receperunt : rurfus arida, & corrips facilia , fcintsuam quoque fovent ufque ad incendium. Se seca Ep. 18. in fing.

Jam. 1, 37.

Scrip

have [*] well

to ex

not t good

Cor infe

O

vat

wor

En

THE

wh fea

rei

go

m fi

e

Scripture for our Example and Encouragement, have done before us. The Badness of the Times (as [] Mr. Dyke, occasionally citing my Text, notes well upon it) did not forve with St. Paul for a Cloak to excuse our Conformity to the Times; - but as a Spir to excite the to be fo much the more careful of our selves, not to be swated with the common Stream. good reason have we (faies he) to make this use of the Corruption of the Times; for, if the Air be generally infections, had we not need to be fo much the more strict in our Diet, und careful in the use of wholesome Prefervatives! Surely (as the fame Author adds) the worse the Times are, the nearer grow they to their End; and therefore so much the more apprehensive ought we to be of the Occasions of good, because the Day, in which only we can work, is declining apace, and that fearful Night approacheth, wherein none can work,

Confider,

three

, we

Sins.

their

hich

rea-

and

but

ctra-

Ex-

Ci-This

uhin

rove

of

Tills.

and

OUT

telt

d in rip-

4111-

Miss

, in

fed na.

ent

Mot. 2. Is will be our high Praise and Glory, to be religious and hely, when the Times are profane and ungody: To be food Husbands in redeeming the Time, when others are prodigals round about us LijAs it's a great Sin to be bad in good Times, so 'tis an admirable Verine to be good in sood Times. It is not so praise worthy to be good in good Times, and among good Persons: But to resist the Stream of evil Times and Persons, to tug hard against Wind and Tide; to resolve to be good, and to endeavour to do good, against all Opposition and Discouragement whatever: Not to follow others in any sinful [u] Of the Decenfulnefs of Man's Heart, p. 157.

^[1] Sicut gravioru culpa est, inter banos bonum non esse, ita immensi est praconis banum etiam inter malos extinsse. Greg. l. 1. Mor. c. 1.

finful Waies and Courses; but to tread contrary, and to become Examples of Vertue to others; this will tend to our great Commendation. He that can be strict among soose Livers, holy among most profane Persons, chast among the lascivious, [x] sober among Drunkards, modest among impudent Railers, just among Destrauders, heavenly among Earth-worms; He is an excellent Person indeed: He deserves an Ecce to be put upon him: We may say of him, as our Saviour said concerning Nathanial, Behold an Israelise indeed! [y] This sets off the Righteousness of the Righteous, and makes it more conspicuous and glorious.

Mot. 3. Consider thirdly; That our Redeeming the Time in this manner, is the only way to make the E-vil Day's better. The Reforming and Amending our felves and others, is a proper means to alter and rectify the Times. The freeing both our felves and others from the Evil that is in any of w, will surely free the Times from the Evil that is in them. Our Sins are they that make the Times to be every way so bad as they are. Our aggravated Sins are the greatest Evil of the Times; And the Evil of Sin draws all other Evils along with it: and therefore remove the Evil of Sin, and the Times will quickly be every way well amended.

The

Per

(as

pre

W

it

no

ly

21

F

ŀ

[x] Hoc multo fortim est, ebrio ac vomitante populo, ficcum ac fobrium este. Seneca Ep. 18.

bonum, & inter malignantes innocentia resinere candorem, Betn., 1:m. 48. in Cant.

i every voil levenery is i

The Third Particular Evil of the Apostles Days, and in what Degrees of Ours.

a fiblic - chill i g. The Evil of the Apostles Times stood also in Persecution, which was hor then, and like to grow hotter. Those Daies were Evelesia dies Caniculares, (as Tertullian calls them) the fcorching Dog-Days of the Church. The Apostles were forbidden to preach in the Name of Christ; and Christians were prohibited to name the Name of Christ. Then it was perilous for any Person to profess himself a Christian. [b] The Confession of the Name, was enough to make Men the Objects of a publick Odium, without any Examination of the Crime. [c] Only the Name did precondemn a Sect unknown, and an Author of it whom they were ignorant of; because they were nominated, not because they were convinced. [d] If you should have search'd their Prisons, you should have found them fill'd with Malefactors only of their own Religion: you could not have feen a Christian there that was a Criminal, unless it were only on this Account, that he was a Christian. But (as [e] Tertullian argues excellently in his finewy Apology) if Christian be a Name of no Crime, 'tisridiculous to make a Crime of the meer Name. Yet the Heathen (as he remarks there) [f] fell so blindly into the hatred of Christianity, that [6] Terrul, Apolog. c. 2. [c] Ibid. c. 3.

trary

this

t can

pro-

] fo-

dent

ong

ed:

may

tha-

off

s it

ing nd

nd

ly

ur.

he

in

re ly

be

[[]d] De restru semper astuat carcer: --- Nemo i ic Christianu, nisi hoc tantum. ant si & aliud, jam non Christianu. Ibid. c. 44.

[[]e] Ibid, c. 2. Nunc igitur si nominis odium est, quis nominum reatus ? qua accusatio vocabulorum ? c. 3.

[[]f] Bonm vir Cajus Scius tan um qi ol Christianus Item that whenever they gave a Testimony of the Probity of any fuch Person, they mingled some Expression of Exprobration for their Name. Twas common to fay, Such an one indeed is a good Man, but only that beit a Christian And again; I wonder that fuch an one, a wife Man, should of a suddain be made a Christian. To which it might have been well replied, That fuch an one is good, and fuch an one prudent, because he is a Christian: Or, it therefore appears that such an one is in truth aChristian, because he is prudent and good. [g] As any was better'd by bearing this Name, he became by fo much the more offensive; For the good that was in any Christian, was not of so great Force and Power as was the batted against all Christians [b] Even an innocent Name was odious in very innocent The Gentiles declared themselves Enemies to those who [i] delivered them from the Power of Devils, and put up Praiers for them to the true God; and were ready to be trusty Guards about them, for the Preservation of them; and were Persons profitable to the Common-wealth. The same argumentative Author, in that most rational, convincing Defence of the Christians against the Heathen Magistrates, takes special Notice that the Philasophers were tolerated, when Christians were urged under greatest Penalties to the most unreafon-alius. Ego miror Lucium sapientem virum repente sastum Christianum. Nemo retrastas ne ideo bonus Cajus, & prudens Lucius, quia Christianus: aut ideo Christianus, quia prudens & bonus. Ib. c. c.

[g] Ut quisque boc nomine emendatur, offendit. Tanti non est bonum, quanti est odium Christianorum. Ibid.

fonal

to Sa

The

your

publ

Man

Prin

bear

with

fent

for

the

Rha

ras?

Sou

the

Pec

Eift

of t

get

an

are bo

Did

it

fer fit

go

fr.

a

16

^[6] Odstur in hominibus innocusa etiam nomen innocusam.

[[]i] Ibid. c. 43, 44.

fonable Things: [k] Who compels a Philosopher to Sacrifice, or to Iwear by the Gods? (faies he) They openly destroy the Belief and Worship of your Gods, and accuse your Superstitions in their publick Writings; and you applaud them for it: Many among them do bitterly inveigh against their Princes and Governours, and yet you patiently bear with them : and they are fooner honoured with Statues, and rewarded with Salaries, than fentenced to futier the Eury of the Beafts: and all for this only Reason, because they are known by the Name of Philosophers, and not of Christians. Rhalasophers were permitted to propagate Pythagorw's Opinion of the Transmigration of separated Souls into other Bodies : But if a Christian affirm'd the Return of the Soul into the same Body; [1] the People not only followed him with Bloms of the Eift, but even cast Stones at him. The Societies of the Christians were accused and prosecuted as factions Meetings : [m] But did we ever meet together (fays the fore-cited Father) to the Hurt of any one? We are the fame when congregated, as we are when separated: wronging no body, grieving no body. When good and honest Men convene, whenpious and chast Persons come in Company together, it is not to be termed a Fastion, but a lawful Afsembly: But on the contrary, the Name of Faition fitly belongs to those, who conspire to an hatred of good and vertuous Persons, and exclaim together against [t] Ibid. c. 46. [1] Ibid. c. 48.

obity

lion

mon only

that

be een

an

re-

an,

vas

fo in

0-

Ent

es

er

16

21

q

e

[[]m] In cujus perniciem aliquando convenimus? -- (um. probi, cum boni count; cum pis, cum casti congregantur, nom est satio dicenda, sed curia. C. 39. At econtrario iliu nomen sationia accommodandum est, qui in odium bonorum. E proborum conscirant, qui adversum sanguinem junocentium couclaniquis. loid. c. 40.

gainst the Blood of Innocents. [m] The Christians were censured as the grand Causes of all general Calamities, and publick, popular Incommodities. If Tiber nowed up to the Walls, if Nilse did not over-flow the Fields, if the Heaven stop'dits Course of seasonable Rain, if there were an Earth-quake, or Famine, or Plague; then prefently they cried, Christianos ad leonem; away with the Christians to the Lion. [n] But fuch was the malignant Method of their Cruelty, that they ordered Christianam ad lenunem, porsies quam ad leonem : They condemned a certain Christian Virgin rather to be prostituted to the Lust of a lewd Person, than to be delivered to the Rage of a devouring Lion: By which they confess'd, that the Corruption of their Chastity, was more intolerable to Christians than any Punish. ment, more grievous and afflictive than any Death. Christians were commonly punish'd like Slaves, [0] made to ferve in the Mines, or banish'd into Islands, or shut up in Prisons, and put to the Sword, or confumed with Fire, or hung upon Croffes, or cast to wild Beafts, only for the Sake of Christ's Reli-[p] Sometimes they were covered with wild Beafts Skins, and torn in pieces with Dogs: and when the Day failed, they were burnt with a pitched Coat upon them, to serve as Torches to give light in the Night. [9] Yeathe enraged common People (as Tertullian informs us) during the Fury of [m] Ibidem. [m] Ibid c. 50.

[o] Si qui in metalie, & si qui in insulie, vel in custodin, dun-taxat ex cansa Dei setta. c. 39.

[9] Tertulliani Apologia c. 37.

the B

their

and t

now

they

exul

were giftre

ans,

man

Dif

and

ther

men

riea

first

a L

kno

g00

Pro

to

to

*

ful

pu

liv

Z

[[]p] Addita percuntibus ludibria, ut fer arum tergoribus contecti, canum lansata inscripent y aut crucibus affixi, aut flammandi; & ubi dies defecisset, in usum nocturni luminis urerentur. Tacitus l. 1. Annal. Suetonius in Claud.

the Bacchinal's, did not spare the very Christians that were dead; but drew them from the reit of their Graves, and the Sanctuary of their Sepulchres, and tore and dragg'd their Bodies in the Streets, now so much changed and altered, mangled and defact, that it could not be known whose Bodies they were. [r] The blind vulgar fort of People, exulted and infulted on Occasion of the Abuses that were offered to the Christians, and some of the Magistrates gloried in the cruel Usages of the Christians, thereby to gain the Favour of the People. As many as owned and acknowledged themselves the Disciples of Christ, did presently draw the Rage and Fury of Heathen Idolatrous Persecutors upon them. [s] But it is notably observed in the forementioned Apology, as a Thing the Christians glod ried in, that, of all the Emperours, Nero was the first that was herceupon the Christians, and made a Law to condemn them to Death; who never was known to condemn any Thing but what was greatly good and fingularly worthy. It was this Nero, this Prodigy of Cruelty, that put St. Peter and St. Paul to Death, cauling the one to be crucified, the other to be beheaded (which Tertullian is judged to have * here respect to) and who (as Historians affirm) Suborned false Witnesses against the Christians, and put many of them to Death, as Authors of that Fire, which he himself had caused to be kindled in twelve Places of Rome together, that he might more lively represent to his Fanfy the general Contlagration of Troy. [s] It is moreover pleaded, and itrong-

[r] Ibid. c. 49.

ristians

al Can

es. If

10t o-

ourse

uake,

ried,

as to thod um ad ned a

d to

to to

they

tity,

uth-

ath.

ves.

nto

md,

or

eli-

ild

nd

ch-

ht

0-

of

ne

ý.

^[5] Reperiesu primum Neromem in hanc feltam * Cafariano gladis ferociffe. Sed tali dedicatore damnationis nofi a etiam strongly urged there in the behalf of the Christians, that the most vicious Princes alwaies proved their most vicious Persecuors: But that they that were the most vertuous, became their Favourers and Protestors: (an eminent Instance of which he gives us in Marcus Aurelius) That Trajan did, is some Part, frustrate the Laws that were made against them, and forbad the making Enquiry after them: That no Advian, no Vestalian, no Pius, no Verus confirmed the Laws against the Christians. But if the Christians had been a naughty Sest of Men, surely then the best, and not the worst of Princes would have been their open Adversaries, would have set themselves in greatest Opposition against them, and have endeavoured to eradicate and extirpate them.

Sharp and hot Perfecution was a fore Evil in the Apostles, and in many of the Primitive Christians Days: And the Christians that lived in those hard Times, were bound to do and suffer any Thing, that so they might make a a rane in range of, a good Opportunity of an evil Time; and gain an Occasion of honouring God, and Christ, and the Gospel, and of surthering their own and others Salvation.

And this was their Practife, as well as their Duty:

Duty

afcen

ral S

Lade

their

for 16

Nan

Tim

ryp

leive

ther.

lome

Tim

for

ver:

MOTE

Go

Ch

mo

do

pro

on

BI

g'oriamur. Qui enim scit illum, intelligere potest non nisi grande aliquod bonum de Nerone damnation. --- Tales semper nobu insecutores, injusti, impii, turpis, quos & insi dammare consustu, de quibus damnatos restituere solisti estu. Caterum de tot exinde principibus ad hodicinum, dirinum human unque sapientibus, edite aliquem debeliatorem Christianorum. At nos de contrario edimus protectorem. --- Quales ergo loges ista, quas adversu nos sois exeguntur impii, injusti, turpes, truces, vani, dementes ? Il. c. 5.

Duty: for (as [t] Salvian faies concerning them) ascending to the Gate of the heavenly Court by the several Steps of their own Punishments, they made as it were Ladders for themselves of the several Instruments of their Torments.

But, bleffed be God; he has provided better Times for us than those. They that are called by the Name of Christians, are not so persecuted in the Times and Places wherein we live. I may here very pertinently apply both to our Times and to our feives that pious Pallage of the forementioned Father, in his third Book de Gubernatione Dei. [u] But some perhaps will say, (faies he) that it is not now a Time wherein we are in Danger to suffer such Things for Christ, as the Aposties formerly did: True, faies he, for our Princes are not now Pagans, nor our Governors Persecutors: the Blood of Saints is not shed now a daies, nor is our Faith tried by Torments. God is contented that we should worship him in the Christian Religion upon more mild and moderate, more gentle and favourable Terms than others have done; that we should serve him in quiet, peaceable, prosperous Circumstances; and that we should please him only with the Purity of our unspotted Actions, and with [1] Ad califta regia januam gradsbus pantrum suarum ascendentes, scalas sibs iquedanmo lo de eculeu catastisque fecerunt. Salv de Gub Dei 1. 3.

istians,

their

were

rs and gives fome gainst

them:

Verus

lut if

fure-

vould

re let

hem,

rpate

n the

tians

hard

that

Op-

n of

xel,

lva-

neir ty:

an.

0614

Pis,

ade

ML, 710

-

te-

[[]u] Non sa esse nunc temporu, Sc. Contentus cet Deus noster ut ei pax nostra serviat, ut sol à ei immoculatorum actuum puritate. E rete inconcanouabilis sanctitate placeamus. Quoplus ei sides S devotio nostra debet; quia minora à nobis extest, S majora concesse. Et saleo chos E princire. Christiani sint, S tersecutio nulla sit, S religio non inquietetus; qui ad trobandum sidem experiments durioribus non compellinus, i servoribus saltè nossicios Domino plus placere debenus. Probat enim etiam in majoribus, si res exigat, executorem se idonium fore, à quo minora complentur. Scitzan, de Gub. Dei. l. 3.

the Sanctity of an undefiled Life: So that our Faith and Devotion is the more deeply indebted to him, because he exacteth less of us, and yet hath vouch safed more to w. And therefore since our Princes are now professed Christians, and we are not under any Persecution from the higher Powers, and our Religion is not disturbed; me that are not forced to make Proof of our Faith by harder Experiments, ought certainly to study the more to please our Lord and Master, by being faithful in those cheaper Services and less costly Duties that lye before m, and are incumbent on us: For he that fulfils his leffer Offices, does give some proof and pledg thereby, that he would be ready to perform his Duty in higher Instances and harder Matters, if the Case required it, and if he were called to it. So far that ancient and excellent Father.

And truly, how reasonable is't, and how becoming, that if God do not call us to fuffer so great and terrible worldly Evils in the Cause of the Gospel and the reform'd Religion, we should therefore readily and cheerfully bear and fustain Troubles and Exigencies of les Weight, at his Desire and Request: That we should confess him by Integrity and Fidelity in his Service, and please him by Abstinence from unlawful Pleasures of what kind soever; none of which can be so dear to us as is our Life: That we should speedily part with our Lusts, when we are not commanded prefently to part with our Lives: That we should regulate and reform our Lives, when we are not required to lay down our Lives, and to shed and facrifice our Blood. Thanks be to God, we are free from the Magistrate's Persecution in the Cause of Religion.

But beside such Persecution arising from the Civil Magistrate, meerly upon the Account of Christianity, or of the Profession of the Reformed Religion;

there

ther

Men

thef

Par

tog

evu

oth

can

no

the

for

the

dr

the

So

ot

P

th

fig

there is another Persecution proceeding from wicked Men, whereby they persecute those that are good, these two Ways;

1. By their injurious Carriages towards them in

2. By the Wickedness and Ungodliness of their Lives in General.

1. By their Injuries and Indignities offer'd and done to good Men in Particular. * He that departeth from evil, maketh himself a Prey. He that will not do as others, is in Danger of being undone by others. He cannot be safe, that will not be micked. It is not enough, that the Wicked will not be the better for the Good, but the Good shall be some way the worse for them: If they cannot corrupt and deprave them, they will molest and disquiet them: If they cannot draw them into Sin, they will, if possible, bring them into erouble, and create them Suffering and Sorrow enough: They will endeavour, some way or other, to infringe their Liberty, to disturb the Peace and Quiet, and to destroy the Comfort of their Lives: They will fometimes sin, if it be but of purpose to grieve them: as by beginning, and offering to impose Healths in drinking, out of a Design to displease and dislatisfy, or ensure and entangle fome part of the Company; who, they know, will either refuse and deny it, or be drawn with Reluctancy and unwillingly to it, So likewife by customary Swearing, and by repeating and multiplying their Oaths, to vex and trouble a fiber Reprover. And, in like manner, by railing, reviling, r Faith

because more to rofessed on from

urbed:

aith by e more

n those

er Of-

oat he

tances

and if xcel-

ecom-

and

ofpel

rea-

and

iest:

ide-

ence

one

hat

we

our

our

our

nks

er-

vil

nini; re

^{*} Ifa. 59. 15.

viling, vain and idle speaking, frothy and filthy Communication, on purpose to cause Vexation and Affiltion.

Of all which Course and Carriage of theirs you may take this double Account; The Wicked have a Irejudice, and an Antipathy against the Righteous; and these are the Reasons of their Dealing with them in this manner.

1. The Wicked have a strong Prejudice against them: They have a wrong Opinion of them: They judg amiss concerning them. He that departeth from evil is counted a mad Man, or causeth himself to be counted a mad Man: [w] So some render that Place Isa. 59.15. * as Elisha's Minister was called a mad Fellow.

Again; Ungodly Men count those that are good the Troublers of Ifrael, and peflilent Fellows; the Causes of Calamities, and Procurers of Judgments (an Imputation which we shewed you out of Tertullian was cast of old upon the Primitive Christians) They reckon those a very Plague and Curfe, that are a Bleffing to the Places where they live, and under God the grand Preservers and chief Supporters of them. They judge those unworthy to live, of whom the World's not worthy; and to whose living and dwelling among them they themselves do fometimes ow their very Lives. They deem those as the | Filth and Off-scouring of the World , who are indeed God's (*) Jewels, and the (+) Excellent in the Earth, and () more excellent than their Neighbours. They look upon good Men as troublesome [w] See Mr. Gataker in the Engl. Annot.

and v

repro

and .

spiser apid

and para

with

are (

thei

hate

hate

And

tha

aT

oft

not

bea

and

th

fti.

16

171

2.

^{* 2} Kings 9. 1. † Heb. 11. 38. 1 1 Cor. 4. 13. (*) Mal. 3. 17. (1) Pfal. 16. 3. (||) Prov. 12. 26.

and vexatious, proud and imperious, because they reprove them.

lthy

SAf-

you

hte-

ing

finst

hey

eth

menter

od

he

its.

el-

5)

at.

1-

rs

0

e

2. The Wicked and Ungodly have an Enmity and Antipathy against good Men: They are * Despifers of those that are good: It is in the Original αφιλάλα Soi, not Lovers of the good: [x] Haters and Persecuters of all good Men; So Dr. Hammond paraphrases upon that Place. They are displeased with them, because they study to please God; and are careless of them, because they have a care of their Time, a care of their own Souls: [y] They hate Holiness, and the Righteous for it: † They hate him that rebuketh in the Gate, or, in publick. And as it is expressed Isa. 29. 21. They make a Man an Offender for a Word, and lay a Snare for him that reproveth in the Gate, and turn aside the Just for a Thing of nought; by falsehoods make the Cause of the Righteous go the wrong Way. They cannot endure the Dispositions and Affections, nor bear the Lives and Conversations of the Godly, which they find as contrary to their own Humours We have a notable lively and Manners as can be. Character and Description of them, Wifd. 2. from the tenth to the End; Let us oppress the poor righteous Man, fay they, let our Strength be the Law of Justice: let us lye in Wait for the Righteous: because he is not for our turn, and he is clean contrary to our Doings: he upbraideth us with our offending the Law, and object-

* 2 Tim. 3. 3.

[y] Lusbus ipfum nomen usrutis odio eft. Sen, de vit, beat-

† Amos 5. 10.

[[]x] Owns monorum hofter, que ob morum diferepantiam ab anucestic bouorum abborrent. Oppositum et landi quam babemu, Tit. 1. 8. Ettius in 2 Tim. 3. 3.

objecteth to our Infamy the Transgressings of our Education. He professeth to have the Knowledg of God: and he calleth himself the Child of the Lord. He was made to reprove our Thoughts. He is grievous unto us even to behold: for his Life is not like other Mens, his Waies are of another fashion. We are esteem'd of him as Counterfeits: he abstaineth from our Wases as from Filthines: he pronounceth the End of the Just to be bleffed, and maketh his Boast that God is his Father. Let us fee if his Words be true : let us examine him with Despitefulnes and Torture : let us condemn him with a hameful Death, &c. The Wicked are so ill-natured as to render to the Righteous evil for good: to vex and abuse their Physicians, Chirurgians, Advocates, Guardians, Friends: To use them harshly and unkindly, that endeavour to benefit them by their Counsels, to better them by their Examples; and labour, by earnest Praiers to God for them, to keep off many a Judgment that hangs over their Heads from falling upon them. They watch and fludy to harm those that are really ready to help them: to grieve and break their Hearts, whose Bowels yearn towards them: to vex and torment their Souls, which is a greater Misery than to perfecute and afflict their Bodies.

2. The Wicked perfecte those that are good, as by their Injuries to them in particular, so by the Wickedness and Unholiness of their Lives in General. The ill Conversation of the Wicked, is a spiritual Persecution of the Godly; It is Matter of exquisite Torment to them: It wounds and rends the very Souls of the Righteous: It plainly cuts them even to the Heart, and makes their very Heart bleed.

I find

Ifi

my T

this !

comr

Allti

Secut

are e

Suff c

Jay 1

when

when

Selv

are

god

sha

all

the

[t]

Sw

Di

N

of

fa

b

50

14

I find [2] St. Auftin, in a Discourse of his upon my Text, infifting pathetically and particularly on this very kind of Perfecution; applying and accommodating that of the Apostle, Tim. 3. 12. All that will live Godly in Christ Jesus Shall Suffer Persecution. Behold here, says he, because the Daies are evil, there is no living for the Righteons without suffering Persecution. But ye, fays he, are ready to Say thus to me: What & when we enjoy Peace among us, when the Judges of the Provinces honour the Church, when Kings and Princes do not appear and carry themselves as Enemies to the Church, and when all the Laws are in favour of the Church; pray how do they that live gody suffer Persecution? His Answer is, that they that live among wicked Persons do suffer Persecution for all this: Why fo? Becanse all the Wicked do per secute the Good, Nonferro & lapidibus, sed vita & moribus: [though not with Fire and Fagot] though not with Swords and Stones, yet by their Lives and Manners. Did any persecute righteous Lot in Sodom? fays he, No Man troubled or molested him : [We reade indeed of no Rudeness of theirs towards him, of no Asfault made upon him, but only of one, done just before his Departure out of Sodom.] And yet that good Man suffer'd continual Persecution, Non vapulando fed inter malos vivendo; not by being beaten and smitten of them, but by living among those vile and vicious, proud blasphemous, lend and debauch'd Persons: For, whoever is truly righteous and boly, faies he, when he fees any to live wickedly, to ferve Luxury, to carry Things unjustly, to follow Pride and Vanity, to difregard Charity; when they that are good see any live after this manner, they mourn and grieve, are sadned and

Educa-

: and made

ven to

Waies

im as

from

to be

ather.

with ith 4

natu-

: to

Ad-

ar h.

by

les;

em,

heir

and help

ofe

ent

er-

as

he

al.

ıal

te

n

d

^[2] August. Hom. 10. inter 50.

and afflicted: for, with the Apostle, they bewail many that have simm'd already, and have not repented.

It is faid, that * just Lot was vexed with the filthy Conversation of the Wicked: The Word which we render vexed is in the Original [4] xarano sulver, he laboured under it as an heavy Burthen, was op. preffed, wearied, grievoully afficted with it. And as Lot was burthened with the loofe and lawless Lives of the Sodomites; So good Jeremiab was wearied out with the wicked and exorbitant Courses of the Jews, and constrained to cry out under the Pressure and Persecution of them, † Ob that I had in the Wilderness a lodging Place of wayfaring Men, that I might leave my People and go from them: to wish with all his Heart that he might withdraw himself from his People, and live in any folitary Defart, and in any forry Traveller's Lodg, or Shed there, rather than among them, whose wicked Lives were such a continual Eye-fore, and daily heart-fore to him: for, they proceed from Evil to Evil, faies he; from one Evil to another; or, from one Degree of it to another; they grow daily worse and worse; and weary themselves to commit Iniquity: take Pains to do wickedly, and tire out themselves in it.

Alas! the Wicked little think, how they vex God in vexing his Servants; and that God will one Day forely vex them for it, and make them weary of wearying his People; that he will torment them in Hell hereafter, for tormenting his People here on Earth.

They

* 2 Pet. 2. 7.

The

selves v ven the

them i

World.

Yea

them fe

ment t in Tim

grieve

being menti

ked ;

o m

and i

we fi

Chri

mere

and (

other

Hov

look

fcor

cute

mai

pro

we

effe

mi.

ifi

No

[[]a] Verbum удлимочиЗма significat opprimi, fatigari, gravicer affligi. Gerard. in loc.

t Jer. 9. 2, 3, 5.

They little think, that the Righteous themfelves will one Day heavily vex those that have given them such Occasion and Cause of Vexation; vex them in the Day when the * Saints shall judg the World.

Yea, they little think, that they shall corment themselves hereaster, for making good Men torment themselves here. That if they do not grieve in Time with a penitent Grief, they shall certainly grieve with a desperate Grief, to all Eternity, for being a Grief and Heart-brenk to the Godly.

Now this Persecution, which in the Wales forementioned is managed and carried on by the Wicked; as it is the Evil in some measure of all Ages, so more especially and remarkably of the Times and Places in which we live. 'Tis true, that now we fuffer nothing barely for owning the Name of Christians: There is no Perfecution in our Nation merely for the outward Profession of the Christian, and of the Reformed Religion: But was ever the other Perfecution hotter among us than in thefe Daies? How do the Wicked persecute with their Eye? looking upon the fincerely Godly with an evil, a fornful, a malicious Eye. How do they perfecute them with their Tongues? (which are as fo many + Swords) [b] maliciously flandering, reproaching, reviling the Godly, as a Company of weak [c] Fools, and conceited Fanaticks: frequently making

bewail

nted,

e filthy

ch we ce year,

as op.

And

wlefs

wea-

les of

the bad

that

with

rom

any

han

on-

for,

one

ind

ke

ves

ex

ne

in

n

y

^{* 1} Cor. 6. 2. + Pfal. 59.4.

[[]b] Nemo plus videtur alt mare virtutem, nemo magu il'i ille devotus, quam qui boni viri famam perdidit, ne conficentiam perderes. Sen. Ep.

[[] Or fis beatus, inquit Socrates, of te alicus stultum viders si-

Phrumque boni inepti S inertes rocantur. Mihi contingat isis derisus: Equo animo audienda sunt imperitorum convisia, E ad honesta vadends contemnendus est iste contemptus. Idem.

making them their very Songs in their drunken Meetings, and even mocking their very Praiers in their publick prophane Plaies; and often uttering very false, and proud, and hard Words against them.

And, according as they meet with Occasion and find any Opportunity, how do they perfecute with the Hand? * Do evil with both Hands earnestly? How ready are their Hearts to rise against them, and their Hands to be lifted up to strike at them, and to pull them down to the very Ground, that fo they may be trampled upon, and troden under Foot? Yea, how do they perfecute them by their Lives? continually vexing their pious Souls with their un-Lawful Deeds; grieving and wounding, paining and piercing their very Hearts. The wilful Wickedness of the bold and daring Sinners of the Times, in their open dishonouring God and Religion, is a cruel Torment to serious Souls, and makes their Lives a wearisome, pressing Burthen They that live godly, do fuffer daily the fad Persecution of wicked Mens offensive, afflictive Lives and Manners. What a Perfecution is this? to force good Men to cry out with David, + Wo is me that I sojourn in Mesech, that I dwell in the Tems of Kedar: to cause | Rivers of Waters to run down their Eyes (as they did from David's) because Men keep not God's Law.

Now fince we live in such evil Daies, in which there is such inveterate Enmity against the Practise of Piety, and such a [b] malignant persecuting Spirit

rit re

ked a

lence

not M

for W

nor g ous (

imp

vil v reaf

Let

rect

the aga

Go

fcie

OUI

fel

W

be

th

th

to

go

th

tl

d

^{*} Mich 7. 3. + Pfal. 120. 5,

Pfal. 119. 136.
[6] Omne tempus Clodior, non amne Catones feret. Seneca Ep. 97.

rit reigning and raging in the Breasts of the Wicked against the Good; let us keep a (*) prudent Silence in an evil Time: Let us take care that we do not unnecessarily [c] provoke and exasperate them; for we know not what their Malice may grow to: nor give them any just Occasion of furious, vexatious Opposition. Let us fee that we do not * suffer as Evil-doers from them, nor as rash and heady, imprudent and unwary Persons. In evil Daies, Evil will come foon enough upon us: and we have no reason to accelerate and hasten our own Suffering. Let's labour therrfore by all distreet and wife, direst and innocent Means, to keep our selves out of their Hands, to prevent their taking Advantage against us; and endeavour to solace our selves in God, and to preserve the Comforts of a good Conscience: To be patient under, and to glory in our Sufferings from them: To consider with our selves, that it is far better to be troubled by the Wicked, than to be Troublers of the Good: and to be thankful and joyful that we are not guilty of their Wickedness, nor deserve such Usages at their Hands. And let us study, and endeavour to render, † not Evil for Evil; but still to return good for evil to the very Worst and Wickedest of And whatever Measure we receive from them, let us not be disheartned and discouraged and dash'd out of Countenance by them, nor suffer our felves (*) Amos 5. 13.

drunken

aiers in utter-

ords a-

on and

te with

? How

n, and

and to

they

Foot?

Lives?

ir un-

ining

Wic-

the

Re-

and

then

the

tive

nis?

ois

ents

משום

Men

ich ife Dirit

a

[[]c] Quia dies mali funt , h. e. quia periculos. sunt tempora, & bonis adversa, ut caute hi: fit agendum, ne crabrones , quod dicitur , nrites. Ciellis Ethica Christiana, pag. 32.

¹ Pet. 4. 15.

[†] Rom. 12. 17, 2i. 1 Theff. 5. 15.

selves to give Way to their Wickedness, to be wearied out of our Holiness, to be laughed, and jeered, and sconed out of our Religion; but let's run the Race that is fet before us, though all the Dogs in the Street bark at us. Let us with Zeal and Courage bear up against them: and bear Witness againit them: and if we cannot win and gain them, at least shame and selence them, judg and condemn them, by an holy, unblameable, exemplary Life, as Noah * condemned the Old Like Stars, let us appear most clear and bright in the sharpest and coldest Night, And let the Vexation we meet with from the Wicked here, drive us the oftner to God, to make our Complaint and Moan to him; and cause us to long the more earnestly for Heaven, where we shall be for ever out of the Reach of Satan, and all his Instruments, and out of all Danger of any Enemy, Persecutor, or bad Neighbour.

And so we have fully considered the Reason in the Text; the Force of which, even as to our selves, lies plainly thus; The Daies are such, wherein ye are in Danger of Insection by the wicked Errows and damnable Heresies of the Times: In Danger of Corruption, by the common Sins and reigning Vices of the Times: and in Danger of Persecution, by the injurious Carriages, and grievous wicked Lives of the profligate and desperate Sinners of the Times: and therefore redeem the Time, because the Daies are evil in these respects.

These various Evils must not make us give place to Unfruitfulness, but make us much more careful

and

and v an H

catch

fore

ly. -

fcaro

the I

kind

not h

Time

we I

and [4

plera

Eth.

^{*} F.eb. 11. 7.

and watchful to take every good Occasion. [d] If an Harvest-Day be cloudy and windy, or prove catching Weather (as we call it) Men will not therefore keep in, but work more diligently and warily. Good Opportunities in evil Times are [e] few and scarce: The more rare these Commodities grow, the more we should engroß them. And as some kinds of good Opportunities are hard to come by, so not like to abide and continue long with us in evil Times: and therefore while the Occasion lasteth, we should strive to make the utmost Advantage and Improvement of it.

[d] See Mr. Bayne on the Text.

CHAP.

to be

and

let's

Zeal

Wit-

gain

able,

Old

clear

the to and

Hea-

the

and

bad

ves, rein ours ger ing on, ives the ful nd

[[]e] Quia dies mali sunt, hoc est, quia tempus ab hominibus plerumque malis vebus transsestur, itant non facile ses opportunitas offerat eos arguends Tofficis commonesaciends. Crell. Eth. Christ. p. 32.

gal watchtal to laccevery en a On

CHAP. IV.

Six other Reasons added to that in the Text. We ought to redeem the Time, (1.) Because our Time is afforded us by God to this very End and Purpofe. (2.) Because we have all of us lost much Time already. (3.) Because the Time, that remains, is very short and uncertain, and our Special Opportunities far shorter, and more uncertain; and the Work; we have to do, very great. (4.) Because we can neither bring Time back, when once it is past unimproved, nor any way prolong and lengthen out the Daies of our Lives, when Death comes to put an End and Period to them. (5.) Because we shall all be certainly called to an Account for our Time, (6.) Because this Time is all we can redeem, and upon this short Moment of Time depends long Eternity.

But besides the Reason in the Text, I shall farther shew you that we ought to redeem the Time upon a fix-fold Account.

The first Additional Reason.

We must redeem the Time, because our Time is afforded us by God to this very End and Purpose, that we should improve and apply it to rational and religious Uses. [a] Our Time is given us to study to know

í afcer time and Min

ble (

dilie

lute

nefa

war

him

and ot (

Col

ten

the

hea

[[]a] Ego non quaram, qua sint initia universorum, qui rerum formator, quis sit artisex hujus mundi? quaratione tanta mag-know and acquaint our felves with God and our felves: To contemplate the Creator .: To rife and ascend from the Effects to the prime Cause, and ultimate End ! To feek and embrace the first Truth, and chief Good; which only can fatisty Man's Mind, desirous of more Truth; and his Will, capable of more Good than finite Beings can afford a By diligent Searching to find out God to be our abfolitte Owner, Supream Governour, and great Benefactor; and to labour to be suitably affected towards him, and every way answerably observant of him: [b] To own and acknowledg, love, fear, and ferve the Anthor of our Beings, and Patron of our Lives : to put our Trust, and place our Confidence in him; and to take care to promote and advance his Interest in the World. To contemplate and reflect upon the [c] Royal Pedigree, the noble and divine Extraction, the high and heavenly Original, the excellent Nature and large Capacity of our incorporeal and immortal Souls the Alliance of our Spirits to the Father of Spirits; magnitudo in legem & ordinem renerit? --- unde lux santa fundaun? --- Ego nescisam unite descenderira e semel hac mini vida nia sint, an sape nascendum? quò hene eturus sim? qua sedet expertas ani nama, sopia me vivere capica demisso ? Sen. Ep. 65.

Tune muera recum gratiu ago, -- cum secretura e su mero cun disco, quu universi autor, aut custos e qued se Dem --- Ness adhac admitterer, non sucra nasce. -- Detrahe hoc sma-sumbile bomum, non est visa e ann, ut saluem, ut assum. O quam contemptares esthomo, ness sur sumana surrexerit son. Pert, Nat. Quett.

[63] Magnum mansa que quam cogitari potest, numen est, cus vivendo operam damme. Huic nos approbemme. Sen. apud Lactant. de vero cultu, l. 6. $ 24. [c] Пистиа зае 55 Ост устов Этиговог г. обхан. 1 hoc/lid.

[c] Пर रा प्रवास प्रवेष देश अर्थ प्रमुंगत जैनमार्गाम ये संस्थान, 1 hoc, lid.

e ought

is af-

urpofe.

me al-

25 , 15

rtuni-

Vork;

e can

unim-

ut the

ut an

all all

Time.

and

Eter-

far-

hat

re-

to 28-

18-

and to charge our felves to live and act worrby of fo high and honourable a Descent, so noble a Nature, fuch excellent Endowments. To conider and ponder the direct Respett and certain Reference that this Life has to another: That the World we live in , we must not live alwaies in : That this is not the Place of our Happiness and Reit; That we are but Pilgrims and Strangers here, and Travel lers toward * [4] a better Country : That this World is but the Road and Way that furely leads to another : That this World is but a Nurfery for Eternity; that we are planted in this, in order to our Fransplanting into the other World: That the present Lite is not a durable, permanent Condition, nor the final State of Mankind; but is only intended as a certain [e] preliminary, preparatory State; and fitly contrived, and wifely deligned by way of present previous Probation, in order to future Happiness or Misery that God has placed as here for a Time, that we may be [f] Candi reiv shister dates

[e] See Mr. Howe's very rational Processial Discourse to the

dies

confic

this \

Butin

Maite

ver th

Locur

fity ,

at our der :

Bent

of ou

To

TTIE

and

moult

thers

and !

and

fible

Reb our cult lies,

rify

well

tual

clea

heig

[&]quot; Heb 11. 16

[[]d] Sapiens patitur mortalia, quamvis friat ampleora super-

Bl. ffeducts of the Righreous.

[[]e] Per has mortalis avs moras, Mi melsors vita longeo ique protessive. Quemadmodum novem mensibus nos ence materminuteras, & praparas non sibi, sed sistee in quem videmur emitti, jam idones spiritum trabere & in aperto durare: Sec per hot spatium, quod ab infancia vates in sencentem, en alsum masurescimus partum. Ala origo nos expelent, alime rerum satur. Nondum calium, niss emeroallo, pati possummi. Sececa Epist. 102.

[[]f] Reservitatio candidati, Tertull.

dees for Etermity. [g] Time is allowed us, to consider and answer the Ends of our coming into this World; to dispatch the Errand and finish the Butiness which our heavenly Father, Lord and Master hath given us to do: To find our and discover the Il Condition and unfound Conttitution, the Incurvation and Depression of our Souls; the Vitiofity, moral Deformity, and wretched Degeneracy of our Nature; the Sickness and Weakness, Disorder and Diftemper of all our Faculties; the ill Bent, and wrong Biass, and perverse Inclination of our Minds and Wills, Hearts and Aflections: To observe and bewail that lamentable [b] aπιεία, and unhappy πτεροςύνοις, the hanging and flagging of our Soul's Wings, the drooping and moulting of our Souls; their loing those noble reathers by which they should nimbly raise themselves, and fly and foar as high as God, and mount up and aspire to heavenly Things: To be truly senfible of, and fadly affected with the Mutiny and Rebellion of the brutish and inferiour Faculties of our Souls against the higher Power and soveraign Faculty of our Reason: And to endeavour, what in us lies, by all possible means to recover and rectify, to purify and sublimate our beaven-born Souls; and to use well and rightly our feeing and forefeeing our intellectual and elective Faculties and Powers: To open and clear the Eye of our Souls, to [i] improve and heighten our Reason, to ripen and strengthen our Judg-

thy of

a Na

in der

ference

id-we thisis

at we

ravel

this '

leads er-to it the

diti

y in-

gned

r to

aced

later

the 740

ter-

PAT MAN

cca

Justit, Shumana qua parte locarus er im re. Perf. Sat. 3. [b] Plut. in Luxoporta.

^[1] Dociles natura nos edidit, & rationim ded t im erfe-

Judgment, to enlarge and widen our Understanding, and to live and act suitably and agreeably to right Reason, and the sober Dictates and most mature Judgment of a found and folid Understanding: To confult the divine Oracles, and fearch the facred Scriptures; and thence more clearly to gather, and fully to discover our finful miserable State by Nature: To learn plainly and certainly from divine Revelation the particular Manner of our Apostacy and Defection, the Universality of our Depravation and Corruption, our Obligation to Punithment for our Transgression and Rebellion, and the ready Way and infallible Means of our happy Recovery and Restitution to the Image and Favour of God: And out of a deep Sense and Feeling of all our Sin and Guilt, and spiritual Impotency and Inability, to feek God's Face and Favour in Christ, to feek his Grace and Strength; and with Faithfulness and Diligence to use his Grace, and act in his Serength; And in the Use of Reason (which is Man's proper Utenfil) and by the Help of divine Grace, to govern our Senses, to tame our wild and extravagant Fancies, to curb our [k] Appetite, to mederate our Affections, to bridle our violent and boisterous Passions, and to [1] keep our Bodies

[L] Efficiendum est ut appetitus rationi obediant, - cu [uni jubicete lege natura. Cic.l. 1. de Offic.

Animi imperio, corporu servitio, utimur. Saluit. Quicquid imperavit animus, obtinuit. Sen. de ira. Tantum proficies, quantum tibi sessi vim intuleru. Thom. à Kempis, L. C. 25. n. 11. and

Sou

and

To

of (

per

vea

exc

W

to

Re

Wi

var

by

Ho

ble

no

Wa

ob

liz

OU

liv

in

OI

0

to

in

^[1] If we suppose this Life to be a State of Tryal in order to a better (as in all reason we ought to do) what can be imagined more proper to such a State, than to have the soul constantly employed in the Government of those sensual inclinations which arise from the Body? in the doing of which the proper Exercise of that Vertue consists, which is made the Condition of suture Happiness. Dr. Stillingsfeet's Serm on Prov. 14. 9.

OHT

and rebellious Flesh in an orderly Subjection to our Souls. Faithfully to purfue Principles of Conscience, and to live strictly under the Power of Principles: To exercise our selves to have always a Conscience void of Offence both towards God, and towards Men: To perform a Course of sincere Obedience to the revealed Will of God, and the good Institutions and excellent Laws of Christ: To make Religion our Work and Business: To be blameless and harmless, to be useful and Exemplary in our Stations and Relations: To serve our Generations according to the Will of God: To watch and take all possible Advantages of daily doing and receiving Good; and by patient continuance in well-doing to provide for Honour and Glory and Immortality, and to fecure a bleffed and happy Eternity.

Time is allotted us for Proof and Trial of us : And now God looks to fee what we will do with it; He waits to behold how we will improve it: God expects we should make a wife and a good Choice in it : That we should use the necessary Means for the fure obtainment of our defired End: That we should live up to the Ends of Life; answer the Ends both of our Creation and Redemption: That we should live not merely the animal, but chiefly the rational, angelical, divine and spiritual Life: That we should not live and act at Randome; but that we should, in feveral Instances, and on all Occasions, approve our selves strict [m] Imitators and close Followers of God and his Son Jesus Christ, faithful Friends to God and Religion, Friends to our selves and our immortal Souls: That we should pass the Time of [m] Vis doos propisiare ? bonus efto. Satis illos colnit, quifque imitatus eff. Sen. Ep. 95.

K 3

rftand-

eably to

olt ma-

eritand-

irch the

to gale State

ly from

our A-

our De-

to Pu-

n, and

happy

Favour

ling of

cy and

Christ,

Faith-

in his

Man's

ice, to rava-

mot and

odies

and

- cm

er to a

gined

tantly

which

ercife future

om. a

our Sojourning here in Fear; That we should be ruled by t e Hopes and Fears of another Life: That we should live as those that have serious and fatisfying Apprehentions of the unfeen World: That we should live and walk in believing and delightful tore. thoughts and Fore-tasts of the Clory to come: That we should use this World as if we used it not, and have our Conversation in Heaven, and learn the Manners of the heavenly City and celettial Country, and give our Minds to fuch Pleasures as are most proper to the other State: That we should labour by Heaven moral (which is an heavenly Frame and Temper, Conversation and Life) to be prepared for Heaven local, the Seat and Receptacle of the Bleffed; By entring into an heavenly State, and getting Heaven first into us, to fit our felves to enter into Heaven at last: By becoming the spiritual Children of Abraham, Followers of Abroham's Faith and Obedience, to be apt to receive our Rest and Repose in Abraham's Bosom: That we should unfeignedly [n] additt and devote our felves to Goodness, constantly endeavour to habituate our selves to true Piety, and real substantial Godliness and Religion; to attain that Purity of Heart, the fe gracious Affections, those heavenly, divine and God-like Verines; and to maintain that Life of Holiness and Spirituality, which will suitably qualify, and make us meet for the bleffed Vision and Fruition of God, in the heavenly, supernal Kingdom of Glory: Which will reconcile our very Natures to that perfectly pure and holy State; dispose and encline us to love, and delight our felves in God; and frame tran

of C

par

oft

exp

Tin

Ha

WIL

[o

OU:

of

lov

Ua

110 lik

th

an

fe

ot

V

[[]n] Omnis honeste sient, si bemistonos addineramus, idque unum sa rebus humania bomum judicaveramus, quaque ex eo sunt. Sen. ep. 95.

frame and fit us to be for ever the bleffed Objects of God's complacential Love: and which will prepare us for the comfortable, delectable Enjoyment of the Spirits of just Men made perfect. God now expects that we should do the Work of Time, in Time ; That we should use the Price put into our Hands, and for a certain appointed Time walk with Watchfulness and Circumspection, keep a due [o] Decorum in all our Carriages, and act a vertuous, prudent, [p] commendable Part, in the Sight of God, Angels, and Men, upon the Stage of this lower World, before we be advanced higher, and translated hence into those Upper-Regions and glorious Mansions: That we should quit our felves like Men, and behave our selves like Christians in this present State of Nurture and Discipline, Trial and Probation; that so we may be capable of a bleffed Reward, and an honourable Retribution in the other World; and at last may come to be * equal to the Angels of God in Heaven; yea, to be like the very ble led Son of God himfelf, and to enjoy the happy Fellowship of Saints and Angels, and the Com-be ru.

That

fatif.

hat we

Lore-

That

, and

n the

Coun-

as are

d la-

rame

pre-

le of

, and

o en-

itual

Faith

and

un-

ood-

lves

and hefe and

toli-

and

of

lo-

hat

ine

ind

me

No

ns.

[[]o] Decorum id eff, quod consent aneum est bominis excellentia, in eo, in quo natura ejus à reliquis ansmantibus disserts. Tum servare illud l'ottas dissuus, quod deceat, chin id quisa quaque personá dissuum est. Este Edicitur. -- Nobis autem personan imposuit sps anatura, magna cum excelentia, prassantiag e anim intium reliquorum. -- Nobis à natura constantia, moderationis, temperantia, verecundia partes data sunt. Ciccio l. 1 de Otsic.

^[9] De pulchrisudo corporis apià compositione membrorum mores oculos. E delectas hoc ipso, quod inter se commes parses cum quodam lepare consissunt: sic hoc decorum, quod eluces in vita, moves approbationem ecrum, quibuscum vivitur, ordine E'constitutà E moderatione di Corum omnium asque saforum. Id. ioid.

^{*} Mat. 22. 30. Luke 20. 36.

Company and Society of the bleffed Trinity, to all Eternity, in the unfeen and unconceivable Glory [9].

Our great Creator and wife Governour, when he giveth and continueth Time to us, expects from us, that whatever it cofts m, whatever fenfual Pleafures we deny our felves, whatever worldly Profit or Honours we refuse or lose, whatever we be put to do or suffer in this World; we very faithfully spend our Life-time in the constant Exercise of right Reason and true Religion, and improve all special Opportunities to our spiritual and eternal Time and Opportunity are Talents Advantages. with which we are intrusted; and therefore they are to be traded with, and not to be hid in a Naphin, much less to be spent and wasted in riotous Living. And the longer Time God gives us, the more Daies, and Weeks, and Months, and Years, and Seafons, and Opportunities he affords us to work the Work of God, to abound in the Work of the Lord, to repent of our Sins, to work out our own Salvation, to do good to others, to be Helpers of their Faith, and Furtherers of their Salvation; the more Advantages he affords us to these Purposes, the greater Improvement he looks for from us: And we find him complaining for want of it : * Christ says concerning Jezebel, I gave har Space

Rev. 2, 21.

[r] S

ed not.

ing ;

this th

And

in his

Tears

none.

the

prov

othe

edu

Til

wh

ha

not

of

W

d

^[7] Time is given us to repent in, to appeal the di ine Anger, to repare for and hasten to the Society of Angels, to sire up our stackned Wills, and enkindle our cold Devotions, to weep for our daily Iniquities, and to sigh after, and work for the Restitution of our lost Inheritance. Bp. Taylor's Sirm. 1. Vel. pag. 294.

[r] Space to repent of her Fornication, and she repented not. And he speaks to Jerusalem, even weeping; t If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in thus thy Day, the Things which belong unto thy Peace. And in the Parable, he that planted the Fig-tree in his Vine-yard, complain'd, Behold, these three Tears I come seeking Fruit on this Fig-tree, and find none. That is the first Reason; We must redeem the Time, and whatever it cost us, use and improve it to all possible Advantages to our selves and others, because our Time and Opportunities are afforded us by God to this very End and Purpose.

The Second Additional Reason.

We should carefully and faithfully redeem the Time, because we have all of us [a] lost much Time already.

It is to be feared, that some of us have lost our whole Time ever since we came into the World; have stood idle all the Day long hitherto; have done nothing at all for God's Glory, or for the Salvation of our own and others Souls: have made no riddance at all of our Work, but only made our selves more Work to do. There are some, I fear, so far from [r] Χεόνον περές επανός θωστι, με τα βάλεθας χεόνον. Plutaich.

nity,

vable

when

from

Plea-

Pro-

e be rcife

e all

rnal dems are

ving.

ales,

Sea-

the

our fel-

vaefe

for

of her

An-

liir

ço:

C1-

el.

de hu qui sei o minustur à Numine.

† Luke 13. 42. Luke 13. 7.

[4] Animuu si unquam illi respirare & recedere in se racaverit, o quam shi spse verum, torsus à se, satebitur, as dicet: Luidquid sei adbud, insettum isse maliem: quidquid dixi, cum recogito, mutu invideo: quidquid optavi, inimicorum execrationem puto: quidquid timus, dis tons, quanto levis: suit, quam quoi concupivi? Cum multis inimicitius gessi, & in gratiam ex odio (smodis ulla inter milos gratia est) redis: miss ipsi nondum amicus sum. Sen. de vit. beat. cap. 2.

having finished their Work, that they know not as yet what Work they have to do; that are as yet grofly ignorant of the Terms and Conditions of the New Covenant.

And of those that have known and understood them, how few have considered and consented to them, fincerely kept and faithfully perform'd them! How many among us have liv'd in practical Atheism, in habitual Non-attendance upon God, and in a gross Neglet of their future Welfare and eternal Good? liv'd without any Sence and Tafte and Feeling of God, or of divine Things? lived a very brutith, fenfual, flesh-pleasing Life!

And fuch of us as have not quite loft our Time, yet how much of it have we wasted? how considerable a Part of it have we fool'd and trifled away? Might we not have minded God and Religion, a State of Immortality, and a glorious Eternity more than we have done? How little Knowledg have we got of God, how small Acquaintance with him? how little Communion and Fellowship have we enjoyed with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ, through the bleffed Spirit? What Degrees of Affection do we still retain to the Things of the World? which we might have become more mortified to, and weaned from. How too too frequently predominant and masterly are our Senses? how frong and impetuous are our Passions? how violent and unruly are our Lusts and Corruptions? How short and narrow, how flat and low, how weak and impotent is our Reason? which might have been heightned and improved, widened and enlarged, and grown more strong and masculine, sober and solid. How infirm and infantile is our Fanh? how feeble our Graces? how mean our Expersences? how Imall our Comforts?

Let's

Let

der v

Adva

in the Poor,

Sick.

done

ment!

wher

and

war

conv

not

out

as L

we

exe

scie

lati

we

Ti

tec

nil

W

fli

ha

ho

n

777

i

Let's reflect back a little, and feriously consider what Opportunities we have let flip, what Advantages we have lost of doing and receiving good in the World: Might not we have relieved the Poor, and Christ in the Poor? and visited the Sick, and Christ in the Sick oftener than we have done? Might we not have been the happy Instruments of much more good in the Parishes and Places where we have lived? in compoting Differences, and making Peace among our Neighbours; in warning the unruly, in awakening, convincing, converting, recovering the Ungodly? Might we not have been as the Angels to Lot, hastening some out of Sodom; and have faved some with Fear, pulling them out of the Fire? Might we not have shined as Lights, as Torches, as Stars in the World? Might we not have been more useful and serviceable more exemplary and imitable in our Lives, more conscientious in our Dealings, more faithful in our Relations, more strict and holy in our Families than we have been? How well might we have spared Time to have instructed our Families, to have catechifed our Children and Servants, to have admonished and exhorted one another more frequently than we have done? How many precious Hours have idly flipt away from us, and run waste, which might have been well bestowed in Reading, Hearing, Prayer, Confession, Meditation, Self-examination, holy Society and Christian Communion? Yea, many a Time, when the holy Spirit of God has secretly mov'd and prompted us to perform a particular Duty; When we have had fometimes (though in in a more tacite Way) fuch an hint as that of St. Au-

UMI

grolly w Co-

derstood to them!
Athericand eter-

ed a

ime, idervay? on, a more e we im? en-rees

the ortiontow lent

efus

ow and en ed, foow

t's

[b] St. Auftin's was, Tolle, lege; tolle, lege; take up the Bible, and read in it; get into thy Closet, and pray to thy Father in secret; we have finfully diverted, and sought an Occasion, and studied an Excuse to turn off from it.

The more we have hitherto negletted golden Opportunities, the better let us now improve them : Have we been idle formerly? why now let's be fo much the more bufily employed. Have we loiter'd away a great Part of the Day in the Lord's Vineyard? let us now work so much the harder the remaining Part of the Day. Have we hitherto food still, or mov'd but slowly? let's now with the Sun rejoice to run our Race. Saint Paul had a long Time been out of the Way; but when once he was led into the right Way, he pressed toward the Mark: * κατα σκοποι διώκω: the very same Word by which he expresseth his former Persecution; † εδίωξα: As he eagerly purfued the one, so afterward he as earnestly followed the other: He was as zealous in the Practice, as he had been before in the Suppression of Christ's Religion.

It is our Duty to redeem the Time, because much Time is mis-spent already: 'Tis | St. Peter's Argument, that we should no longer live the rest of our

Time

oftion

may]

Wine

tries.

little

our

ver y

bly b

lay

Goo

ly c

far

TO

in

Cil

me

tk

251

[[]b] O'orta est procela ingens, ferens ingentem imbrem lackrymarum. febam amarifimă contristome cordis mei. Si ccce audio vocem de vicina domo, cum eantie duentu S crobrorepetentu, quasi pue i an puella, inscio: Tale, lege; tolie, lige.
Sta inque mutato vultu, intentissimus cogitari capisustrumus m folerent pueri in aliquo genere ludendi cautare tale aliquid: nec occurrebat omnino audivisse me uspiam. Depressogui imetu lachymarum surrexi, inhil aliud interpretini, nis divinitus mihi jubers, it apersrem codicem S legerem, quod primum capitulum irvenissem. Aug. Consci 1, 8, c, 12 $. 1, 2,3.

Phil. 3, 14. † Acts 12 4. It s Pct. 4, 2,3.

Time in the Flesh, to the Lusts of Men, but to the Will of God : [c] tor the Time past of our Life, fays he, may suffice us to have wrought the Will of the Gentiles, when we walk'd in Lasciviousnes, Lusts, Exces of Wine, Revellings, Banquetings, and abominable Idolamies. We have heretofore done much for Satan. little for God, and God knows, little enough for our own Souls: We have lived to very ill, or to very [mall Purpose in the World, ever since we came into the World; and are at present lamentably behind-hand: Now then it's high Time for us to lay out our felves to purpose, to lay out our selves to the utmost for God, to be zealous and active for God, and to go about doing good: And it greatly concerns us, to be prous and religious in fuch Infrances, in which we have formerly been vicious or incurious: and to beltow our Time especially in the Performance of those Duties, and the Exercife of those Graces, that are contrary to our former fintul Practices, or groß Neglects.

The third Additional Reason.

It concerns us highly to redeem the Time, because the Time that remains is very short, and uncertain; and our special Opportunities far shorter, and more uncertain; and the Work we have to do, very great.

1. The Time that remains is very short. Our whole Life-time is but a very short Space now, in Comparison

; take

let, and

ully di-

an Ex-

n Op-hem i

be fo

oiter'd

Vine-

food

e Sun

Time

led ark:

hich

As

ear-

the of

uch

gu-

our

me

a.

ec-

e.

u

[[]c] Certe hie accresimus stimulus nobis esse debet ad bene currendum, dum reputamus nos magna parte vista extra viam errusse. Calv. in 15c. v. 3.

parison of what [d] Men liv'd before the Flord; but a few Daies, and those swifter than a Weaver's Shuttle, than a Post or Racer on the Land : They pass away as the swift Ship upon the Sea, as the Eagle that haltesh to the Prey. Our Daies upon Earth are like a Shadow that declineth; that changeth, and is liker Darkness every Moment : like Graff, which in the Morning flourisheth and groweth up, in the Evening is cut down and withereth. We frend our Years like a Tale that is told: Now, if a Tale be pleasant, you know Time patieth away fo quickly in the telling. of it, that it is scarce perceived either by Speaker or Hearer. Our Life is as a Vapour, a Smoak; 'tis gone presently. Our Daies are as an Handbreadth. The whole of our Life is but a Span; and it may be the Remainder is but an Inch. Our whole Lite is but a Day; and it may be we have past the greatest Part of it already, and a few Hours or Momems will ferve to measure all that is left behind.

[e] If we look back on our past Years, the long-est Life will feem but a short Space: and why should we reckon the Remainder by any other Measure? which with many, in the very Course of Nature, is but small and short in Comparison of the former. The succeeding Part of our Lives will be gone and quite past over ere we are aware.

It is not fo proper to ask, when we shall die? as, when we shall make an End of dying? for sure-

ly,

ly, L

mrn :

fince V

Sands

the V

So the alone

etat is

We

Day .

Deat

A

on ou

an f

Piece

Hou

DOT

canfe

dim-

of H

and

and

Hor

Our

1911

L

But.4

ceff

No

YIC

[[]d] Methuf-lab lived 969. Years: and Enoch, the shortest lived of the Partiarchs before the Flood, lived 365 Years, as many Years as there are Dates in one Year.

Job 14. L & 7. 6. & 9. 15, 26. & 8. 9. Pfal, 102. 11. & 103. 15, 16. & 90. 5, 6, 9. James 4. 14. Pfal, 39. 5.

[[]e] lufinita est velocitat remporit, qua magu apparet respicien-ly, [f] we have been dying, ever fince we were burn: we have been going out of the World, ever fince we came into the World. As not only the Sands that fall last of all, but all that run out from the very first, do properly empry the Hour-glass? So the last trour in which we ceale to be, doth not alone effect, but only finish our Death. Quicquid etatis retro eft, mors tenet, fays Seneca [Ep. 1.]: We are dead already to yellerday, and t'other Day, and all the former Daies of our Lives:

Death is postefs'd of all that is palt.

And how does Death feife, as on our Time, fo on our Bodies by Degrees? As it is in the Decay of an House, there fails down a Window, then a Piece of a Wall, then a Door: So 'tis with the House of this earthly Tabernacle: Death seised upon our Teeth, and makes the * Grinders ceafe, because they are few : upon our Eyes, and makes us dim-fighted: upon our Ears, and makes us thick of Hearing: upon our Feet and Hands, our Limbs and Joints, and makes them weak and feeble, stiff and cold. We decline and haften apace to our long Home, and are fitly faid to be frail, or ceasing. Our Life is [a] fbort.

vice of our Souls. D. Patrict's Div. Arithm. p. 30.

oud;

ver's

They

agle:

are.

d is

bich

Sve-

cars

ant

ling

ker

k;

nd-

und

ole

he

10-g-Id

23

a-

DΓ

es 1+

[[]f] Quotidia meramer, quotidie enim demitur aliqua paes hita: O tune quaque in crefcimus , visa decrefcis. -- Hanc fum quem aginin diem, cum mirre dividimini. Quemadmodum clopfydram non extremum ftiliciaium exhaurit, fed quidquid aute deflums : fle ultima bora, qui effe definimus, non fo-la mortem facit, fed fola confinmus. Sen. ex Lucilio, ep. 24.

Ecclef. 12. 3. 1 Pfal. 39. 4.
[8] If we did ferioully think how many of our Years are spent before we can do any more than a Beast, and how many we cast away without confidering, after we are Men; and how many neceffary Refreshments by Meat, and Drink, and Sleep, will still devour, we would not be fo prodigal and lavish of the small Number that remains, but fave them for good Uses and the Ser-

And, 2. It is uncertain bow short it may be. Young ones may be fnarch'd away in their Childhood or Youth. There were as many Lambs and Kids facrificed under the Old Law, as Goats and old Sheep, They that have escaped in their Youth, may be cut off in the midft of their Daies. The ftrongell may go as well as the weakelt, and the luftient of all may go foonest. Iron and Brass may melt, as well as Clay molder. Possibly some Fruit may hang on till it's fo ripe that it falls and drops down of it felf, but most of the Fruit is violently plucktor shaken down while it's raw and green. It you go into a Potter's Shop, and fee a great Company of earthen Pots, and should ask the Owner, which of these would break first? he would tell you, Not that which was first made, but that which first got a 'Tis common for them to go first to the Win ding-fleet, who came last from the Womb. We are earthen Kafels, brittle Ware, and may quickly get a Knock or Fall, and crack, and break.

How many Persons have lost their Lives by very strange and sad Accidents? Some, and great ones too, have fallen suddainly by an Ebud's Dagger, a Ravilliack or Felton's Knife. A poisoned Torchdid serve to light the Cardinal of Lorrain to his long home. Fabius surnamed the Painter (as [k] a learned Bishop has with variety remarked out of History) was chooked with an Hair in a Mes of Milk, Adrian the sourch with a Flie, Anacreon with a Raisin, Drussus Pompeius with a Pear, Casimir the second, King of Polonia, with a little Draught [6] Bp. Taylor in his great Exemplar, p. $57, 558. See also Dr. Patrick's Div. Arithm. p. 26, 27.

. Dras

6 bone.

4 playi

with !

· plays and e heard

corn t

Trai

turni

of a l

fed a

of S

and

beer

Bed

fes ,

to :

one

[

fitt

and ing

le

Draught of Wine ; Tarquinius Priscus with a Fishbone. Lucia, the Sifter of Aurelius the Emperour, playing with her little Son, was wounded in her Breast with a Needle, and died. The great Lawyer Baldus playing with a little Dog was bitten upon the Lip, infantly grew mad and perished. So far that great and excellent Author. A little Bruise on the Toe is faid to have killed Emilius Lepselus. heard of several that have died by the cutting of a Corn upon their Toe, a Place remote from the Heart: and have read of a Person, who after fixteen Years Travel, and enduring much Hardness abroad, returning home died of an Hurt in his Thumb. [i] The plucking but a fingle Hair off the Breast of a Nobleman in the Great Mogul's Court, caufed an incurable Cancer in his Flesh, and proved as mortal as the tearing out his very Heart.

[k] How many Persons have died in the midst of Sport and Merriment, excessive Laughter, and too great a Joy? and what a Number have been found unexpectedly and suddenly dead in their Beds?

Young

bood or

ids fa-

Sheep,

ongelt

est of

elt, as hang

n of it

cktor

ou go

ich of

Not

gota

Win

e are

y get

V.VO

treat

Dage

oned

n to

(as Ked Weß con

afi

ttle

ght

مالد

We are obnoxious to numerous perilous Diseafes, subject to various violent Passions, and exposed to a thousand Casualties and Comingencies, any one of which may quickly be the Death of us. We

are

[6] See Instances in the Gr. Exemplar, p. 558.

^[1] Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. of Arts, and Student of Christ's. Courch in Oxford in his Voyage to the Eust. Indies, Anno Christi 1615, tells us of a Noblethan in the great Mogul's Court, who fitting in Dalliance with one of his Women, had an Hair pulled by her from his Breast; This little Wound made by that small and unexpected Instrument of Death presently settred, and turning into an incurable Cancer killed him. God needs no bigger a Lance than an Hair to kill an Atheist, as this dying Lord acknowledged. Purchan Pilgrams, vol. 2.

are in Danger of perishing by falling into the Wai ter, or into the Fire; by the firing, or Fall of some Part of an House; by the Fall of a Coach, the Fall of an Horse, or a Fall off an Horse. We know not how foon a Vein may break, and let outout Blood and Life: How foon an Ague may shake us to Death; as [1] it did the great Tamerlane, in the midst of his great Hopes, and greatest Power, when he was preparing for the utter rooting out of the Othoman Family, and the Conquest and Overthrow of the Greek Empire. We know not how foon a Dropfie may drown us, how foon a Fever may burn us up, how foon a Quincy may stop our Breath, how foon an Apoplexy may bereave us of our Senfes and of our Lives, how foon we may groan under deadly Gripes, how foon the Pe-Stilence may finite us, and cleave unto us till it has quite confumed us. Every Pore in our Bodies is a Door at which Death may enter in. If we had as many Hands as Hairs on our Heads, they would not be able to stop up all those Passages at which Death may creep in unawares. We know not but that some Disease is now breeding in our Bodies, which will shortly make an End of us. Blessed be God, we are now free from Pain, but ere long we may be even diffracted with it. To day we are well, and in good Health; but to morrow we may be fick, heart-fick, fick unto Death; and the next Day laid in our Coffins, and lodged in our Graves. Many are gone before us, who were likely enough to offlive us : and who knows but our turn may be the very next. This Night, mine, thy Soul may be required of us; and to morrow Morning the Bell may give give

gine .

have

mile

fecur

Grea

fear

Live

our .

Dan

how

nfele

VICE

VOC4

Ho

are

hen

Jan

tha

be

Su

ru

in

E

V

in pe

a

ł

^{[1] 27.} Jan. 1402. Knolles's Hift. of the Turks, p. 235.

give notice of our Death. We are apt to imagine, that we may continue in the World till we have effected all we design; and yet we have no Promise of God's, nothing but our own Presumption to secure us of longer Life. And to be sure, the Greatness and Multitude of our Sins give us Cause to sear the Fewness of our Daies, and Shortness of our Lives: to sear, lest every Sickness should prove our Death; and lest our Death should prove our Damnation.

If we consider, how little need God has of us; how many better than our selves go before us; how useless and worthless, how unprofitable and unserviceable we are in the World; what an high Provocation our heinous Sins are unto God's infinite Holiness and Justice; and how many Waies there are of snatching us away and removing us hence; we cannot but consess, that it is a thousand to one if ever we reach to an old Age.

You that are old indeed, have reason to conclude, that your Time is sufficiently short: your Pulse can beat comparatively but a few Strokes more: your Sun draws low, is almost fet: your Glass is almost run: your Life is almost done: you have one Foot in the Grave already: you stand upon the Brink of Eternity, and tread upon the Borders of another World: And will you be guilty of such prodigious inconsideracy, still [m] velue ex pleno & abundanti perdere; when you have but a few Daies or Hours remaining, to spend as extravagantly as if you had all your Years before you?

You that are meak and infirm, fickly and crafie, have reason to reckon your Time uncertain, and

not

e Wai

of some

the Fall

e know

outour

rake us

in the Power,

ng out

it and

w not a Fe-

y Itop

reave

on we

ne Pe-

it has

s is a

ad as ould

hich

t but

dies,

be

we vell,

ick,

Day

Ма-

to

the

re-

av

ve

[[]m] Sen. de brev. vit. cap. 4.

not to flatter your felves, and fay, that threatned Folk live long.

You that are more eminemly useful and holy, zealow and forward in the Profession and Practice, Maintenance and Defence of the Christian and Reformed Religion; your very Religion, which will fave your Souls, may possibly cause you to lose your Lives: For your Astivity in your Duty to God and your Country, you may be [n] strangled or stabbed by the barbarous Hands of the butch-erly bloody Papifts.

But especially you that are wilfully wicked and impenitent, have reason to determine that you have not long to live. How can you hope, that God should put another Talent, and truit a new Stock of Time in the Hands of fuch Produgals as you have been? That he should give such Rebels longer Time to affront and dishonour him? That he should suffer you to live who know not how to live, and care not how you live; who do not understand or confider for what it was you came into the World? That he should allow you one Day more, who never yet knew how to spend and improve any one Day as ve ought? You have Ground enough to expect, that the continuing and lengthening out of your Sins will extremely diminish and lessen, curtail and shorten your Daies : You have reason to fear every Hour the Loss of your Lives, and of all Possibility of Repentance; that you shall be removed, and room made for worthier Persons to stand up in the Places which you fo unprohtably and perniciously take up in the World.

Our

pre

fty

or

the

PI

fic

fo

ly

th

a

CE

n

V

P

[[]n] Preached on the Lord's-Day after the Discovery of the Murder of Sr. Edward Berry Godfrey.

actice, m and which

ed Folk

ou to r Dufrangbutch-

have God bock of have onger d or orld?

y as pect, our and evelibiand the ally

)ur

the

Our Time is short, and therefore let us lay present hold upon that small Remnant of [o] haffy Time which posteth away whether we work or play.

Let's take with in Words, and fay to God with the devout Herbert,

[p] O let thy Height of Mercy then Compassionate short-breathed Men.

Oh ! gently treat

With thy quick Flow'r, thy momentary Bloom;

Whose Life still pressing Is one undressing, A steady aiming at a Tomb.

Let's daily prepare to die, by earnest importunate Pleading with God for Pardon of Sin, and Sanctification, and Sence of Pardon, and of our Fitness for Heaven and Happiness, that so we may certainly die safely, and comfortably.

And, by the Help of God, let's double our Diligence and Activity, and endeavour to do a great deal of Work in a little Time. You know, Nature at the Approach of Death usually acts a double Part, and puts forth all its Strength. Bells, when about ceasing, strike thicker than before. A Stone, the nearer it comes to its Center, the safter it moves. When Night draws on, the Traveller mends his Pace. Considering we have but a few Daies, let's labour to live them all, to lose none of them: So to lead our Life, that we may be able to enjoy our past.

[P] Repentance.

[[]o] Cum celeritate temporis usendi relocitate cert.inium est : relut ex torrente rapido , nec semper casuro, cito hanvendum est. Sen. de brev. vit. cap. 9.

Life, by making sweet and comfortable Reflettions upon it; which is in a manner to [p] enlarge our Age, and after a Sort to live twice.

[q] We have but a little while to live, let us therefore fludy and strive to live well. Our Life is just like a Comedy (faies Seneca) it matters not so much how long, as how well it is afted.

[r] He lives long, that lives well: who in a few Years is very useful and serviceable unto God, and greatly prohtable and beneficial to the World. The Author of the Book of Wisdom says concerning Enoch, who was the shortest lived of the Patriarchs before the Flood, but an eminent Pattern of Piety, and a rare Exemplar of walking with God, that he being perfected or consummated in a short Time, sulfilled a long Time. (Chap. 4. Vers. 13.) For (as the same

[p] Ampliat atatis fatium siti vir bonus : boc est

Vivere bis, vita poffe priore frui. Epigrammatograph Latin. [3] Nemo quam bene virat, sed quam diu curat, chm omnibus possit contingere, ut tene virant ; ut diu, nuli. Sen. ep. 21. in fine. Quomodo sabula, se vita; neus quam diu, sed quam bene asta sit refert. Id. ep. 77. Discendum quam bene viras re-fre, non q idm dis. Id. ep. 101.

fame Verf.

the in Number of Men , mente des the ceit, ralift of [s fwer mann long, What idly? Life yet his Friend perly his I Tear Tree

But

Min Corp pora finite per tan

libe

mo

.

[[]r] Let us account that the o'dest Life which is most holy. κα ο μακεότατ Ο βίο α es O αλλ' ο σσεδαίστατ O (Plus arch) conjol. ad Apollow) A long Life is not the bell, but a good Life. As we do not commend (faith he) him that hath play da great while on an Instrument, or made a long Oration, but him that hath played and spoken well; and as we account those Creatures belt that give us most prefit in a thort Time, and every where we fee maturity preferred before length of Age, fo it ought to be among our felve. They are the worthiest Persons and have lived longest in the World, who have brought the greatest Benefit unto it, and made the greatest Advantage of their Time to the Service of God and of Men. Let our Conscience therefore be the Ephemeris or Diary of our Life. Let us not reckon by the Almanack, but by the Book of God, how much we live. And let us account that he who lives Godly lives long, and that other Men live not at all. D. Patrick's Div. Arithm. p. 34, 35.

fame Author a little before does well express it, Vers. 8, 9.) Honourable Age is not that which standath in length of Time, nor that which is measured by Number of Tears: But Wisdom is the gray Hair unto

Men, and an unsported Life is old Are.

Lucilius having in an Epistle to Seneca sadly lamented the immature untimely Death of Metrona-Hes the Philosopher, who might, and, in his Conceit, ought to have lived longer; The grave Moralift feafonably checks his canfeless unjust Complaint of [s] Providence, and takes Occasion in his Anfwer to discourse usefully and excellently in this manner; [t] Our Care should be (faics he) not to live long, but to live enough. Life is long, if it be full. What good do eighty Tears do him that spends them all idly? such a Person did not live, but only linger in Life; nor did he die late, but was a long Time dead. But you make your moan, that he died young and green: yet he performed the Offices of a good Citizen, a good Friend, a good Son, he was deficient in no part that properly belonged to him. Though his Age was imperfect. Heliv'd, yea he was here eighty his Life was perfect. Tears, unles you will reckon he liv'd no otherwise than Trees are faid to live. I pray thee, my Lucilius, let 265

[5] "Ov paje quiter Θεός γ' αποθυήσκει νέ. Φ. Apud. Poctas Multis ille bonis flebilis eccedet. Hotat, carm ! 1 Od. 14 de morte Quintilii.

fletti-

cn-

t us

Our

mat-

few

and

The

E-rchs

ety,

t he

ful-

the

me

tin.

1928-

21.

be-

y.

fe,

at

es

10

1-ie

e

Minor, p. 513.

[1] Octogenta annis vixit, nifi forto sic vixisse eum dicis quomodo dicuntur arbores vivere. — Quema dimodum in minore corporus habitus, potest homo essepersedus: se Tim minore temporus modo, potest esse vixa persedua. — Q aris quod sit amplissimum vita spatium? Osque ad septentiam vivere: qui advissim pervenit, attigit non longissimum sinem, sed maximum. — Nim tam multu vixit annis, quan potuit. Et panecrum versum liber est, T quidem laudandus, atque utilis. S.n. ep. 93.

us endeavour, fays he, that as precious Things, fo our Life, though it be not of any great Extent and Length. yet may be of much Weight and Worth: Let us measure it by Work, and not by Time. Wouldst thou know the Difference between him that fpent so few, and another that hath passed over many Years? The one lives even after Death, the other perished before Death. Let m therefore praise him, and place him in the Number of happy Persons, who, how little Time soever be enjoyed, was careful to bestow it well. Why do you inquire how long he lived? he liv'd to the Memory and Benefit of Posterity. As there may be a perfect Man in a les Habit of Body, so there may be a perfect Life in a less Measure of Time. Do you demand what is the largest Space of Life? it is to live till we attain to Wisdom: He that arrives to that, is come not to the longest End, but the greatest. He liv'd not so many Years as he might: why, a Book may contain but a few Verses, and yet be very landable and useful.

He that attains the End of Life, though his Time be short, yet his Life is long, because he lives [u] much in a little: Like him that writes small, thick and close, having much to write, and but a little Paper to write in. When the Ninivites had but forty Dries allowed them, they made use of that Space to exercise a notable Repentance in.

Our Time is short and very uncertain; let our Improvement therefore be as speedy, and as great as may be. Let our Care be to live alwaies holily, that we may never fear dying suddenly, nor dread the Thought of being suprised and taken unprovided. If we cannot be certain of longer enjoying this present mortal, transitory Life; Oh let's not be co bette

clude

Chorte

fome

be fl

SH

or f

that

frik

tog

the

Th

and

the

cif

dit

ab

to

Si

h

n

^[4] In quantolibet tempore boua aterna consummant. Scn.

be contented to be as uncertain of our obtaining a better being, and an endless Life, when this is concluded and expired.

To our

ength.

neasure

ow the mother

es even

Let 14

ber of

moyed, re how

efit of

B Han

a less

ergest

dom:

End,

night:

et be

Time

lives

mall,

ut a

had le of

Im-

at as

lily.

ead

ovi-

ing

nct

be

en.

3. Our special Particular Opportunities are much shorter than our Time, and more uncertain. Though the Stalk remain, the Flower may be gone : though fomewhat of Time may be left, yet Opportunity may be flipt. But this I fay, Brethren, the * TIME IS SHORT: the Word is TEVESTED MILE GO contracted or shortened. It is an Allusion to Sea-faring Men, that have almost done their Voyage, and begin to frike Sail; are ready to roll and fold up their Sails together, to put into Harbour, and to go to unlade their Goods.

Our special Seasons are very short, and uncertain We may quickly be laid upon Sick-Beds, and unfitted by a Difease for the Performance of those Duties, which now we are free to the Exercife of. We may suddenly fall into so weak a Condition, that an earnest Care, and working Thoughts about the final Estate of our Souls, would hinder the Cure and Recovery of our Bodies, and will be apt to be laid aside upon that Pretence. In a Time of Sickness our Heads may be distempered, or our Hearts may be straitned, that we cannot pray. We may possibly lose our Estates, that we cannot hereafter give to the Poor so liberally as now we may. It may be for the future we may not be excited and fuscitated by such good Motions as now we are. We may never be entrusted with such rich Talents. nor have fuch precious Opportunities any more afforded us as are at present vouchsafed to us: Let's therefore now improve them to the utmost: let us make the best of them, and lose none of them: Especially pecially considering, that as our Time is short and uncertain, and our special Opportunities shorter, and more uncertain; So,

¹ Cor. 7. 29.

4. The Work we have to do, is very great. 'Tis no flight and trifling Work, above all keepings to keep our Hearts: to prevail with our selves to make a Covenant with our Eyes, and perform it : to turn away our Eyes from beholding Vanity, and from gazing on alluring Objects: to learn habitually to govern our Tongues; to fet a Watchover our Lips, that we offend not with our Tongues, nor speak unadvisedly with our Lips: to take heed unto our Feet, and to make ftreight Paths: to walk circumfpeftly, * accurately, exactly: to strive to enter in at the strait Gate, to watch for our Souls, to work out our Salvation, to make our Calling and Election fure: to procure, and preserve a Right and Title to the heavenly Kingdom: to get our Evidences for Heaven sealed, and to keep them so clear from Blors and Blurs that they may be plainly

It is no facile Thing to repent of so many thousand Sins and Follies, to believe with all our Hearts, to obey the several Laws and Commands of Christ, and to discharge and perform our particular respective Duties both towards God, towards our Neighbour, and towards our selves. 'Tis no such easy matter to become able to resist the Devil, to tread Satan under our Feet; to get Victory over the World, to subdue our own Flesh, to deny our selves; To reach and attain to such a Degree of spiritual Nicenes, as not to endure the Impurity of a Dream, * axeiBus Eph. 5. 15.

2 Dream per as W Sin I is not c not dif of our profie ! refent My cha 10 read tite is: jects , vanqu Conti Temp Conq a Th Reso folve tisfy

will Tis
enou
and Puri Frie
mag
con
To

fed

He

Dream, nor to allow our felves in so much An-er as would disorder and disturb a Child. Sin is not mortified on a suddain: Our old Man is not crucified in a Moment: The strong Man is not difarm'd and cast out in an instant : The Plague of our Heart is not fo foon cured, our spiritual Leprofie so quickly healed, nor our lilue of Blood so refently dried up. A corrupt Nature is not fo ea-(by changed: [w] Ill Habits and Cuitoms are not fo readily broken and laid alide: A craving Appetite is not immediatly drawn off from fenfual Objects, nor our Inclinations to the Things below vanquish'd and conquer'd with a fingle and short Condict: Strength is not so feedily gotten against Temptations, nor Power over our Passions, nor Conquest obtain'd over our Corruptions. It is not a Thing of fo quick a disparch to fix and fettle our Refolutions, to remove throng Prejudices, to refolveour Doubts, to answer Objections, and satisfy many weighty and difficult Questions which will arise concerning our Souls and spiritual Estates. Tis a great Work fure, Employment and Butiness enough for all our Time, to get a Change of Mind, and Heart, and Life: To get Pardon of Sin, and Purity of Heart; To recover the Favour and Friendship of God, and to regain the glorious Image and Likeness of God: To procure the Reconciliation of onr Persons and Natures to God; To get a Participation of the divine Nature, a Participation of God's Holiness: To attain a bleffed Conformity in Spirit and Practice to Christ our Head: To get an affective transformative Knowledg rt and

, and

Tis mo

keep

ke a turn

from

y to

Lips,

peak

our um-

nter

to

and ght

our

fo

nly

nd

to

ft,

eur

ch

0

r

[[]w] Malá consuctudine obsessio, din rubigo animorum effricanda est. Sen. ep. 95.

ledg of God and Christ, and a deep Impress of the holy Gospel upon our Hearts and Lives: To know the Gospel, to know God and Christ so, as to become Gospel-like, God-like, Christ-like Creatures: To gain a good Measure of Grace and Holiness, a rooted Love to God and Goodness, a good Hope and a fetled well-grounded Peace of Conscience: To learn to be careful for nothing with an anxious, distrustful, distracting, * dividing Care; but in every Estate and Condition of Life to be humbly and cheerfully content: To improve and ftir up the feveral Graces of God in us: By God's Assistance to bring our selves to maintain a daily holy Communion with God, and a constant Conversation in Heaven: to prepare aright for Death and Judgment: to arrive to a Weanedness from this present World, to a Desire to depart and be with Christ, and to a Love of the appearing, and an earnest longing for the second Coming of the Lord Tefus.

This hard Task and weighty Work will require all our Labour, and even take up every Hour. Let's therefore vigoroully redeem the Time, and industrioully put it to this Use, and diligently employ it to this Purpose; and daily say the Prayer of Moses, to teach us to number our Daies, that we may apply our Hearts unto Wisdom. Let's lose none of our little Time upon unfruitful, unprostable Things, till we have no more worthy and weighty Things to spend it in; and till we have Time to spare from more momentous, important Work: But let's lay out our Time in those necessary Works which will comfort us most when we come to die.

The

The

fore r deem constan

make but la

in fo

to rec

ing:

moral

nece [

This

come

any l

us,

fron

and

Plea

blef

long

Life

in,

We

giv

(

£101

207.54

re

fto

^{*} un fiv mezuva Te. Phil. 4. 6. + Pfal. 90. 12.

patch

The Work that lies before us is great; let's therefore redeem the whole of our remaining. Time: redeem it perfectly (as far as in us lies) and redeem it confiantly, to the very last; and not purposely make the good Improvement of one Day an Argument of mis-spending and trisling away the next: but lay out every Day with Labour and Diligence in so very great and good a Work. If we intend to redeem the Time, we must continue in well-doing: Now a natural Cessation of the Act, is not a moral Discontinuance; But only our Omission of any necessary Act, Or our Doing a clean contrary Act: This is that which we must take Care we do not become guilty of.

[x] We have no reason here to accuse and cast any Blame upon God, for giving so little Time to us, and expecting so great and weighty a Work from us: for, though our Time be short of it self, and we have no spare Time to throw away in vain Pleasures, or unnecessary Employments: Yet, blessed be God, the Time he gives us is large and long enough to serve all rational spiritual Ends of Life, to do all our necessary Work and real Business in, by the Help of God, and in the Strength of Christ. We have in the Daies of our Lives Space enough given us for Repentance, Time sufficient to dis-

[x] Nan exiguum temporu habemuu: sed multum perdimuu. Satu longa vita, Tin maximarum rerum consummationem large data est, si tota bene collocaretur. -- Non accepimui brevem vitam, sed fecimuu: nec inopes ejuu, sed prodigi sumui. Sicut ampla Tregia opes, ubi ad malum dominium perveneruns, momanto dissipantur: at quamviu modica, si bono cuffodi tradita sunt, usu crescunt: sta atas nestra, bene disponenti, multum paset. Quid de rerum natura querimur! illa se benigne gessit. Vita, si scias uti, longa est. Sen. de brevitate vitx, cap. 1, 2.

fs of the

es: To

t fo, as rift-like

ace and

lness, a

eace of othing

* divi-

ion of

To im-

in us:

intain

nstant

at for dness

epart

aring,

g of

Juire

Let's

ndu-

by it

Jes,

we end

710-

ur

ort

he

patch the one Thing necessary to work out our Salvation, to prepare for Eternity.

And for our Comfort and Encouragement, if we be not grosly wanting to our selves, we may probably yet perform whatever is indispensably required of us, in the Time that is continued and lengthned out to us, if we take up presently and lose and squander away no more of it. Life is long enough, says Seneca, (and let me add, the Residue of thy Life may prove long enough) if thou knowest but how to spend it well: And therefore be so prudent and provident, as to use and improve that little, which, if the Fault be not thy own, may happly serve to do thy main Business, to save thy Soul from perishing everlastingly, and from miscarrying to all Eternity.

The fourth Additional Reason.

We should redeem the Time while we enjoy it, because we can neither bring Time back, when once it is past unimproved, nor any way prolong and lengthen out the Daies of our Lives, when Death comesto put an End and Period to them.

r. We should redeem the Time while we have it, because we can never recall and retrieve the Time of this Life, if once we lose and let it slip unimproved. We can never live one Day of our Lives over again. No Man will restore thy Time (says [y] Senera) or return thy lost Opportunities to thee, and make thee Master once more of those Advantages which here-

[y] Nemo restituet annos, nemo iterum te tibi redder. Sea. d. brev. vit. c. 8.

here

give

our T

gain

Hem

Ton

the l

Wh

har

poo Cal

ble

Pra Life

An

Tit

the

no

fo

of

wh

heretofore thou hadst in thy Hands. If we would give the Fruit of our Bodies for the Redemption of our Time, we can never purchase it into our Hands again. It is reported to have been the Speech of Prince Henry upon his Death-bed to a certain Lord, Ah Tom, I now too late wish for those Hours we have spent in vain Recreations. That of him in the Poet was a very groundless and fruitless Desire, O mihi prateritos referat si Jupiter annos!

[z] Oh that Jove would me restore The Years that I have liv'd before!

When our Time is just at an End, and we can hardly draw our Breath, 'twill be a lamentable, desperate Case for us then to cry out with that poor distressed, afflicted [a] Woman in Cambridg, Call Time again, call Time again; a Thing impossible to be effected by any Cares or Endeavours, Prayers or Tears, Money or Price. The Time of Life, once lost, is irrecoverable and unredeemable; And the sad Apprehension of the irreparable Loss of Time, will one Day prove an intolerable Torment to too late considering and awakened Souls. Let's therefore use that Time well, which there can be no Revocation of.

2. As we cannot recover the Time that is past, so we cannot make any Supplement or Addition of new and longer Time to the Daics of our Lives, when once Death comes to put a Finis to them.

As

it our

if we

pro-

wir'd

hned

quan-

lays

Life on to

h, if

e to rishll E-

it is tuo 1

End

ave ne of

ved.

eca)

ake

nich

ere-

Sen.

^[2] Bp. Reynold's Treat, of the Paff.

^[4] Mrs. Pindar, a Book-feller's Wife in Cambridg.

As we cannot add one Cubit to our Stature; So we cannot add one Moment to the Measure and Number of our Daies. [b] St. Gregory in a certain Homily tells us a fad Story of one Chrifaurius, a No. bleman, but a bad Liver; as full of Wickedness as Wealth: who at last was struck with Sickness, and the same Hour that he was going out of the World, he feem'd to fee a Company of foul and black Spirits standing before him, and coming to drag him to the Infernal Pit: He began to tremble, to grow pale, to sweat again, and to call out to his Son [c] Maximus to come quickly to fave and help him: When his Son and Servants came, they could fee nothing; but he himself, turn which way he would, could fee nothing elfe but those evil Spirits which he could not endure to fee; and in a despairing Manner at last cried out, Inducias vel usque mane, inducias vel usque mane: Let me have respite but till to morrow, respite but till to morrow Morning : And in this Perplexity he died immediatly. Father makes this Use of it; The Vision did him no good, fays he, but let it do good to us, upon whom God's Patience waits yet a while longer: [d] Let us seriously think upon't, that we may not lose our Time, fays he, and then beg to live that we may do our Duty, when we are forc'd to die whether we will or no.

The

W

me (ha

Eccle

or, b

(the Hear

in the

Eyes

live a

deny

thy !

tite,

who

Plea

r.out

take

take

fona

This

that

Hea

this

into foo in t

and Ac for tra

wh

Sei

[c] Maxime, curre, Maxime, curre, nunquam tibi aliquid mali feci, in fidem tuam me suscept.

[[]b] Hom. 12. in Euang. in verba, Vigilate itaque, quia nefestes diem neque horam.

[[]d] Nos ergo, fratres charsijimi, nunc folicitè ista cogitemm, ne nobu in vacuum tempora pereant, & sunc quaramm adbene agendum vivere, cum jam compellimur de corpore exire.

The fifth Additional Reason.

We should diligently redeem the Time, because we shall be certainly call'd to an Account for our Time. Eccles. 11.9. Rejoice, O young Man, in thy Youth, or, because thou art young, healthy and strong (the wife Man here speaks Ironically) and let thy Heart cheer thee in the Daies of thy Youth, and walk in the Waies of thy Heart, and in the Sight of thine Eyes: take thy Course: do what thou pleasest: live as thou liftest: lay no restraint upon thy felf: deny thy felf nothing that Heart can wish: please thy Eye, gratify thy Phansie, satisfy thy Appetite, and let thy fenfual Heart give Law to thy whole Man: take thy Swing, thy Fill of Lust and Pleasure; get Gain, heap up Riches, acquire Hocour, grow great in the World, enjoy thy felf, take thine eafe, eat, drink, and be merry; But take along with thee this fad and fevere, yet feafonable Premonition, Know thou that for all these Things God will bring thee into Judgment. Know thou, that is, consider and think well of it, till thy Heart be warmed with the Thoughts of it: Let this so necessary weighty Doctrine not only enter into, and then flip out of thy Head almost as foon as in it; but let this Truth take up and dwell in thy Thoughts, and move and stir thy Heart and Affections, and rule and govern thy Life and Actions: Thus know thou, that for all these Things, for all the Vanities and Excelles, Follies and Extravagancies of thy Youth, for all those Things which are now fo grateful and delightful to thy Senses; God, [c] whose Word and Fear thou now despi-

e and

rtain

es as

and

orld.

Spi-

m to

WOT

Son

him:

fee

uld,

h he

lan-

ndu-

ll to

bnA

ame

nim

noc

er:

lose

nay

will

he

10-

id

w, se

[[]c] Bp. Reynolds in loc.

despisest, from whose Eye thou canst not hide thy Sins, from whose Triounal thou canst not absent thy self, This God will bring thee; bring thee perforce whether thou wilt or no; fend his Angels to hale and drag thee, when thou shalt in vain call and cry to Mountains and Rocks to hide and cover thee: Bring thee into Judgment; to a particular Judgment immediatly after Death; and to the general Judgment, the Judgment of the great Day (as St. Jude speaks) call'd by St. Paul, the Terrour of the Thou fond and foolish, thou daring venturous Sinner, know, that there is an After-reckoning, a Time when thou must come to an Account, when thou must think and hear of what thou halt done, and left undone, and must furely. pay very dear for all. They that live their Time in the Flesh, to the Lusts of Men (fays * St. Peter) they Shall give Account to him that is ready to judg the Quick and the Dead,

[d] We are as fure to account for every considerable Portion of our Time, as for every Sum of Money we receive. [e] If the very + Hairs of our Heads, and tall our Hairs are numbred; then certainly our very Hours and all our Hours too: And above all, our special Hours, our Sermon-Hours, and all providential Opportunities, with all our Neglects and Non-improvements, are exactly computed and reckoned up by God our Judg. God puts down in his Caralogue, this is the first, this the second, this the third time, that I have warn'd, that [d] Bp. Taylor's Serm. 1. Vol. p. 294.

that I

how

treat by h

DY OI

God fpen

ry S now of a

cour

whi littl

of u alm of i

to] ther

sha

dre Ti

> VO Re

fo

th

fh

fo

fi

¹ Pet. 4. 2, 5.

[[]e] Qui unum capillum capitu non dimittit non numeratum. unum momentum temporus dimittet non computatum? † Mat. 10. 30.

that I have moved fuch an one. He strictly observes how long he has waited upon us, how often he has treated with us, by his Mercies, by his Judgments, by his Word, by his Spirit by his own Ministers, by our own Consciences, or our Christian Friends. God counts and casts up every Minute of Patience spent upon us; He reckons and registers every Sand of Long-sustering run out by us: God now takes special, particular, punctual Notice of all, in order to a future, final, and full Account.

We must one Day reckon for all those Hours which now we idle and tride away, and make fo littleand light of. Time is now a Burthen to many of us, and lies upon our Hands, and we know not almost how to spend it, or which way to get rid of it: And therefore sometimes we use evil Arts to pass it away : But oh what an intolerable Burthen will the Guilt of m'f-spent Time be, when it shall be charged home upon a Soul at the great and dreadful Day! What have you done with all your Time? will God then fay: Is it true, that you have fpent fo much in Drinking, fo much in Revelling, fo much in Dreffing your felf every Day? Were these the Things I gave you Time for? what will the Sinner be able to answer to thefe Things.

When our righteous Lord, who delivered the Talents of Time and manifold Opportunities to us, shall come to recken with us, he will require and call for some answerable good Improvement of every such Talent: And the more of these Talents were concredited and committed to us, the richer Return and greater Improvement will be expected and de-

M 2 manded

ide thy

absent

ee per-

un call

cover

icular

he ge-

ay (as

of the

ven-

-rec-

Ac-

what rely .

ie in

they nick

msi-

n of

Our

er-

ind

ms,

onr

mod

nis

4

at

manded of us: [f] Our Reckening will rise according to the Largeness of our Opportunities and Receits.

And the longer it is before God calls us to a Reckening, our Account will certainly be the sadder, and our Doom and Punishment much the heavier, if we have been unfaithful Stewards of our Time and Talents. What Account will the old Sinner give of three or four-score Years spent in Vanity, Sin and Folly? What will he be able to say for himself, that his gray Hairs were found in the Way of Unrighteonines?

It will be a fearful Audit, when God shall call the inconsiderate, careless Sinner to appear before his great Tribunal: Then he that has but hid his Tatent, shall hear that sad and dismal Voice, Serve nequam*; thou wicked and slothful Servant, and shall find and feel a Retribution accordingly: 'Twill surely then be said concerning him, *Cast the unprostable Servant into outer Darkness, there shall be Weeping and Gnashing of Teeth.

Olet's not put that evil Day far from us; but let that Voice be alwaies ringing in our Ears, which was ever founding in [g] St. Jerom's; Arife ye Dead, and come to Judgment. Our Time must be strictly reckon'd for, and therefore we should thristily husband, if possible, every Minute of it.

The

deer

deen Eter

to I

whe

neve

wit

Lif

live

roge

fha

the

goet

ba

are ret

710

Of ne

A

[f] Crescunt dona? crescunt rationes donorum?

Mat. 25.19, 25.30.

[g] Leories deem silum considero, toto corpore contremisco; fire enim comedo, sire bisho, sire aliqued facio, semper videsur mini tuba illa terre si us sonare in aurism men; Surgite mortus, venste ad juiscium. Hieron.

The fixth and last Additional Reason.

Sixthly and lastly; We should be sure to redeem the Time, Because this Time is all we can redeem; and upon this short Moment of Time depends long Eternity.

We shall never have any more Time or Space to redeem, either in thic, or in another World.

1. As we cannot live this same Life over again, so when once we die and leave this World, we shall never return to this Earth again, to converse in Flesh with Men any more; nor be suffered to live another Life here in this World, to mend and correct what we did amiss heretofore. * If a Man die, shall he live again? says Job: Some understand this Interrogation as a flat denial, an absolute Negation: He shall live a natural Life on Earth no more. † As the Cloud is consumed, and vanisheth away: So be that goeth down to the Grave, shall come up no more. He shall return no more to his House, neither shall his Place know him any more. | When a few Years are come, then I shall go the Way whence I shall not return.

2. And as we shall have no new Time in this, So, no Space will be given, or granted us for Repertance, and Purgation of our Souls; nor will any Offer of Mercy be made us in the other World: No new Covenant will ever there be tendred to us; no Ambassadours of Peace be sent to be seech us, to M 3 ccor-

Rec-

avier.

e and

give

Sin

uself,

I the

e his

Ta-

e ne-

and

ly:

m,

neß,

let

ich

ad,

ily

he

^{*} Job 14. 14. † Job 7. 9, 10,

pray us there in Christ's stead to be reconciled to God. God will then be irreconcilable, Sin unpardonable and unremovable, Heaven unattainable, and lost Souls uncurable and irrecoverable. If we do not do our best here, we shall have no other Game to play, nor Part to ace in any other Region or Mantion. We shall not be [b] Probationers in the other. World: We shall not be fuffered to begin there upon a new Score. [1] Our Souls at Death will enter into a fixed, unchangeable State, and continue for ever fuch as they went out of this World. The very same Frame and Temper, Qualities and Affections, as we carry with us out of this Life, we shall keep and retain in the next. Such good Dispositions as were begun here, will indeed be intended and perfected in Heaven: And fuch ill Dispositions as took place and got Root here, will be strongly setled and fully confirm'd in the damn'd hereafter : But the [k] main State of any, either good or bad, will never be varied or altered in the other World. As the Tree falls, so it lies: As [b] Quad anima separata statum; nen iterum sit Viator, meque in probationis statu posita, at fæteitatem achue acque rendam; sed in statu ponitur innals: (resurrectionus mutationibus expectatis.) Baxter. Methodus Theologiæ Christianæ, part.

4. (2). 4.

[1] In quo quemque inveneris sum novissums dies, in boc en memprehendet munds novissums dies. Quonium qualis in die isto quisque morisser, tales in die isto quiscabitur. August. Epitt. 80.

Qualu exieris de bac vita, talis redderis illi vita. August. in. Pfal. 26.

[6] See Dr. Tillotfon, 1. vol pag. 29. Dr. More's Myffery of Godline's, pag. 441. Dr. Fowler's Defign of Christianity, pag. 112.

Time

nue

and

the !

Stati

ces a ges :

as th

is no

festi

Life

vati

ling

der

Cro

for nit

out

to the ing

WE

OU

Li

na

T

no

M

Lime

G

Time leaves us, fo Eternity will find and conti-

God will never trie us more with Opportunities and Helps of Conversion and Reformation, with the Means of Grace and Life, in another Place and State: And therefore let's now improve Providences and Ordinances, Aids and Affiftances, as those that shall never hereafter meet with fuch Advantages; and do all the Duties and Offices of Religion, as those that are going to that World where there is no room for fuch Performances, no place for Confession, Praier, Repentance and Amendment of Life, in order to the Pardon of our Sins, and Salvation of our Souls: no occasion of running, wrestling, striving, watching, fighting any more, in order to obtaining of a Prize, and receiving of a Crown: All that is now left undone, must be undone for ever.

This is the on'y Space allotted us, and Opportunity afforded us, wherein to build and prepare our Ark, to get Oil sufficient into our Vestels, and to provide a competent Measure or Portion of Manna: We can only gather the frieitual Manna in the fix Daies of this temporal Life; there is no finding, no getting of it on the Sabbath of Eternity. As we must do all our worldly Business before the weekly Sabbath comes; So we must quite finish our spiritual Business in the working Daies of the Life present; for there is no working on the eternal Sabbath, when once this earthly Life is ended: Then we must labour and work preparatory Work no longer, but receive from our great Loid and Malter the Reward or Punishment of our former Works,

M 4

The

God.

loft

not

e to

lan-

ther.

en-

Inue The

fle-

hall

liti-

and

as

led But

or

0-

As

me

01', li-

118-

rt.

n.

in.

y

The Life to come, it is no Seed Time, but only a Time of Harvest; We must reap in the suture State the Fruit of our own present Doings, whether good or bad. As we do use the Time of this Life, so shall we be used, treated, and dealt with in the other Life. We shall certainly sare happily or miserably to all Eternity, according to our Carriage and Behaviour here. According to our Choice and Election, Affection and Action in this World, will be our everlasting Lot in the World to come. So that the right Improving or Misimproving, the well or ill spending and husbanding of our Time, is of infinite Consequence and Concernment to us.

Let us therefore in this Time of Life get all Things ready that are necessary to a joyful Entrance into eternal Life. Let our Work and Business, in Preparation for an endless Happiness, be dispatch'd and done before we go hence, and be no more feen. * What soever our Hand findeth to do, let us do it with our Might; for there is no Work, nor Device, nor Knowledg, nor Wisdome in the Grave whither we are going. There is no Hope or Expectation of working out our Salvation in an after State and Condition. If this Work be not effected before this mortal Life is ended, it can never be done in the Grave, or Hell, or in any Place of the separated Soul's abode. What is to be done of this Nature, do now or never: Act now with the greatest Care and Diligence, Life and Vigour.

As Zeuxis, a famous Painter, once said, Pingo Aternitati; I limn for Eternity: So, let us do every

vey Th

Ty exac

upon F our Ha

let us

ful to but co

memb

tance.

an ba

it is in

the I

Life

to b

whil

^{*} Ecclef. 9 . 10

ver Thing now for Eternity; and be fure to be very exact in our Actions, because they must stand upon Record for ever, and lay the Foundation of our Happiness or Misery to all Eternity. In Time let us make Provision for Eternity. We are careful to provide convenient, hand some Lodgings here: but consider, where shall I dwell to all Eternity? Remember that a serious Life of Faith and Repentance, Grace and Holiness here, is the only Way to an happy, heavenly, eternal Life hereafter: That it is in vain, with * Balaam, to wish we might die the Death of the Righteous, if we refuse to live the Life of the Righteom: As Euchrites foolishly defired to be Crasus vivens, & Socrates mortuus: Crasus while he liv'd, and Socrates when he was dead.

only

uture

whe-

this

with pily

Car-

hoice

orld,

ome.

the

our

ient

tall

Enusiess.

ind to revere a-

CHAP.

^{*} Num. 23. 10.

CHAP. V.

The Use and Application of the Doctrine. Ought we to redeem the Sime ? Then (1.) Let not the Men of this World think strange, that serious and conscients ous Christians do not lose their Time as desperately as they do. Good Men know the Worth of Time, and understand the great Consequences and weighty Concernments of well or ill husbanding of it. (Ufe 2) Let m all examine our selves, and see whether we have redeem'd our Time, or no; bewail and bemoan our loß of Time. (3. Use) A seasonable sharp Reproof of several Persons, who are großly guilty of mis-spending their Time. (1.) A Reproof of those that misspend their Time in Idleneß and Lasineß. Idleneß a Sin against our Creation, against our Redemption, against our own Souls, against our Neighbour; and an Inlet to many other Sins. (2.) Such Persons are justly censurable, who mis-spend their Time in excessive Sleep and Drousiness; which wasts not only much of our Time, but the best of our Time too. Immoderate sleeping nought on any Day, but worst of all upon the Lord's-Day. (3.) Many mif-spend their Time in impertinent Employments. (4.) Many lose much precious Time in vain Thoughts. (5.) In wain Speeches. (6.) In vain Pleasures: in using unlawful, or abusing lawful Recreations: either using them unseasonably, or else immoderately. (7.) In excessive, immoderate, worldly Cares. (8.) Some Persons are to be reproved for mis-spending their Time in Duties. (1.) By performing them unseasonably. (2.) By doing them formally Time.

Time
two W out an Duty unfit

Have no this D mination conformate rated ber rated

Ou

Men

fta ce w Time lost in Duties by unseasonable Performance, two Waies: (1.) When one Duty thrusts and justles out another; and so the Duty is mistimed. (2.) When Duty is performed at such a Time when we are most unsit fore.

Have done with the Reasons of this Duty, and now proceed to the Use and Application of this Doctrine. (1.) By way of Caution. (2.) Examination. (3.) Reproof. And lastly, Exhortation.

The first Use, by way of Caution.

Ought we to redeem the Time? Then let not the Men of this World * think frange, that ferious and conscientious Christians do not run with them into the same Excess of Riot, and lose their Time as desperately as they do. There's good Reason why the sober, considerate Christian does not slightly and carelesty sling away his Time with others; For (as [a] Seneca speaks of an excellent and eminent good Man) he does not meet with any Thing worthy to be accepted in exchange for his Time; and therefore he keeps and reserves it to be employed to useful and prositable Purposes, and is very saving and sparing of it.

The Children and Servants of God do sufficiently know the Worth of Time, and plainly understand the great Consequences and weighty Concernments of well or ill husbanding of it. If they were wanting by an early, fore-handed Care to secure

he me

Ien of

ienti-

tely as

Con-

Les have

ONT

roof

pen-

mis-

eBa

ion,

and ons

172 nly

m-

of

nd

4-

In

1.

^{* 1} Pet. 4. 4.

^[4] Neque enim quicquam reperit dignum, quod eum tempore suo permutaret, custos ejus parcissimus. Sen. de brev. vit. cap. 7.

cure and improve any part of the Time that is past; Their former prodigal lavishing out their Time is the prefent Burthen of their Spirits, and Sadness of their Souls: And they are refolv'd, by a timely Diligence, in a spiritual Manner to redeem the Time for the future. They often feriously think with themselves, that to lose the Remainder of their Time, is to lose eternal Happiness, and to incur eternal, intolerable Mifery : Rather follow and imitate them, than judg and censure them. If you won't forbear reproaching and reviling them, know that the Time is coming, when you shall give an Account, * not only of your Excess of Riot, but even of your hard Speeches too. If any in the Family, if any in the Neighbourhood be more strict, exact and careful to redeem the Time than your felves, take heed you do not speak ill of them for it: Do not wonder that they do not do as you do: But as you love your Souls, and as you would give an Account of your Time with Joy and not with Grief; labour, with the holiest and precisest in the Places where you live, to malk circumspettly, nor as Fools, but as Wife; redeeming the Time, because the Daies are evil.

The second Use, by way of Examination.

Is it the Duty of a Christian to redeem the Time? Then let us examine our selves a while, and see whether we have discharged our Duty herein. Let us all look back on our former Lives, and bewail and bemoan our Loss of Time. [b] How vainly have we

* 1 Pet. 4. 3, 4, 5.

wewish

waies n

that of

Part of

is not L

the W liv'd lo

wethe

becauf

this V

becau

cause

cause

and it is not

conce

but,

conti

he, t

ces o

by 1

ral

and 0m cap

812

It

[[]b] Vanitas est longam vitam optare, & de bona vita parimo curare. A Kempis, l. i. c. 1 n. 4.

we wish'd oftentimes for a long Life? and yet alwaies neglected a good Life. May we not apply that of [c] Seneca to our felves? It is but a [mail Part of Life, that we live: The Space we wear out, is not Life, but Time. We have been a long Time in the World, but can we affirm and prove we have liv'd long? Can we be faid to have fail'd much (to whethe Similitude of that most practical Moralist) because we have been toffed very much in the Sea of this World? Can we be faid to have truly liv'd, because some Cubits are added to our Stature, because some Hair is grown upon our Chin, or because we have married Wives, and gotten Children, and it may be raised good Estates in the World? Is not that of the same excellent Philosopher too true concerning too many of us? [d] Not Childhood, but, which is more grievous, Childishness remains and continues still with us: And truly this is yet worfe, fays he, that we have the Authority of old Men, and the Vices of very Boies.

If as Alexander counted his Life by Victories, not by Daies, or Years; So we should reckon our several Lives by our spiritual Victories and good Works, and our answering the Ends, the true Ends and pro-

per

Doce non este l'ofitum bonum vita in spatio ejus, sed in usu : possesser , smò sapissime fieri, ut que din vixit, parim vixerit. Id. ep. 49.

is past;

ime is

ness of

timely

Time

With

their

incur

d imi-

won't

that

Ac-

even

y, if

and

ake

not

Vou

Ac-

ef;

la-

25

be

[[]c] Exigua pars est vita, quam nos vivimu. (ex Ennio) Omne spatium, non vita, sed tempus est. Sen. de brevitate vita, cap. 2.

Non eff quod quemquam, propter canos aut rugas, putes diu vixisse: non enim ille diu vixis, set diu suis. ... non sue mulium navigavis, sed multum jastatuu eff. Id. de brev. vit. c. 8.

[[]d] Adhuc non pueritia in nobu, sed quod est gravous, puerilitas remanet: Thoc qui tem peius est, quò l'aushoritasem babemus senum, vitia pierorum. Id. cp. 4.

per Purposes of Life (which is the justest Account, and the rightest Reckoning of our Living) Should not the most of us find that we have liv'd but a few Daies, but a few Hours? yea, that many have hardly liv'd at all, have scarcely as yet begun to live? that little or nothing has been done that is truly worthy of a Man or Christian?

Have not we been wretched Scatter-Hours, and desperate Prodigals of our precious Time? We have some of us lived a great while in the World: but the question is, Whether yet we have learn'd to know God and Christ, and to know our Selves? to be just and honest, to be modest and chast, to be fober and temperate; to deny a strong, unruly Appetite; to refuse a superfluous Morsel of Meat, a forbidden intemperate Cup of Drink? Have we learn'd in the many Years of our Lives to master and moderate one Passion? to subdue and mortify [e] one Lust, to break off one evil Cuttom, to root out one vicious Habit, to answer one Objection, to relist one Assault, to defeat one Art of the Devil? Who of us have been careful all this while to run our Race, to trim our Lamps, and to dress up our Souls for a blelled Etetnity?

Did not we spend our Youth in Vanity? Which of us was so forward in good, as to shun and slie youthful Lusts? To how sew of us can it be said (as * St. Paul said to Timothy) that from a Child thou bast known the holy Scriptures? Tell me, how have many of you desperately omitted, and lamentably neglected the Reading of the Scriptures all your Life long, which alone are able to store your Mind with

with

Salva

but li

other

read

give

bette

who

Mean

divir

Relig

and '

Con

man

Sern

Opp

care

Hov

who

felve

Reli

unde

take

Chr

gleEi

tho

who had

and

and

his

niu

114

[[]e] Raro unum visium perfelle vincimum, & ad quotidianum projectnen non accendimur. A Kempis, l. 1. C. 11. 11. 2,

* 1 Tim. 3. 15.

with divine Knowledg, and to make you wife unto Salvation? What Numbers are there who know but little what is contained in the Scripture, any otherwise than as they hear a Chapter now and then read in the Church? and God knows too too many give but little heed to it, and fo are but little the better for it then neither. How few among us, who have liv'd long under the Enjoyment of the Means of Grace, are yet fo well acquainted with divine Things, and so well versed and exercised in Religion, as to be able to put up a pertinent Praier, and to commend their own, or another's Cafe and Condition to God, as Occasion does require? How many Lord's-Daies have we profan'd? How many Sermons have we wilfully milied? How many good Opportunities have we negligently lost? How careless have we been of our own spiritual Good? How regardless of the eternal Welfare of those who belong to us? How ignorant are many of our selves of the Things of God, and of the Duties of Religion? How far not only from doing, but from understanding our spiritual Business? who, had we taken Pains, might now have been very knowing Christians. How ignorant, through our groß Negleet of them, are our Children and Servants, and those about us, in the very Rudiments of Religion? who might have had a good Understanding therein, had we done our Duty in first informing our felves. and then instructing them. [f] How ridiculous and uncomely is it to fee an Old Man ignorant of his Letters, or to feek in his Primer? But how much more absurd is it to find so many Old Men, who count,

a few

have truly

and

We

orld:

ves ?

t, to

inru-

ink?

s to

and om,

the

obile

ress

nich

flie

(as hou

ave bly

our

ind

4198

[[]f] Quemadmodum omnibus annis studere honestum est: itanon omnibus institus. Turpis & ridiculares est, elementatius senex. Juvens parandam, sens utendum est. Sen. ep. 36.

who * for the Time ought to have been Teachers, yet to have need that one teach them again which be the first Principles of the Oracles of God? Which of us have ever gone about doing and receiving good in the Places where we have a long Time liv'd? Who are we the better for? Who is firitually the better for us? How very little Good have we done? nav. how much Hurt have we done in the World? What Mischief have many Parents and Masters done in their Families by gross Neglect of Family Duties, fuch as Reading, Praying, Catechizing; and by their Loofnes and Licentiousness before those that belong unto their Charge, whose ungovern'd Youth had more need to be curbed and restrain'd by their fober Counsels and seasonable Reproofs, than desperately misted and hurried head-long by their ill Examples into Sin and Wickedness. Oh what a sad Consideration is it, for any of us all to think with our felves, how that for ought we know there may be some this Day in Hell, who were occasionally brought thither by our unholy Walking and ungodly Living! It may be some of our Friends and Companions, some of our Neighbours and Relations, some of our very Children and Servants are at prefent in Hell, bitterly exclaiming against us, and curfing the Daies in which they liv'd with us, and were acquainted with us.

Instead of growing better and better, are not some of us [g] worse now than we were many Years since? more profane, or worldly; more sensual, more hardened from the Fear of the Lord, more more withwithou lefs, I

lives 1

we we growi

Happ

nelius

Religi

my So to fea

defpa

mani

fome

Mida

almo I r

[i]

he,

the n

their

a net

muc and

muc

Ab

frui

^{*} Heb. 5. 12.

[[]g] Neme, inquit Epicurus, aliter, quam quomodo natus est, exit è vita. Falsum est, pejores morimur, quan noscimur. Icn. epit. 22.

without God and Christ in the World, more useless, more unprofitable than ever? more unfit to live, more unprepared to die now, than we found we were many Years ago.? Have not some of us fo ill husbanded our Time, that the older we have grown, the less Hope we have had of Heaven and Happiness? As Pius Quintus is reported by [h] Cornelius à Lapide to have said, When I was first of a Religious Order, I hoped well of the Salvation of my Soul: But when I was made Cardinal, I began to fear it: But fince I was created Pope, I almost despair of it. How many may be found in like manner, who in their Touth have had it may be fome reason to hope well of themselves; but in their Middle Age more cause to fear, and in their Old Age almost ground enough to despair.

I may here take up the Complaint of the devout [i] A Kempis; What does it avail us to live long, when we are so little better'd by it? Ah long Life, says he, does not alwaies mend our Manners; but does often the more encrease our Crimes. Would we had alked but one Day well in this World! Many reckon Years of their Conversion; but there is too often but little sign of a new Conversation.

Had we not been grofly manting to our felves, how much might we have known of God, and of his Mind and Meaning in his Word and Works? How much might we have done for God, and received N [h] Cum effem Religiofus, ferabam bene de falute anima mea; cardinalis fallus, extimui ; nune Pontifex creatus pinè difero. Com à Lap. in Numb. 11.11.

rs, yet

be the

of us

Who

better

nay,

What

ne in d by.

Outh

their

der ill

at a hink

nere

rally

od-

om-

ns,

re-

ur-

ere

me

ars al,

h-

A,

n.

^[1] Quid prodest din vivere-quando tam parùm emenda mur?
Ab longa vita non semper emendit, sed sape culpam magu auget. Utinam per unam diem bene essemui conversati in hoc mundo! multi annos computant conversionis, sed sape p. rvui est fruttus emendationis. A kempis, l. 1. c. 23. n. 2.

from God by this Time? What a Stock of Grace might we have gotten before now? What a Treafure of Experience might we have heaped up? What a good Foundation might we have laid of a found, folid and well-fetled Peace and Comfort, to stand us in stead in a Time of Need? What ground might we have gotten against our Corruptions? What Growth in Grace? What Strength in the inner Man? What Skill to discern and avoid the Wiles and Snares of the Devil ? What Love to, and Delight in the Law of God? What Readiness to evesy good Word and Work? What Ereedom and Enlargedness might we have attained to in God's Service? How truly might it have been our very Meat and Drink to do the Will of God; our constant Course, daily Use, and chosen cheerful Exercife, to run the Waies of God's Commandments? How forward might we have been in the Way to the spiritual Canaan, who have, it may be, been greatly guilty of many Retrogradations? How might we have been of another Spirit than we are of at prefent? How publick-spirited might we have grown? How zealous for the Glory of God, and the good of Souls? How active in the Caufe of God and Religion? How carelessof the Pleasures that are but for a Season? How spiritual and heavenly-minded? How ready to die? How ripe for Heaven?

O let this Consideration be laid to Heart by us, and serve deeply to humble us, that we have had much Time, but have redeemed little or none: that we have liv'd long to little, to bad Purpose: that we have tristed and squandred away those Seasons of Grace that can never be enjoyed again, and lost those Opportunities that can never return back again. Let us put our selves to the Trial, and bring our our fel dischaor no.

Is of Then Reprocemif-fr highly larly or no Negli not for their God fand nifte

Miles of a l bind rily a look med Ler man ter i

pag.

our felves under Examination, whether we have discharged our Dury in Redeeming the Time, yea, or no.

The third Use, by way of Reproof.

Is every Christian bound to redeem the Time? Then here is a Word of seasonable, serious, sharp Reproof to several Persons, who are grossy guilty of mis-spending their Time, and divers Waies do soo-listly cut this precious Commodity to waste: Particularly to these following.

The first Sort of Persons reproved.

To fuch as mis-spend their Time in Idleness; who lose their Time minit agendo, in doing just nothing, or nothing at all worthy the naming: Who live in Neglect of all honest and useful Employment, or do not sealmously exercise themselves in the Duties of their Place and [a] Calling. How sharply may God reprove, and say to many among us, * Why stand ye here all the Day idle? What Cause have Ministers to complain of their People with the Apolice?

Grace

Trea-

d up?

ort, to round tions?

e inner

Wiles

d De

o even and

God's very

con-Exer-

ents?

y to

been

How

re of

have

and

fe of ures

heafor

us, had

hat

hat

ons

oft

2-

ng

ur

^[4] There dwelled in Belfed, a fmull Village fome three Miles from Ipfrich, a Tanner, who being very busie in tawing of a Hide, Mr. Carter came by accidentally; and going softly behind him, being familiarly acquainted with the good Man, merily gave him a little Clap on the Back; The man started, and looking behind him suddenly, blushed, and said; Sir, I am ashamed that you should find me thus. To whom Mr. Carter teplied, Let christ when he comes find me so doing. What (said the man) doing thus 2 Yes (said M. arter to him) saidfully performing the Duties of my Calling. The Life of Mr. John arter inspected among Mr. Clark's Lives of ten Eminent Divines, Pag. 13.

file? and say, † There are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all. To how many may we use the VVords of the VVise Man? | Go to the Ant thou Sluggard.

1. Idleness is a Sin against a Man's very Creation, God did not so curioully work, and accurately frame us, to fit still and fold our Hands, and give our selves to our ease, and to [b] dream when we are awake. Our Maker intended and fitted us for To what End did God furnish us with fo many useful instruments as the several Members of our Bodies, and endow us with those nimble and active Faculties of our Souls, but that we might up and be doing, and vigorously profecute and purfue fome worthy and good End in the diligent Use of fit and proper Means? Adam even in Paradise was not allowed to be idle; but, before he feil, was appointed and ordered to * dref the Garden, and to keep the Ground: in which Employment he should have [c] taken Delight, and gain'd Experience.

And afterward when he had finn'd; not light and case, but hard and painful, tedious and wearifome Labour was enjoined him, as a perpetual Penance for his Transgression and Offence; and imposed as a [d] Bride to restrain the Flesh, which by reason of Sin is now become wanton and rebellious

lious

all th

Chalt

born fays

bour

God

temp

and

and trou

Brow

whic

the

V

men

ful a

the vine

(

Cur

Bleff

S D

o ta

the !

nece our no g

play

unp

bis

the

him

Ser

† 2 Th ff 3. 11. | Prov. 6. 6.

[[]b] Desidsa est somnium vigslantis.

[[]e] Operatue fuisset agricultura, non laberiofa, sed deliciosa, ad voluptacem & experientiam. Synopl. Crit.

Creation, curately ad give then we us for with fo bers of ble and k among

w many

the period purliligent ment the full and the Cun nploy-

light weaal Pead imwhich rebellious

gain'd

ciosa,

lious against the Spirit: (*) In forrow shalt thou eat all the Daies of thy Life: In the Sweat of thy Face, shalt thou eat thy Bread. * Man, says Eliphaz, is born unto Labour, troublesome Labour. † Man, says David, goeth forth to his Work, and to his Labour until the Evening: This is the Course which God has set him. But by their Idleness Men attempt to overthrow the Purpose and Design of God, and to frustrate the End whereto Man was created; and plainly thwart and contradict, cross and controll God's Gurse, while only in the Sweat of others. Brows they eat their Bread; and cast off the Means which God has ordain'd for repressing and taming the perulant and nuruly Flesh.

Were these so wise as to accept of the Punishment threatned and inslicted, and to become painful and laborious in their Places and Employments; the Curse of God would, by a Muracle of the divine Mercy, be turn'd into a [e] Blessing: For,

ordi-

(*) Gen. 3: 17, 19. . Job 5, 7. + Pfal. 104. 23. The Libour and Sweat of out Brows is fo far from being a Curfe, that without it our very bread would not be fo great a Bleffing. -- If it were not for Labour, men neither could eat fomuch, nor relish to pleasantly, nor sleep to foundly, nor he bealthful, nor fo uleful, fo ftrong por fo pa int fon bie, or funtempted : And as God has made us beholding to labour for the purchase of many good Things, so the Thing it self ows to Labour many Degrees of its Worth and Value. --- I abour is neceffary, not only because we need it, for making Provision of our Life, but even to eafe the Labour of our Reit; there being no greater Tediousness of Spirit in the World than want of Employment, and an unactive Life: And the lafy man is not only unprofitable, but also accursed, and he groans under the Load of his Time, which yet paffes over the active man light, --- while the Disemployed is a Disease, and like a long sleeplets Night 19 himselt, and a load unto his Countrey. Bp. Taylor's Serm .. 2. Ve Ser. 25. p. 322. Ut defidiam Dem probibet & exerratur.; fic ordinarily no Bread taltes fo freet, as that which is earn'd with hard Labour and Sweat.

2. Again; Idleness is a Sin against our very Redemption. * Passthe Time of your Sojourning here in Fear: for asmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible Things, as Silver and Gold, from your main Conversation, but with the precious Blood of Christ, &c. This should engage you to walk reverently, strictly and watchfully all your Time. + Te are bought with a Price : God hath pai'd dear, given his Son out of his Bosom, for the Purchase of you: Therefore glorify God in your Body, and in your Spirit, which are God's. And let's remember Christ | gave himself, for m, that he might redeem m from all Iniquity, and purify umo himself a peculiar Pew ple, zealous of good Works: [f] He delivered himfelf up to a shameful Death, on purpose that he might ranfom us out of the Power of Satan, from that Course of vicious living in which Men were before engaged, and cleanse us in an eminent Manner to be an holy pious People, most diligent to advance to the highest pitch of all Vertue. Christ hath redeemed us to this End, that we might redeem Time for his Service. Why then dost thou stand lasing and loitering, when thou art made and born for Work, and redeemed for Work, and call'd to Work?

3. Far-

dies a Body is ap

deftr

and o

Soul

which the

Min

Mea

Salv

beg

as i

dili

Sou

an

ter

N

N

Si Id

Bedientibu & morigeris in bewedictionem convertit, quod homini initio ranguam pana imposium fuit Plal. 128, 2. Labo em manuum tuarum comedes; beatus ei, & bine tibi eris. Andr. Rivet, loc. cicat.

Per. r. 17, 18. + 1 Cor. 6. 20. || Tit. 2. 14.

nich is nere in deemed in your ood of reve.

chase what in mber em m himit he from e be-adhrift

and and

ar-

em dr.

3. Farther; Idleness is a Sin against our very Bodies and Souls. It is in a Manner the Murther of the Body: for, as the Air and Water, fo Man's Body is apt to corrupt and putrify without Motion. Eafe destroys the Health of the Body; breeds the Gour and other Diseases. And it hurts and tames the Soul too; and produceth that Indisposition in it, which one fitly calls Podagram ammi, the Gout of the Soul: and another terms it the Sciency of the Mind. Tis highly prejudicial both to our temporal and firitual Estate. The Man that neglects the Means of a temporal Provision, and of his eternal Salvation, through Lafinefs and Idlenefs, flarves and kills both his Body and Soul, and every way beggareth and impoverisheth himself, in respect to the inward spiritual true Riches of Grace, as wellas in reference to outward Enjoyments and worldly good Things. Without Labour, Industry and diligent Husbandry, we can neither increase the natural, nor improve the divine Riches of our There is nothing to be gotten by Idleness but Mifery here, and Hell hereafter. The * idle and flothful Servant is condemned to be cast imo one ter Darkness.

4. Farther yet; Idlents is a Sin against our Neighbour. How do they offend against their Neighbours who are wholly unfruitful in their Places, and live as unprofitably in their Health, as if by Sickness they were utterly disabled for any Service? Idle Persons are superstuous Creatures, of no Advantage or Benefit to the Body Politick where they N 4 live;

^{*} Matt. 25. 30.

live; and (as Cicero fays of the Swine) [9] have their Souls only instead of Salt, to keep their Bodies sweet. They are an unnecessary, intolerable Burthen to any Kingdom or Common-wealth. It was a pertinent and prudent Question put by Pharach to Joseph's Brethren, * What is your Occupation? An Interrogation (fays the learned [b] Andrew Rivet) worthy of a Prince, who ought not railly to receive any Strangers into his Dominion, without first examining whether they be fit for any good Thing, and know how by fome honest Labour to make Provision for themselves and theirs; that they may neither be burthensome to others, nor living idly take. Occasion of doing ill. Hence wife Politicians (as he well urges there) have exprefly prohibited Idleness by severe Laws. The Judges of Arcopagus took particular notice of the feveral Citizens at Athens, and strictly enquired in what way of Buliness every one liv'd, and whether any addicted himself to base and sluggish Idleness. The idle Person was made liable to an [i] Action at Law: and he that was once found guilty of Idlenels, was, according to Draco's old Law, presently branded with Infamy: But Solon afterward fomewhat mitigated that Law, and only pronounced him an infamous Person who was a third Time condemned of Idleness. The Massilienses of old denied fuch Persons Entrance into their City, as

.

were n

to get

of Play

Arts d

commi

mafte t

Law a

notes

Tear e

give a

has n dustr

poula public

hé C

they

not 1

of t

Face

1

Pho

ing one the Fra

the

un

of

An

Gen. 47. 3.

^[6] Exercit, in Gen. p 650 vide Pareum in loc.

^[1] Eamoninabaiur adio destas, &c. Rivet. loc. citat. pag. 650. vid. & p.157.

were not skilled and versed in some Art whereby to get a lively-hood: Nor did they admit or allow of Players, Dancers, Jesters, Juglers; because these Arts do n wrish the Idieness of such Spectators, as commonly They call and draw to themselves who make their Time in Toies. And it was ordained by Law among the Persians (as the sore-cited Ambon notes out of Herodorus) that at the End of every Tear every Subject should go to the Magistrate to give an Account of their Employment.

An idle Body is plainly guilty of Injustice and [k] These, for he takes and uses the Creatures he has no right to, and lives upon others Labour and Industry. The Apolite commands, * that Is any would not work, neither should he eat; that is, at the publick Charge, or at the Cost of any other. And he commands and exhorts such as are idle, that they work, and eat their own Bread: As is it were not their own Bread, if not gotten with the Work of their own Hands, and the Sweat of their own Faces.

aces.

have

Bo-

rable

It Pha-

пра-

An-

not ion,

any

Lairs;

ers,

nce

Ex-

the

lin

her

ess.

ion lent-

rd nme

e-

as

re

So far as we are idle we are [1] useles and grie-

* 2 Tieff 3. 10, 12.

[[]t] Has मेर बेरड़ि के बेरड़ि के बेरे हैं कि सम्माध्यम के के प्रसर्कें में

^[1] Idlene s. is the Burial of a living Man, an idle Person being so uselest to any Purp ses of God and Man, that he is like one that is dead, unconcern'd in the Changes and Necessiaes of the World: and he only lives to spend this Time, and eat the Fruits of the Earth, like a Vermin or a Wolf; when their Time comes they die and perish, and in the mean Time do no good; they neither plow nor carry Burthens: all that they do, either is unprostable, or mischievous. Bp. Taylor's Rule and Exercise of hol. Liv c. 1. S. I. Ouum sine listeris more est, & bominus vivi sepultura. Sen. ep. 81.

wom to others, who yet were born for the Good and

If we would fpend our Spare-time in visiting the Sick, in reading to them, and conferring with them; in reproving open, bold Sinners; in comforting afflicted, distressed Confeiences; in succouring and afflitting tempted Persons; in catechizing, and instructing, and praying with and for our several Families; how many would rise up and call us blessed, and prasse God for us, and pray for us?

5. Once more; Idleneß is an [m] Inlet to many other Sins. The Son of * Syrach informs us that Idleneß teacheth much Evil. It is well observed by [n] Parens, that if our first Parents had been employed in dressing the Garden according to God's Command, instead of talking idly with the Serpent, they had not then been seduced unhappily into Sin. How much more, says he, is Idleneß now to be shanned and avoided by Man! since, out of Paradise, he is every way expessed to the Snares of the Devil, and is by nothing deceived more easily and dangerously than by suggish Idleneß.

† When David was [o] idly walking upon the Roof of his House, Lust quickly kindled at first Sight of [m] Nihit agendo mais agere disces, Gazanis oraculum, quo nihit verim. Colum, de reruit.

2 plea

open a

Nay .

of hin

the is

then!

the t

Bird

m(1,

good

mays

thing

quic

once

2-W

gua

is n

pta

An

bon

die

ou

th

Tie

0

1

Fugiendum est otium: nam qui nibil agunt male agere difeune: cum animus se irrequietus, & ubi ad bonesta non ducitur in mala fertur. Ciell Eth. Aristotel, p. 27.

^{*} Ecclus, 33, 27.
[n] Pareus, Comment, in Gen. 2, 15.

^{† 2} S.m. 11. 2.
[o] Quaritur, Egysthus quare sit fattus adulter ?
In prompts causa est, desidiosus erat.

ng the with comin fucitechiind for ife up if up

ood and many that 'd by sploymand, a number of the more.

a by

Roof t of a

di.

2 pleafing beautiful Object. An idle Person lies open and exposed to all the Temperations of Satan : Nay he is not only tempted by him, but a Tempter othim. What we and ipoken in another Cafe; the same may Saran fay of salle Perfons, I will go to them that are at rest. When the Bird fits still, then the Fowler takes his aim, and shoots; but the flying Bird is feldom burt. Indulge not thy felf in Idlems, left Saran take Advantage against thee. 'Tis good Advice that [p] St. Jerom gives thee; Still be doing some warrantable Work, that the Devil may always find thee well employed. If thou canst find nothing to do thy felf, fure enough the Devil will quickly find thee fomewhat to do: If thou beeft once idle, he'll presently employ thee, and set thee a-work. The idle Person has no Defence and Safeguard against Satan: But he that is lawfully bufied is not at leifure to attend and liften to Satan's Temprations. If Men be under Eppalousion, fuch as pork not at all, they quickly become * Bufy-bodies: And if Women be idle, they will be t Wanderers about from House to House, Tatlers also and Busy-Bodies , feaking Things which they ought not ; medling out of their Calling, and enquiring into Things that concern them not: Which Courses and Carriages are the [9] Canker and Rust of Idleness, as Idleness is the Rust of Time. Well then, take this Short

| Ezek. 38. 11.

-- Res age, tutan era Ovid. de remed. amoris.

2 T eff 3.11. † 1 Tim. 5.13.

[[]p] Facito aliquid operu, ut te semper Diabolus inveniat oc-

^[9] Bp. Taylor's Rule and Exerc. of Hol. Liv. chap. 1. $. 1. Rule 14.

short Lesson from [r] a devout Person; Be never altogether ide, but still either reading, or writing, or praying, or meditating, or labouring and endeavouring to do somewhat that may be useful and prostable, conducive and ordinable to common Good and Beness. Take Example from the heathen [s] Moralist; I pass not away one Day in Idleness, says he. When so much Work is necessary to be done in so little a Time, or you are for ever certainly undone, will you stand as Men that cannot find their Hands?

You that are rich have of all People the least Canfe to be idle: [t] God gives you more than others, and is there any Reason then that you should do less for God than others, and make your whole Lives only a long Vacation? Would you think your sellyes well fitted, if those very Servants should pressure to do you the least Wark, to whom you give the largest Wages ?

Hearken diligently to that fober Counsel and feasionable Reproof which the holy [u] Mr. Hetbers gives you;

Ely Idleness, which yet thou canst not sty By dressing, mistressing, and Complement.
If those take up thy Day, the Sun will cry Ayainst thee for his Light was only lent.

O England full of Sin, but most of Sloth!

Spit out thy Phlegm, and fill thy Breast with Glory:

[w] Thy

[r] A Kempis, 1.1. c. 19. n.4.

[1] See Mr. Baxter's Preface to Mr. Whately's Redemption of Time.

[4] Church-porch, p. 3, 4.

awa

the

plo

Ma

[x

Pla

not

an

th

D

W

· Ca

E

^[5] Nullue miss per orium dies exit, &c. Scn. ep. Quid in otio facio? ulcue meum curo. 1d. ep. 68.

[w] Thy Gentry bleats, as if thy native Cloth Transfus'd a'Sheepishness into thy Story: Not that they all are so; but that the most Are gone to Grass, and in the Pasture lost.

Don't they deserve to be reproved who squander away their Time in a soft and delicate Lasine's? And they too, who though they seem to be full of Employment, yet do nothing at all of the Work of a Man or Christian; but spend their Time in an [x] idle Employment, or in a serious Idleness, a painful Playing, a laborious Loitering, and a [x] busie doing nothing.

But furely of all Persons they deserve a severe and cutting Reproof who idle away their Time on the Lord's-Day: Who usually spend that holy Day as if the rest of the Ox and Ass were the only worthy and acceptable Observation of it: When

26

[m] I find that in our old Saxon Language, a Gentleman was called an Idle-man; perhaps because those who are born to fair Bitates are free from those Toils and hard Labours which others are forced to undergo. I wish the Name were not too proper to over-many in these Daies, wherein it is commonly seen that those of the better rank who are born to a fair Inheritance so carry themselves as if they thought themselves priviledged to do nothing, and made for mere Disport and Pleature. Bp. Hall's Remaining Works, p. 227. See Bp. Taylor's Rule and Exerc. of Hol. Liv. 6. 1 § 1. the 11th, and 12th Rules for imploying our Time:

Such Gallants as live in no fetled Course of Life, — nor do any Thing for the good of humane Society; let them know, there is not the poorest contemptible Creature, that cryeth Oysters and Kitchin-sluff in the Streets, but deserves his Bread better than they; and his Course of Life is of better Esteem with God and every sober wise man, than theurs. Bp. Sanderson's Serm.

1. V.P. 196.

[x] Querundam non otiofa vita est dicends, sed destitosa occupatio. Sen. de brev. vit. c. 11 Non habent ists otium, sed inars negotium. 1b. c. 12. Oserose nibil agunt. 1b. c. 13.

never

ing, or

ouring

Take:

s not much

e, or

ind as leaft

n o-

ould

phole

our

pre-

give

ere:

200 as the Lord's-Day (as a [y] great and excellent Auchor fays well) was never ordained to give is a Pretence for Idlenefs, but only to change our Employment from worldly to heavenly, to take us off from our worldly Business, and to give us Time to attend the Service of God and one Need of our Souls. A Reit from all worldly Buliness is commanded, that we may be at Leifure for the publick Worthip and Service of God, and for the Daties of private Instructing and Praying with our families, and of fecret Closet-Prayer, Reading, Medicating, and the like. mere Celiation from Labour is not all that is required of us on the Lord's-Day; but the Time which Men fave from the Works of their Cailings they are to lay out on those spiritual Duties.

The fecond Sort of Persons reproved.

Such Persons are justly censurable who spend their Time in excessive Sleep and Drousiness; which fills the Body full of Diseases and ill Humours, and strangely dulls the Faculties of the Soul, and crosses the End of Man's Creation, which was to serve God in an active Obedience; and disposes a Person to Lust and [a] Wantonness; and wickedly wastes the most precious Talent of Time; and not only consumes much of our Time, but devoures the best of our Time too, [b] eats up the Flower of the Day, the very sirst Fruits of our Hours, even the Morning-

[3] The whole Duty of Man, partit, 2. § 17.
[4] 'An'ana, Wantonness is joined with xorm, which we translate chambering, but signifies properly lying long in Bed.
Rom. 13.13. Bp. Andrew's Ex of of the 7th Com. chap. 4.

[6] See Whately's Serm. of Redempt. of Time.

ning-

ficeft

mem

vine .

In

but 1

be-r

Lord

eno

This

in p blic

the

W

re

W

mis

ming-feason, that very Time which of all other is the street for holy Ducies and religious Exercises. Remember and connider what is suggested by the divine Herbert,

[c] God gave thy Soul brave Wings; put not those Feathers
Into a Bed, to sleep out all ill Weathers.

This immoderate Sleeping is naught on any Day, but worst of an upon the Lord s-day. It mult needs be much out of any Man's Way to fleep in Harvest, and droute away the Market-Day: and fuch is the Lord's-Day in respect of spiritual and Soul-Advantages. How many Persons are there, that have enough to do, and by ill Cuftom make it a difficult Thing to get themselves ready by Church-time, and take no Time on the Lord's-Day-Morning to pray in private, or to pray with their Families; and fo never prepare themselves to meet their God in his publick Ordinances, and beg no Bleffing upon the Word they go to hear; and therefore God fuffers them from Time to Time to go back from the Word without any Bleffing.

Never use to take any more Sleep than is necessary for the strengthening and refreshing of your trail Natures, the relieving and supporting of your tired and wearied Bodies, and the recruiting and repairing of those Spirits that were wasted and weaken'd by Labour, that so you may be the better enabled for continued Action and Employment, and sitted for daily Use and Service; which is the true and proper End for which Sleep was appointed and ordained.

Pay

ellent

HS A

aploy-

n our

mon

e of

fet-

i is heir

tual

eir

the

ge-

nd

an

he

nof

y,

g-

[[]c] Church-porch.

Pay no more than needs must to that craving greedy Publican of Time: never yield to its unreaionable Exactions: The more you yield to it, the more it will grow upon you: the more Hours you give to Sleep, the more you may. It you lieep too much upon the Working-Day, you will be prone to fleep upon the Lord's-Day too, and that in the Time of the very publick Ordinance; to fleep when you should be at it, or to deep even when you are at it, and should be wakeful and attentive under it. How fluggifully and thame utily do many neep and flumber away Church-Time, lie drowing and dreaming in Bed in the Morning, folding their Hands to fleep, or stretching themselves upon their Beds, when they should be lifting up holy Hands, and humbly bowing their Knees, and striving together with their Fellow-Christians in the joint Praiers of the publick Allembly. And if they make not some trivial Excuse to stay at home in the Afternoon, they lit nodding and half a fleep at Church, when they should have their Ears and Hearts open to what is publickly read or faid. Consider and think thus much w th your felves, that if here you fpend the greatest Part of your Life in Sleep, and make the most of your Time nothing but Night; a dark, black and eternal Night, without one Moment or Minute of Ease or Rest is reserved for you in another World.

Athird Sort of Persons reproved.

Many mis-spend their Time in impertinent Employments: A Person may throw away his Time as much much that ver all. ing it treme ing considerations.

Necestal doin Mere Profiticul in o imme

our ling

bil and Errof i dles the Ex pro

much [a] alind agendo, as nihil agendo; in doing that which nothing concerns him, as by doing nothing at all. A Man may lose his Time by basely imploying it in mean Affairs and fordid Business, [b] extremely below the Dignity of his Person, or in acting contrary to his own particular [c] Nature and Genius; or by indifcretely engaging in anothers Calling. For Tradesmen to exercise the sacred Offices of the Ministry, or for Ministers to involve and immerse themselves in worldly Businesses without Necessity, is mere Mif-spence and Loss of Time, because it is going out of their particular Calling, and doing that which nothing belongs to them. Merchant lays out his Time in the VVay of his Profession, and for those Goods which are his particular Merchandise. VVe must not be Busy-bodies in other Mens Matters: St. Peter expresly forbids that. We must abide, and be diligent, and lay out our felves in our own proper and particular Callings, or else we squander away our Time let us be [a] Magna vita pari clabitur male agentibus, max.manibil agentibus, tota aliud agentibus. Sen. cp. 1.

[b] Domitian was bufy in catching Flies. Nero went up and down Greece, and challenged the Fidlers at their Trade. Eropus a Macedonian King made Lantens. Harcatius the King of Parthia was a Mole-catcher. Biantes the 1 ydian filed Needles: and Theophylass the Patriarch of CP. Spent his Tim: in his Stable of Horles, when he should have been in his Study, or the Palpir, or saying his holy Offices. Ep. Taylor's Rule and Exerc. of hol. Liv. c. 1. S. 1. rule 9th.

Cic. l. 1. de Offic.

raving

unrea-

t, the

you

P 100

one to

1 sme

you

re at

r it.

and

eam-

s to

hen

nbly

heir

lick

vial

/ lit hey t is hus the

the

k,

or

n-

as busy as we will, and the more busy we are the more we lavish out our Time.

A fourth Sort of Persons reproved.

How many lose much precious Time in vain and sinful Thoughts? These are they that swallow up most of our solitary Hours. VVhen we are fitting, or walking, or riding alone in the Day-time, or waking in the Night or early in the Morning; then' [a] do our Minds talk idly with themselves; then do Men wilder away their Time in unsetled independent Thoughts; mif-spend their Time in vain unprofitable Musing, proud felf reflecting, felf-admiring and felf-applauding, strange and unreasonable Projecting; in mere imaginary Suppositions of what they would both be and do; in fond felfflattering Presumptions, and foolish Expectations of Things; in fretting and fuming Thoughts at cross Accidents; in curious searching into other Mens Actions and secret Ends, and studying Things that do not at all concern themselves, and would do them no good at all to know; in evil Surmifings and causeless jealous Workings; in angry revengeful Thoughts and * deviling Mischief upon their Beds; in luitful wanton, profane and dissolute Thoughts; in speculative Wickedness, in reprefenting and acting those Sins in their Thoughts which they want Power or Opportunity to put into outward Act, in recalling, revolving and reviewing in their Thoughts past sinful Actions with a tickling Pleasure and Delight.

If

If a

kon hin

and be

Th

and th

ditatio

ny fro

boldly

Thou

enly who

they

with fix t thy I

fide

Wo

di

tr

^[4] See Dr. Tho. Goodwin of the Van. of Thoughts. Pfal. 16. 4.

are the

nd fin-

pmost

g, or r wa-

then'

Inde-

vain f-ad-

ions

felf-

ions

s at

her

ngs uld

ngs

ge-

eir ite e-

its

ne-h

f

If a Man should write down his Thoughts but of me Day, and reade them at Night, he would reckon himself half-distracted, and be greatly amazed at himself: And many a Person would even blush, and be quite asham'd to speakout what he loved to imagine and muse upon.

Thefe idle and evil Thoughts are they that juftle and thut out ferious and favoury Thoughts and Meditations, and hinder the divine Law and Teltimony from being our * Meditation all the Day. Vain Thoughts too commonly t lodg with as: They come into our Minds just as Travellers go into an Inn, who boldly take up their Chamber there, and command' and call for what they would have: Whereas Thoughts should be futtered to come into our Minds only as Men are permitted to go into a Garrison, who are first strictly examined, who they are, whence they come, and what is their Buliness. We should, with David, hate vain Thoughts, call in our vagabond wandring Thoughts and Imaginations, and fix them upon folid and ferious Things. nothing (fays [b] St. Bernard) that may make against thy Salvation: Twas too little to Jay against it; I should have faid, fays he, think of nothing befide it.

A fifth Sort of Persons reproved.

How very many meerly lose much of their Time in Words; in pouring out great Floods of Talk, an Ocean of Words without one Drop of Understanding? Many lose their Words, and lose their Time in vain Speeches, unprofitable Pratling, frothy Discoursing, * foolish Babling, toyish and trisling Talking and twatling, that tends to no real good in the World. This empty Chat does cheat and cozen us of much of our Time, and is a careless throwing away every Day, and almost every Hour of the Day, fomething of that which ought to be expended for Eternity. How many idly spend their Time in questioning and talking about the Change of the Moon, the Alteration or Quality of the Weather: or in curious and busie Enquiries about News, only out of an Itch to know somewhat new, or merely to find matter of Discourse; and not out of a fincere and earnest Desire to understand how it goes with the Church of God, that they may order their Praiers and Praifes fuitably to God's Providences and Appearances in the World towards his People ? How many waste the Winter Evenings in telling of Tales, and old Wives Fables, and little infignificant Stories to their Children and Families? when they should employ those precious Hours in well acquainting them with the Corruption of their Nature, and the absolute Necessity of real Regeneration, of being born again, born from above: in often informing them of their Sin and Mifery, and instructing them in the only Way of Salvation by the meritorious bloody Death and Passion, and the Illuminating sanctifying Spirit, and the healing recovering Grace of Christ.

^{*} Pfal. 119 97, 99. † [er. 4. 14 † Pfal 119. 113. [6] Contra faintem propriam coguer n h. 1; minas dixicentra: Prater dixife debueram. Benn d. contid. ad cuge.

How many lose their Time by venturing weakly to talk of those Things which they are not in habitu to discourse of, which they have not well weighed and studied, and are unable to manage a

per-

pertin

fome l

Accon

which

accep

both lose t

wran

fies,

culat

to th

How med!

noth

they

Abi

men

ties,

we I

Co

our wh:

248

^{*} Prov. 15. 2, 14.

pertinent proper Discourse about? And how do fome lose very much of what they speak and take up Time in talking of, for want of Observation and Accommodation of their Discourses to [a] the several Tempers, Faculties, Abilities, Capacities, Conditions of those with whom they have to do? by which Mens Society might easily be rendred more acceptable to others, and become more profitable both to others and themselves [b]. How many lose their Time and Breath in [c] Disputing and wrangling about endless and fruitless Controverfies, and unprofitable contending about mere Speculations, or fuch Practices as have no influence into the bettering or depraying the Souls of Men? How many lavish out their Time and Discourse in medling pragmatically with other Mens Matters that nothing concern them? How many grofly abuse their Time in speaking too freely of Persons, when they should only speak of Things?

0 3

And

[4] Lukin's Practice of Godlines, p. 58.

[c] Multumillu temporu verborum cavillatio erspitt, & captiefa disputationes, qua acumen irritum exercent. Tantum nebu vatat ? jam vivese, jam moriscimus ? Seneca ep. 45.

Malint difputare quam pivere. Sen.

frothy

good in and co-

areless

Hour !

to be

fpend ut the

ity of ries a-

ewhat

and nderthat

bly to

Vorld

Vinter

ables,

and

Tup-

ty of born r Sin

Way

eath

Spi-

eak-

ha-

vell

e a

er-

By observing mens Tempers we may the more easily infimate what we please into them; by observing their Faculties and Abilities we may both please them and profit our selves; because men love to discourse of things belonging to their own Faculties, or wherein their Abilities chiefly by ; and about those things we may expect the most satisfying Answers from them, if they be such things as may be any Advantage to us to know. If we suit our Discourses to mens Conditions, it will add much Grace and Comliness to our Speech; but if we do not in all things apply our selves to mens Capacities, we shall but weary them, and what we labour to pour into them will run beside. I alem shadow

And here particularly, fuch Persons deserve to be found fault with, who spend their Time in flandering, detracting, whifpering, tale-bearing, speaking [c] Evil of others when they have no lawful Call to do it: in talking uncharitably of others [d] Lives and Deaths, in private caracterizing, judging, censuring, back-biting of others. are as perfect in the Enumeration of others Faults, [e] as if their Memories were the Books that shall be opened at the Day of Judgment. This is in it felf a base Temper where-ever it is ; with the Fly to fasten nowhere but upon a Sore; like a Cupping-Glass to draw nothing but corrupt Blood. This is an ungody Humour for any to fuffer their Tongues to be buily medling with those Sins and Miscarriages, Failings or Faults of other Persons, which never grieved and troubled, touched or came near their own Hearts; and which they never secretly bewail'd, and fadly bemoan'd before God: To be continually judging and censuring those that were never privately and personally reprov'd, lovingly and compassionately admonished, nor once earnestly and heartily praied for by them. This censorious Spirit is a Christles Spirit. Jesus Christ is an Advocate with the Father: he excuses, he pleads for Sinners: he makes the best of every Thing: he covers a Multitude of Sins. Now when we do nothing but rip open, and aggravate others Faults behind their backs, we are far

[d] De alterius visa, de alterius morte cisputatus. Seneca de vita beata c. 19.

far f

bein

lical

and

the !

does

and

ges :

And

deem

terin

ly pr

are a noce

our

Tabo

back

Hur back

that

that fair:

ther

reng

Qua the onc

Ser

[[]c] In primi provident, ne serme visium aliquod innicet inesse moritus. Quod maxime sum soles evenire, cum sennies de atsentibus detrabendi causa, aut per ridiculum, aut serere, aut maledice, contumel oseque dicitur. Cicciol. 1 de Ossic

[[]e] Dr. Alleltry's Sermons p. 35-far from an Imitation of Christ: This is so far from being a Christ-like, that it is too evidently a Diabolical Spirit : The Devil, he is called an Accuser; and we plainly play Satan's Part, and act him to the Life, and spend our Time just as the Devil does, if we make it our Business to be ever prying and finding of Faults, to be alwaies bringing Charges against, and framing Accusations of others. And the employing our Time thus is far from redeeming it. Might not we spend our Time far betterin meekly admonishing of others, and in heartily praying for others, than in rally judging and censuring of others? Let me tell you, while we are alwaies pleading others guilty, we do but make our selves more guilty: and thus to lose our own Innocency, is this to redeem our Time? To render our felves uncapable of Heaven, is this to work out our own Salvation? * Lord, who shall abide in thy Tabernacle? who shall dwell in thy holy Hill? he that back-biteth not with his Tongue, nor doeth Evil[Wrong, Hurt or Injury] to his Neighbour, [in this way of backbiting] nor taketh up [that is, with his Mouth; that uttereth not] a Reproach against his Neighbour: that does not curiously pry into the Businesses, Affairs, Infirmities, fecrets of others, and then bulily divulge and tell them abroad to other Persons; thereby defaming, differencing, differencing, and rendring Men contemptible one to another; and Itirring up Strife, Hatred, Enmity, Division and Where shall we now find Quarrels among Men. the Christian who deserves the Commendation that once[i]St. Jerome gave of Asella, of whom he fays, Sermo filens, & filentium loquens; the was filent when · Pfal 15.1, 3.

rve to me in aring,

10 /400-

others

izing,

Thele

aults,

self a

fasten

as to godly

outily

lings

and

arts;

adly

dging

and

ately

raied

iftleß

ber:

the

e of

and

are far

1 612-

aus aus

^[1] Hieron, ad Marcellam de laudibus Afelle.

she spake, for she spake only of religious and necessary Things, not medling with others Persons, or Fame. How do many misspend their Time and talk in vain and ridiculous Self-gloriation, and in uncomely affected, if not false and ungrounded Commendation of themselves? in complementing and flattering great Sinners to their very Faces? And some very vile and wicked Wretches abuse their Time and Tongues in speaking a Multitude of Lies, in frequent taking God's Name in vain, in common and customary Swearing, in [f] mingling horrid and bitter Imprecations with their sportive Talk, and making the Wounds and Blood of God, and other such sad Words their soolish or peevish Modes of speaking?

Many Mens Mouths run, like an Issue, nothing but Putrefaction: They vent and pour out * putrid, unfavoury, rotten, † filthy Discourse, apt only to minister to a Vice, instead of ministring Grace unto the Hearers: Corrupt it felf, and tending to corrupt good Manners, and to insect the Fancies and defile the Minds of those that hear it. They pass the Time in uttering [g] wanton, loose, lascivious Words; in singing amorous and obscene Songs; whereas he that is merry should sing Psalms.

Many

Mar

[b]fc1

in imp

at goo

fection

the he

of Go or of k

prelle

of a

Hakes

wheth

langh

than

ther

a m

to I

defi

gav

Bp

oms

ry ,

be named. Bishop Taylor's Sermons, 1 Vol. p. 288.

A James 5. 13 Private Christian, are to teach and admonish one another in I falms, and Hymns, and spiritual Songs, Coloss.

3 16 Eisea chen hilaticati inservience, adifications & utus-asti mutua memores effe debemus. Dav. in loc.

[[]f] Dr. Alleitry's Sermons, p. 154.
* Λόγ Θ σαπερς. Eph. 4. 19.
† 'Αισχερλογία. Colod. 3. 8.

[[]g] The Apolite chargeth that Fornication should not be on a named among them, as becometh Saints; (E.b. 5. 3.) not meaning that the Vice should not have its Name and filely Character, but that nothing of it be named, in which it can be tempting or offensive; nothing tending to it, or teaching of it, should be named. Bishop Taylor's Sermons, 1 Vol. p. 188.

Many mif-spend their Hours in * inconvenient, The four rilous, immodest; yea, many mis-spend them in impious and profane Jesting: in openly Scoffing at good Men, and making merry with their Imperfections, and their own Slanders; and in jeering the holy Waies, and playing with the holy Word of God. He that makes a Jest of the Words of Scripture, or of holy Things, (as a [i] learned Pen richly exprelles it) plaies with Thunder, and kiffes the Mouth of a Canon, just as it belches Fire and Death; he stakes Heaven at spurn-point, and trips Croß and Pile whether ever he shall see the Face of God or no; be lunghs at Damnation, while he had rather lose God. than lose his Jest; nay (which is the Horrour of all) be makes a Jest of God himself; and the Spirit of the Father and the Son to become ridiculous. And is not this a monstrous cursed Improvement of precious Time. to use and employ it in profanely deriding, and desperately abusing the Word and Spirit of God that gave it? 'Tis a good Saying of the [k] Reverend Bp. Davenant, Their Madneß is to be detested and abominated, who know not how to be cheerful and merry, without doing Disgrace and Dishonour to Christ, and

* Ephef. 5. 4.

ece [a-

s, or

e and

nd in

Com-

and

And

their

Lies

mon

orrid

and other

beak-

hing

trid,

7 to unto

cor-

de.

the

ous

gs ;

any

be

not

ha-

pt-

14 ih

a.

4-

[[]b] Ipsun genus jocandi non profusum, nec immodessum, sed ingenuum I sactum isse debet. Ut enim pueru non omnem lucentiam ludendi damu, sed eam, qua ab honestis actionibus non stratuma: sic in 1860 joco aliquod probi ingensi lumen elucest. Cicerol. 1. de Offic.

^[1] Bishop Taylor's Sermons, i V. p. 305.

[[]k] Desestanda illerum insania, qui hilares esse non p sunt fine Christi concumelia & religionis Indibrio. Dav.in Colost 3.16. The fight any, do hilarem insaniam insanie, ac per risum surere. Seneca de vita beata c. 12.

ana! putting a Mock and Scorn on Religion. Mr. Herbers [1] plainly tells you their Doom;

None shall in Hell such bitter Pangs endure As those who mock at God's way of Salvation. Whom Oyl and Balsams kill, what Salve can cure? They drink with Greediness a full Damnation.

How few of us all have ordinarily been considerate and watchful, wise and material, useful and prudent in our Discourses; and have frequently used our Tongues as Instruments of Piety, and spiritual Charity; of the Gloriscation of our Creator and Redeemer, and the [m] necessary Ediscation, and Soul-advantage of our Brethren? How seldom has our Speech been design'd and directed to the real Prosit, and best Benesit of our Neighbour? and our Communication been so ordered and managed by us, that it might be [n] apt to instruct the Ignorant, to strengthen the Weak, to recal the Wanderer, to restrain the Vicious, to comfort the Disconsolate, and to afford a seasonable Word to every Mans Necessary?

Where is the Man, whose Tongue is as * choice Silver? whose Words are of real Worth and great Price: in whose Lips † Wisdom is found, whose many;

Lips

Lips *

Tongu

Lite,

whole

ly he

are, *

Men

Mon of K

TIOU

Wo

Mer

or l

W

mo

41

to 7910

an

h

[1] Church-porch, p. 16.

[[]m] It must be 262 @ a)280s, good Speech, such as is eigdirection of Nesessity, Eph. 4.
29 The Pirtie is an Hebraism, where the genitive Case of a Substantive is put for the Aljective; and means, that our Speech be apted to necessary Edification, or such Edification as is needful to every man's particular Case. Bishop Taylor's Sermons, 1V.
p. 324.

Lips * of Knowledg + differse Knowledg, and | feed many; the Words of whose Mouth are () gracious (1) whose Lips know what is acceptable, whose Tongue is () Health, whose Mouth is a [] Well of Lite, whole whole some Tongue is a [t] Tree of Life; whose instructive Speeches, and edifying Discourles, and warm affectionate Converses have happily helped others to Life? Where is the Man who speaketh Words [] in due Season, whose Words are * pleasant Words, grateful to God and good Men? Where is the Woman that t openeth her Mouth with Wildom, and in whose Tongue is the Law of Kindness; or, gracious Instruction; or, [o] ferious Discourse to Children and Servants of the Word of God and holy Things? Oh how many Men and Women are there who have not a favoury gracious Speech in the whole Day, or Week, or Month, or Year, no not in their whole Lives! We may complain of the constant Discourses of most Persons in the Words of [p] St. Bernard; Not a Word of Scripture drops from them: nothing relating to the eternal Salvation of Mens Souls can be heard among them: nothing but toying and langhing, and light

Mens Communications are generally fo unprofitable, and fo corrupt, that the Confideration hereof made a contemplative Person cry out, and frotby talking takes up their Time.

[9] As

. Her-

erate

pru-

ufed

itual

and

and has

real

and ged

770-

er,

tte;

nis

ice

at

fe.

ps

is.

^{*} Prov. 14. 7. + Didem 15. 7. | Ib. 10. 21.

^(*) Ecclef. 13. 12. (†) Prov. 10. 32. (||) 1b. 12. 18.

^[1] Ib. 10 11. [1] Ib. 15. 4. [1] Ib. 15. 23.

¹b. 15. 16. † lb. 31. 16.

[[]p] Nibil de Scripturu, nibil de salute agitur aninarum, sed nuga Trisus U verba prosecuntur in ventum. Inter prandendum quintum sauces dapibus, tantum aures pascuntur rumoribus. Bernardi Apologia ad Guilhelm.m Abbatem, cap. 8.

[q] As often as I have gone among Men, I have return'd the less Man: And drew these VV ords from another devout Person, [r] I wish I had oftener held my Tongue, would I had not so frequently gone into Company! But why do we so willingly talk and converse together, says he, when, if we talk any thing long, we rarely come off without loss, and seldom give over communing together without some Hurt sirst done to our own Confciences.

VVe have all of us often offended in VVord; not remembring and considering that even * of everyidle Word that Menshall speak, they shall give Account in the Day of Judgment: And that (as a learned [3] Bishop clears the Text) the Judgment then shall fall upon our VVords, if not upon our Perfons; the Fire shall consume such Hay and Stubble; and though the Person himself escape, he shall sustain and suffer that Loss: VVe shall have no Honour, no fair Return for idle, useless, unprositable Discourses, but they shall with Loss and Prejudice be rejected and cast away.

And therefore take [1] St. Bernard's Caution, Let no Man count it a light Matter to spend valuable Portions of his precious Time in idle Words: And labour to imitate the ancient Christians, of whom

Ter-

He let us fome fit Octhe C of or prude and I mod:

Si

weig

takir

and

mir

lian mu (es Di

an Ca ne

D

[[]q] Dixit qui lam: Quoties inter hamines fui, minor homo redis. Hec sapsus experimur, quando din consabulamur. Facilitis est omnino tacere, qua on verbo non excedere. A Kempis de imitatione Christi, l. 1. c. 20. n. 2.

[[]r] Vellem me pluries tacuisse, & inter homines non suisse. Sed quare tam libenter loquimur, & invicem sabulamur: chm tamentare, sine lessone conscientia, ad silentium redimum? Ibidem, c. 10. n. 1. * Mat. 12. 36.

[[]s] Bithop Taylor's Sermons, 1 V. p. 292.

^[1] Nemo parvi astimet tempus quod in verbu consumitur otiosis. Bernardus sermone de triplici cultodia.

Tertullian gives this Character, [u] They difcourse as those that well know that God hears every Word they say.

Henceforth let us have a care of our VVords: let us give our Tongues to Wisdom, ever speak to some useful profitable Purposes, and on all just and sit Occasions, open our Mouths with boldness in the Cause of God and Goodness; and spend as much of our Time, and [w] as many of our Words as prudently may be, in matters of Religion, in Prayers and Praises and pious Discourses, in aptly accommodating and seasonably producing the wise and weighty Sayings of Scripture and holy Men, and in taking Occasion from ordinary Occurrences to raise and promote spiritual Discourses.

A fixth Sort of Persons reproved.

Such do justly fall under severe Censure, who profusely spend their Time in vain Pleasures.

1. In [a] Curiofity about dreffing and trimming the Body.

2. In making dainty Provision for the Belly.

3. In [u] Ita fabulantur ut qui sciant Dominum audire. Tertul-liani Apologia, c. 39.

[m] Mr. John Carter (Paftor of Brainford in Suffolk) did much addich himself to savory speeches and heavenly Discourses; in which God did so own and bless him, that by the holy Discourse that dropped from his mouth a godly Woman was hist won to Christ, while she was waiting on him in his Chamber, and warming his Bed. In him Lisse written by his Son Mr. John Carter infersed in Mr. Clark's Collection of the Lives of ten Eminema Divines, p. 13

[a] Ubi magna corporis cura, ibi magna mentis incuria.

Dictum Catonis.

ve re-

from

r beld

Com le to-

long,

over

0 010

ord;

eve-

Ac-

hen

er-

he

le,

all ay.

n,

ble

a-

m

ą

3. In Play and Sport and vain Recreations.

1. How do the brave Gallants and gaudy People of the Times, fordidly use their Souls as so many Tailors, fetting them to mind every new Fashion; and very unmanly spend their Time in over-nice and too curious decking and dreffing of the Body, and poudering of the Hair? (the [b] Ponder quite forgetting the Dust) losing their Time inter pettinem speculumque occupati (to use [c] Seneca's Expression) by being wholly taken up between the Comb and Thefe are so exceedingly concern'd for their Heads of Hair, or tor the Periwigsthey wear, that (to speak in the VV ords of the forementioned Philosopher) they had rather that a whole Common-wealth should be troubled and disturbed, than that their well-set Hair should be disordered and discomposed: and more affect to be neat and fine, spruce and trim, than to be truly good and honest.

And how do too many of the other Sex, instead of early looking up to Heaven in Prayer, and looking diligently into the persect Law of Liberty, list up their (d) Morning-Eyes to nothing but a Looking glass,

[6] When th' Hair is fweet through pride or luft,

The Pouder doth forget the Duft. Herbert's Poems, Charms and Knots.

[d] Doctor Allettry's Sermous, page 126.

glass, rish and e with think gaze. Thei their bours ers; their and o good Face, VVh Hour Souls and puttir

stian

Goff

meek

rit.

[e] Au Juven

lends; malle

[[]c] De brevitate vitx, c. 12. Quomodo er as untur, si tonsor psuisone estantes en futt? tanguam vicum tonderet. Quomodo excandes unt, ... si quidextra ordinem jacust, misimmia en annucam par reciderum? Qui est estorum qui non malit Rempubicam si um turberr, q a nomam? qui non soitester si de captus sui decre, quam de salute? qui non comptior esse malit, quam ho restrir. Lacin ivid. A so ma remove atur omnus viro non dignus renatus. ... Adisbenda est munditia, non osiosa, neque exquiste riemus, 'aa kin qua sugresse est si inhumanam megisen um, Cicco II. de Ottic.

glass, and there contemplate their Faces, and garish wanton Dreiles, for several Hours together, and even worship their own Image, and fall in Love with their own Shadow; and please themselves to think, how the Eyes of others will be drawn to gaze, and be pleased with looking upon them? These gentile Sinners ordinarily spend the most of their Time before Dinner in the Arts and [e] Labours of Attire, in putting on their Bulls and Towers; many in patching, and too many in painting their Faces, and giving themselves another Colour and Complexion than ever their Maker thought good to give them; in making themselves a new Face, instead of making themselves a new Heart: VV henas these idly busic Persons might spend their Hours a great deal better in the trimming of their Souls, and * adorning their inner, hidden Man, and making themselves all glorious within; in putting on the Lord Jesus Christ, in putting on Chriflian Charity, and clothing themselves with Gospel-Humility, and with the Ornament of a meek and quiet Spirit, and in beautifying themselves with all the Graces of the holy Spirit.

2. How much Time do many spend in contriving how to surnish their Tables, to [f] mix their de of

Tai-

and

and

and

for-

Spe-

on)

and

rn'd

hey

ore-

bole

han

dif-

ruce

ead.

ok-

lift

ng-

ass,

rms

nfor nodo nub i-

ulu

da

di-

ex-

me-

^[1] Tanquam fama discrimen azatur Aut anima: Tanti est quarendi cura decerit, Juvenalis satyea 6.

^{* 1} Pet. 3. 4.

[f] Cibus per artem voluptatémque corruptus. Non ad tellendam, sed ad irritandam same n quaritur, E inventa sunt mulle conditure quibus avidires existentur. -- Multos morbos mul.

their Meats, to fill and garnish out variety of Dishes, to prepare and order their several Sauces; in the pleasing of their [g] Palates, the pampering of their Flesh, and the strengthning of their Lusts; in immoderate Eating, riotous [b] Feasting, frequen Junketing; in excessive Drinking, tarrying long at the VVine, or sitting long Tipling at the Ale-house? How many suffer Sensuality and Luxury to eat up their Time, and make no greater Improvement of their Years than to become accomplished Epicures?

How do such Voluptuaries make their Souls Cooks to look out Provisions for their Bodies, imploying their Minds in studying and devising Meats for their Bellies? How do these live [i] as if the Business of their Lives were to please and serve, to gratify and satisfy the Flesh? as if they were made for no higher than the mere animal Life? as if they multa fireula fecerunt. Vide quantum rerum per unam gulam transituratum, ermõjesat luxursa sterrarum matifg; rast atrix! necisse est staque inter se tam diversa dissideant, & hausta malè digerantur, aliù aliò nitentibus. -- Dis boni, quantum buminum unus renter exercet! -- Coguntur in unum sapores. In cana ht, quod siers debet saturo in rentre. -- Non esset consu-for vomentium cibus. Seneca cp. 95.

[g] -- Lusbow in folo vivends caufa palato est.

Juvenalis fatyra 11.

[h] Affice quantum occupent convivia, que jam ipfa officia funt Seneca de brevitate vi a, c. 6.

[1] Quiderat cur in numero viventium me positum esse gauderem? an us cibos & potiones percolarem? ut hoc corpus causarium ac steidum, persiui unque nisi subinde impleatur, farctrem, & viverem agro minister? Idem pixt. nat. quxt.

Ester instram esse nobis corporis nostri caritatem: sateor nos kus me gerera tutelam: non nego indulgendum illi, sed serviendum nego. --- Sic gerere nos debemus, non tanquam propter corpus rivere debeamus, sed tanquam non possimus succeptere. ---- Honestum es vile est, cus cor un nimis estum est. Idem ep. 141

receiv

to an

were to pu

vile !

Plead

ment

that fes)

bim,

mbo/

neß a

Let I

bim

fo m

Food

bol

E

ro, 2

bear

ribs

peca

cul

Ex

boz

COM

sel

lit

bri

F.

5

Inte Stre

received their rational Souls only to procure for, and to animate the Organs of their Senfuality? as if they were born for nothing else but to cloath and feed, to purvey and provide, to cark and care for this vile Body, and were capable of enjoying no nobler Pleasures or higher Satisfaction than the Entertains ment of their Senses? Though the Truth of it is, that [k] fenfual Pleafure (as Seneca well discourfes) is but the Good of a Beast. Canst thou recken him, I will not fay among Men, but Mankind, fays he, whose Life too plainly shews that he placeth his Happineß and Chief Good in Taftes, and Colours, and Sounds ? Let him depart out of this goodly Rank and Order of Creatures what are next unto the Gods themselves; let bim even go among the brute Beafts, who is a Creature so much pleased and delighted in the Enjoyment of his Food.

How few do est and drink, not merely with an Intention to preferve the Body in Health and Strength; but with such Prudence, Care and Caution, as not to over-cherish and pamper, to embolden and emage their Bodies; to soften and weaken, [k] Quid mihi voluptatam nominas ? Hominis boxum quaro, nom ventrus, qui pecuditim ac bellus laxeor est. Sen, de vita beata c. 9.

Hunc tu numeras inter homines, cuins summum bonum sape-ribm , ac coloribm, ac fonis conftat ? Idem ep. 9:.

Si qua mens est paulò ad voluptates propensior, modò ne sit ex picudum genere, (sunt enim qui dam homines non re, sed nomen ped si quiu est paulò ercètior, quamviu voluptate capiatur, eccultat & dissimulat appetitum roluptate non saine est dignam hominiu prassanti à, cà nque contemni & rejici oportere. Si considerare volumus, qua sit natura excellentia & dignitui, intelligemus, quà n sit turpe dissiure luxuri à, & deiscase, ac molliter vivere, quà mque honossum, parcè, continemer, severe, suò priè. Ciceto l. 1 de Ossic.

Difh-

es; in

pering

Lusts;

, fre-

rying

t the

reater

ccom-

Cooks

oying

s for

Bufi-

gra-

e for

they

re-

nlam

trix!

m hai. In

ficia

gau-

n/4-

em,

2005

lum

PM

8

ken, to clog and enflave their Minds to Sense; and to inflame and provoke themselves to Lust and Wantonness? How sew do use the Creatures in such sober and moderate Measures, as may render their Bodies tame and governable, morigerous and obsession to their Souls, and cheerful and ready in the Exercise of any religious Duty? which is certainly the true Notion of [1] Gospel-Temperance.

3. They also are here to be reproved, who not only consume much of their Time in Dressing and Tiring, Eating, and Drinking, but lavish out a considerable Portion of it in pleasurable Sports and Recreations. These are they, who Bellerophon-like hotly spur on a flying Horse; study to drive away that Time, which hasteth, and posteth, and flyeth away too fast of it self: And are of a like Mind with that [m] Persian King, who proposed a great Reward to any that could invent and find out any new Pastrime.

These Men waste and wear out their Time, either

(1.) By using [n] unlawful Recreations, which have somewhat of Sm in them, something or other dishodilhor

bour.

1 Or

tions

moder

(1.

Dive

neglet mfe a felve

not b

it:

Recr

as a

Wea

and to fa

lar I

ufe

Kin

to TO

for

as t trb.

Ci

8

916

^[1] See Mr. Lucas's practical Christianity, part. 1. cap. 4; fec. 3.

[[]m] Eliani varix Hist.
[n] Virtus voluptates assimat, antequam admittat; nec quas probavit, magni pendit: nec usu earum, sed temperannia lata est.
--- In voluptatem completteris: ego comp: seo. In voluptate frueris: ego ntor. In illam Summum Bonum putas: ego nec bonum. Tu omnia voluptatis causa facis: ego nibil. Seneca de vita beata, c. 10.

dishonourable to God, or injurious to their Neighbour.

Or else, (2.) By [n] abusing lawful Recreations; either using them unseasonably, or else immoderately.

(1.) Unfeasonably. We should never take any Diversion at such a Time, when any necessary Duty toward God, that we are capable of, will be negletted by so doing. Again; We should never use any Recreation, but only to fit and whet our felves for Bufines and Employment. We should not begin to play, till need of Body or Mind require it: And therefore labour must ordinarily go before Recreation, and Recreation mult follow after it, as a needful Refreshment of weak Nature after Weariness, to fit and enable any Person for fresh and future Employment, and a cheerful returning to farther Labour and Pains-taking in his particular lawful Calling. [o] Cicero fays well, We may use Recreation and Play, as we do Sleep and other Kinds of Rest, when first we have given due Attendance to weighty and serious Things.

Farther, (2.) As Time is lost by unseasonable, to, by immoderate Recreation. The Earth is a Place for Labour and Industry; [p] We were not put here as the Leviathan into the Sea, to take our Fill of Pleafure and Sport.

P 2

But

[n] Vide pog. præced. sub litera [n] [o] Ludo & joco, uti illis quidem licet, sed ficut sommo & quice tibm cateru, tum cum gravibus, feri sque rebus fasusecersmus. Cicero l. 1. de Offic.

[P] Neque enimita generati à natura sumus, ut ad ludum S jocum satti esse videamur : sed ad severmatem potius, S ad quadam studia graviora atque majora. Idem ibid.

and

Wan-

fuch

their

objes dy in empe-

not

and

A.Re-hot-

that away

that vard

new

ci-

ich

her

ho-

43

Vas

A.

ate sec

de

But how many spend their Time immeasurably in * Mirth and Musick, Singing and Dancing, Frolicking and Sporting, Gaming and Playing at Cards and Dice, or in frequent going and long fitting to fee Stage-Plaies ? [9] A leerned Doctor expresses himself excellently well to this Purpose: Men recken, fays he, that there are none but Play-Daies in their Life, and they can find never a Work ing-Day among them. All their Daies in their Calendar are Festivals: And they are so far from minding the Busines of Life, viz. dreffing up their Souls for God in a bleffed Eternity by Religion and Holines, that a Saint should have no Respect from many that pretend to honour him, were it not that he gets them Leave to play more freely. The whole Course of their Lives is but a sporting Busines, and when they lay aside their worldly Affairs, it is but to obtain Leisure to be more frolick.

To plead that fuch and fuch Recreations as you use immoderately, are in themselves simply lawful, is an Excuse that will never be admitted and accepted by God, when in the mean Time you neglect your necessary weighty Work and Employment. Surely you would never suffer your own [r] Servants so to put off their gross Carelesness of important Business that requires greatest Haste and Speed.

'Tis

morth

one n

then

by h all be pref

men

Bod

ligh

Sati

mer

ther

a g ous

Th

tho

me

plo

it h

and

Pre

hin

mu alt

Pl

20

Se

F

* Job 21. 14.

[9] Dr. Patrick's Divine Arithm p. 7.

[[]r] If your Servants leave most of their Work undone, and spend the Day in Cards and Stage-plaies, and Feasting, and in merry Chat, and then say, Madam, are not Cards and Plaies and Jesting lawful? will you take it for a satisfactory Answer? And is it not worse that you deal with God? Mr. Baxter's Pref.

Tis a notable Saying of [s] Cicero, He is not worthy the Name of a Man, that would chuse to spend one whole Day in sensual corporeal Pleasure: Surely then he less deserves the Name of a Christian, who by his good Will would live all his Daiss, and spend all his Tears in taking his Pleasure and Recreation; preferring the Pleasures of Sense, the Entertainments of the Phansie, and the Recreations of the Body, before the rational manly Pleasures, the delightful Exercises, and the solid Resreshment and Satisfaction of the Mind: Whereas in the Judgment and Experience of the wifest and best Men, there is no greater Pleasure in the World than a generous holy Contempt, and rational religious Disdain of excessive sensual Pleasures.

A Life of Recreation is an abfurd and ridiculous Thing; to make that our constant Business, which should only fit us for Business. For a Man to make mere Recreations his main Actions and grand Employments, is full as foolish and unreasonable, as it he should make all his Diet of Physick or Sauces, and his whole Garment of nothing but Fringes.

P :

As

Pref. to Mr. Whately's Ser non of Redempsion of Time.

If a poor man had but fix-pence in his purfe, to buy Bread for himfelf and his Fa nily, and would give a Groat of it to fix a Poppet-play, and then diffpute that Poppet-plaies are lawful, how would you judg of his understanding and his practice? O how much worse is it in you, when you have but a little uncertain Time, to do so much, so great, so necessary Work in, to leave it almost all undone, and throw away that Time on Cards, and Plaies, and sensuality, and idleness! Idem ibid.

[5] Quie est digum nomine hominis, qui unum diem totum velis este im isto genere voluptatis? Cicero l. 2 de Finibus. And Seneca hath a senience very like it; Quis mortalium, cui ulium superest hominis vestigium, per diem nodémque titulari ve it, & deserto animo, corpori operam dare? De vita beata, cap. 5.

Nulla major poluptas quam voluptatis faftidium.

ably in

Fro-

ing at long

Doctor

pose:

Play-

Work

r Ca-inding

ils for

that end to o play

but a

their

more

you

wful,

ac-

loy-

elef-

Tis

ind

und

ises

1 ?

r's

f.

As we must not begin with Recreation in the first Place, so, when we take it, we must not hold and continue it [t] too long.

It may feem a severe Rule, but well deserves our very ferious Confideration, that the [u] Worthy Mr. Whately has given us to direct us in this Particular : 'T is not lawful for a man, fays he, in an ordinary Course, to spend more Time in any Recreation, than he has or shall that very Day spend and employ in some Godly, and chiefly private religious Exercise. The Reason he gives is this; We must * first seek the Kingdom of God, and his Righteousness [first in respect of Time, and first in respect of Affection; primarily, and principally.] Now he that does fo, can never use to beitow more Time in any Recreation whatfoever, than in those Things which do directly make for the obtaining of eternal Life, and that Righteoufness which will certainly bring one thereunto. --And furely this is a most equal Thing, that the most needful Duty should have the most Time bestowed upon it. How very faulty then are many, that fpend whole Daies and Nights at Cards and Dice, and in idle Paf-times, who never allotted one Hour of any one Day, to be spent in secret, in that main Work and principal Employment, for which all their Life-time was allowed them?

Take

Tak

Rec

Tim

HOD

poso

bare

Hea

aga

Tir

ado

Box

hav

cre

to

Re

CTC

Bu

of

m

2 ti

be

of

ù

27

t

["] In his ferm. of Red. of Time, p. 20, 21.

Mat. 6. 33.

[[]t] Sunt exercitationes & faciles & breves, qua corpus & fine mera laxent, & tempori parcant: cujus racipua ratio habenda ist. -- Quicquid facies, cito redi à corpore ad animum, illum dichus ac notivitus exerce. -- Dandum & aliquod intervallum animo: ita tamen ut nonresolvatur, sed remittatur. Scn. ep 15.

Take heed of giving too much of your Time to any Recreations: You may quickly lose, not only your Time, but your Hearts too, in immoderate Recreations; and may thereby so hugely unfit and indispose your selves for Duty, that you may find it an hard Task and difficult Work, to bring back your Hearts to their usual Temper and wonted Frame again: As School-Boys, after a Breaking up or Time of any extraordinary Play, have much ado to settle, and fall hard and close to their Books again.

e first

and

OUT

rthy

arti-

n an

Re-

end reli-We

his first

nci-

beer,

tor

uf-

the

W-

nat

ce,

ur

un

eir

ce

Some good men have been so tender, that they have blamed themselves for the Use of those Recreations, which are apt to confume and devour, to eat and swallow up too much Time: And the Remembrance of Time mif-spent in immoderate Recreations, has been no fmall Trouble nor light Burthen to the considering Minds and Sensible Spirits of some very holy and eminent Christians. I find m Mr. Fox his Acts and Monuments, that John Hufs, a famous Reformer and worthy Martyr, in his last Letter wrote in his Imprisonment to one Mr. Martin, has these Words; You know how before my Priestbood (which grieveth me now) I have delighted to play often-times at Chefs, and have neglected my Time, and unhappily provoked both my self and others to Anger many Times by that Play: wherefore besides other my innumerable Faults, for this also I desire you to invocate the Mercy of the Lord, that he will pardon me.

If the Recreation you use be lawful, seasonable, moderate, then you are certainly nell employed, and never trouble and torment your selves with the Thoughts that you might be better employed; for (as one says truly) if we were alwaies bound to do that which is best, we could never tell whether we pleased God or no; but should be engag'd and involv'd in needless Jealousies, perpetual Fears and endless Doubts.

4

And here moreover, without making it a diftinct Head of Discourse, I think among vain Recreations I may well reckon idle and needless, fruitless and unprofitable Visits. Man indeed is a sociable Creature, made and fitted for Converse; And the Comfort and Pleasure of humane Life does much confift in the defirable Enjoyment of the Familiarity and Society of prudent, discreet, Christian Friends; And great Advantages are to be given and gotten by wife and good Discourses; And due Respects, and civil Kindnesses are to be paied to Friends and Neight bours; and all Occasions and Oportunities to be taken and chosen of doing any considerable good Offices to them, either in respect of their Souls, or Bodies. or Estates. But (as [w] Seneca complains) we vainly spend and wear out our selves one upon another: This Man waits upon one, that Man upon another; but no Man gives diligent and due Attendance upon himself.

And I fear there are too many to be met with, whose [x] Feet abide not in their own House (as the wise Man speaks) that wander about from House to House, being Tailers, and Busie-bodies, speaking Things which they ought not (which is the Character the + Apostle gives of them) who go from Place to Place to spread any slying Report or Rumor, to carry

[w] Nemo fe fibi vendicat, &c. de b:ev. vit. c. 2.

Prov. 7. 11. † 1 Tim. 5.13.

carry an

(if they fome li

Things

tatling

and a

Affairs

shew t

new Fa

play a

too m

of the

they a cifes ( vate (

Duty

reflec

quiet

their

weary

may

neve

ber

[y]

Hou

thee.

dine

fam

Bat

Et

erg

gre

[[]x] Nemnem ex omnibus difficitius domi, quamfe, convenit. Ex boc malo dependet illud icterrimum vitium, aufcultatio, S gublicorum secretorimque inquisitio, S multarum rerum seientia, qua nec turo narrantur, nec turo audiuntur. Sen. de tranquil-animi, c. 12.

carry any uncertain and unconcerning News, and (if they may be so happy) to tell the first Story of some little Accidents and petty Circumstances of Things: who run here and there out of a goffiping tatling Temper, or a pragmatical prying Humour, and a greedy Defire to make Observations of the Affairs and Concerns of other Folks Families; Or to hew their own Dreffes and Tires, and to fee the new Fashions of others; Or to drink, or game and play away feveral Hours of the Day. There are too many that are weary of their Time, and weary of themselves, and have the Work and Employment they are called to in their Families, and the Exercifes of Devotion that should be used in their private Closets; and gad abroad for a Diversion from Duty, for the Prevention of melancholick Selfreflection, and for avoiding or drowning the difquieting Clamours, and troublesome Noises of their own guilty and stirring Consciences: These weary and tire out their Neighbours, that they may not be a Burthen at home to themselves: never remembring, or not confidering that fober Advice and folid Counfel of the * wife Man, [y] Withdraw thy Foot from thy Neighbour's House: lest he be [z] weary of thee, and so hate thee.

But

ine

and lif-

Re-

less

ea-

my.

nity

s;

by nd

h-t en o

es

5,

7-nis na

f.

7,

e .

Q

^{*} P.ov. 25. 17.

[[]y] Docer vitandam πολυπερε μοσόνης, non amici confuetu-

^[2] Cato Munatio scripsit, se vereri, ne nimia amicitia caufam aliquando daret odio. Huc proverbium Persicum, Homines inviscre indicorum non cst; modo totics non stat ut dicant, Sat est. Et Arabes dicunt, Vista raro, E augebu amirem. Et Martialii, Nulli se faciai nimii sodalem. Quanto melsor ingo est Dei quam hominium amicitia 2 Deo tanto sumu graispres, quanto sapius ad eum accedimus. Syn. Cit, in loc.

But alas how few among us are to be found, who make their Vifus to these better Purposes, to help and affift, counsel and comfort fick Persons; to exercise Charity to the Souls and Bodies of poor Neighbours, to minister suitable and seasonable Relief to fuch as are in real and great Want and Need; to further the Edification, and promote the Salvation of all about them; to labour and endeavour to bring some off from their Errours or Sins; to mind one another of their latter End; in a ferious and favoury Manner to talk of the Kingdom, and the Way to the Kingdom, and to help one another Heaven-ward; to add to one another's spiritual Knowledg, to encrease and stirup one another's Graces, to comfort and warm and strengthen one another's Hearts; to affect one another with the Remembrance of God's Ordinances, and with the Consideration of his Providences, to their Persons, Families, Relations, more partienlarly; or to the Land of our Nativity, and the People of God and Church of Christ, more generally; To bring one another to a due Sense of the Divine Mercies, and to a dread of the Divine Judgments; to pray with one another, and to quicken one another to a Reformation of their Hearts and Lives, and a well ordering of themselves and Families, and the Redemption of their Time in these evil Daies, and to a speedy and sound Preparation of themselves to suffer for the Gospel, and for the Purity of the Reformed Religion, if God shall please to call them to it?

That Prodigy of early youthful Piety, and spiritual divine Proficiency; [a] Mr. John Janeway, Fel-

[4] Ia his Life written by his Brother Jam. Janew. p. 72, 73.

Fellov

pany

and v pallec

prete

the]

Paper

ther t

houle

COMY

Sou!s

oufne

Did

ter 1

talke

upon

Prai

an I

than

emp

nica

to :

ciet

for phe

ing

cp.

Fellow of King's Colledg in Cambridg, once in Company fate down filent, took out his Pen and Ink. and wrote down in Short-hand the Discourses that passed for fome Time together, among those that pretended to more than common Understanding in the Things of God; and after a while he took his Paper and read it to them, and asked them, Whether that Talk was such as they would be willing God hould record? Is not this a brave rational devine Difcourse? (fays he) Where's our Love to God, and Souls, all this while? Where's our Sense of the Preciousness of Time, and of the Greatness of our Account? Did Saints in former Times use their Tongues to no better Purpose? Would Enoch, David, or Paul have talked thus? Is this the sweetest Communion of Saints upon Earth? How shall we do to spend Eternity in the Praises of God, if we cannot find some good Matter for an Hour's Discourse? This he did to convince, and shame them out of their barren Discourse, and empty Converse, and foolish fruitless Communication, and to quicken and provoke them to a more profitable Improvement of their Society.

A seventh Sort of Persons reproved.

They also are justly blame-worthy, who cast away their Time in excessive, immoderate, worldly Cares for superstuous Things? Who (as the [a] Philosopher describes them) do wholly past their Life in seeking and procuring the Instruments of Life; and are [b] sooner

, who

15 ; to

f poor

onable and

omote

nd en-

irs or

End;

of the tir up

n and ie an-

ances,

s, to

tien-

eral-

udg-

cken

and Fa-

tion

r the lease

fpi-

way, Fel-

.73-

^[4] Magno tempori: impendio queruntur supervacua; & multitranscunt vitani; dum vita infrumenta conquirunt. Sonoca ep. 45.

[b] somer weary of living, than of labouring; whose desire lasts longer than their Ability, and Power to labour for this World; who reckon Old Age grievom only on this Account, that it laies them aside, and hinders their lively and vigorous Pursuit of the Things of the World; Who complain sometimes of the Trouble of Businesses, of the Weight of great and full Employments, but cannot find in their Hearts to leave them, because though they hate the Miseries of their Labours, yet they love the Gain and Prosit, the Price and Remard of them.

Who bestow a great Deal of Pains about that they never intend to use; who toil and sweat, tire and weary out themselves to heap up much thick Clay, to treasure up Silver and Gold, to * joyn House to House, and lay Field to Field, all which they must shortly exchange for a Turf in the Church-yard: Who anxiously labour to raise and gather, to clear and secure an Estate, which they must, every Man of them, † leave unto the Man that shall be after them, and none knows whether he shall be a Wife Man or a Fool; and take no pains in the mean Time to try and confirm their Title to Heaven: Who are fo folicitous about plowing their Grounds, that they cannot | break up the Fallow-Ground of their own Hearts: who are so busy in making up their Accounts with Men, that they mind not the making even their Accounts with God; So over-

care-

caret

the I

are,

many

Choi

be a vant all E

Dea

Con

wha

aske

Sun

that

mo

Bar

Cro

He

fo !

the

for too

ftal

TI

to

to

for

th

^[6] Seneca de brevitate vita, cap. 20.

Facile est occupationes evadere, si occupationum pretia consempserie. --- Mercedam miseriarum amant, ipsu excerantur. Iden ep. 22.

Rebus non me trado, sed commodo : nec consettor perdendi tem-^{*} Ita 5. 8. + Scelef, 2. 18, 19.

Jer. 4. 3. Hof. 10. 12.

careful to improve their temporal, that they neglect the Improvement of their fritual Estates: Who are, * like Martha, so cumbred and troubled about many Things, that they are ready to forget the one only Thing which is absolutely necessary, the happy Choice of that good Part or Portion, which would be a Thing very acceptable to God, and the Advantage of which would continue to themselves to all Eternity: Who are so taken up with worldly Dealings, that they have little or none of their Conversation in Heaven: Who fay in their Hearts, what Duke de Alva once replied to the King, who asked him whether he had seen the Ecclipse of the Sun; that he had so much Business to do upon Earth, that he had no Time to look up to Heaven: Who are more studious and industrious to get a good earthly Bargain, than to obtain a Crown of Righteousness, a Crown of Life and Glory, and to make fure of an beavenly and everlasting Kingdom: Who have their Hearts as full of the World as their Hands, and are fo covetous and greedy of it, that they will lofe their Time, and let go God and a good Conscience for it: Who fuffer their worldly Employments too often and easily to steal away their set and stated Times for Reading, Prayer, Confession, Thankf-giving, Meditation, Self-Examination; to rob their Duties of their allotted Hours, or to borrow of their Duties their appointed Seafons, without ever making any Payment of them.

The learned and judicious Bp. Sanderson, in a Sermon [6] preached to the People, gives them this wholesome good Instruction, not to ingulf them-

whose

to la

ievom

d hin-

f the

tand

learts

feries.

rofit,

that

, tire

hick

joyn

hich

the

and

hev

that

1 be

ean

en:

ids,

of

up

er-

re-

H-

T.

Luke 10. 40: 41 42 [c] Bp. Sanderson en 1 Cor. 7. 14. p. 114, 215.

themselves so wholly into the Businesses of their particular Callings, as to abridg themselves of convenient Opportunities for the Exercise of those religious Duties, which they are bound to perform by virtue of their general Calling. This (lays he) is a point of Duty; Men being commanded in their Callings to abide with God: A point of Wisdom alfo; it being a means to procure a Bleffing upon their Labours, from his Hands; who never taileth to serve them, that never fail to serve him. And a Point of Justice too, as due by way of Restirution: of which he gives this both ingenious and Solid Proof; We make bold with God's Day, fays he, and dispense with some of that Time which he hath san-Etifica unto his Service, for our own Necessities. It is equal, we should allow him at least as much of ours, as weborrow of his; though it be for our Necessities, or lawful Conforts. But if we rob him of some of his Time (as too often we do) employing it in our own Bufinesses, without the Warrant of a just Necessity: we are to know that it is Theft, yea Theft in the highest Degree, Sacriledg; and that therefore we are bound, at least as far as petty Theeves were in the Law, to a * fourfold Reflitution.

But how very many so overload and overburthen themselves and their Families with ordinary worldly Businesses, that either they quite neglect their Duties, or put God off with slight and short and has by Duties; and neither afford themselves sufficient Time, nor allow their Servants convenient Opportunities of remembring their God, and minding their Souls Necessities.

Thefe

more:

hable

Thing

ly be world

the K

in H

porla

Tim

so ea

Exe

Geor

of C

he '

Lov

teac

joyn

ly,

OUT

ceff

rel

car

to Pr

W

^{*} Exod. 22. 1. 2 Sam. 11. 6.

These have no leisure to consider, that the Soul is more worth than the Body, and Heaven more valuable than the Earth: and therefore that the Things that necessarily conduce to the saving of the Soul, and securing of Heaven, must not wholly be neglected for any bodily Concernments, or worldly interests whatsoever. We must first seek the Kingdom of God, and chiefly lay up a Treasure in Heaven: and therefore we must not suffer worldly Cares to take up an undue Proportion of our Time.

We must not engage in fo many Businesses, nor to eagerly purfue and follow any, as that our ordinary worldly Affairs should hinder our selves, or our Families from the Performance of ordinary religious Exercises. [d] It is reported of the famous Mr. George Herbert, sometime Orator of the University of Cambridg, that when he came to have a Family, he was eminent and exemplary for his spiritual Love and Care of his Servants: by his own Practice teaching Masters this Duty, to allow their Servants daily Time, wherein to pray privately, and to enjoyn them to do it : holding this for true generally, That publick Prayer alone to such Persons, is no Prayer at all. Our Love and Care even of our Servants spiritual Welfare, ought to be greater than our Love and Care of the Things of this World.

As many so deeply plunge themselves into unnecessary Businesses, that they have no Leisure for religious Performances: So some so mainly mind earthly Things, that they make Religion subservient to their worldly Employment, take up a specious Prosession of Religion, and fair Form of Godliness, chiefly

their con-

le re-

form

s he)

their

n al-

noqu

tail-

him. Refti-

and

s he,

Tan-

It is

his nfi-

are

ree,

mr-ben

Id-

eir ba-

ent or-

ng

ſe

[[]d] Toward the end of his Life before his Remains.

chiefly to invite and draw Customers to their Shops; and that they may deal falfely and [e] unjustly, without Question or Suspicion; and gain unreasonably and unconscionably, by a dissembled Santiny and sictious Piety.

The last Sort of Persons reproved.

And lastly; Some Persons are to be reproved for mis-spending their Time in their Duties. You may think this strange, that Time should be thrown away in Duties. But I would have you to understand it may; for you may lose your Time in Duties, these two waies;

1. By performing them unfeafonably.

2. By doing them formally.

1. You lose Time in Duty, if you perform it unseasonably. And that may be done these two Waies.

(1.) When one Duty thrusts and justles out another, and so the Duty is mistimed: As if a Man do spend that Time in his Closet, and in religious Devotion, which God does require him to employ in his Shop, and in following his Vocation. So again; if you reade and pray privatly at home, when you should attend on the publick Ordinance: Or, reade in your Bible, or Prayer-Book, at Church, when you should hearken to the Sermon there: Or, if you do nothing but reade, when you should meditate sometimes, and confer sometimes: Or, if you give way

[e] Totius injustitia nulla capitalior est quam eorum, qui sum, cum maxime fallent, id tamen agunt, ut viri boni sse videantur. Cice: o l. 1. de Ossic. to fuch Word
impertit Such
yet are are fing
Times
necella
ever, fiend I feafons

when and T when upon Head when

Speak

at Co than ved him, Hour perel > lies, venie milie

> > fludi ther

to such good Thoughts, as in Prayer, or hearing the Word at any Time, come into your Mind, but are impertinent and irrelative to the Matter in hand: Such Thoughts, though they be materially good, yet are formally evil; though good in themselves, yet are sinful to thee, at such unsit and inconvenient Times; and will at least taint and sly-blow thy necellary present Duty. To do any Duty whatever, when you should rather do another, is to missend Time about such a Duty, which is to you unleasonable.

(2.) When Duty is perform'd at such a Time, when we are most unsit for it, then it is unseasonable, and Time is soft in it: As when we go to Prayer, when we are fitter to go to sleep; and kneel upon the Cushion, when we are fitter to lay our Head upon the Pillow; and hold up our Hands then, when we are scarce able to hold open our Eyes; and speak to God then, when we hardly hear our selves speak.

Shops ;

quitty.

alon-

antitity

oved

072 4

Stand

uties,

n it

two

ber,

end

bop,

you

uld

our ou

do

ne-

to

gus ViWhen Luther during his retirement in the Castle at Coburga, for his Sasety, enjoyed more leisure than ordinary; one Vitus Theodorus, who then lived with him, informed Melanethon concerning him, that he spent in Prayer every Day [f] three Hours at least, and those that were sittest and properest for his Studies.

And it is commendable in some Masters of Families, that as often as they can do it with any convenience, they perform Evening-Prayer in their Families before Bed-Time, yea before Supper-Time,

when

[[]f] Nullus abit dies, quin ut minimum tres horas, ed que fluisi aptissimas in orationem penat. Melch. Adam. in vic. Luther. p. 138, 142.

when they are not clogg'd with Meat, nor heavy with Sleep; but are every way freeft and fittest for Duty. Will you set your selves and your House-hold to do God's Work, when you are wholly unfit to do your own? You lose Time in Duty, by performing it unseasonably. That's the first.

2. You lose Time in Duty, if you perform Duty no otherwise than formally, customarily, slightly and superficially. If you handle holy Things without any Feeling; If you do the Duty, for the Matter of it, but fail in the Principle and Manner of the Duty, and never look to the [g] End of the Duty; have no real Design, and hearty Intention to please and glorify God thereby, and to gain and encrease in true Holmes of Heart and Life.

If you act, not out of a Principle of Love, and inward Life and Liking, but only out of some external respect; If you perform your Services, not out or a filial ingenuous Disposition, but merely out of a slavish Fear of being beaten, or of losing the Wages you expect for your Work:

[g] The end of all Exercises of Piety and Devotion, is more and in the to dispose our Hearts to the Love, and our Wills to the Obediance of our bleffed Creatour and Redeemer. And bufying our selves in any of them without this Design, may well be counted in the Number of the fruitless and unaccountable Actions of our Lives. Thus to do is prodigally to waste and misspend our Time: as the Jews were upbraided by one of their Adverturies, with doing, upon the account of their Sabbath, faving, That they lost one Day in seven. Dr. Fowler's Design of Christianity, pag. 186.

If you

If you

God .

and I

to va

intent

using good 1

the !

hear

you

from.

you

nor

read

up fi

or t

and

VOU!

bout

this .

nior

Scri preder Ti

loft

ties

wh

the

cei

Be

and fitand fitand so and an you
Time That's

holy the never real plorify e Horform

Love, fome rices, but aten, fork:

more
ls to bull be lctimifheir fav-

of

If you use only a careless and supine Devotion: If you matter not at all how little you do for God, or what is the Frame of your Minds and Hearts in what you do: If you give way to vain Thoughts in holy Duties: If you be not intent in your religious Services, but inflead of using the World, as if you used it not, you use good Duties as if you did not use them; observe the Lord's-Day, as if you observ'd it not; contess and repent, as if you did no fuch thing; hear, as if you heard not; and pray, as if you prayed not: If you pray only out of Cufrom, and do not mind and well consider what you fay, nor are affected with what you fpeak, nor defire what you ask: If you pray, and reade, and hear, only because you are brought up fo to do, and have taken up fuch a Practice, or because you would satisfy natural Conscience, and have the good Opinion and Word of all in your Families, and be commended by your Neighbours for religious Persons; and do not pray to this necessary End, that so you may enjoy Communion with God, and get and obtain Pardon, and Grace, and Strength from God; nor reade the Scripture and good Books, and hear the Word preached, that so you may know your Duty in Order to the Practice and Performance of it; all the Time that is thus spent in Duty, is in a manner Time lost and mif-spent: in so doing you lose your Duties, and you lose your Time too.

But especially, if any shall dare to do nothing but whisper, and talk, and laugh; to mock and jeer at the Word, and the Minister of it; to be undecent, and rude, and profane in their Carriage and Behaviour, in a Christian Assembly, in the Time of Divine Worship, in the [i] Presence of the great God, and in the Sight of the holy * Angels; This is to lose the Time of publick Duty, if it be to be lost at all; This is to lose the Time of Duty, with a Witness.

Q 2

And so I have done with the third Use, namely of Reproof and Rebuke to several Sorts of Persons, who are guilty of the Loss, the lamentable Loss of their precious Time, and unvaluable Opportunities.

* 1 Cor. 11.10.

CHAP.

The

ft

91

of 90

d

[[]i] Va mihi quia ibi pecco, ubi peccara emendare debeo. Bernard. de interior. Domo, c. 33.

e great ngels; t be to Duty, nely of rions, ntable Oppor-

Ber-

CHAP. VI.

The fourth and last Use is of Exhortation, to Magistrates, Ministers, the People in general. Six quickening Motives to press the Duty of Redemption of Time. (1.) Consider how notably Jesus Christ redeem'd the Time, when he was here in the World. 1. Heredeem'd the Time, to fave us. 2. He redeem'd the Time, to be an Example to us. (.) Consider further, that as Christ did once redeem the Time, to fave us ; So the Devil does daily redeem the Time, to destroy us. (3.) Consider, how very notably many of the Saints and Servants of God have improved and redeemed their Time. (4.) Consider, that it is an Act of spiritual Wisdom to redeem the Time, and mere Madness and gross Folly not to redeem the Time. (5.) Consider, that if now thou losest and squanderest among thy Time, thou wilt at last be forced thy felf to condemn thy foolish Net !gence, and to justify the Care and Diligence of cthers, that were wifer for their own Souls th. n thy felf. (6.) Confider, that do what we can to redeem our Time, we shall never repent at last of any Care we have had to redeem it, but shall certainly blame and find fault with our selves for being so careless of our Time, so negligent of good Opportunities as we have been. Serious considerative Christians do blame themfelves for their Loss of Time, even in their Life-time : but they are especially sensible of it, and exceedingly ashamed of themselves for it, at their Death.

He fourth and last Use shall be of Exhortation, to put you upon the Duty of Redceming Time.

Q 3

Let .

A P.

Let Magistrates vigorously redeem the Time, in the faithful Execution, and impartial Administration of governing Justice; and in being active and zealous, bold and couragious in the Cause of God and Goodness: * in being a Terrour to Evil, and not to good Works; and in acting for the + Punishment of Evil-doers, and for the Praise of them that do well: in repressing Vice, and checking Profaneness, and daily dashing Sin out of Countenance; and in countenancing and encouraging, nourishing and cherishing Sobriety and Temperance, Ver-tue and Godliness, Holiness and Religion.

Let Ministers industriously redeem the Time, in not shunning to declare to the People all the Counsel of God; in urging Truths upon their own Hearts, and preffing and enforcing them upon others Souls; in labouring abundantly in the Lord's Vineyard; in () taking heed unto themselves, and (1) to their Dostrine, and to all the Flock over which the Holy Ghost hath made them Over-seers; in feeding the Church of God with the wholfome Food of found Wo.ds; in (|) watching for Souls, as they that must give Account; in [] daily warning Sinners with Tears; in perfwading Men with Earnestness and Importunity, as those that well [] know the Terrour of the Lord; in endeavouring to [] fave themselves and them that hear them, to () fave some with Fear, pulling them out of the Fire; in taking all possible Care, lest they [] beat the Air, and * run in vain, and lebour in vain; leit their People's † Blood be required at their

their

thers

difc

that

ing bro

the

Stre

all I

and

fati

wit

of h

2000 my (

Fai

laid

Lor

ffar

thei

fide

to

to joy

Ple

for

of

ftuo

Wi

of the

1

^{*} Rom 13. 3. † i Pet. 2. 14. | Acts 20. 27.

(*) Veife 28. (†) 1 Tim. 4. 15. (i) Heb. 13. 17.

[*] Acts 20 21. [†] 2 Cor. 5. 11. [i] 1 Tim. 4. 16.

() Jude 23. [† 1 Cor. 9. 26.

* Gal. 2 2 Phil. 2. 16. † Ezek. 3. 18.

tor,

their Hands, and lest when they have preached to others, they themselves should become * Cast-aways; in discharging their Duty so painfully and faithfully, that though I Ifrael be not gathered, though the straying and stragling Sheep be not reclaimed and brought home to God, yet they may be glorious in the Eyes of the Lord, and their God may be their Strength: That they may be | pure from the Blood of all Men, and may (*) finish their Course with Joy; and be able to fay, as the most laborious and indefatigable Apostle, St. Paul, expressed himself, with an Heart full of Comfort, when the Time of his Departure was at hand; () I have fought a good Fight, as a faithful Souldier; I have finish'd my Course, as a strenuous Runner; I have kept the Faith, as a trusty Depositary: Henceforth there is laid up for me a Crown of Righteousnes, which the Lord, the righteous Judy, shall give me at that Day.

Yea, let People in general give all ferious conflant Diligence to redeem the Time, and to make their Calling and Election fure: Believing, and confidering, that we were not fent into this World to eat, and drink, and fleep, and sport, and play; to take our Past-time and Recreation, and to enjoy a little short carnal Mirth, some sensual sinful Pleasure, or worldly Prosit, or earthly Honour, for a season; But to live in the constant Exercise of Reason, and Vertue, and true Goodness: To study the Nature and Attributes, the Mind and Will, the Word and Works, the Laws and Waies of God: To (||) keep the Commandments of God, and the Faith of Jesus: To worship and serve our Crea-

Q 4

ie, in

iltra-

and

God

and unith-

that nce;

Ver-

e, in

uls;

id;

heir

boft

of 111

m;

ty,

d;

em

ing eit

ur

at

ir

^{* 1} Cor. 9. 27. † Isa. 49. 5. | Acts : 0. 26. (*) Verse 24; (†) 2 Tim. 4 7, 8. (|) Rev. 14. 12.

tor, Redeemer, Sanctifier and Comforter: To prepare and provide for Eternity; and to do good to all, while we have Opportunity.

And here, to proceed particularly, I shall

I. Propound fome Motives, to quicken you; And then,

II. I shall give you some Directions, to help you to gain the Time, and redeem the Opportunity.

To press you to the Duty, besides the several Reasons of the Doctrine (which are also so many Motives to the Duty) I shall farther lay you down a six-fold Motive.

The first Motive.

First consider, how notably Christ redeem'd the Time, when he was here in the World. * It becometh us to fulfil all Righteousness, says he. + Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's Business? | I must work the Works of him that sent me, while it is Day: the Night cometh when no Mancan work.

- 1. He redeemed the Time to fave us.
- 2. To be an Example to us.

1. He redeemed the Time, to fave us. His whole Life, to his very Death; yea, his Life and Death were nothing else but a cominual Course of doing and suffering for our Salvation. Did Christ spend his Time, his Labour, his Blood, to save us? and shall we be backward to spend our Daies, our Pains,

Pains, deem Reden fecur

Mourand Occideer

Occ He him ligh ing em

doin

ar th

Ti

H

^{*} Mat. 3. 15. † Luke 2. 49. # John 9 4.

Pains, our Strength to ferve him? Did Christ redeem the Time, to accomplish and work out our Redemption? and shall not we redeem the Time, to secure and work out our own Salvation?

2. Christ redeem'd the Time, to be an Example to w. Not an idle Word ever came out of his Mouth. He spake as never Man spake, and did as never Man did. He was ferious and favory, holy and heavenly in his private Converses, and took all Occasions to spiritualize his Discourses. He redeemed Time for secret Prayer; He * went about doing good: He neglected his bodily Food, to gain an Occasion of spiritual Converse, and to feed a Soul: He profelleth, it was this Meat to do the Will of him that fent him, and to finish his Work; his Delight to do the Will of God. This he did, (*) leaveing us an Example, that we should follow his Steps; an eminent Example to be transcribed and copied out by us; that we likewise should redeem the Time, in Imitation of him, and Conformity to him.

Now where are the Men that feriously consider, Thus, thus Jesus Christ liv'd in the World? and are ready to say within themselves, I will do nothing but what I would do if Jesus Christ were by: I would act now, as if I followed Christ at the Heels. How very many have liv'd already the full Age of our blessed Saviour? nay, how many have doubled our Saviour's Age? and yet how sew have liv'd after the manner of the Life of Christ, one Day or Hour? or, in consormity to our Pattern and Exemplar, in any Measure done the Will, and wrought

: To

good

you;

you

reral

nany

own

the

be-

Vift

ole

th

ng nd

ed!

ur

S,

^{*} Alls 10. 38. + John 4. 34. | Pfal. 40. 8.

wrought the Work of our heavenly Father? I may very fitly here take up the Words of a Religious Person, [a] Thou maiest well blush to behold the List of Jesus Christ, because as yet thou hast studied no more to conform thy self to him, though thou hast been long in the Way of God.

Let us henceforward daily eye the Life of Chrift, as that which is an Example to us in all our Actions and Motions in the World; in the midst of all the Passions to which we are subject, and Temptations to which we are exposed. Let's frequently reflect upon our felves, and feriously fay, Did Christ live thue? In all our Actings and Undertakings let's fay continually, Would Christ do thus? If not, how dare I, who profess my self a Christian, venture upon it? If Christ were now upon the Earth, would he be wasteful and prodigal of his Hours? would he beloose and wanton, vain and profane in his Life? would Christ swear, and curse, or by any means be tempted to Perjury or false Teltimony? would he be drunk himself, and delight to make others drunk? would Christ scoff and mock at Religion and Holiness, and jear and deride the ftrictest Professors and Practifers of it? would he that once mept over Jerusalem, be now jovial and merry, when publick Misery and common Calamity hangs over the Heads of a People laden with Iniquity? could he find in his Heart to laugh and sport over a tottering, finking, fainting, dying Nation?

Take

Tak

and en

World.

thus v

my fe

Vertu

Christ

in and

as mo

malio

and 6

as C

the

Ten

righ

ben

mea

To

felf

am.

do s

re

G

cit

Se

be fte

0

E

[[]a] Bene verecundari potes, inspecta vira Jesu Christi; quia necdum magis illi te consormare studuists, licet din in via Dei fasti. A hempis I. 1, c. 25. n, 6.

Take care * to walk, even as Christ walked : Aim and endeavour to be in the World, as he was in the World. When you rife in the Morning, refolve thus with thy felf; I will thic Day study to behave my felf as Christ did: I will labour to exercise those Vertues, and to act those Graces, which Jesus Christ, when he was here on Earth, was eminent in and exemplary for : I will this Day strive to be as meek and humble as free from pride and passion, malice and revenge; as clear from covetoufness and earthly-mindedness, discontent and impatience, as Christ himself was: To be as watchful against the World and the Devil, as refolv'd against Temptation, as fober and temperate, as just and righteous, as kind and merciful, as ufeful and beneficial to all about me, according to my measure and capacity, as Christ himself was: To do every Thing so, even as Christ himfelf, were he placed in fuch circumstances as I am, and stood in the fame relations as I do, would do and act.

What Christ has done in our Flesh before us, is very possible to be done by us, in the strength of God and Christ. And it is a Thing not only secible, but very reasonable, that we the Disciples and Servants of Christ should improve our Time to the best advantage; when he our great Lord and Master lost not an Hour, missipent not a Minute of all the Time of his whole Life lead here upon Earth.

It is true, we can never exactly answer our Copy, nor fully come up to our Example; But let's endeavour to come as near as we can: for (as

I may

igious

e Life

more

long

brift,

tions

the

ns to

flect

live

let's

now

ure

ald

uld

his

any

y ?

ke

at

he

he

nd

i-

h

d

g

e

^{* 1} John 1.6. † 1 John 4. 17.

(as [b] Mr. Herbert excellently) let this encourage you;

Who goeth in the Way which Christ hath gone, Is much more sure to meet with him, than one That travelleth by-waies.
Perhaps my God, though he be far before, May turn, and take me by the hand, and more May strengthen my decays.

The second Motive,

Consider in the second Place, That as Christ did redeem the Time, to fave us; fo the Devil does daily redeem the Time, to destroy us. As there is a good Spirit active in the World, inviting and alluring Men to Vertue and Goodness, and endeavouring to bring them to a participation of Holiness and Happiness with himself; So there is an evil, impure, unbodied Spirit, perpetually foliciting and inticing Men to Sin and Wickedness, and labouring continually to hurry and precipitate them, or gradually and infensiby to draw them, into the same condition of Perdition and Destruction, into which he himself is fallen and funk, without hope of Remedy, or possibility of Recovery. The Devilwas * a Murtherer from the beginning. He set upon Adam in Paradife, who was in his full strength: He provokea David to number the People : yea, he taffaulted Christ himself, who was not only the Son of David, but the Son of God, and had nothing in him to give advantage to him. And when Satan left him,

him,

him b

heart

Mem

defig

ty:

Peter

Faith

waie Fall

vice.

uset

will

by

Th

Gion

and

an

go

mi

A

20

Su

C

37

n

^[6] Lent.

John 8. 44. | i Chron. 21. i. + Mat. 4.

courage

did

dai-

good

ing

ing

and

m-

in-

ng

2-

ne

ch

2-ıs

1_

him, being overcome by him, he departed from him but * for a season, as if resolving to take a fit opportunity to return again to him, and have another bout with him. And he [c] that takes heart to fight with the Head, will never spare the Members : He daily follows the Disciples of Christ, designing to draw them from + God and their Duty: He defir'd to have the fifting and shaking of Peter, liberty to do his worst to drive him from the Faith of Christ. He studies to * get advantage of us. The Head of this old malicious subtil Serpent is alwaies plotting and contriving our Sin and Misery, Fall and Ruin. We are not ignorant of his (*) Devices, or fophistical Reasonings. He continually useth his (1) Methods, or Wiles. The Tempter will tempt by () fome means or other: usually [d] by suggestion, prompting and casting of evil Thoughts into our Minds: And often by Persmafion, or prefling the Suggestion, with fuch Reasons and Arguments as may move our Minds to approve, and incline our Wills to confent to some Evil as good. He labours to perswade us, either by promising some good, or threatning some evil to us. And fometimes he tempts us by instigation and provocation, or restless and importunate urging of the Suggestion, till, if it be possible, he has gain'd our Confent. He makes it his business to tempt us either immediatly, or mediatly, by his Agents and Instruments; making use of the choicest and most likely Instru-

* Luke 4 13.

[d] Dr. Sclater in loc. p. 216.

[[]c] Neque enim membris parcet, qui cum capite praliatur. Calv. in 1 Pet. 5. 8.

[†] Luke 12. 31. * 2 Cor. 2. 11. (*) Nonuara 2 Cor, 2, 11.

^(†) Me Jodeias Eph 6. 11. (1) 1 Teff 3.5.

Instruments to work with us, and prevail upon us. He suits his Temptations to our Tempers, and observes and takes the most convenient Seasons of dealing successfully and effectually with us: He is still laying his Traps and * Snares, to take us captive at his will. He is ready to assault us with his thery Darts; to propose such sensual Baits, which, like [e] poisoned Darts, will wound us to Death, if the consideration of our Duty, the Promises and Terrors of Christ, received by our Faith, do not help to quench them.

The Devil loses no Moment of time, that may ferve his Defign, and further his Endeavour to undo us: He lets no Opportunity hip of doing us any Mischief. He is a nimble, stirring, busy Being. He goes to and fro in the Earth, and walks up and down in it. St. Peter tells us from his own experience, and with some reference to (*) Satan's Confession and Acknowledgment, that (1) our Adversary the Devil, as a roaring Lion, walketh about feeking whom he may devour. He's an Adversary in Law (as the [f] word here used imports) a cunning Plaintiff, whose work it is upon all occasions to indict and accuse us before God. He is also an Enemy in War: A Subtil, and strong Enemy, like a Lion: A fierce and furious Enemy, like a Lion roaring through [g] An-

* 1 Tim. 6. 9. 2 Tim. 2. 26. + Eph. 6.16.

ama7

Ener

read

fatig

Lion

take

offer

how

ly,

dea

not

but

and 25 hin

fo

A

D

all

Sa

[[]e] Peifoned Darts are wont to inflame the parts that are wounded with them, and therefore are called fiery Dart, as the Serpents with poifonous Stings are called fiery Serpents. Dr. Hammond's Par in foc.

^{||} Luke 22. 31. (*) Job 1. 7. (†) 1 Pet. 5. 8. [f] 'Arti Juso , an opposite in torensal Proceeding. So surilogo, Rev. 12. 10. a word most opposite to society of an Aurocate, which Christ is said to be.

[1] Anger, or impatient Hunger, to fright and amaze, and so catch his Prey : A venturous daring Enemy; like a roaring Lion pinch'd with Hunger, ready to fet upon any thing as his Prey: An indefatigably reftles and industrious Enemy; like a Lion walking up and down, as intent as may be to take and purfue every occasion and opportunity that offers and prefents it felf to him; alwaies watching how to get us into his power and reach: And lastly, as mischievous and pernicious, as mortal and deadly an Enemy as can be; earnestly feeking, not whom he may bite, or lightly hurt and wound, but whom he may devour, undo and destroy, Soul and Body; swallow down at one draught, as the word xatamives fignifies; and by swallowing him down, as it were [b] turn him into his own Nature, make him Partaker of a diabolical Temper.

As God is φιλάνθρωπ, a Lover of all Men; fo the Devil is μισάνθρωπ, an Hater of all Men: And as God loves the Faithful peculiarly, fo the Devil is an Enemy to them especially: [your] Adversary, saies St. Peter here emphatically; Above all, he desires [1] [your] Destruction, with an insatiable Appetite.

Now

[g] Syn. Crit.

ns.

ob-

leal-

ftill

ve at fiery

like

, if

and

not

nay

un-

any

He

271

nd

nd

)e-

he

he

f,

IC-

r:

ce

71-rê

ie

7-

[[]h] Sicuted poths & cibi, quod quis devoraves, in substantiam suam vertitur; & qui Christum per sidem come unt funt divina natura participes; ita si quem saturas ceglutiis, participat naturam diabolicam. Dr. Arrowsmith Tact. sact. 1. 1. c. 3. § 3.

^[1] Pro ea, qua pollet, malitia, quò quis Deo charior est, cò Satana invisor. Latro ille viatores pracipue locupletes, iste prado naves pretiossi mercibus onustas pra alisi adorstur. Pantheram ajust usque adto surcivoqueror este, ut in hominis statuam vel sisturam incurrere soleat; sta cum nequent damones Deum ipsum invadere, impetunt illius imaginem, qua in sanstis elucet, & in pios prascresm mazistratus, & ministros verbis sumi seruntur violentia. Idem ibidem, illustrans hunc locum Petri.

Now what's the Apostle's Inference from all this? Why fince the Devil is fedulous and watchful, do not you become fluggish and secure, but be sober andvigilant: Be sober, that you may be vigilant: Be vigilant; γρηγορήσατε; Let every Christian be a Gregory, a Vigilantius, not only awake, but watchful; confiderative, and active; recollect and attend to Principles of Action, and reduce and improve good Principles to feafonable Christian Practice: be habitually careful and diligent, and very industriously use and exercise all appointed approved means, whereby he may be fuitably provided and prepared, and may not be unhappily furpriz'd and foiled by any fuddain Aslault of his spiritual Enemy. Because the Devil is so vigilant to work out your Damnation, be you therefore vigilant to work out your Salvation.

The Devil is faid to have * great wrath, because he knoweth he hath but a short Time: He is so much the hotter and more eager, because his Time is contrasted, and draws to an end. He redeems Time most at last; and yet he was always bufy enough, ever over-busy; He never lost any of his Time, in the way of Temptation: He never neglected any Occasion of gaining Experience, and perfecting himself in his Arts and Stratagems of soliciting and feducing unwary and inconfiderate Sinners. Let us learn here of the very Devil himself: Let us, who have lost much of our Time, be as laborious to redeem it to our benefit and advantage; as the Devil himself, who never omitted any Opportunity, consider'd as a Tempter, is industrious to improve it to our greatest damage and disadvantage.

The

Co

Saints

deeme

perie

No

and n

Age (*)

warn

else 1

Work

Fait

ving

beli

to b

and

men

offe

ma

hin

fai

^{*} Rev. 12. 12.

The third Motive.

Consider thirdly, how very notably many of the Saints and Servants of God have improved and redeemed their Time. Enoch * walked with God, and persevered in the Waies of God : 1 Before his Translation he had this Testimony, that he pleased God. Nogh was a just Man, and perfect in his Generations, and walked with God, in a very vicious and corrupt Age: was a pattern of Piety and Probity, and a () Preacher of Righteousness to a World of Sinners, warning them to amend their abominable Lives, or else that Vengeance would befall them: And he (1) prepared an Ark, and by his Obedience out of a principle of Faith and pious Fear, condemn'd the World of the Ungodly. Abraham was (1) the Father of all the Faithful, the great Example of Faith: He believed [] in Hope against Hope, having no natural grounds of Hope: And not only believed God's Promifes, but perform'd very high acts of Obedience to God: When God called him to his [k] + Foot, to go to and fro at his command, and as he should appoint him; [t] he obeyed, and went out of his Countrey, not knowing whither he went: And when he was tried, was [] ready to offer up his only Son, in whom the Promises were made to him; accounting that God was able to raise him up even from the Dead. () I know Abraham, saies God, that he will command his Children and his Houf-R

this?

Tober

lant : an be atchlat-

im-

rac-

rery

oro-

ded z'd

ual

ork

to

ule

ch

IS

ns

e-

is

t-

-

^{*} Gen. 5. 21, 24. † H b. n. 5. | Gen. 6. 9, 1',12.

^{(*) 2} Per. 2.5. (†) Heb. 11. 7. (||) Rom. 4 15.

^[6] Mr. Gataker supposeth this place to be meant of Cyrus.
[7] Gen. 12, 1, 4. [1] Heb. 11. 8. () Verse 17, 19.

Houshold after him, and they shall keep the Way of the Lord. Lot was a * just and righteous Man among a People monstrously wicked, and laid to heart the provoking I Sins of the time and place in which he lived; and believed that Judgment lingred not, but that the Judge stood before the door; and he took the Opportunity to warn his Sons-in-law prefently to flee from the Wrath approaching, though he || feemed to them as one that mocked. Job was () per-fect and upright, and one that feared God, and eschemeed Evil. He was not carried away with the Idolatry and unjust dealing of the Edomites, among whom he lived. As occasion required, he continually offered Sacrifices to God for his Children, out of fatherly Care of their spiritual Good, and as a means to keep them in the Favour of God: being jealous over them with a Godly Jealousie, lest at any time when they had featted together, they should have forgotten themselves, and offended God, in their featting and mirth. And he improved his afflictions as an opportunity of exerciting an exemplary (1) Patience. David was (11) a Man after God's own heart, and in ruling the People he did fulfil all God's Will : [] He served his own Generation by the Will of God, or, the Will of God in his own Generation. Holy Daniel was a Person devoted to God's true Worlhip and Fear, and given to Prayer. He could not content himself with a mental Devotion for a Month together, but when [] he knew the Writing was signed, instead of restraining vocal Prayer for thirty Daies, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day; and his Windows being

being o

fied C

thanks

teous

which

and t

Dang

in his

Zacha

dinam

ence t

ance t

in Go

with .

good

Alms

have fpen

(Act

bim/

towa

a B whe

bonr

fin

$100

tan

fid

^{} Gen. 18. 19. † 2 Pet 2. 7, 8. | Gen. 19. 14. () Job 1. 1, 5. (†) Verse 22. Jam. 5. 11. (|) Acts 13. 22. [*] Verse 36. [†] Dan. 6. 10.

being open in his Chamber toward Jerusalem, he glorified God with his Tongue, he prayed and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime : This righteous Man was * bolder than any Luon in the Den. which he was by his Enemies Envy and Malice, and the King's establish'd Decree, in apparent Danger to be speedily calt into, for his Constancy in his Religion, and the Integrity of his Devotion. Zachary and Elizabeth were both sincerely righteous before God, walking in all the Commandments and Ordinances of the Lord blameles; So, as their Obedience to God's Will, with God's merciful Allowance to human frailties, was fure to be acceptable in God's fight. The devout Cornelius feared God with all his House, and took every Occasion and good Opportunity of making Prayer, and giving Alms. (Acts 10. 2.) The swelve Tribes are faid to have served God instantly day and night; to have ipent their Time in Piety and Obedience to God. (Acts 26. 7.) And herein did St. Paul exercise mimself, to have alwaies a Conscience void of offence toward God, and toward Men. He who before was a Blasphemer, a Persecutor, and injurious, yet when the Grace of God was bestowed upon him, (*) laboured more abundantly than all the Apostles. [1]St. Aufin made much of his precious Time after his Conversion; R 2

* Prov. 28. 1. + Luke 1. 6. | Acts 24 16.

() I Cor. 15. 10.

Atque Episcopatus suscepto muito instantina ac serventina ubicunque rogatus, verbum salutus aterna alacriser praescabat. Pos-fidon, in vita August.

of the

mong

art the

he li-

, but

k the

ly to

h he

per-

chem

Ida-

nong

tinu-

Out

as a eing

t at

hey

ded

ro-

ing

1an

he

ie-

in

on zi-

th en

ed

08

^[1] Diem totum preestionibus, sacrificio, dostrina, disputationibus, audzendu causis, componendus listibus, confutandus hareticu dabat: nockie bonam partem sacrus lucubrationibus decidebat. — Ad docendum semper erat paratus, non aliter quam andus negotiator ad lucrum. Evasm. epitt. ad Archiep. Foletan, ante Opera Augustini.

version: he spent it ever after in reading, meditating, disputing, writing, watching, falting, prayer, and diligent preaching, in which he was more initant and tervent after he had taken the Office of a Bishop than ever he was before. 'Twas his usual wish, that Christ, when he came, might find him aut precantem, aut pradicantem, either praying, or preaching. The laborious Calvin did husband his time, and improve his hours to admiration. The learned [1] Whitaker gives this testimony of him; How much he wrote is known to all, faies he; But every Year he preached 286 Sermons, and read 186 Lectures, besides innumerable other Businesses and Employments. Even in the time of his Illnes, no Saying was oftener in his Mouth than this, [m] That an id'e Life was very grievous to him; when (as Melchior Adam speaks) his Brethren in the Ministry, even in their Health and Strength, might seem to be idle, compar'd with Calvin in his Sickness and Weakness. And when his Friends intreated him to abstain from dictating, especially from writing himself in his Sickness; he return'd them this Answer, [n] What, would you have the Lord to find me idle at his Coming? Yea, fo faving was he of that time which might be laid out for the good of the Church, that though the very Sight of Beza was alwaies pleafing and refreshing to him, yet when he came to visit him in his last Sickness, he would often fignify to him, his

[1] Tantos labores suft. nuit, ut sane mirandum sie, homulum unum tam multis rebus posusse suffe sufficere, &c. Whitak. Controvest. 2. q. 5 de notis Eccl c. 15. p. 536.

[m] Acerbam sibi esse vitam otio am; cum fratres interim ratentes pra sho otiosi videri possent. Melchior Adam in vita [n] Quid ergo, vultu me otiofum à Domino deprehendi? Id. i.s. p. 100.

[0]

him

plo

his

read

giv

per

Mar

Foh

four can

chi

tim

tal

Di

Bo

wh

Stu

ing

tec

er

the

ble

ev

fai

wa

Su

re

in

74

M

[o] that he could not in Conscience detain and hinder him from his more meighty Businesses and useful Employments. It is faid of Beza the Phanix of his Age, that the wrote Things worthy to be read, and did Things worthy to be written. Mr. Fox gives this notable Character of Mr. John Hogper the Martyr, that [p] he was spare of Diet, parer of Words, and parest of Time. Holy Mr. John Bradford [q] slept not commonly above four Hours in the Night: and in his Bed, till ileep came, his Book went not out of his Hand. chief Recreation was in no gaming or other paftime, but only in honest Company, and comely talk, wherein he would spend a little time after Dinner at the Board, and fo to Prayer and his Book again. He counted that Hour not well fpent, wherein he did not some good, either with his Pen, Study, or in exhorting of others. Preaching, reading and praying was all his whole Life. Many profited in Piety by his Society. Bp. Ridly, when a Pritoner in Oxford, in a Letter to Bradford breaks out into these pathetical Expressions; * O Good Brother, blelled be God in thee, and bleffed be the time that ever I knew thee! [r] Mr. Hugh Latimer was fo far from idling and loytering, that all King Edward's Daies he preached for the most part every Sunday twice. And this was fo much the more remarkable in him (as Mr.Fox observes)that he being a fore bruised Man by the Fall of a Tree, and above nedita-

pray-

s more ffice of s usual

nd him

ng, or nd his

him;

ut eve-

6 Lec-mploy-

aying

hat an lchior

en in

Com-

And

1 dic-

Sick-

bat.

ing?

ht be

ough

re-

1 in

nim,

his

lum

tro-

rim

vita

6 ?

The

[[]o] Sibi religionem esse, rel tantisum occupationes eius remorars. Id. ib. p. 107. † scisssert tegenda, & secret serbenda. Melch. Adam in ejus vit. p. 238.

[[]p] Acts and Mon. 2. V. p. 1366. [q] Idem ib. p. 1457. * 1567. [r] Id. ib. p. 1579.

Commendo volis veteranum is um Christi & nostra gentie Anglicana rerum Apostolum Hugonom Latimerum. Bp. Ridley's Letter to Mr. Grindal at Franssord, Id. ib. p. 1570.

67 Years of Age, took fo little ease, and care of fparing himfelf, to do the People good. He used indetatigable Travel and Diligence in his own private Studies, who not withft anding both his Years and other pains in Preaching, every Morning ordinarily, Winter and Summer, about two of the clock in the Morning, was at his Book most diligently. The learned Bishop Ridley usually [s] every Holy Day and Sunday preached in some one Place or other, except he were otherwise hindred by weighty Affairs and Buliness. He used all kinds of waies to mortify himself, and was given to much Prayer and Contemplation: Duely every Morning, as foon as he had put on his Apparel, he prayed upon his Knees in his Bed-chamber the space of half an Hour: from which, if Business did not interrupt him, he immediatly went to his Study, where he continued till ten of the clock, the Hour of Common-Prayer with his House-hold. An Hour after Dinner he returned to his Study, and there continued, except Suiters or Business abroad were occasion of the contrary, until five of the clock at night, the time of Evening-Prayer with his Family. An Hour after Supper he returned again to his Study, continuing there till eleven of the clock at Night: and then closed the Day with Prayer upon his Knees, before he lay down to take his relt. Being at his Mapor of Fulham, as divers Times he used to be, he read daily a Leiture to his Family at the Common-Prayer, beginning at the Acts of the Apostles, and to going throughout all the Epistles of St. Paul, giving to every Man that could reade a New Testament, hiring them besides with Money to learn certain principal

[s] IJ. ib. 1559.

pal C

hold

tacle

was

Vert

gave

his shou!

thou

that ufed

Dr.

hee

brea

Mo in S

fon

ful Ho

Wa

th

th

all

Sc

ſe

01

a

tl

pal Chapters by heart: reading also to his Household oftentimes the 101 Pfalm; being marvellous careful over his Family, that they might be a Spectacle of all Vertue and Honelty to others. As he was Godly and vertuous himself, so nothing but Vertue and Godliness reigned in his House. He gave this as a general Kule to his Kinsfok, yea, to his own Brother and Sifter, that they doing evil, should feek or look for nothing at his hand, but should be as Strangers and Aliens unto him: and that they should be his Brother or Sister, which used Honesty, and a good trade of Life. [r] When Dr. Cranmer was made Arch-Bishop of Camerbury, he evermore gave himself to continual Study, not breaking the order that in the University he commonly used: that is, by five of the clock in the Morning he was at his Book, and fpent his Time in Study and Prayer till nine of the clock: By reafon of other private Studies, and by means of useful proper Employments he was never idle, no Hour of the Day was spent in vain by him, but was fo bestowed as tended to the Glory of God, the Service of his Prince, or the Commodity of the Church. The excellent Bp. Juel read much, and wrote much, besides his publick Employment: Scarce any Year in all the Time of his Bishoprick paffed, wherein he published not some famous Work or At nine a clock at Night, he used to call all his Servants to an Account how they had spent that Day, and after Prayer to admonish them accordingly: Then he returned to his Study, where often he fate till after Midnight. * When he was very weak, a Gentleman meeting him as he was ri-

[1] Id. ib. p. 1590. *Dr. Ham br. in the Life of Bp. Jewel.

e of

used

pri-

ndo-

Win-

zing,

Bi-

nday

he

and tify

on-

he

ees

om

ne-

till ich

re-

pt

n-

of

er

g

n

-

ding to preach at Lacock in Wiltshire, earnestly defired him to return home for his health's fake, telling him that it was better the People should want one Sermon, than be altogether deprived of such a Preacher: To whom he replied, [u] That it best became a Bi-(hop to dy Preaching: alluding to that of Vespasian, [a] It becomes an Emperour to dy standing: and thinking upon his Master's Saying, * Bleffed is that Servant, whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find so doing. And presently after that very [b] Sermon, by reason of his Sickness encreasing upon him, he was forced to take his Bed, from which he never came off till his Soul quitted his frail Body, and was translated to everlatting Glory. He faid in his last Sickness, That seeing God had not granted his Defire to glorify him by facrificing his Life for the Defence of his Truth, yet he rejoiced that his Body was exhausted and worn away in the Labours of his holy Calling. It was the Motto of the pious and painful Mr. Perkins, that which he used to write in the Frontispiece of all his Books, Minister verbi es, hoc age: Thou art a Minister of God's Word, mind thy Work, and attend thy Business. It was also the Motto of [c] Mr. Samuel Crook, Impendam & expendar: I will spend and be spent. It was moreover the Motto of [d] Bp. Usher's Episcopal Seal, when he was Bishop of Meath, which he continued in the Seal of his Primacy also, Va mihi fi

[u] Oportet Episcopum concionantem novi.
[a] Oportet Imperatoren stantem mori.

[6] On Gal. 5 16. Walk in the Spirit.

non en

the C

and I

Mani

nolds

wher

fit hi

ed m

he b

nest

the S

Lea

lent

to fa

Im

of

all

vok

Pe

fo

m

vi

ſe

^{*} Mat 24. 46.

[[]c] His Lite among Mr Clark's Lives of 10 Eminent Di[[]d] Bp. Ufher's Life written by Dr. Bernard, p. 53.

non enangelizavero: Wo is unto me if I preach not the Gospel: All which they severally answer'd and made good in an eminent and very exemplary The learned and religious Dr. John Rainolds was so very careful to redeem the Time, that when the Heads of the Houses in Oxford came to vifit him in his last Sickness, which he had contracted merely by excessive Pains in his Study (whereby he brought his Body to be a very Sceleton) and earnestly perswaded him that he would not [v] lose the Substance for the Accidents, not lose his Life for Learning: He fmiling answered with those excellent Words of the Prince of Satyrists, [m] That to save his Life, he would not lose the Ends of living. I may well apply to [e] these Worthies those words of A Kempis, [x] These are given for an Example to all pious Persons, and should be more powerful to provoke us to profit well, than a number of lazy lukewarm Persons to draw us to Slackness and Remisness. Let us follow these fair and bright Exemplars, in the main of their tendency to teach us to live ferviceably to God, and usefully and profitably to our felves and others.

We have hitherto been ingentium Exemplorum parvi Imitatores (to use Salvian's Expression) small Imitators of great Examples. O how short do we come of many of the eminent Saints and faithful Servants of God, who redeemed their Time, and served

de-

tel-

her:

Bi-

lian,

and

that id so

on.

he

ver

and his

his De-

ex-

al-

ful

on-

hy

he 2771

as

al

n-

078

[[]r] Perdere substantiam propter accidentia.

[[]w] Nec propeer vitam vivende perdere caufa. Juv. fat. 8.

[[]e] Reade the Lives of Mr. Jose h Alkin, and Mr. John Janeway.

[[]x] Dati sant in exemplum omnibus Religiosis: & plus prorocare nos debent advene profi sendum, qu'au tepidorum numerus ad relaxandum. T. à Kempis, l. 1. c. 18, n. 4.

ferved their Generation by the Will of God, in former Ages! Yea, may not our own personal Knowledg, and particular Observation of the Labour and Diligence, Improvement and Growth of other Christians, put our selves to the blush? Many that have liv'd in the same Times and Places, in the same Parishes and Families with our selves; Many that have fate under the same Ordinances, enjoyed no better Means, received no greater Helps than our felves, have yet furpassed and excell'd us in the gracious Frame of their Hearts, out-strip'd and out-shined us in the Holiness and Exemplariness of their Lives. To what a pitch are others gotten? to what an height have they arriv'd and attain'd? What right apprehensions have they gotten of the Nature of God, and Undertaking of Christ, for the promoting of Holines? What a good Understanding of the Word of God? What Infight into the various Providences of God? What warm and good Affections, fuited to true Notions of Things? How have they proceeded in Knowledg, grown in Grace, profited in Experience, increased in Strength, abounded in Comfort? What Power have they gotten over their Corruptions, what Strength against Temptations? What Government of their Senses? What Command of their Passions? What Freedom and Enlargement, and Delight in Duties? How useful are they in their Places? How serviceable to God and their Generations? What Evidence have they gotten of the Goodness of their State, of the Truth and Sincerity of their Love to God, and of the special Love and Favour of God to them? What good grounds for their Hopes of Heaven and Happiness? How sit are they to live? How ready and prepared to dy? How meet to be Partakers of the Inheritance of the Saints in Light? Alas!

behin

other

other

Wor

a Gl

the

fame

wett

ed v

yet!

may

low

brin

Dre

OWN

Ho

fat

Mi

the

an ot

no

ot

ai

de

Alas! how far do we fall short of them, and come behind them? What Fools have we been, when others have been wife for their own Souls? When others shine as Lights, and as bright Stars in the World; are not we as dark as a Coal, or as dim as a Glow-worm? Are not we, who are planted in the fame Soil, dreffed and cultivated with the fame Hand, watered with the same River of God, wetted with the same heavenly Dew, and refreshed with the fame Droppings of the Sanctuary; yet notwithstanding as barren and as unsruitful as may be? when others of our Neighbours and Fellow-Christians do bear not only Leaves, but Fruit; bring forth Fruit in due Season, Fruit meet for the Dreffer, much Fruit, Fruit which will abound to their own account. We have been brought up in the fame House, we have suck'd at the same Breasts, and fate at the fame Table; We have eaten the fame Milk, the fame Meat; But we have not grown by the fincere Milk of the Word, we have not rellish'd and concocted the spiritual Food of our Souls as others have done: The Word of God's Grace has not been sweet unto our Taste, as it has been to others; We have not defir'd it, delighted in it, and received it in the Love of it, as others have done; and therefore we have not profited by the Word, we have not been nourished and strengthened by it, as others have been. Oh how much Leannes may be found in our Souls, when others are thriving and well-liking in the Eye of God and good Men? Others have excell'd and exceeded us: Our Fellow-Christians have out-shot us, out-grown us, out-run us, out-done us.

Themistocles professed he could not [a] sleep for think-

1 for-

now-

and hri-

have

Pa-

nave

tter

ves,

ions

ned

ves.

ght

of

ing

ro-

ns,

ey

ed

in

er

a-

at

m

W

0

e

e

^[4] Einer de san heil ein durde du ean to Mintalle Tes muior. Plataich, in vic. Thef. p. 3.

thinking of the Trophies of Miltiades: And when Julius Cafar was employed in Spain in the Office of a Quafter, or Judg in matters of Law. and coming to Cales beheld there the Image or Portraiture of Alexander the Great in the Temple of Hercules, [y] he was asham'd to think of his own Sloth, and fighed to consider, that as yet he had perform'd no memorable Act at those Years wherein Alexander had conquered the whole World: and prefently craved leave to depart, that so he might take the first Occasions of greater Actions in the City. So when we see and consider what others have afted at our Years, how others have done more good to their own Souls, more good to the Souls of their Relations, more spiritual good in their Families and Places of abode; have conquer'd their own Passions, subdued Temptations and Lusts, and been the means of bringing others into Subjection and Obedience to the Lord Christ; it may cause a more than ordinary Blush to arise in our Faces, if there be any Christian Blood in them.

O let others considerable Improvement and Proficiency quite shame us out of our Idleness, Negligence and Indiligence; and quicken and provoke us to Activity and Industry, in working the Work of God, and working out our Salvation with Fear and Trembling.

The fourth Motive.

Consider farther, That it is an Act of spiritual Wisdom to redeem the Time. Redeeming the Time is called a * walking in Wisdom; a walking † not as Fools.

Fools

they

Oil

groß

ted

too

to t hin

and

of

ny

fh

fo

ne

W

^[7] Ingemust: Equalipertalus sgnaviam ham, quòinihil dum à se memorabile act em est in atate qua sam elixander orbem terrarum subegisses, missionem continuò essagriavis, ad captandas quàm primum majorum rerum occasiones in arbe. Sueton, iu vit. Jul. Casaris, S. 7. * Coloss. 4. 5. † Eph. 5. 15.

Fools, but as Wife, in the Verse before my Text. they are commended for * wise Virgins, who took Oil in their Vessels with their Lamps.

And on the contrary, it is meer Madneß, and groß Folly, not to redeem the Time. They are noted for i foolish Virgins, who took their Lamps, and took no Oil with them. 'Tis Folly for a Merchant to trifle away the Time of his Trade. Solomon marks him for a || Fool, who has a Price in his Hand to get

Wisdom, and has no heart no use it.

What an odd and foolish Humour, what a weak and childish Carriage and Behaviour, what a vain and fruitless Practice and Employment was that of the Emperour [a] Domitian, to spend so many Hours in catching and killing Flies, when he should have been in the Senate-House, consulting for the good of the Commonwealth? Which occasioned Vibius Crissus, when a certain Person asked whether any one were within with Casar? to return this smart Answer, There is not so much as a Fly with him.

And how has the World fcorn²d and laughed at [b] Caligula? who when he drew out his Army on the Sea-shore, and made a Shew of War, on a suddain he only commanded his Souldiers to gather a company of Cockle-Shells, and to fill their Shields and Bosoms with them; affirming that they were

the

[b] Repente ut conchas legerent, gand que S sinus replerent, imperavit : Spolia Oceans vocans, Capstolio Palatioque debita.

1d, in vit. Caligula, $ 46.

And

in the

f Law.

lage or

emple

of his

yet he

Tears

orld:

fo he

tions

what

done

o the

d in

er'd

and

into

it

in

em.

ro-

zli-

148

of

nd

el le

28

^{*} Mat. 25. 4. † Verfe 3. | Prov. 17. 16.

^[4] Inter initia principathi, quoti is scretum sibi horarium summere solebat: nec quicquam amplisse quam musica captare, ac stylo praacuto configere: ut cui lam inter oganti, Estate qui musica cum Casare? non absurde esponsum sit a Vibio Crispo, Ne musica quidem. Id. in vic. Domitiani, § 3.

the Spoils of the Sea, and were due to the Capitol and Palace. So how contemptible in the Eyes of God and good Men do many Christians render themselves, by their toyish trilling Actions, and petry inconsiderable Employments, who were sent into the World about matters and Businesses of the greatest weight and moment?

. When a certain [c] Epicure made his Will, he bequeathed to his Player, to his Cook, to his Jefter, Talents and Pounds, but Philosopho obolum, an Haifpenny only to him that would have taught him Wif-And is not the Distribution of most Mens Time much after the same absurd Measure, and foolish proportion? What vast Portions of the rich Treasure of Time do they give and allow to senfual Pleasures and carnal Delights, and freely beflow and lavish out upon secular Affairs and worldly Employments? But if they part with any at all, alas how few Minutes, how very small and poor a pittance of Time is it, that they find in their Hearts to spare in a Day, a Week, a Month, a Year, yea, in a whole Life-time, to God and Religion, and the Needs and Concerns of their own Souls?

The Reverend [d] Bp. Joseph Hall relates a very remarkable Story out of [e] Bromiard, of a certain Lord in his Time that had a Fool in his House, to whom the Lord gave a Staff, and charg'd him to keep it till he should meet with one that was more Fool than himself; and it he met with such an one, to deliver it over to him. Not many Years after this Lord falling sick even unto Death, his Fool came

to

[e] Summa Pradicantium.

to fee

must

thou

his L in a l

then

thou at all

for (

thou

shalt ty of

bere

to n

mac Inh

fade

cert

to a

the

cor

on

^[4] Dr. Lightfoot, f.rm. on Pf.sl. 4. 4. p. 20.
[4] Bp. Hall's itemains, or, Shaking of the Olive-tree, Serm. on 1 Pet. 1. 17 p. 226.

to fee him, and was told by his fick Lord that he must now shortly leave him: And whither wilt thou go said the Fool? Into another World, said his Lord: And when wilt thou come again? within a Month? No: Within a Year? No: When then? Never: Never? And what Provision hast thou made for thy Entertainment there whither thou goest? None at all: No, said the Fool, none at all? Here, take my Staff: Art thou going away for ever, and hast taken no order nor care how thou shalt speed in that other World whence thou shalt never return? Take my Staff, for I am not guilty of any such Folly as this.

And truly they that here neglect to provide for hereafter, to lay up a durable Treasure in Heaven, to make sure of a Building of God, an House not made with Hands, eternal in the Heavens; of an Inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in the Heavens; shall certainly be branded and upbraided for their Folly to all Eternity.

pital

s of

and fent

the

he

ter,

Is-

ens

600-

ch

n-

e-9(

d-

ul,

ts

a,

d

What Folly is it to count the one thing needful the only needless thing? What Folly and Madness to part with Heaven for uncertain Riches, and corruptible Wealth, or a few merry Hours here on Earth?

What a shameful Folly is it, when the * Stork in the Heaven knoweth her appointed Times, and the Turtle, and the Crane, and the Swallow observe the Time of their coming; for Men and Christians not to discern and understand the gracious Seasons and special Opportunities of their particular Duties?

What grand and gross Folly is it, for Men to have but ^{*} Jer. 8. 7.

but one Life's Time of necessary Preparation for eternal Life, and to live and dy in a total, wilful, desperate Neglect of it?

Yea, to have but one small part of Time to do all that ever they can do for their own and others eternal Weal, and to spend this little Portion of Time in increasing their own and others Sins, and in destroying their own and others Souls? What prodigious, stupendious Folly is it, to be weary of that which flies away too fast, and cannot be recall'd; and to use Arts and Devices to pass that Time away in Vanity, which can only be spent profitably and comfortably in a daily diligent Provision for Eternity? What abfurd and ridiculous Folly is it (a very heathen [e] Philosopher being Judg in the Case) for Men to be so far from suffering others to possess themselves of their Manours or Farms, or in the least to encroach and gain upon their Bounds; and yet to permit them to enter upon their Time, nay themselves to induct them into the Possession of it? For those that are fo wary, as never to divide their Money among amy, yet to be so ready to distribute their Time to so very many? For those that are very strait and hard in keeping of their Patrimony, when once it comes to the spending of their Time to be extreamly lavish and [f] wasteful of that, of which only we can be honestly coverous?

Once more, What miserable unhappy Folly is it in the most of Men, to throw away their Time slightly and carelessly, profusely and prodigally, and yet to be impatiently troubled, and even distracted and tormented when all is gone? Which aptly leads me to the fifth Motive.

The

Co

ter

fo

[[]e] Sen, de brev. vit. c. 3. [f] Profußsims in eo, cujus unius honesta avaritia est. Id. ibide m.

The fifth Motive.

Consider moreover, that if now thou losest and fquanderest away thy Time, thou wilt at last be forced thy self to condemn thy foolish Negligence, and to justify the Care and Diligence of others, that were wifer for their own Souls than thy self; though here thou didst nothing but jeer and deride them, scorn and scoff at them.

As Dionysius on his Death-bed, when he heard Thales discoursing notably about the Nature and Excellency of Moral Philosophy, [a] cursed his Pastimes, Sports and Pleasures that had taken him off and diverted him from the Study of so worthy a Subject; So will careless Sinners and loose Livers, when Death approaches, and Conscience accuses, loudly exclaim against all their foolish sensual Delights, which turn'd off their Minds from weightier Matters, and hindred their Acquaintance with better Things, and their living to higher and nobler Purposes in the World.

The Heathen Moralist could observe thus much, That Persons prodigal of their Time at present, at last [b] cry out upon themselves for Fools, that they have not liv'd any part of the Time they have been in the World.

And it is a notable Place, and remarkable Paffage to this purpose, which we find in the fifth Chapter of the Book of Wisdom, the third and fourth Verses; They repenting and groaning for anguish

for e-

o all

rs e-

Time

de-

pro-

that l'd;

e a-

ably

for

s it

the

to

the

yet

ves

nat

00 ry

272

he

163 lly

10

7,

e

[[]a] Virtutem videant, intabifca nque relielà.

[[]b] fluitos se fuisse, qued non vixe int, clarations. S.n. de beev. vit, c. 11.

'Tis therefore a seasonable good Premonition that is given by a pious Person, [c] When thy last How shall draw near, thou wilt then begin to have quite other sentiments, and vastly different Apprehensions of thy whole Life past; and wist grieve and mourn exceedingly that thou hast continually been so remis and negligent.

When you come to die, you will be ready to cry out with Crasu, Solon, Solon, who had before time taught him of Blessedness without regard: You will then be apt in like manner to say, Such and such a Minister did frequently and faithfully tell me my Duty and my Danger; Such and such a Friend dealt plainly with me, and well advis'd and counsel'd me; but, Fool that I was, I would hear no Instruction, I would receive no Admonition, I would bear no Reproof, I would take no warning.

How strangely will you shortly be astonished at the impartial Review of your unexcusable Ill-husbandry of all the Time in this World allotted you? What wounding, heart-renting, revengeful Self-reflections

will

will gains

your

Horre

unde

ber,

vainl

Year

Grad

and

and

utte

with וכקש tand

her

dre

bei

fy !

YO

Ca

m

be an

of

ev

of

fo

Si

[[]c] Quando ila extrema hera vene it, multum aliter sentire incipies de tora vita tua praterita: & valde dolebu, quia tam negligens & remissus suisti. Thom, a Kempis, l. 1. c. 23. n. 3.

will you fuffer? What passionate violent Rage against your selves will you be forced to feel within your selves? What bitter Anguish, and desperate Horrour will you unavoidably and irrefiftibly fall under, when you fadly recount, and too late remember, how inconsiderately and unwartly, loosly and vainly you have passed your Time, and spent your Years here on Earth; what golden Seasons of Grace you have loft; and fcorn'd, and dishonour'd, and abused all that would not act the Parts of Fools and Mad-men, like your felves? When you have utterly lost, and fully and finally undone your selves, with what Gripes and Groans will you then look back upon all the Means and Mercies, Helps and Affiftances, Opportunities and Advantages which here you enjoyed, but slighted and undervalued, dream'd, and fool'd, played, and finned away; being only concern'd for things of nought, and bufy in doing worse than nothing? What a pain and torture will it be to consider, that when you know you have had fufficient Discretion and exceeding Care, Prudence and Providence enough, and more than enough, in other Matters, you should be dull and liftlefs, fluggish and fottish, wanting and defective in the only commendable necessary point of Wisdome? A Man's falling out with himself for ever, the sharp Rebukes and cutting Upbraidings of a Man's own Conscience, and Self-condemnation for former Folly and Madness, will certainly be no small part of the dreadful intolerable Torments of Hell.

The fixth Motive.

Sixthly and lastly; Consider once more; That do what we can to redeem our Time, we shall never re-was he verb of

B, and red ang the

erfes :

s, and

of the

profi-

inting

that

Hour

quite gions

ourn

and

ime

will

6 4

my

alt

l'd

IC-

ar

he

pent at last of any Care we have had to redeem it; but shall certainly blame and find fault with our selves for being so careless of our Time, so negligent of good Opportunities as we have been.

1. Good Men do often in their Life-time confeß and condemn their Loß and Neglect of their precious Time.

That it was so long before they began to redeem it. St. Austin very much laments his coming in to Christ no sooner. [a] Twas late, Lord, before I knew thee, the true Light, (says he) alas! I knew thee but late.

And that they have redeem'd it no better, fince first they went about it. The devout St. Bernard, who was so rarely pious a Person, and so continually given to divine Meditation, yet bewails most sadly, and complains most passionately of his spiritual Backwardness and Uuproficiency: [b] O my God, my whole Life makes me assaid, says he, for is I diligently examine it, that which appears to me in it is either Sin or Barrenness. And again; I cumber the Ground as a barren Tree, says he, and as a base Beast I waste and consume more than I prosit. I am assamid to live, because I prosit solitile, and I'm assaid to dy, be[a] Sero te cognovi lumen verum, sero te cognovi. -- Vava praterita ignorantia nea, quando non cognosebam te, Domine, -- Serò cognovi te veritas antiqua, sero te cognovi veritas atcrna. Aug Soliloq. c. 23.

Tanguam arbor sterilu terram occupo, & velut jumentum rile plus consumo quam proficio, Vivere erubesco, quia parum proficio; mori timeo, quonsam non sum paratuu. 1d. ib. c. 35. becan

ning

but m

being

Crook

pen'o

he ft

niter

τωλ

has l

of h

felf

a le

roho

The

Wo

Ia

flon

Lo

kno

mi

tio

L

th

77

1

[[]b] Terret me tota vita mea Deus mess, quoniam diligenter discussa apparet mili aut peccatum, aut sterilitas: --- Sic comedo, bibo, & dormio securus, quast sam transferim diem mortu, E evaserim diem judicii, & tormenta instrui. Sic ludo C rideo, quast sam regnem tecum in regno tuo. Bernard. de interiori domo, c. 33.

it; but lves for l Oppore conprecious oming d, befince

nard, tinumost fpio my or if the Reast m'd dy, dy, be-

Sic or-

i .

er-

because I am unprovided. Erasmus prosessed concerning himself, [d] They accuse me for doing too much, but my own Conscience accuses me for doing too little, and being too slow. It is [e] reported of Mr. Samuel Crook, that whensever his Preaching-day happen'd upon Januar. 17. (which was his Birth-day) he still noted his Years compleat, with this Penitential Epiphonema, δοεδς ιλάδητη μοι το άμας-τωλώ, God be merciful to me a Sinner.

An Eminent Divine of our own, yet living, who has laboured [f] more abundantly than the most of his Brethren in the Ministry, yet expresses himfelf in fuch humble Self-reflections as these; For [g] my own part, fays he, though I have long liv'd in a sense of the Precionsness of Time, and have not been wholly idle in the World; yet when I have the deepest Thoughts of the great everlasting Consequents of ny Work, and of the Uncertainty and Shortness of my Time, I am even amazed to think that my Heart can be for flow and senseles, as to do no more in such a case. The Lord knows, and my accusing wounded Conscience knows, that my Slothfulness is so much my shame and admiration, that I am aftonished to think that my Refolutions are no stronger, my Affections no livelier, and my Labour and Diligence no greater, when God is the Commander, and his Love the Encourager, and his Wrath the Spur, and Heaven or Hellmust be the Issue. Let who will freak against such a Life, it shall be my dai-

[e] His Lite in Mr. Clark's Collect, of the Lives of ten Em.

[e] Mr. Baster's Now or Never, p. 181, 182.

[[]d] Accusant quol in mium sicerim; werk n confesentia mea me accusat quol minus secerim, quolque lentior sucrem.

Div. p. 37.

[f] I refer to the better Works of him that labours more abundantly than us all. [Mr. Baster] in the Margin of Dr. Patrick's Aqua Gentality p. 75, in 12.

ly grief and moan, that I am so dull, and do so little. And in another [h] Discourse he makes this free and open acknowledgment; For my self, says he, as I am ashamed of my dull and careless Heart, and of my slow and unprositable course of Life; so the Lord knows, I am ashamed of every Sermon that I preach: When I think what I have been speaking of, and who sent me, and that Mens Salvation or Damnation is so much concerned in it; I am ready to tremble, lest God should judg me as a Slighter of his Truth, and the Souls of Men, and lest in the best Sermon I should be guilty of their Blood.

The Trees of Righteousness are apprehensive of their own Unfruitfulness, troubled at it, mourn under it, and use themselves to such holy Breathings as that of [i] Mr. Herbert,

O that I were an Orange-tree, That busy Plant!
Then should I ever laden be,
And never want
Some Fruit for him that dressed me.

Serious, considerative Christians do blame themfelves for their Loss of Time even in their Life-time: But,

2. They are especially sensible of it, and exceedingly ashamed of themselves for it at their Death.

They

Chri

to d

of t

men

that

Stric

rity

for

Acti

dem

and

Sand

ful

oth

Lif

tha cei

Say

ha

cel

Sic

[l pi

111 fc

[[]b] Making light of Christ and Salvation, Consideration 3.

They that have been the most busy stirring Christians all their Life-time, when they come to die do repent of their Latiness, blush to think of their spiritual Slothfulness, bewail and lament their Carelefness and Negligence. They that have been the Wonders of the World for Strictness and Preciseness, Singularity and Severity of holy Living; that have been admired for their Usefulness, Industry, Diligence and Activity, yet when they lay a dying, have condemned themselves, censured their past Lives, and earnestly wished, O! that they had been a thoufand times more holy and religious, more painful and laborious for God, and their own and others Souls. Melchior Adam relates in [k] the Life of the Learned and holy Theodore Beza, that when he was very aged, and plainly perceived his approaching End, he often used that Saying of St. Austin, Din vixi, din peccavi: I have lived long, I have finned long. The excellent and useful Philip de Mornay, in his last Sickness said to the Minister that assisted him, [1] I have a great Account to make, having received much, and profited little. So the painful and pious Dr. Robert Harris, when a Friend told him in his Sickness, Sir, you may take much comfort in your Labours, you have done much good: His little.

[6] Pag. 235.
[7] In his Life contracted and translated out of French by Mr. Edward Stern Fellow of P. Hall in Cambridg: among Mr. Clark's Lives, p. 74. fol.

free

fays

leart,

3 50

that peak-

ulva-

; 1

e as

Men,

heir

of

un-

s as

His Answer was; [m] Oh! I am an unprofitable Servant, I have not done any thing for God as I ought; Loss of Time sits heavy upon my Spirit: Work, work apace; Affure your selves nothing will more trouble you when you come to dy, than that you have done no more for God, who has done so much for you. Yea, the Reverend and holy Bp. Usher, a most laborious and sedulous Servant of God, a Prodigy of Industry, a Person that never was known to lofe an Hour, but was ever employed in his Master's Business, either praying, preaching, studying, writing, reading, or hearing others reade to him; either resolving of Doubts, or exhorting, instructing, giving good, wholfome and holy Counfel to fuch as came to visit him: yet (as [n] Dr. Bernard relates in his Life) the very last Words that ever he was heard to utter in praying for Forgiveness of Sins, were these; But, Lord, in special forgive my Sins of Omifion.

If the choicest Saints on Earth, the faithfullest Servants of God in the World, who have furpassed and transcended us by many Degrees, do close and end their Lives with an humble Confellion, and earnest Petition for Forgiveness and Pardon of their Sins of Omission; Surely then we have reason to conclude, that we our selves, do what we can, shall repent at last of doing too little, and not repent and complain of having done too much.

And if those that have well redeem'd their Time complain, especially at the Hour of Death, that they have have l carele

Confe

they

and t

and 1

and I

horr

Dut

recti

tor

[[]m] In his Life written by Mr. W. Durham. p. 55, 56. [n] Pag. 110.

have lost too much of it; What a case then will the careless negligent World be in, when their sleepy Consciences shall be roused and awakened, and they be hastened and hurried out of this World, and their Souls and Bodies shall be just a parting, and they shall look behind them upon an idle, loose and lazy Life, and look before them upon a dreadful, horrible, terrible Judgment?

I have done with the Motives to press you to the Duty: In the next place I shall give you some Directions, which may be so many Means to help you to regain the Time, and redeem the Opportunity. Take these twelve following.

CHAP.

able

as [rit:

you

nuch

her,

od,

was ng, ar-

of

ch re-he of my

CHAP. VII.

Direction (1.) If ever we would redeem the Time, we must endeavour to be throughly convinc'd of the great value and real worth of Time; In respect of the Price paid for it: In regard of the use and end to which it serves: Considering what precious Thoughts the more improved Heathens had of Time: And what damned Spirits, and dying Perfons who have not made their Peace with God, think of Time. Direct. (2.) If we would well redeem the Time, we must often examine our selves, and call our selves to a serious strict Account for the spending of our Time. This was the Precept of Pythagoras, and Cicero; and the Practice of Sextius, Seneca, and Titus Vespasian. Direct. (3.) That we may rightly redeem our Time, let Conscience have some Authority with us, and procure some reverence from us. Stand much in aw of thy own Conscience, which will either acquit and absolve thee, or surely judg and condemn thee. Direct. (4.) If ever we would redeem the Time, we must live and ait, and do every thing as in the fight and presence, and under the eye and inspection of God. The apprehension of God's all-seeing, all-searching Eye, will be of excellent Use and Advantage to us at 4 times especially; 1. Actually consider that God sees you, when you ordinarily visit one another, and at any time feast and make merry together. 2. When Buying or Selling, remember you are manifest in God's Sight, that God stands by and sees your dealings, 3. Consider this in your secret Retirements, and in your

the der

fel

ar

bi

your private Families. 4. Whenever we come to the publick Worship of God, let us seriously consider, that we stand in his Presence, and are in his eye. Direct. (5.) That we may wifely redeem the Time, let's be sure to propound a good end to our selves in all our Actions; and do nothing deliberately, but what we can safely and freely, warrantably and comfortably ask God's Affistance in, and Bleffing upon, when we go about it. Direct. (6.) We must be sure to give our selves to Prayer, as a special way in which, and principal means and helpby which we may redeem and improve our Time aright. And here 1. Be careful to keep up fet and stated times of Prayer: of secret Prayer, and Family-Prayer. 2. Be ready to betake thy self to Prayer, upon special, extraordinary, emergent Occasions. 3. Use thy felf to frequent, Suddain, ejaculatory Prayers to God. This is the Priviledg of Ejaculation, that it is a gaining of Time for the Exercise of Religion, without any prejudice or hindrance to your Calling. Direct. (7.) We must set our selves to the frequent diligent reading, and serious studying of the sacred Scriptures. For 1. This is a gaining and making advantage of all that Time past which the Scripture gives us the History and Account of. 2. Our reading the holy Books of Scripture, is a well improving the present time that is imployed in this religious Duty: for, 'tis an honouring of God; and a means of attaining divine Knowledg, heavenly Grace, and firitual Comfort. 3. It is moreover a means and help to the right redeeming of our Time for the future. Direct. (8.) If we would effectually redeem the Time, we must give our selves to frequent and serious Meditation. Set some Time apart for this Duty. Think of the 4 last things especially; 1. Of Death; of the Day of thy own particular Death,

we

reat

the

1 to

lous

l of

er-

bink

em

and

the

y-

ti-

(.)

re

by

ve

.)

nd

e,

0-

ill

25

Death, and of the Time of the General Dissolution of this World. 2. Of the Day of Judgment. 3. Of the Joys of Heaven, 4. Of the Torments of Hell. Direct. (9.) If you would redeem the Time, you must labour to spiritualize even your ordinary worldly Employments; and must take care that your natural, as well as civil, Actions partake of Religion. Direct. (10.) If we would wifely redeem the Time, we must make a good Choice of our Friends and Acquaintance, and a good Improvement of our Company and Society with them. Direct. (11.) We must remember and consider, perform and answer our solemn Sacramental Vows, and Sick-bed-Promises and Resolutions. Direct. (12.) Lastly; If we would redeem the Time, we must not give way to any Delay, but strengthen and settle our Resolution against any farther procrastination.

The First Direction.

I F ever we would redeem the Time, we must endeavour to be throughly convinced of the great Value, and real Worth of Time. Confider,

1. How precious Time is in respect of the Price paid for it: That our Time was bought into our Hands, not with corruptible Things, as Silver and Gold, but with the precious Blood of Christ: for, we had forseited our very Lives; and space for Repentance is the Fruit of the Death of Christ. Consider,

2. How precious Time is in regard of the Use and End to which it serves: how Time bringeth Advantages with it, for the compassing of the greatest Undertakings, and for the perfecting of those that are most imperfect. Time is not an empty Duration: God hath filled Time with Helps to Exer-

nity,

tok

ther

wa

Yo

nee

me ans

Gim

fer

tir

an

in

m

th

to

N

n

nity, and with Means sufficient to know him the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent, whom to know is Life eternal. Consider,

3. What precious Thoughts the more improved Heathens had of Time. [a] Pliny seeing his Nephero walk for his Pleasure, called to him, and faid, You might have found somewhat else to do, you needed not have lost your Hours thus. It is the Commendation given by Alian of the old Lacedsmonians, that they [b] were exceeding frugal and parsimonious of their Time, taking care to employ it in ferious urgent Businesles, not allowing or permitting any Citizen to waste and consume it in Idleness and Sloth; or vainly to throw it away, by fpending it on fuch Things as did not at all appear to minister to any Vertue: For a Testimony of which the Historian gives this Instance; That when it was told the Ephori, that the People of Decelia did use to walk in the Afternoons; those vigilant, diligent Magistrates presently fent to them, to prohibit their customary Walking meerly to take their Pleasure: For they reckon'd, [c] it became the Lacedemonians to get and preserve good Health, not by taking fuch idle Recreations, but by giving themselves to some profitable Exercises, which might train and fit them for publick Use and Service. Were they fo thrifty only for the Profit and Commodity of their City? And shall not we make much of our Time, be sparing and faving of our Hours, that we may employ them in the Worship and [a] Poteras hasce horas non serdidisse.

ution

. Of

Hell.

nary

that

e of

re-

our

ve-

Di-

per-

and

2.)

not

our

ut

at

ce

r

d

2

r

^[6] Mnderi નથી πολιτών ο οπτέξεποντες, μήτε εμερονέυοιν μήτε εμβομείν είς ἀυτόν. Ο c.

and Service, to the Honour and Glory of our God; for the Safety and Welfare of our immortal Souls, and the securing to our felves a celestial City, and an heavenly Country? The judicious Plutarch acknowledges, that [d] Time is of all the most costly Expence. The considering and understanding Seneca was more fensible than many of the Worth of Time; had himself appretiating Thoughts of it, and reproves the common Sort of Men for their great Ignorance of the Precionfness and Usefulness of it. I am apt to wonder, says he, when I hear some Men ask others to spend their Time, and bestow their Hours on them; and observe those that are thus ask'd to be so easy to part with theis Time to them: [e] 'Tis ask'd as a very small matter, and given away as if it were worth nothing: Men plainly play with the most precious Thing that is: But this deceives them, fays he, That Time is an incorporeal Thing, and cannot be perceived with bodily Eyes, and is therefore made of little reckening, or no account with them. And in his first Epistle he thus complains to his Friend Lucilius; [f] Where will you find me a Man, fayshe, that sets a due Price, a right and true Estimate and Value upon his Time?

Most Men are careful of an Hour-Glass, but careless of their Hours. Men throw away their Time, because they have mean and low Thoughts of it: They know not the Worth of this fewel, and therefore they are easily cheated of it, and are ready to part with it upon the cheapest terms.

Many

[d] Πολυπελές πον ανάλωμα χον . Plut.

[f] Quem mihi dabis, q si aliqued pretsum tem ori ponat? que diem affinet? Sen. ep. 1.

Man

fest

ciou

Rat

lean

wan Tii

Me

gre

dar

no

Co

flig

gu

tu

us

ne

m

ri

[[]e] Quali mint petetur, quali urel datur : re omnium pretiofi ma lutieur. Ge de brev, vit. c. 8.

Many Christians may learn of some of the wifest Heathens not to make light of their precious Hours, but to value their Time at an higher Rate.

4. Let those that yet have Time in their hands, learn to prize it, by considering, how those that want it judg of it. They that have quite lost their Time, Oh! what would they give to redeem it? Men too commonly little think that Time is of any great Value: I am sure the most of us live as if we did not believe so. But I pray consider, what damned Spirits, and dying Persons, who have not made their peace with God, think of Time.

Confider,

our

rtal

Ci-Plunost

ing

rth

of for

fe-

I

eat 10

Ti-

ay

ies

nd

en.

is

n,

1-

(1.) What precious Thoughts lost damned Souls have of Time, who fuffer such extremity of Misery for flighting and abusing it. What would not they give, if it were possible, for our Time and Opportunities, and those Seasons of Grace which we enjoy, but do not improve; which God indulgeth to us, but we are not thankful for, nor careful of? What would not they offer, or yield to, to have a new Price put into their hands, to have farther advantages of redeeming Time? Could they be admitted to live in this World again, and to act here another Part; would they ever grudg to do any spiritual Duty? would they ever think any religious Exercise tedions? would they be tired at a Sermon, or weary of a Prayer? would not they be willing to pray every Day; till they were even hourse again; to pray till their Knees were as hard as the Boards upon which they kneel'd? Would not their Heads be Fountains of Waters, and would not they be ready to weep out their very Eyes in the Confession of their Sins? Could they be releas'd and refor'd, would they be any more afraid to relift the TempTemptations of a carnal Friend, to refuse an enfnaring Invitation, to deny a Cup immodestly preffed, and unfeafonably urged; to reprove a bold and daring Sinner, and to own and fide with God and Religion in any Company what foever? With what undaunted Courage and Resolution would they be forward to bear Witness against the reigning Sins, and common Vices of the World? With what Force and Violence would they endeavour to take the Kingdom of Heaven? and how would they labour to lead others into, and to help them on in the Way to Heaven? How would they speak with yearning Bowels of tenderest Compassions to the Souls of their finful Friends and Relations, and feek the Conviction, Conversion, and Salvation of the fenfual, worldly, careless, ungodly Neighbourhood round about them? How would every Word that proceeded out of their Mouths be Heartdeep? How patiently would they continue in well doing, to make fure of an endless glorious Happiness? And how contentedly would they endure, and cheerfully fuffer any thing here, to escape the intolerable eternal Torments of Hell, and to fly from the Wrath to come? Consider further,

(2.) What high and precious Thoughts a dying Man, who has not made his Peace with God, has of

Time ?

The fore-mentioned raised Philosopher well obferves the different Judgments and Affections of Men, in the course of a pleasurable Life, and under apprehensions of the Nearness of Death. When Men think they have Time enough, they have no regard of Time, but are extreamly prodigal of it:

UMI

it:

he;

ing a

their

leng

read

if,

may

tren

main

then

the

at Wl

to

her

fpe

Par

Inf

Ch

in I

W

liv

Ta

the

S

it: [g] But look on these Men when they are sick, says he; If they appear in any danger of Death, you shall find them courting and crouching to Physicians, and bowing down to their very Knees, begging the Use of their Art and Skill, to prolong their Daies, and lengthen out their Lives. Or if they fear they shall suffer capital Punishment, you shall see them ready to lay out all to save their Lives. But if, as the Number of every ones past Years may be reckoned, so, the Number of those that are to come could be assigned, [h] How would they tremble, saies he, that should see but a few remaining, and how apt would they be to be sparing of them?

Surely they, that have all their Lives made it their Business to drive away their Time, would at their Deaths give all the World to redeem it. What would the dying Husband give for Time to fpend more spiritually with his Wife? the dying Wife for Time to spend more holily with her Husband? the dying Master, for Time to fpend more godlily with his Family? the dying Parent, for Time to spend in a more religious Institution, and conscientious Education of his Children? a dying Neighbour, for Time to spend in more profitable Converse with those about him? Would he intend to spend his Time, if he could live longer, in tempting his Neighbour to the Tavern or Ale house, to drinking, or gaming, or the like !

T

If

guamodo ellis parcerent ? Id. Ib.

en-

pref-

bold

God Vith

they

ning

Vith

r to

ould

hem

eak

to

and

ion

gh-

ery

art-

ve!l

pi-

re,

ape

ind

ır-

ing

of

b-

er,

en no of

:

[[]g] At coldem agros vide, si mortis periculum admotum est propius, medicorum genya tangentes. Sen. de biev.vit e 8. [h] Quemodo ili qui pancos vidirent su cresse, trepidarent,

If Gcd would but lengthen out fuch a Person's Daies, and afford him but a little more Space to amend his Life, and to lay hold on eternal Life; he would thankfully accept of it upon the hardest Conditions: He would be content to be the poorest Beggar in the Street, and to live a mean and outwardly miserable Life as long as he liv'd. just now departing out of this World, and immediatly going to his own Place; and if Time were now to be redeem'd, what would not the most vo-Inpruone Man be willing to do or suffer? What would not the most coverous Man be ready to part with for the purchasing of it? What would not he give for [i] that Time, which some of you, it may be, spend and throw away in Dainking, Gaming, Carding, Diceing, in Romances and Stage-Plaies, in idle foolish Pattimes, in Jeering and Jesting, and carnal finful Merry-making? To what excellent Uses would he resolve to put his Hours, if he could enjoy any more of them? If God would grant him but one Year of Trial more, how little would he defign to give to the World, and the Flesh; and how much to God, and Godliness, and the Offices and Exercises of pure Religion and undefiled? How would fuch an one purpose and promise to resist Temptations, to thun all Occasions and Appearances. of Evil, carefully to provide for his immortal Soul,

Sou

ftri

ly t

out

con

to i

ven

Ti

Sec.

ftia

for

her

ufe

pro

fec

tif

WI

WI

Pa

W

m te

th

ra

ta

to

a

a

21

^[1] Constera quam mu'ti modo miniuntur: quibus si hac hora ad agendum paintentiam conceneratur, qua tibi concessa si, quomodo per alturia. T qua a si stinanter currenent, T ibi sientia genibus, vel cer è toto corpore in terram prestruto, tamdus pinsureres plotarent Totare t, donec plenissium peccatorum ren an à Des consequis mercientur? Tu veto consedendo, bibendo, jocanco, T rideado, tempus occisè vivendo perdin, quod tibi indusferat Deus ad acquivendam gratiam, T ad promerendam gliriam. Bernard, de interiori domo, c. 63.

Soul, diligently to study the facred Scriptures, strictly to observe the whole Lord's-Day, attentively to hear the Word preach'd, both in Scason, and out of Scason; frequently to meditate of it, and constantly to frame and order his Life according to it; to pray with his Family devoutly and fervently, morning and evening; to sp. nd some Time every Day with God, and himself, in secret: to make the purest and precisest Christians his constant Factoris and Examples; and for the stute to sollow and imitate those, whom heretoiore he hated and derided, nick named and abused.

erfon's

ce to a-

Life;

bardeft

poorest

d out-

He is

imme-

e were

Oft vo-

would ith for ve for fpend.

rding,

n idle

car-

Uses

d en-

him

e de-

and offices

How

Tem-

ances.

ortal Soul,

ec hoa est.

bi fiemdin

orum

iben-

desbi

When once Men ly a dying, and the near Approach of their latter End does awaken their fleepy fecure Consciences, and make the most stupid fottish Sinner begin now to be truly sensible and serious; with what æliuations and perturbations of Mind, with what anguish and akings of Heart, with what Pangs and Agonies, and fearful Tremblings; with what doleful Accents, and paffionate, piercing, moving, melting Expressions, do they lament and berail their waiteful Mis-spence, and miserable Loss of all the Time of God's most patient Trial of them, and of all their special golden Seasons, and rare Advantages and Opportunities? When they take their leave of all about them, how earnestly and importunately do they exhort and urge them to be better husbands of their Time and Talents? How pathetically and feelingly do they then advise and counfel their Children and Servants, Friends and Relations, Neighbours and Acquaintance, to number their Daies, to lead good Lives, to improve their Health and Strength for God, and their own and others Souls; and timely to prepare for Death and Judgment?

Let's

Let's consider, some of us, who have thought fometimes that the Sentence of Death has past upon us, and have look'd on fuch or fuch a Sickness as our last Arrest and Summons, what would we then have disbursed for a Reprieve? Would we not have , given, with Hand and Heart, an House full of Silver and Gold, if we had had it, to have been fure to have lived another Year, for the proving and evidencing the Truth and Sincerity of our Faith and Repentance, by a course of Obedience, and our making a larger and furer provision for our comfortable Reception and happy Entertainment in the other World? Friends, we shall ere long be all of us plac'd upon our Death-beds: and if we make no matter of Time now, if we won't value and prize it now, we shall then fure enough highly prize it, when alas! it will be too late. And if we now have worthy thoughts of it, we shall fuffer nothing to rob and deprive us of it. [k] Let's be of the same mind and judgment now in our Health and Strength, that we shall certainly be of in Sickneß and Weakness; and not contemn and vilify that in our Life time, which we shall wish we had worthily esteemed, and well-improved, at the Hour of Death.

The

1 ten

Y101

uno

ano

and [6

tua

acc

the

a ·

th

qu

ta

CC

pl

in

of

OI

ha

⁽b) Quan felix & prudens, qui talis nunc nititur effe in reta, qualis optat inveniri in morte. Thomas a Kempis, lib. 1. c. 22. n. 4.

Hic est apex summa sapsentia, ea viventem sacere, qua movi enti estent appetenda.

The fecond Direction.

If we would well redeem the Time, we must often [a] examin our selves, and call our selves to a serious strict Account for the spending of our Time.

Alas! too many earnestly study to know and understand all things but themselves: They observe and take notice of other Mens Tempers and Humours, fearch and enquire into other Mens Actions, and reade the Histories of other Mens Lives; and [b] yet are ignorant of their own Hearts and spiritual Estates, unobservant of the Pallages, and unacquainted with the particulars of their own Converfations. We can eafily passaway the Day and the Night, the Week and the Year, in musing on a thousand Matters; [c] But where is the Man that bestows any serious Thoughts on bimself, that questions and interrogates his own Heart, and takes due notice of his own Life; or is at all concern'd how his Soul is improved, and his Hours employed?

Certainly some of the very Heathers will rise up in Judgment against most Christians; for we find that they have been very famous for this Practice, of being severe in taking Account of themselves, and of their Time. Suetomins relates of Titus Vespasian, the Heathen Emperour, that remembring on an Evening, as he was at Supper, that he had done no good that Day to any one,

(a) Vide Ludov. Crocii Syntagm. a p. 1207, ad 1212.

(c) Ve nomo in fefe tent at descendere, nems. Perf. Sat. 4.

ught

upon els as

then

f Silfure

and

our ifor-

the

l of

no

ze it

hen

lave

200 ame

and

ick-

lify

nad our

he

m-

1.

vi.

⁽b) Quando omnia percurisfit, prid ce neglecto profesifi ? A. Kempis, L. 2. C. 5. n. 2.

[d] he utter'd that memorable and defervedly commended Saying, Alas! my Friends, I have lost this Day.

St. Jerom tells us of a wife Saying of the Pythagoreans, [e] That a special Care is to be had of two portions of our Tine, of the Morning, and of the Evening: Of the Morning, to consider, and resolve to do what ought to be done; and of the Evening, to examine whether we have done what we ought.

And it is one of Pythagoras's golden Precepts, Never offer to give fleep to your Eyes before you have thrice run over in your Mind the feveral Particulars of that Day's Actions, and put fuch Questions as these to your self, [f] Where have I transgressed? what have I well done? what have I left undone, which it became me to have done? And it thou hast done any thing, saies he, that is base and unworthy, charge thy self with it, and chide thy self for it: But it thou hast done any thing that is good and vertuous, rejoyce and delight in it. [g] This makes us so very bad, says Seneca, because no Manree selfests

(d) Memorabilem illam, meritoque laudatam vocem edidit : Anuci, diem perdidi, Suct in vit, Vel. S. 8.

Mane prepone, veffere difinte mores tuos, qualis hodie fuifts in verbo, opere. Stogit itone: qua in his farine fusition offendsli Deum S preximum. A Kennelli (11), n 4

Quid quoque die dixerim, audiverim, egerim, commemoro ve-

(f) Examen Pythagaricum.

गाम नवहदेशिय ; मं मिहिहदूव ; मं एका मिला से हेन्स हे देन.

Cg) Hoc nos pey mos faces, quod nemo veram fam refores, Se. Sen. ep. 8 3.

flect.

feld

we l

wha

we

Ira

He

an

COI

the

at vil

you

Pa

an

91

th

R

00

1

⁽e) Pythaco icum & iliud praceptum est, ducrum temperum minit historidam curam, minit & vesport 3 il est, corum qua descrit fumus. S cerum qua gesserimus. Apolog. Hicronadvers. Rush vm. 1. 3.

flects upon his own Life. It may be sometimes, though seldome, we think what we are to do, fays he; but what we have done, we do not think: But we are to deliberate what to do for the future, from the consideration of what we have done already. And in his third Book de Ira, he has an excellent Discourse to this Purpose: He fays there, That the Soul w daily to be call'd to give an Account. And he tells us of one Sextius, whose constant Course it was to do thus; That, when the Day was spont, and he went to take his rest at Night, he would demand of himfelf; What evil of yours have you healed this Day? what Vice have yourefifted? in what part are you better? Anger and Passion (fays the Philosopher there) will be moderated and abated, when it knows it must daily come before a Judy: And therefore, fays he, what is more excellent than this Custom of examining the whole Day past? O [b] what a sweet Sleep is that which follows after the Recognition of a Man's felf? How quest and free is a Man's Mind, when it is either commended or admonished, and a Man does secretly review and censure his own Manners? I use this Liberty with my self (lays Seneca there in the same Place) I have a daily Trial within my felf, fays he; When at Night the Candle is taken away, and all is still and silent; then I fearth and enquire into the whole Day, I measure and run over, I scan and consider all my Words and Deeds; I hide nothing from my felf, I overlook and pass by nothing : I tay to my felf, you have done fo and fo, fee you do To no more.

You fee how fome of the wifest and best of the very Heathen did accustome themselves to edly

e lost

tha-

of

d of

and

the

hat

ots,

Ou

ar-

ie-

nf-

171-

Ou

n-

elf

od

215

64 ts

.

[[]b] Qualis il ofomnus poll recig iternem fui fiquitar? &c. Sen. de Ira, 1. 3. c 36.

this Self-scrutiny, and took an Account of their Lives and Actions.

And many eminent and Godly Christians to this Purpose do use Diaries, and daily set down in Journals or Day-books the observable remarkable Passages of their Lives. And we must do at least fomewhat like it. Before we sleep every Night, let's be sure to make such a Recollection and Examination of the Actions of that Day, as may represent any thing that is remarkable to be matter either of Humiliation, or of Thanks-ginning.

Accustome thy self, before thou takest thy Rest and Repose, to have some private Talk, some secret Conference with thy felt, to ask thy felf such Questions as these, and to use such Language as this; What has been the Frame and Temper of my Heart? what my Carriage and Behaviour this Day? what the Principles of my Practice? what the Ends of this Day's Actions? Did my Mind awake with my Body in the Morning? did I then exercise the Consideration of a Man and Christian; and deliberately renew, and fix and fettle my Refolution for the purifying and right ordering my Conversation? Did I early go to God by Prayer, and in the *first place seek the Kingdom of God and his Rightcousnes? Wherein have I offended or angred my good God this Day? wherein have I injured or provoked my Neighbour, or hurt his Soul, Body, Estate, or good Name? wherein have I wronged, or any way prejudic'd my own Soul? what proud, discontented, covetous, ambitious, malicious, revengeful Thought? what filthy, or angry, vainglorie five,

comi

ty of tage

Hear

rance

WOL

carr

wha

whe

W

W

for

IT

mi

of

OI

pa

^{*} Matth. 6. 33.

glorious, or idle Word? what inconvenient, abufive, offenfive Jest? what ungodly Deed, or unbecoming unfeemly Action have I this Day been guilty of? In what has Satan this Day taken Advantage against me? or how has my own deceitful Heart turned me aside? What Degrees of Intemperance have I admitted in Meats or Drinks? what worldly Cares have I been distracted with? what carnal Fears have I been ready to fink under? To what have I my felf been effectually tempted? or, wherein have I offered to be a Tempter of any other? What Solicitation to Evil have I relifted? What Sin and Corruption have I striven against? What open, careless or wilful Sinner have I seafonably and prudently reproved? What Duty have I perform'd? What Grace have I exercis'd? What Time have I employed in Closet-Devotion, in Family-Religion, in diligent following the Bufiness of my Calling? What Company have I run into, or kept? What Hours have I spent in such Company? and to what profit or benefit to my felf or others? What was my Omission and Neglect? what my Sin and Vanity, committed and repeated in fuch Society? Have I not closed this Day with a droufy fleery Prayer this Night? Am I grown any better this Week, this Day, than I was the last?

You know, at Night, and at the End of the Week, we usually call our Servants to Account: Let us use the same Method, and take the same Course, for a daily, neekly Reckening with our selves. In the Close of the Day, at the End of the Week, let's commune with, and reslect upon our selves, and take our selves to take. Let's take a view, and make a surveigh of our past Lives; observe how our Time goes, watch what becomes of it, see how it

neir

this

ur-

af-

aft

ht,

ca-

lav

be gi-

est

le-

ch as

iy

is

at 7-

is laid out, that so beholding how useless and unfruitful we have been, we may even be ashamed of our selves, and labour to grow more useful and fruitful for the suture: As, * remembring from whence she was fallen, was prescribed to the Church of Ephesiu as a means of her repenting. And on the contrary, because t no Mansaid, What have I done? therefore every one turned to his Course, as the Horse rusheth into the Battel.

By daily observing, examining, taking account of our felves and Waies, we shall come to Repentance more speedily and easily; and recover the Favour of God immediatly: The Candle that is presently blown in again, offends not: We shall have the Advantage of making to God [h] a fuller Confession of our Sins, while our Sins with their Circumstances are fresh and recent in our Memories. And shall be more effectually restrained from Sin for the future, by thinking thus with our felves, This I must account with God, and my own Conscience for before I fleep. And by this means we shall be freed from the Fear of Sudden Death, and be in a constant good Preparation for it: because thoughour Master come suddenly, he will not find us sleeping, nor furprize us in unrepented Sin. When in this manner we make all even every Night between God and our own Consciences, we may lie down in Peace, and take a quiet Rest and Sleep, without any perplexing amazing Fears of our awaking the next Morning in the other World.

Hold and maintain this Practice of Calling thy felf to a daily strict Account, and you shall certainly

lyfin

be a

own

be g fruit

WOI

Tir

for

mo

fpe

rel

Sai

Be

ha

his

H

you

01

R

h

^{*} Rev. 2. 5. + Ser. 8. 6. [6] Mr. Hildersam on Ps. 51. p. 183.

lyfind and happily experience that of A Kempis to be a great Truth, [i] Thou shalt sweetly rest, if thy own Heart reprehend thee not: Thou shalt rejoyce and be glad at heart every Night, if thou hast not lost, but fruitfully spent the Day past.

und of

and

irch

the

ne?

unt

en-

4-

nt-

he

ion

n-

nd

he

I

e-

d

It

r

r

wont to fay, He esteemed that little Pittance of Time, which constantly every Day he set apart for the private Examination of his own Conscience, more than all the other Part of the Day, which he spent in his voluminous Controversies. And it is reported of that learned Professor of Divinity, Dr. Samuel Ward, that when he lay upon his Death-Bed, he profess he had read many Books, but had no such comfort from his reading any, as from his reading, and studying the Book of his own Heart and Life.

That is the fecond Direction; Frequently call yourselves to an Account. Often Reckonings make long Friends: It holds most true between God and our Souls, between our Consciences and our selves. Reckon with God and your selves every Evening, how you have spent the Day fore-going, and this will provoke you humbly to beg the Pardon of your Sins at God's Hands, and Power against them; to judg, and punish, and take an holy Revenge upon your selves; to exercise Repentance for your past Failings, and strict Watchfulness for the suture.

The

[De per cetime.

^[1] Susviter requesces, si car tunm te mon reprehensies. Noli teteri, nist chin bene secens. A Kemp-1. . c. 6 n 1. Gaudebis semper respere, si diem expendas seustravie. Idem 1.1. c. 25, n. 11.

The third Direction.

That we may rightly redeem our Time, let Reason and Conscience have some Authority with us, and not be despised and difregarded by us. They are most brave generous Rules and Precepts that are given by Pythagoras in his golden Verses; [a] Never accu-Stome thy self in any Thing to alt and carry thy self irrationally, and below a Man. And, of all things, fee, fays he, that you [b] reverence, and use good Manners to your felf. Let Reason rule and govern thy Passions and Affections, and Conscience withhold thee from being guilty of any Impiety or Impurity, Absurdity or Undecency. Do nothing to put thy felf to the bluft, to fill thy felf with fecret Shame and Sorrow, and finking Fear, for the Turpitude or Folly of thy own Actions. Take the wholesome Counsel and good Advice that Ausenius gives thee, [c] When thou art about to do any vile and vicious Thing, be afraid of thy self, though no body else be near thee, to be a Witness of thy Wickedness. [d] If the Things thou doeft (fays Seneca excellently) be unfeemly and uncomely, what does it avail thee that none in the World knows it, when thou thy felf knowest it? O miserable Man, fays he, if thou contemnest this Witness within thee. And I find Last antins citing these admira-

[a] Mind adoptions cauto exert wer tender enter

Mar of t

wit

thy

by 1

ob:

to

the

to

en

ba

no

m

a

0

⁽h) — Πάντων θε ιιάλις αιούνες σαυτόν.

(h.n jam pr. fec. ris tantum, us fit tios ets im tuireverenția, dum se efficis eum, coram quo peccare non audeas; & aliqua caperit avad te tui esfe dignatio. Sen. cp. 15.

[[]c] Turpe quid aufurus, te sine teste time.
[d] Struppa sunt, qua facus, quad refert neminem scires, cum tu scius ? O te miserum, si contemnis hunc testem! Sen. ep. 43.
i. fine.

mirable Sayings out of him; [e] Thou very mad Man, what will it profit thee to have no other conscious of thy Crime, so long as thou doest carry a Conscience within thee? And again; What doest thou do? what doest thou devise? what doest thou go about to conceal? thy Keeper closely follows thee. One is absent from thee by reason of a Voyage or Journey, that he cannot observe thee: another is removed by Death, that used to look narrowly to thee: another is kept away from thee by Sickness: but Conscience sticks at all Times to thee: you can never shake off, or get rid of that.

Put not a Slight, much less a Force upon Conscience: never use any Violence to it: never offer to baffle, and stifle, and stop the Mouth of it: Cast not this good Micaiah into Prison, make it not weary of its Office of marning thee; but shew all due respect to it, and hear and obey the Voice of it.

afon

not nost

by

cu-

ra-

fee,

an-

hy

old

y,

ny

ne

or

le

2,

88

r

e

Stand much in an of the Spy, the Register, the faithful Monitor in thy Breaft and Bosom. Let Conscience so far prevail with thee, as to restrain and deter thee from a loose and wicked, a flothful or idle mif-spending thy Time; and to four and quicken thee powerfully and effectually to a wife and prudent, a faithful and good Improvement of it.

Do nothing but what is fairly accountable to thy considering felf: follow the Guidance of thy best Reason: attend to the Distates and Commands, and regard the Checks and controls of a well-informed and enlightned Conscience. Timely take notice of its fofter and gentler Whifpers, left you be be disturbed, affrighted and terrified with its louder Clamours.

[[]e] Demens, quid prodest non habere confesam habenes confesentiam? -- Custos te tuns fequitur. -- Havet hie, que carerenanguam poter. Laftant, de vero culto, 1, 6 9. 24.

Be careful to approve your felf to Conscience: fear the After-reckenings of Conscience: and labour to prevent and hinder the Accufation and Condemnation of an evil Conscience, and the Execution that will be done, the Punishment that will be inflicted, and the Vengeance that will be taken fooner or la-Dread the Thoughts of falling out with thy felf; of being gnawn by a Vultur, and haunted by a Fury within thee; of fuffering the little Ease, the Marpand severe Bridewel, the Reproaches and Upbraidings, the Pangs and Gripings, the Tearings and Rendings, the Lashes and Stingings, the Racks and Strappados of a guilty Conscience : and value the Testimony and Approbation of the Witness within thee, the Acquitment and Absolution of the Deputy-Judy within thee; and study to do every thing to gain and obtain the Euge's and Applanfes, the Juttification and Commendation, the Gratulation and Confolation of an honelt, clear and good Conscience.

That is the third Direction in order to the better redeeming of our Time; Let Reason and Conscience have some Authority with m, and procure some Reverence from u.

The fourth Direction.

If ever we would redeem the Time, we must live and act, and do every thing as in the Sight and Presence, and under the Eye and Inspection of God our Judy.

Wherever thou art, and whatever thou doest, remember and confider, that not only Conscience, but

but God

is a

Pre

har

cell

COH fron

the

W

he cr

fi

but God is by: and * if our Heart condemn us, that God is greater than our Heart, and knoweth all things: that if Conscience be as a thousand Wimesses, God is as a thousand Consciences; both for Interescy of Presence, and Perspicacity in discerning. If we have made any proficiency in Philosophy (saies Tulky excellently) we must be persuaded sufficiently, that if we could [a] conceal all our Actions from all the Gods, and from all Men, so that they should be alwaies ignorant of them, yet we ought to do nothing covetously, unjustly, wantonly, incontinently. If a Wise Man had Gyges's Ring, saieshe, which (according to Plato's Fable) would render him invisible; he should not recken that he had gotten the least license to sin the more by it: for [b] good Men seek to act with Honesty, not with Secreey.

But though that which is good to be followed for it felf, for the Bonity, and Beauty of it; and that which is evil, to be avoided for the intrinsick Turpitude of it: yet the Knowledg that others may be supposed to have of our Actions, is apt to encrease our Care, and quicken our Diligence, to order and compose our Lives and Manners, without just Blame or Exception of others.

It is profitable, saies Seneca, to set some Keeper over one's self; to have some body in our Eye, whom we may suppose to be present and privy to our very thoughts: to do every thing we'do, as if some body look'd on, and were a Spectator and an Eye-witness of all we did. Privaty and Secrecy tempts and persuades Men to all Evil.

* 1 John 3. 20.

[b] Honesta enim bonis viris, non occulta quarumur. Idem ibidem.

lou-

nce:

our dem-

that

ted,

· lavith

int-

chthe

gs,

he lu-

to

nd

n,

ar

t-

ce

-

^[4] Si omnes deos hominésque cel tre po Jimus, &c. Cice o de Cthe l. 3.

A great part of Offences would be removed, faies he, if there did but one stand by as a ready Witness against the Offender. But it is more awful, faies he, [b] to live and act as under the Eye, and in the Presence of some excellent Person, and eminent good Man. Set Cato, Scipio, Lalius before you, or some such Person, faies he, upon whose appearing the most wicked Persons would forbear their Vices: and let the Authority of thefe restrain you, and have Influence upon you, until you have made your self such an one that you begin to reverence your felf, and dare not to do evil before your self. Nay that heathen Philosopher goes yet farther, [c] So live with Men, faies he, as if God himself saw you, and took special notice of you. And again in another Epiftle; [d] What will it avail you to hide any thing from Man, there is nothing conceal'd and kept close from God: He looks into our Breafts.

Br

du

cre

rii

th

hi

G

fur

So

W

CA

Clan

th

fo

[[]b] Te aliquorum authoritate custodi. -- Nemo est, cui non statius sit cum quolibet esse, quàm se um. -- In turbam tibi à re recedendum est- 1stic enim malo viro propius es. Seneca, epi t. 25.

Aliquem habeat animus, quem vereatur, cujus authorit te et:am secretum saum sanctius sacte. O selicem illum, qui non a pessus tantiun, sel etiam cogi aius emendat! O selicem, qui se aliquem verei potest, ut admemoriam quoque ejus se componat, atque ordinet! Qui sic aliquem verei potest, citò erit vereium. Id. ep. 11.

[[]c] Sie vive cam hominibus, tang am Deus videat. Idem, [[]d] Siccerte vivendum est, tanquam in constettu vivamuu: siccogitandum, tanquam aliquu in pettus intimum inspicere possit: Spotest Ludenim prodest ab homine aliquid esse section? inhil Deo ciusum est Interest animis nostris, Scogitationibus mediis intervenit 1d. cp. 83.

Zwinglius citing these Words of Seneca, expresses himself too highly concerning him: Seneca vir sanstiffini fidem, quam E-pritola ad Luculium 83 produt, qua non admiretur? Zuinglius Oper. Tom. 2. de Peccat. O. iginal. Declarat. p. 118.

Breasts, and is present in our very Minds and Hearts.

And let me moreover add what Last antins produces out of Seneca's Exhortations, [e] It nothing profits us to have a Conscience shut up within us, we are open to God: Let's approve our selves to him.

What rare Lectures are thefefrom a meer Pagan Philosopher? how confonant and agreeable to the facred Scripture? That ancient Father much admiring the high and raifed Expressions falling from that incomparable Stoick, profelies concerning him; [f] He might have been a true Worshipper of God, if any one had but shewn him the right Way: and surely he would have contemned Zeno, and his Master Socion, if he had but met with a ready Guide to true Wisdome. And Erasmus before his Notes on Seneca's Works, gives this Judgment of his Writings; [g] If you reade him as an Heathen, he wrote like a Christian; if you reade him as a Christian, he wrote like an Heathen.

But to return to the Matter in hand: To live as under God's Eye, is more than to live as in the presence of all the good Men in the World : more than to live as in the Sight of all good Men and Angels. Well then with holy * David, let us fet the Lord almaies before us. The Lord fets us alwaies before himself; let us therefore set the Lord alwaies be[e] Nihil prodest inclusa conscientia, patemus Deo. Huic wis approbemus. Sen apud Lactant. de vero cultu, 1.6. S. 24.

[f] Potust effe versus Descultor, si quis ille monstraffet ac contempliffet projecto Zenonem, & magistrum fuum Socionem, fi reta sapientia Ducem nactus effet. Lactant. loc. cit.

Pfal. 16. 8.

he,

nft

to

Set

on,

ns

of

n-

in 16-

es

if

u.

1-ig

w

5,

228

à

1,

e

44 2-

,

^[2] D. Hieronymus Senecam recensuit in catalogo Sanctorum. --- Si legas illum ut paganum, feripfit Christiand : fi ut Christianum, scripsie pagamie. Eraimi de Sen- judicium, ance Comment. in Sen. Oper.

before our felves: for then if ever we shall work strenuously, sollow our Business closely, bestir our selves to purpose, and carefully look about us, when we really believe that our Lord and Master stands by us, and looks upon us. Did we but consider, that God * sees all our goings, that he towns all our Steps, that he knows all our Waies, our crooked winding Waies wherein we live, wherein we dy, not live: and is more far above Deteit, than Deceit seems above Simplicity: (as Mr. [h] Herbert expresses it) This Consideration would cause us to make streight Paths, and to order our Conversations aright.

If a Reverend grave Divine, a fevere Magistrate, a Parent, a [i] Master, an Husband, a Wife, a Servant, a Child, a Friend, or an Enemy stood by, beheld, and heard; you would often forbear many an unhandsome, uncomely, unfeemly Word and Action. If you were always plac'd under Mens Observation, you would study to do every thing to their Approbation and Satisfaction. And could you spend your Time in immoderate Eating, Drinking, Sleeping, Attiring, in Swearing, Swaggering, Gaming, Sporting, Playing; vain, and frothy, and wanton Discoursing; in any idle, unworthy, ungodly Action; if you did but imagine at fuch a Time, and in fuch a Place, that God was by, and faw or heard whatever was faid or done? Pray do but actually and feriously

con-

^{*} Job 31. 4. † Job 34. 21. (b) Sacr. Porm. A Wreath.

⁽r) Bp. Andrews as if he had made Mr. Mulcafter (formerly this Schoolmafter) his Tutor or Supervifor, placed his Picture over the door of his Study; whereas in all the rest of his House, you could scancily see a Picture. His funtral Sermon, at the end of his Straims, p. 18.

confider, that wherever you are, the omnificient and omnipresent God is alwaies one of the Company, and ever beholds whatever you do: and this will restrain you from doing Evil, and powerfully constrain and effectually engage you with Care and Diligence to do your Duty, to embrace and improve every Opportunity, and to make a Benefit and Advantage of it.

The Apprehension of God's all-seeing, all-searching Eye, will be of excellent Use and Advantage to us, at four Times especially.

1. Actually consider that God sees you, when you ordinarily visit one another, and at any Time feast and make merry together. Whenever you go to fee one another, remember and consider that God sees how you spend your Time together: that whenever you meet together, God is present in your Company; he hears your Discourses, and writes down your Words; he observes and registers your Actions: He takes exact and strict Notice, how much Time you fpend idly and unprofitably; how far you exceed in your Recreations, what Gluttony and Drunkenness mingle with your Feastings. therefore meet together as those that can never steal or step out of God's Presence: Say and do nothing together, but what you are willing that God should fee and hear. Whenever you feast, feast as before the Lord: and when you eat and drink together, eat and drink as before the Lord,

2. When buying or felling, remember you are manifelt in God's Sight: that all you do is naked, * ript open, unbowell'd, anatomiz'd, turn'd infide out-

тk

ur

15,

ter

n-

rts

k-

ot

ns t)

ht

i-

a

1-15 0 ^{*} Terzannisulia. Het. 4 17.

ward in the Eye of God. Consider, that God stands by, and sees your Dealings, hears the making of every Contract, is a faithful Witness to every Bargain, and is privy to your Carriage in your particular Calling, to all your Breaches and Violations of commutative Justice.

Never offer to sceive Man, because it is imposfible to deceive God. The Tradesman may secretly falfify his Weights, and mingle his Wares, and lie and dissemble to get them off the better: But God understands his false Dealings, and discovers his deceitful Heart and Hand. Men may cunningly cheat and cozen their Neighbours, but they can't blind and impose upon God. * Let no Man go beyoud and defraud, or over-reach his Brother in any Matter, because the Lord is the Avenger of all such. Let not the Seller abuse the Ignorance, or Credulity of the Buyer: nor the Buyer work upon the Simplicity, or Necessity of the Seller: let him not fay, † It is naught, it is naught; and when he is gone his way, then boast of his Penny-worth: Though such may promife themselves Impunity among Men, yet God is the Beholder and Avenger of all such.

3. Consider this in your secret Retirements, and private Families.

(1.) Confider this in your fecret Recesses and Retirements, That God is present, looks on, and weighs and ponders all your Doings: That God fees the very [k] hidden Motions, and vain Imaginations of your Hearts. He knows all your secret

* 1 Theff. 4. 6. + Prov. 20. 14.

⁽b) Meminerit Deum se habere testem: -- Itaque vir benus uon modo sacere, sed ne cogitare quidem quicquam audebit, quod non audeat pradicare. Tullius apud Lactant, de vero cultu, 1.6.c. 24.

cret Designs and Projects, he beholds the most private unseemly Carriages, and filthy Deeds. He sees within thy close-drawn Curtains, though they be of Cloth, where never yet came Moth; (to use again the ingenious Words of the holy [1] Mr. Herbert) * Our secret Sins are set in the Light of God's Countenance: † The Darkness hideth not from him; but the Night shineth as the Day: the Darkness and the Light are both alike to him. And therefore let the serious Thoughts of God's Omniscience restrain and deter us from secret Sins.

When Paphnutius the Monk, was solicited by an Harlot to impure Embraces, and she led him out of one Room into another, he still complained they were not yet private enough: At last she brought him into an inner Room, which was quite dark: and here, said she, none can see us, but God, and the Devil. What, said he, do you make a but at that? come, carry me where neither God, nor the Devil can see me.

And so the holy Ephrem Syrus being enticed by a Harlot to commit Lewdness with her, only desired that he might chuse the Place; which she agreeing to, he presently pitch'd upon the common and open Market-place: And when she told him, for shame they must forbear to do it there, in the eye and view of all; he demanded of her, how she durst do that in God's Sight, which she would never offer to do in Mens. The wise Discourses of these two religious Persons, seasonably and seriously urging and pressing the Consideration of God's Omniscience, not only repressed, but reclaimed;

(1) Sacr. Poem, Mifery.

bd

ae-

ır

a-

[-

t-

d

it

t

^{*} Pfa'. 90. 8. † Pfal. 139 12.

feriously convinced, and effectually converted; changed the Minds, and mended the Manners of those notoriously impudent Harlots.

If Satan, or his Instruments, or thy own corrupt deceitful Heart tell thee at any Time, or fuggest to thee, that no Eye sees thee, thou maiest commit it safely: ask, whether they can pluck out God's all-feeing Eye, or fearch out any Place that is not filled with the Divine Presence, or can expunge and dash the Items out of the Book of God's Remembrance?

(2.) Consider this in your private Families: Then count thy felf an happy Man, (saies Seneca to Lucilius) when thou art able to live as it were in publick; when thy own Walls shall cover thee, not conceal thee; which for the most part we reckon our selves enclos'd with, not [k] that we may live more safely, but that we may fin more secretly and securely. Thou shalt hardly find any one, Taies he, that is able to live with his Door open. [1] Not our Pride, but our Conscience, which is afraid left any discovery should be made, has set Porters at our Gates. We live so, faies he, that to be suddenly feen, is to be taken in a Fault or Crime.

And therefore, me-thinks, it was an excellent Speech, which Velleins Parerculus relates of Livius Drusus; who, when he was about to build an House, and the Work-man offer'd him fo to contrive it, that it should be every way private, and no body should be able to look into it: No, saies

he,

[[] Non ut tutins vivamue, fed ut peccemus occultinis. Sen. cp. 43.

^[1] Finitores conscientia nestra, nin Superbia opposuis. vivimus, ut dejrebendi fit, substo affici. Sen. cp. 43.

he, but [m] if you have any Art at all, so frame and contrive my House, that whatever I do may be seen by all.

O Christian, live in thy Family, as if the Eyes of all the World were upon thee; But especially walk within thy House, as having God's all-feeing Eye continually fix'd and intent upon thee. Think, O my Friends, yea, often think with your felves, that God beholds your Family-neglects and Omillions, your Family-Irregularities and Transgressions, your Family-Contentions and Divitions: That he observes your Walking disorderly in your House and Family: That God sees how ill you discharge your Care of Souls: that he knows in what Families Religion is laid aside, disrelished, discountenanc'd, derided: that he everywhere looks narrowly, whether Men pray in their Closets and Families, and reade the Scriptures and good Books, and catechife and instruct their Children and Servants, and give them wholesome Counsel, and a good Example; or behave themselves with Neglest and Contempt of these Things. There is not a Family that goes without Prayer from Day to Day, and breaks the Lord's-Day every Week, but God knows them, and takes particular notice of them. Did Men confider this, they would not fuffer Profaneness and Atheism, Contention and Strife to abound in their Families, as they do.

4. And Lastly; Whenever we come to the publick Worship of God, let us feriously consider that we stand in his Presence, and are in his Eye. Many that come to Church out of Custome and Forma-

4 lity,

[[]m] Siguidan te artis est, ita compor e domum mean, uquiequid ag em, ab omnibus perspici po t. Vell. I aterculu, lib. 2. §. 14.

lity, and are not sensible of God's Omniscience and Omnipresence, may say with * Jacob, when they come to be awakened; Surely the Lord is in this Place, and we knew it not.

Let's all confider, That when we join together in Prayer, God knows our Preparations, our Affe-Etions, our Motives to the Duty, our Carriages in it. He beholds the Rovings and Wandrings of our Minds and Thoughts, and the Deadness and Straitness of our Hearts and Affections. Consider in like manner, that when we hear the Word read, or preach'd; God well understands why we hear, and how we hear: He plainly discerns how our Hearts mork under the Word: He takes notice, that when you come, and sit, and make as if you heard his Word, your Heart goth after your Covetousnes: He views all your negligent irreverent Carriages, and undecent unfeafonable Whifterings. God looks upon you, when under an Ordinance you nothing but look about you, to fee who are there, and what they wear.

If Men would really believe, and feriously confider this, that when they are in publick, they are in a solemn manner before God; they would not then be mindless and heartless, cold and formal in Prayer: they would not be critical, careless, feornful Hearers of the Word: but they would be lively and fervent in praying, and as diligent and attentive as could be in hearing, in order to their spiritual prositing and well-living. 'Tis good, when we have so solemnly to do with God, to think of the Eye of that God with whom we have to do: This would possess us with more Reverence, and Godly Fear, in the

th

fic

al

^{*} Gen. 28. 16. † Ezek. 33 31.

ma-

the Duties of God's Worship. If the Apprehension of the Presence of * Angels in publick Christian Assemblies, be apt to compose Men to a reverent Behaviour; much more will the Consideration of the Presence of God be able to effect it.

The fifth Direction.

That we may wifely redeem the Time, let's be fure to propound a good End to our selves in all our Ations: and to do nothing deliberately, but what we can ask God's Assistance in, and Blessing upon, when we go about it.

1. Let's be fure to propound a good End to our felves in all our Actions. Let every Action be as an [a] Arrow shot at a Mark. [b] As they that sail, we must steer and direct our Course to some Star. Seneca reproves a Sort of Persons, that acted without an End in their Eye: If you ask any one of these, saies he, when they go out of Doors, Where are you going? what are you thinking of? He'l answer, and tell you, Truly I don't know; but I will see some Body or other, I will do somewhat or other. They wander about without any set Purpose, and do things, not which they design'd to do, but which they lightly sell into. They lead an inconsider at evain Course of Life, like so

* I Cor 11.10.

[[]A] Est aliqued quo cendia, & in quad dirigio arcum?

Perf. lat 3.

[b] Proponamm overtet finem Swami Beni, ad quemnitanur, ad que nomue l'actium voltrum dell'unque vespicesat : velui navigantibus ad aliquod sidm dirigendus est eu sus. V.ta sine proposito vaga est. Sec. ep. 95.

many creeping Ants. [c] One may not unfitly call their Life an unquiet Idleneß. And then returning home with an empty Weariness, they swear they knew not why they went out, nor know they well where they have been, being ready to ramble and wander the Day following in the same manner: and therefore let all Labour be referr'd to somewhat, faies he, respect somewhat.

Now, as it becomes both Men and Christians, let our great End and Study, our main Scope and Intention be to please, and glorify God, in the whole Course of our Conversation. * Te have received of m, faies the Apostle, how you ought to walk, and to please God. We desire t that ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all [d] pleasing. | What soever ye do, do all to the Glory of God. Let all our Actions have their ultimate tendency to God's Glory: That God may be honoured and glorified by our felves, while our Actions, done in Imitation of God, thew forth his (*) Vertues, represent and recommend God lovely to the World, and are apt to procure that God be bitter thought of, lov'd and sirv'd. And that God may be also glorified by others, by means of our Lives and Conversations, while others are actually and effectually led thereby to high and excellent Thoughts of God, and to an Admiration and Approbation of the divine Law and Holines.

What a rare Commendation is it of those Brethren, who are stilled by the Apostle the (†) Glory of [c] Quorum non immerito qui inquieram inertiam dixerit, Id. de Tranq. An. c. 12.

* 1 Theff. 4. 1. + Cel 1. 10.

1 Cor. 10. 31. (*) Tas agerres, 1 Pet. 2 9.

(1) 2 Cor. 8. 23.

al Vocabalim agistician sumentum arbitror hac in loce, non tampro eventu slacenda, quan prostudio Sintentione placendi. Dave sant. in Col. 1 10.

of Christ! [e] As Christ alone is the Glory of the Faithful, fo they ought to be the Glory of Christ; to [f] promote and advance, and be the Instruments of his Glory, by their fingular Knowledg, Faith, Piety, and excellent good Life and Manners.

It is not strictly required, that in every Good Work of ours there should be an astual Intention of pleasing and glorifying God: It sufficeth that such an Intention go before in the general, and be preferved and retained in the Habit: And though it be not thought on in every Action, yet the Action may be rightly perform'd [g] in the Vertue of the good Intention that went before : As one in a fourney goes very right by virtue of his first Intention. though he does not, every step he takes, actually think of the Place, which, when he first set out, he intended to go to. It is absolutely neversary, that we should alwaies preserve an habitual Intention of pleasing and glorifying God in every thing: yea, (as the Reverend and learned * Davenant counfels and cautions well) we should alwaies endeavour these two things; (1.) That our actual Intention of pleasing and glorifying God, should, as far as may be, be retain'd or renew'd in every particular Work we do. (2.)

ne

7,

122

e

[[]e] Sicuti felus Christius filelium gloria est, ita debet virifim ab isfie giersficare. Calv. in ioc.

If the id Christis, e. que singulari exum file pietate scientia, viti 5 monteus, pronor ent georgam Christis, vel instrumenta sunt giore christs. Syn. Cri. in loc.

fg) Quemalim dum fagitta unico joculantis impul per intermedium spassum ad scopum sertur, quantres ile nec de spatio, nec de scopo constet: sic unico impuls voluntatis precedet bon e apria so ad metam suam, cum operans nin amplia construit de meta. E primi sua intentione. I dem iliustrari poste simili udine irinerantis, --- Davenent, in tad Coloss. 10. p. 53. * Ibid.

(2.) That after our first good Intention, no evil and inordinate Intention do arise; for this will not be rectified by the first, but the former will be blemished, stained, and corrupted by this.

Let's propose to our selves the Glory of God, as the highest End of all our Undertakings: and let all our seller and subordinate Ends be plainly reducible to the main and great End of our living. Let's still be putting this Question to our selves in what we are doing, Is this the Way to please and glorify God? If not, how dare I take so ungodly a Course, or do so unreasonable a Deed? This is the way to redeem the Time, and a Means to make our Actions able to bear the Trial, and apt to turn to a good Account.

2. Let's do nothing deliberately, but what we can freely and fafely, warrantably and comfortably crave God's Assistance in, and look up to Heaven for a Blessing upon, when we go about it. [h] Do not much matter, saies A Kempis, who is for thee, or against thee; but take great heed and care of this, that God be with thee in every thing thou doest. Upon every Occasion think thus with thy self; If I cannot take God along with me in what I undertake; If I cannot own God, nor expect that God should own me, guide and direct me, assist and inable, bless and prosper me in what I am about; surely this is not the way for me to redeem and improve my Time aright: I cannot spend it prositably and comfortably in such Employment.

Such

[[]b] Nonmagni pendas quis pro te vel contra te sit; sed hoc age & cura, ut Dous tecium sit su omus re quam sacis. A Kemp. 1. 2. c. 2. n. 1.

Such a Course and Practice as this, would furely prevent the Rashness and Unadvisedness, the Imprudence and Folly, the Injustice and Impiety of many Actions. If thou wouldst never venture to engage in any Action, but what thou couldst own before God in Prayer, without Shame and Blushing; and durst implore the Help and Assistance of God for the Performance of, thou wouldst certainly walk more accurately and exactly than formerly. When thou art going to a drinking Meeting, canst thou beg God's Bleffing upon thy jovial intemperate Company-keeping? when thou art hastening to a filthy Whore-house, or going to an obscene and profane Play-house, canst thou look that God with a Bleffing should go with thee? When thou art hunting after unjust Gain, and hotly pursuing it all the Day long; or using unlawful and indirect Courses to provide for thy felf or Family, canst thou expect that God should command a Bleffing upon it? Would the intemperate, lustful, covetous, unrighteous Person proceed according to this Direction, he would foon defift from his vicious Courses, and unwarrantable Practices. As the [i] poor Man, when he had stollen a Lamb, to satisfy the hungry Bellies of his Family, and having dreffed it, came, of course, to crave a Bleffing upon it; he was so disturb'd and troubled about it, that he could find no Rest and Quiet in his Mind, till he went and confesidhis Fault, and promis'd to make Satisfaction for the wrong he had done.

The

fied

and as all

ble

ill

ve

fy

e, ly

lr

a

^[1] Lukin's Pract. of Godlinefs, p. 31.

The Sixth Direction.

We must be fure to give our selves to Prayer, as a special Way in which, and principal Means and Help by which we may redeem and improve our Time a right. And here,

1. Be careful to keep up fet and stated Times of ordinary Prayer.

2. Be ready to betake thy self to Prayer, upon special, extraordinary emergent Occasions.

3. Use thy self to frequent sudden ejaculatory Prayers to God.

These three Particulars give the proper Sense and Meaning of those Scriptures; * Praying alwaies; in all Time, or, Opportunity, as the Word is: † Pray without ceasing: || Pray continually.

1. If we would well redeem the Time, we must keep and observe our daily set and stated Times of earnest fervent Prayer to God, and solemn serious Supplication. Thus it is our Duty to pray continually: not to employ the Whole of our Time in Prayer, (as of old the Euchites dream'd) but to pray continually, in the same Sense as [a] Mephibosheth was commanded to eat Bread at David's Table (*) continually; that is, not to cram, and load himself with Meat and Drink day and night, but to refresh

hi

n

^{*} Eph. 6 18. 27 παντί καιρώ.

^{† 1} Theff. 5. 17. a danei mas.

Heb. 13.15. Siamarros

^[4] Amef. de Confc. caf. 1. 4. c. 14. 9. 9.

^{(*) 2} Sam. 9. 7. Samayros, 70.

himself there at the fet and customary Hours of Dinner and Supper.

'Tis a general Duty incumbent on us, to * ferve God all the Daies of our Life; and therefore with the Worship and Service of Prayer in particular, which may be conveniently performed daily. We are directed in the Lord's Prayer, to pray every Day for our † daily Bread; and therefore we ought more earnestly to || feek the Kingdom of God and his Righteousness, every Day. (*) The Morning and Evening Sacrifice, strictly [b] enjoyned under the Law to be publickly celebrated every Day, is a plain Pattern and apparent Direction for double Devotion every Day: for, the legal Sacrifice, as also the Incense joyned with it, was a Type of Prayer. Psal. 141. 2. Heb. 13. 15.

The Jews had their (†) fet Hours of Prayer. Our blessed Saviour has not only given us a plain Precept for (||) Closet-Prayer, but has afforded us his own Example, to lead us to the Performance of solitary secret Prayer, both Morning and Evening. [*] St. Mark informs us, that in the Morning rising up a great while before Day, or, in the first Twilight, he went out and departed into a solitary Place,

and (*) Exod. 29. 38, 39. [b] Matutino boc & respertino sacrificio agnoscitur Dem, nottu & diei Creator. Grot, in loc.

^{*} Luke 1. 75. † Mat. 6. 11. | Verfe 33.

Bis de die sacrificium illud voluit repets Desse, ut populus assedue in memoria sutura per Christim reconciliations se exerceret. -- Voluit Dess hoc victima genss his de die pons ante oculos, ut populus reputaret, sibi opus esse identidem reconciliari Deo; Treatist ac dimnations suc admonstus, à principio usque ad finem dies ad ejus insserieordiam consugeret. Rivetus in lecum.

⁽⁺⁾ Acts 3. 1. & 10. 2, 3. (1) Mit. 6. 6. [*] Maik 1 35.

and there prayed. And [+] Sc. Mathew acquaints us. that when he had fent the Multitudes away, he went up into a Mountain apart to pray: and when the Evening * Masters of Servants. was come, he was there alone. as such, are required and charged by the Apostle to continue in Prayer, and to watch in the same with Thanksgiving: Which Words (confidering the Context, which is wholly taken up in fetling and fetting forth the Christian Oeconomy) may well be interpreted and understood of performing daily Family-[c] Let Governours of Families, who affume and exercise a kind of Kingly Authority in their own Families, understand and consider, that their Master in Heaven expects that they should execute the Offices, and act the Parts of fo many Priests in their own Families, by offering before them the Sacrifices of Prayers and Praises to God day by day,

There are daily Personal and Family Sins to be confess'd and pray'd against: daily Personal and Family Wants to be spread before God, in order to a Supply thereof: Personal and Family Mercies daily received, and duely to be acknowledg'd every Day Morning and Evening.

We generally find, that they that have any shew of Religion, are very observant of stated Times of Devotion: so are the Papists, and so are the Mahometans: Nay the very Heathen, guided by the dim Light of Nature, have approved and recommended this Practice: Hessod in particular gives this as a ne-

per

wh

2117

tio

you

th

th

la

ce

lo

It

n

a

F

^[†] Mat. 14. 23. * Col. 4. 1, 2.

[[]c] Dr. Arrowim. Tact. Sacr. p, 247, 248.

a necessary Rule, [d] To the utmost of your Power perform your sacred Offices to the immortal Gods, both when you go to Bed at Night, and when the Morning-Light appears; that they may bear a propitious Mind, and carry a kind and loving Heart toward you.

And it is not unworthy of some remark, that the Precepts of continuing in Prayer, and redeeming the Time, are so * nearly and closely joined together in Scripture. To pretermit and negleit, to lay aside and cast off fixed determined Times, and certain appointed Seasons of Prayer, would be to lose our Time, and quickly to lose our Religion too. It you will not admit fo much of the Form, you are not likely to maintain the Power of Godliness. If you reckon you have no call to pray, but only when you find and feel a present inward strong Impulse, and fecret powerful Inclination to it; you take a course to chase and drive away the Spirit from you, and to deprive your felves of the holy and spiritual, the fweet and feafonable Motions of it. When the usual Times of Duty return, pray, though thou halt no present sensible Motion to perform it: and pray till thou findest God's good Spirit sweetly and powerfully moving upon thee, and working in thee; enlivening and enlarging thy Heart in Prayer, and enabling thee to enjoy fome fingular, fenfible, joyful and delightful Communion with God; to exercise thy Graces in this holy Duty, and to feel thy Heart warm'd and inflam'd, and thy Soul re-

[4] Kaddivaun of દુનીલમ દિશ ને તેમાને તાન જિલ્લોના જેલોના -'મારો જ તે દેખાને આ દુને તેમ જ તે તેમાં જ જેલોના .
'પ્રદુષ તે ત્યાર પ્રત્યા માત્ર તેમા છે તેમાં જે જેલોના .
'દિશ્ય મું લ્યાર કાઉત ને.
'દિશ્ય તે ત્યાર કાઉત ને.

US-

t up

ning

nts.

e to

with

Con-

ting

pre-

rily-

af-

in

hat

ex-

any

ore

boi

be

ind

oa

ily

ay

em

of

la-

he

d-

as

C-

refresh'd and repair'd, before thou departest out of God's Presence.

To [e] begin and end with God every Day, to be with the Lord first and last, to call upon God Morning and Evening; In the Morning to praise him for the Mercies of the Night past, to ask Wifdome of God to order our Conversation aright; to beg his Favour, Presence, Guidance, Spirit, Grace, and Strength; his Protection of us, his * Beauty, or glorious Bleffing upon us, and his establishing and [f] prospering the Works both of our Heads and Hands the whole Day following: And in the Evening to bless and praise God for the Mercies and Favours of the Day past, to confess our Faults and Failings in it, and so to lie down with no heavy Guilt of any unrepented Sin lying upon us: To pray for the Pardon and Healing of the Miscarriages of that Day, and to commit our felves and ours to the Divine Keeping the Night following; befeeching God to prevent any sinful Dreams, which might proceed from the Corruption of our Natures and Constitutions, Hearts and Imaginations, Converfations and Actions; and to spiritualize and fanctify our Thoughts and Cogitations, in the vacant Spaces and broken Hours of our Sleep: To keep and maintain the fet Times of personal secret Closet-Prayer, and the stated Times of Oeconomical Houfhold Family-Prayer; this is a well-spending fo much of our Time as is employed in that Duty; and this is the right and ready way to redeem and improve every Day, to the Honour and Glory of God, and to [e] Oratio clavis dies & fera mittis.

to 8

Se

ſ

d

c

t

Pfal. 90 17.
[f] Έρχευ ἐπὰ ἔρχον, Θεοίσην ἐπευξαμβυΘ πελίσαι. Pythag. Aur. Ca m.

to our own and others Profit and Benest, Satisfaction and Comfort: This is a likely hopeful good way to prevent or remove Miscarriages in our selves, and Disorders in our Families; to keep every Member of our Family in their Station and Duty; to season them all with a religious Fear, and high Respect to God and his Waies; and to train and bring up Children and Servants, to a competent Ability to express their Desires in Prayer to God, for themselves and others: to teach our Servants, with * Eliezar Abraham's good and faithful Servant, to sollow their earthly Master's Business, with hearty Prayers to their heavenly Master for a Blessing upon it.

Be careful and diligent, wise and prudent to redeem Time for Prayer, that you may redeem Time by Prayer. Find Time sufficient to work this Work of God, and so to work out your own Salvation, as well as to follow the Works and Businesses of your particular Callings: to attend and wait upon God in Prayer, as well as to wait upon your Customers, and to attend your fecular Occasions and Concerns.

Let not worldly Cares, and civil or domestick. Affairs hinder and divert thee from due Performance of Prayer in thy Family, and in thy private Closet. Though David had the Care of the Kingly Government upon him, yet his usual Course and Practice was, to pray to God 1 Evening, and Morning, and at Noon; yea, || seven times a day did he praise God, as he himself professes: If he did not exactly and punctually observe so many Hours, but a certain Number is put here for an uncertain, yet the meaning must be, that he did it very often: Love X 2

of

to

ule

if-

to ce,

y,

nd nd

enn

and

vy

ay

of he

ng ht

ıd

r-

nt

d

1+

b

is

e

[&]quot; Gen. 24. 12. † Pfal. 55. 17 | & 119. 154:

Sweetned the Duty to him, and caused him to praise God * more and more; to be never meany of praising him here, as knowing that it would be his fole Employment to praise him hereafter for evermore. Though Daniel was deeply engag'd in Publick Business and State Affairs, yet he took not any Occasion from these to neglect his daily Duty and wonted Service to his God: He kept his former Course and Order; for, every day, and constantly three Times a Day, he kneeled upon his Knees, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God; though he knew he hazarded his high Preferment, and endanger'd his very Life by it.

So Cornelius a Centurion, taken up with many Martial Occasions, yet suffer'd not himself to be taken off from his Devotion thereby, but | prayed to God alway: He did not do it only by fits, but daily and constantly observ'd his usual Seasons. It is reported of the famous [g] Bp. Andrews, that though he had many weighty Employments as Bishop of Winchester and Privy Counsellor; yet, his Life was a Life of Prayer, and a great part of five Hours every day, did he spend in Prayer and Devotion to God. The holy and excellent [h] Bp. Usher had Prayer in his Family four times a day, In the Morning at fix, in the Evening at eight, and before Dinner and Supper in the Chappel, at each of which he was alwaies present. [i] Mr. William Whately, Minister of Banbury, had much Work lying upon him continually; catechifing and preaching twice every Lord's-

* Pf. 71. 14. † Dan. 6. 10. 4 Ads 10. 2.

[b] His Life written by Dr. Bernard, p. 58.

[1] His Life written by Mr. Clark.

ft

ar

d

b

f

[[]e] In the Serm. preached at his Fun. at the end of his germons, p. 21.

praise ailing e Emmore. Buvont-our se three ayed. d his any e taaily reugh to of

was ery he his in ıp-

aler n-

ry 3-

r=

Lord's-day, and a weekly Lecture belides; well studying, and usually penning his Sermons at large; and yet his constant Practice was, besides Family-Prayer twice a day, and fometimes catechizing, to pray also with his Wife, and alone, both Morning and Evening.

And with what shew of Reason can any of you excuse your selves? Have you Time to cat and drink and fleep; and not only to labour and work, but to play and sport; Leisure to recreate your felves, and visit your Friends, and take your pleafure; a Spare-Hour to spend in discourse, and it may be to waste in empty and idle talk with another? Have you Time to do nothing? Time to do Evil? and have you no Time to ferve and worship God in your Families? no Time for religious Retirements, and hidden Repairs to God, in your privy Chambers, and fecret Closets? Have you for many Sins, and Wants, Corruptions, and Temptations? and can no Time be spared and set apart to feek God for the Pardon of your Sins, and the Supply of all your spiritual Wants; and to pray to him for Strength and Power, to mortify the Corruptious with which you are infefted, and to relift the Temptations with which you are assaulted ?

2. We should moreover betake our solves to solemn continued Prayer, when we have Place and Space for Such a Duty, upon the Emergency of any weighty important Business, or on any special extraordinary occurrent and urgent Occasion; to beg of God the prudent Conduct of our Affairs, Success in, and a Blefling upon our lawful and honest Undertakings; Strength to go through Trials, Afflictions, and Temptations; Freedom and Deliverance from Evils and Sufferings, felt or feared; or to return God thanks for the receit of his Mercies in any fuch particulars, and to engage our felves to walk antiwerably, and to render fuitably to the Lord, for fuch undeferved, and it may be unexpected Blef-fings and Benefits.

X 3

We reade of Abraham's Servant, that when his Mafter fent him to take a Wife for his Son Ifaac, he fought God, and faid, * O Lord God of my Mafter Abraham, I pray thee fend me good freed this Day, and shew Kindness unto my Master Abraham. And when God had given him good Success, the wor-Shipped and bleffed God which had led him in the right Way. When Jacob was greatly afraid of Esaw's coming, he prayed to God to deliver him from the Hand of his Brother. When Nehemiah understood the Misery of Jerusalem, he () fasted and prayed before the God of Heaven, and intreated God to prosper him that Day, and to grant him Mercy in the Sight of the King. So when Efther was to make an extraordinary Suit to King Abasnerus, (+) she and her Maidens fasted and prayed for an happy tiffue and good Event. When David was troubled with flanderous Enemies, () he gave himself unto Prayer. And upon the Receit of Semacherib's blasphemous Letter, [] Hezekiah went up unto the House of the Lord, and spreadit before the Lord, and prayed against Sennacherib King of Assyria. Christ upon his approaching Passion [1] prayed thrice in the Garden. St. Paul likewise, when there was given to bim a Thorn in the Flesh, the Messenger of Satan to buffer the

fo

W

fil

li

Ř

^{} G:n. 24.12. † Verf. 26, 27, 48. | Gen. 32 9, 10, 11. () 1 Neh. 4. 11. (†) Eth. 4.16. (1) Pf. 109. 2. [*] Ifa. 37. 14, 15, 21. [†] Matt. 20. 39, 42, 44.

buffet him, * for this thing he befought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from him.

How eminent have many pious Persons been for gaining Opportunities of Religious Addresses, and for their Care to improve much Time in Prayer. whether upon ordinary, or extraordinary Occafions? It is the worthy Commendation of [k] Philippus Villerius, the Great Master of the Rhodes, that all the Time he could spare from the necessary Cares of his weighty Charge, from Assaults, and the natural Refreshing of his Body, he bestowed in Prayer and Serving of God; He oftentimes spent the greatest Part of the Night in the Church alone praying, his Head-piece, Gorget, and Gantlets lying by him: So that it was often said, that his devout Prayers and Carefulnes would make the City invincible. Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, would pray a Ship-board, a Shore, in the Field, in the midst of a Battel. 'Tis a memorable Passage in the [1] Life of Mr. John Bradford, that his continual Study was upon his Knees: and no doubt he mingled many holy Prayers with his hard Studies. [m] Mr. Hugh Latimer, in the latter Time of his Imprisonment, which was at Oxford, from April to October, did oftentimes continue fo long in fervent Prayer kneeling, that he was not able to rife without Help: And three special principal Matters, which he ever mention'd in his Praiers at that Season, were these; That God would give him Grace to stand to his Dostrine until his Death, that he might give and shed his Heartblood in the Defence of the Gospel: That God of his

* 2 Cor. 12. 7, 8.

[m] Id. ib. p. 1579.

eturn

fuch

an-

for

Blef-

his aac,

Va-

ay

Ind

or-

ghe

u's

the

bo

ed.

to

be n

d

e

μ

^[6] Knolles's Hist of the Turks, p. 580.

his Mercy would restore his Gospel to England once again, once again: He also desired with Tears, that God would preserve the Princes Elizabeth, and make her a Comfort to his comfortless Realm of England: All which Requests God graciously granted: and in Answer to his first particular Defire, it was very remarkable, that his Body being open'd by the Force of the Fire, his Blood, which gather'd much to his Heart, gush'd out of his Heart with Violence, and ran out in Abundance. [n] Eusebius, out of Agesippus, tells us of James called Justus, that his Knees were grown very callous, hard and brawny, benumm'd and bereft of the Senfe of Feeling, by reason of his continual kneeling in Supplication to God, and Petition for the People. So, Gregory relates of his Aunt Trucilla, that her Elbows were as hard as an Horn, by often leaning on a Desk when she prayed. And St. Ferome, in an Epistle to Marcella, mentions this in the Praises of Afella, that by her frequent kneeling in Prayer, the had contracted fuch an Hardness on her Knees, as is to be found on the [p] Knees of The same Father writes in the Life of Camels. Paul the Hermite, that [9] Anthony entring into the Cave, found there the dead Body of that Saint in a praying Posture, upon its bended folded Knees, with its Head lifted up, and its Hands stretched out [n] Eccl Hill. 1 2. c. 13.

out

out

ture

Sela

voc

ang

ve

W

*

M

do

in

to

h

to

[[]p] Durities de genubus camelorum in illo santo corpusculo pra orandis frequentia obcaluisse perspecta est. Hier. ad Marcell. de laudib. Atellæ.

^[9] Ac primum & i se, vivere eum credens, pariter orabar. Possiquam verò nulla, ut solebat, suspiria precantie audirit, in stebile osculum ruens, intellexit quod essam cadarer Sansti, Deum, cus omnia vivunt, osficioso gestu precabatur. Hier. in vit. Pauli Eremitr.

out on high. [r] How happy now is his Soul without his Body, whose Body was in a worshiping Gesture without his Soul!

3. If we would redeem the Time, we must give our selves to frequent boly Ejaculation, either mental, or vocal; inwardly lifting and darting up our Petitions and Heart's Defires, or orally uttering them in some yery fhort yet pithy Expressions: of both which we have feveral Inflances in Sacred Writ; * Wherefore [s] crieft thou unto me? said Gcd to Moses; when Moses utter'd not a Word, that we do reade of; but only used strong Ejaculations, inward ardent Desires and Groans. † So I prayed to the God of Heaven, faid holy Nehemiah; that is, he dispatch'd and sent up some short Heart-prayers to Heaven, that God would direct his Tongue, and bend and [t] incline the Heart of the King; the King's Heart being in the Lord's Hand; He could pray no otherwise at that Time, for he was then in the Presence of the King, and in Discourse with him. And Nehemiah, and (*) our Saviour, and others, d duse by an holy Apostrophe to turn their Speech to God in vocal Ejaculations.

The true Christian (as a solid [u] Divine saies well) does not limit himself penuriously to a Morning and

Even-

once

hat

and

of

illy

De-

ing

ich

his

ce.

res

11-

of

al

or

1-

F-

d

[[]r] O ter beatam il'in animam sine corpore, cujus ad o renerabundum corpus sine anima! Arrows, Tact. sacr. p. 273.

^{*} Exod 14.15.

[[]s] In Dei auribu desiderium vehemens, clanor magnus: regione autem remissa inientio, vox submissa. Bern f.im. 16. i.i Pl 50.

[†] Nehem. 2.4.

[[]t] Qui preces ad Regem perferre vult, prike ad Deum perferat, cujus in manu cords funt Regum. Gtot. in loc.

i N.hem. 13. 14, 21, 31. (*) Mar. 11. 25. John 12 273:8.

[[]w] Shaw's Immanuel, p. 73.

Evening Sacrifice and Solemnity, as unto certain Rentfeafons, wherein to pay an Homage of dry Devotion; but his loving and longing Soul diffaining to be confined within Canonical Hours, is frequently fouring in some heavenly Ruptures or other, and sallying forth in holy Ejaculations.

If thou beest a truly regenerate Person, such Ejaculation was thy sirst, and will be thy last Breathing: O see that it be the most usual Exercise of thy Life.

Great is the Benefit of holy and heavenly Ejaculation; which is like the keeping alive, and quickning the Fire for the Use and Service of the daily Sacrifice: If by neglect of this spiritual Exercise, we unhappily suffer the holy Fire to go out, we can't expect that God should kindle it anew, when we go to offer the Sacrifice of solemn Prayer to God. By our much using Ejaculatory Prayer, and familiarizing our selves to praying Thoughts and Defires, and exercising our selves in spiritual Pleadings with God, our Hearts will be generally [w] fram'd and sitted; and by immediatly previous Ejaculatory Prayer, our Hearts will be particularly disposed and prepared for performance of set and solemn Prayer.

We shall also [x] close and come off well from con-

[m] Such as will be ever and anon thus whetting their praying Spirits and Graces, will make Work of it when they come to it. They that are good at these runnin: Pulls, and Trips, are surely good Wrattlers with God. Cobbet of Prayer, p. 47.

cont

Ard

larg

Del

live

Lo

hea

not.

abl

me

Pr

a

[[]x] All the Prayers of a gracious Suppliant are not ended with his continued Speech in Prayer; no, t is heart is lifting and lifting; as you fee a Bell-rope of thoyfing up after you have done ringing the Bell. --- When a gracious Person's Heart is left in Heaven, uttering its after Requests, now Prayer was well car-continued Prayer, with the greater Spirituality and Ardency of Devotion, by following at last our larger and longer Prayers with several short strong Desires, earnest and affectionate good Wishes, lively and vigotous Heart-lifts; such like as these; Lord, forgive the Iniquity of my holy Things. O Lord hear, O Lord forgive, O Lord hearken and do, defer not, for thine own sake, O my God. Let the Words of my Mouth, and the Meditation of my Heart be acceptable in thy Sight, O Lord my Strength and my Redeemer. Good Lord, help me to live over my Prayers, and let me not destroy my Prayers by a careless, Christess, wicked, loose and ungodly Life: Amen, Amen.

Yea, often retire, address and apply thy self to God in short Prayers and cordial Ejaculations, and these may [y] supply the Lack of those larger

ried on. These shorter Poll-scripts written after the other longer Letter, - have ever something of note and worth. Id. ib P. 33, 34.

When men part with men, they use to give one another a Fa e-well, and not bluntly deliver their Mind one to another, and so turn their backs one upon another. -- Neither may a man, when a Duty is done, go away bluntly from God, but give him a Farewell by holy Medication. It's an unseemly kicking of a Duty, as most men do when they are come to the end of their Prayers, to whom with the Father and Holy Spirit be ascribed all Praise and Glory, Amen; Come is Dinner ready? or, What news do you hear? This is unmannerliness towards the Ordinances of God. Fenner of the Tse and Ben. of Divine Medic, p. 25. fol [] Bp. Taylor's Rule and Exerc. of Holy Living, c. 1 5. 1.

The want of the folcom Morning-Prayer (in case that some necessary work of Charity do hinder us) may be supplied by some frequent Ejaculatory Prayers, and frequent inward spiritual Adminings and Adorings or God; but the waut of these cannot be

ent-

ion $

fin'd

ome

holy

uch

last

er-

CH4

k-

ly

e, ıt,

W,

er

r, ts larger Portions of Time, which thou desirest and covetest for thy Devotion, and in which it may be thou thinkest others have advantage of thee.

Again; This is the readiest surest way to improve any spiritual Warmth, holy Affection or good Motion, wrought in thy Heart in the Use of Christian Conference, in Hearing, Reading, Meditation, or the like; To send up sudden suitable, seasonable Ejaculatory Prayers or Praises, while thou art under such a lively Sense, and in such a Godly Frame.

Farther; Our often using and daily maintaining a frequent Converse with God, in the way of these holy devout Ejaculations, these Aspirations and Emigrations of Soul after God, this will prove a special Help to keep our Hearts very spritual and favoury, and close with God, and to get more intimate Acquaintance with him, and to secure the continuance of his gracious friendly Presence with

us.

This moreover is a fit and proper Means to call in and engage Divine Assistance, to inable us meetly

to

to

an

de

do

bl

ai

tl

d

fupplied by the other. White's Power of Godl. p. 97.

If the case were so, that we must omit one of them, it were better to omit our solemn Prayer in the Morning, and to have our Heart sending up continually Ejaculatory Prayers and Breathings after God, than to spend an Hour in the Morning in solemn Prayer, and Meditation, and all the rest of the Day not to have so much as one Thought of God. 1d 1b. p. 202.

You must not leave off solemn Duties, and think to supply the want thereof by Ejaculatory Prayers, for they are not to justle out, but help one another: This is, as if the Priess should content themselves with keeping the Fire burning alwaies on the Altar, and neglect their Morning and Evening Sacrifice. 1d. 1b.

p. 2 9.

to manage any temporal or spiritual Employment, and rightly to improve any Ordinance or Providence; a direct Means to procure from God Wifdome and Grace, fuitably to entertain any notable Mercy newly received; to get Ease and Relief in any sudden strait or want; Patience under, and the Sanctification of a surprising and unexpected Affli-Etion; a present and approved Means to throw out the Injections, and to repel the fiery Darts of the Devil; to gain Help from Heaven against any sadden strong Temptation, or rising and working of any Corruption, and Strength against our Bosom Master Sin, which is so apt so easily to befet us; A Means to prevent our being unwarily ensnared and entangled in the Use and Exercise of our lawful Labours or Recreations; To be preserved effectually from Sin and Folly, when cast unawares into profane or carnal Company; to obtain Mercy and Pardon speedily, upon apprehension of any Infirmities, Slips or Failings; To lift up our Hearts in such Cases in the Way of sudden Ejaculatory Prayer to God. This will fave our foliary Hours in the Day-time, and well improve our wakeful Hours in the Night-feason; when we cannot take our natural Rest and Sleep, then to awaken and call upon our Souls to return unto their spiritual Rest; to raise and lift up our Hearts to Heaven, and to prefent the Defires of our Souls to God. [z] This is an excellent way to redeem the Time, in the want of

and

may

im-

e of Me-

ole,

lile.

od-

in-

of

ns

re

al

^[2] In hard Havens to choaked up with the envious Sands, that great Ships drawing many Foot Water, cannot come near, lighter and leffer Pinnaces may freely and fafely artive. VVhen we are Time-bound, Flace-bound, or Fetton-bound, to that we cannot compose our felves to make a large and folerun Pray-of a proper Place for larger Prayer : Wherever thou art, though never fo far from a Church or Oracory; yet as to the Use of this kind of Prayer, thou maiest be the Temple of God thy felf, and pray within thy felf. Yea, once more; This is an admirable way to redeem the Time, in the greatest straits of Time, in the midst of much Company, in the Multiplicity, Croud, and Hurry of worldly Businesses and Employments: For this is the Advantage and rare Priviledg of Ejaculation, that the Work of God is performed in it, and [a] no secular Affair or worldly Occasion hindred or retarded, impeded or interrupted by it: It is a gaining of Time for the Exercise of Religion, without any Prejudice, Let or Hindrance to your Calling: It is a taking Time for a spiritual Duty, without taking it away from your civil Employment. [b] You may at the same instant follow your particular proper Voer, this is the right inflant for Ejaculations, whether orally utter'd, or only poured forth inwardly in the Heart. Faller's Medit. on all kind of Prayers, p. 77.

[4] --- Media inter prelia simper Steuarum ca. i juc plagis superisque vacavi, Cæfar apud Lucan. l. 10. v. 185.

[6] The Field wherein Bees feed is no whit the barer for their biting; when they have took their full repair on Flower or Grafs, the Ox may feed, the Sheep far on their Reversions. The reason is, because those little Chymists distill only therefined part of the Flower, leaving the grosser Substance thereof. So Ejaculations bind not men to any bodily Observance, only busy the spiritual half, which maketh them consistent with the prosecution of any other Employment. Fuller loc cit p 78.

VVe flould make some improvement of that Time in which we do the works of our particular Callings to some spiritual Advantage, (if our Employments be such as exercise the Hand and not the Head) by some useful Meditations, as some will plant their Hedg-towes with fruit-trees, reckoning that what they get

there-

Catio

way

inst

flue

nin

upe

ver

out

ber

Re

M

t

cation, and fend up an holy Ejaculation. The Husbandman may dart forth an Ejaculation, and not make a Balk the more. The Tradesman may mind his Shop never the less, for minding God in such a way as this. Thy Ejaculatory Prayers will santtify, instead of bindring thy Employments; will insuence thy Conscience, and keep thee from sinning in thy Calling, and will draw down a Blessing upon every Business and Undertaking.

In a Word, To give our felves to holy and heavenly Ejaculation, this is the way * to pray without ceasing. And furely the Frequency and Number of Ejaculatory Prayers, will bring us in very great and large spiritual Gains, and notable rich Returns.

thon

rato-

thou

the

uli-

an-

the

lar

ed,

of

·ca

4-

at 0-

1-

'Tis a noted and approved Saying, That much Meditation, short Prayers and often, make an excellent Christian. The eminently learned and holy Andrew Rivet did much accustome and inure himself to these short Prayers: He used in his old Age (as he him-thereby is clear Gain, because they take up no room which might be put to any other Use 1 so what we get by such Meditations is clearly gained, because it doth not hinder any other Employment. Lukins Pratt. of Godl. p. 53,54.

Art thou as much against this, that worldly thoughts should mingle themselves with thy solemn Prayers, as that hely thoughts should be mingled with thy worldly business? This shows the rottenness of thy Heart, that thou wilt admit the VVorld to come and speak with thee in the midst of thy sole nn Duties, or converse with God, but wilt not afford God a word, or a look, while thou art conversing with the VVorld, White's Fower of Godl. p 214.

* 1 Theff. 5. 17.

himself declares [c] in an Epistle to his Brother) for many Years every Day, and often every Hour, to repeat * those Words of the divine Psalmitt, which were suitable to the Circumstances of his own Condition; O God, thou hast taught me from my Youth: and hitherto have I declared thy wondrous Works. Now also when I am old and gray-headed, O God, for sake me not: until I have shewed thy Strength unto this Generation, and thy Power to every one that is to come.

The Seventh Direction.

If we would redeem the Time, we must fet our felves to the daily, frequent, diligent Reading, and serious studying of the sacred Scriptures: for,

1. This is a gaining and making Advantage of all that Time past, which the Scripture gives you the History and Account of.

Seneca advises his Friend Lucilius by the Peregrination of his Mind to go to the ancient Worthies, and renowned great Men, and by Cogitation to behold them, in order to an Imitation of them: This he proposes to him, as a prudent way to get Vice extirpated, and Vertue farther planted in him. He would have him by Contemplation go live and converse with the Cato's, with Lalius, Tubero, Socrates, Zeno, Chrysippus, Posidonius: These will instruct

* Plal. 71. 17, 18.

Ara

217 be l

ad

fre

con

W

va

Pa

an an ter an

T

uf

pl.

of

th

tu

CO

W

pl

M

fi

tı

0

[[]c] Ego sace, mi fruter, a multis annu hanc orationem singulus diebus, & sape hor u, repeto, qui sentio mihi hac eadem convenire, — Andr. Rivet. ep. ad Guil. Fratt. De Senect bon. P. 1260.

struct you, faies [a] he, in the knowledg of things divine and humane, and will command and enjoin you to be busied and employed in some good Action. Let me advise and counsel you that are Christians, to travel frequently through the holy Scriptures; to keep a constant Course of attentive reading those sacred Writings, and they will give you the happy Advantage of spiritual and fruitful Converse with the Patriarchs and Prophets, with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob; with Mofes and Elias; with Noah, Job, and Daniel; with David and Solomon; with St. Peter, and Paul, and James, and John; with Christ, and his Apostles, and the Primitive Christians: There you may get Acquaintance with, and make use of those rare Persons, that have been most exemplary and serviceable in their Generations, and most deservedly famous in the several Ages of the Church of God and Christ; and may take the Benefit of their holy Discourses, their excellent Lives and vertuous Actions.

And what the same Philosopher wisely Discourfes in his excellent Book of the Brevity of Life, encouraging Persons to a daily familiar Acquaintance with Zeno, Pythagoras, Democritus, Aristotle, Theophrastus; What he saies there to invite and engage Men to reade the Writings of such as excell in useful Philosophical Learning, and good Arts, is more truly applicable, by way of Movive, to prevail with Men to give themselves to the reading of the Pen-men of the sacred Scriptures, and of the Sayings of those wise and holy Persons that are introduced
Y

ier)

our,

uilt,

his

Fom

0148

, 0

gth

it is

[et

all

0-

i-

0

c

1.

d

[[]a] Hi tibi tralent decemen humanoranque netiti in; Hi jutebunt in ofere effe. Sen. ep. 104.

discoursing therein: [b] There is not one of these but will call thee to hear them speaking to thee; not any one of them, but, if you come to them, will fend you away more happy, and more in love with them: none of them will suffer you to go empty-handed away from them. They may be met and spoken with, visited and converfed with by all both Day and Night. None of these will presyou to die presently, but all will teach you to die well at last: None of these will waste your Years, but will readily contribute and give their own to you, for your Use and Service, Profit and Benefit: None of their Discourse will ever be dangerous, none of their Friendship will prove pernicious, your Acquaintance with them, and Observance of them will not be costly and chargeable to you. You may receive what you want, and carry away what you will from them: They will never hinder you from drawing as much out of them, as you are capable of containing. What an happy and levely old Age is like to befal him, who has given himself into their Tuition? He will have those continually at hand, with whom he may deliberate both of the Smallest and greatest Matters, whom he may daily advise with about himself, from whom he may hear the Truth without Reprosch, by whom he may be commended without Flattery, and after whose Similitude he may form and fashion himself. - These will set you in the way, that will furely bring you to an happy Eternity, and will mount you up into that Place, out of which none (hall be able to eject you.

This is, in a fense, a gaining of a great deal of Time that is post, and an happy converting it to

our

our

the

ges

that

to o

feve

fon:

crec

a pr

is de

to f wel

emp

Att

resp

atta

ritu

we

ed 1

and

Cre

Lig

a P

W

to cei tio

mn

clas

Cpi

2

[[]b] Nemo horum non vocabit, nemo non venientem ad se beatiorem, ama nterémque sus dimittit, --- Hi tibi dabunt ad aternitatem iter, & te a ilium iocum, ex quo nemo te est i t, sub evabant. Sen. de brev. vic. c. 14, 15.

our own spiritual Profit and Use. Our perusing the notable useful Histories, and instructive Passages of the sacred Pages, will, after a fort, make all that Time [c] ours, and serve in a manner as much to our advantage, as if we our selves had liv'd in the several Ages, in which those eminently pious Persons appeared and acted, that are recorded in sacred Writ.

2. Our Reading the holy Books of Scripture, is a proper redeeming that Time in particular, which is denied to worldly Profit or Pleasure, and applied to such a spiritual Use: It is a good hubanding, and well improving the present Time, that is spent and employed in this religious Duty: for this is our Attendance on an Ordinance of God, and in that respect an honouring of God. It is also a Means of attaining divine Knowledg, heavenly Grace, and spiritual Comfort.

(1.) Divine Knowledg. By reading the Scripture we may be taught of God, and come to be acquainted with the Mind and Will of our supreme Ruler and Governour, with the righteous Laws of our Creator and Redeemer: There we may find *a Light unto our Feet, and a Lamborn unto our Paths; a Pillar of Fire by Night, to conduct us through the Wilderness unto Canaan; a Star still before us, to lead us unto Christ. From thence we may receive suitable and seasonable Information, Resolution, Direction, if, with holy David, we take

but

one

way

bem

em.

er-

be fe

10 ars,

it:

one

in-

be

m:

of

ap-

ien

124-

he

ıd-

he

day

r-

ch

of 0 ır

1

nat i

[[]c] Animus humanus arctamatatem sits davi non siait. Omnes, tuquit, anni merjunt, nicium secalum magnus ingenis clusimist, nullum non cogitations pervium tempus. Seneca epit. 102.

Pf. 119. 105.

God's Testimonies for our * Counsellers. The Scriptures are apt to preserve, and powerful to reduce Men from erroneous Opinions: as Junius was mightily wrought upon, and with clear Conviction and full Satisfaction recovered out of Atheism, and converted to the Truth, by reading the Beginning of [d] St. John's Gospel. The Scriptures are + able to make us wife umo Salvation; to make us so wife, as to become truly good. For,

(2.) Our reading the Scripture, is a means of obtaining heavenly Grace. The holy Scripture is apt to terrify and affright the Sinner out of the Way of The pure and clean Word of God is able to make thee pure and clean. The holy, just, and good Law of God, is able to make thee holy, just, and St. Auftin, in his younger Years, was an incontinent Person; but being at length admonished by this Voice, Tolle, lege; tolle, lege; take up the Book and reade; he prefently caught up and opened [e] St. Paul's Epiftles, and happily first cast his Eyes upon those Words in the thirteenth Chapter of the Epille to the Romans, | Not in Rioting and Drunkenneß, not in Chambering and Wantonneß, not in Strife and Envying. But put ye on the Lord Je-Sus Christ, and make not Provision for the Flesh, to fulfill the Lusts thereof: With which his Heart was po-

* Pf. 119. 24.

W

and Pl

wk

die fu

COL

the

w

on

W

of

of 26

716

n

G

Ta

th

d

wer-

[[]d] Lego partem cipitu, & ita commoveor legens; ut repentè divinitatem argum noi, & ser poi majest tem authoritaiemque senserun longo intervato comibus eloquentia humana sluminitus praeuntem, &c. Junius ipse in descript, vit. sux.

^{† 2} Tim 3.15. [c] Cod.c.m Apostols. | Rom. 13. 13, 14.

werfully affected, and touched to purpose. [f] I had no need to reade any further, saies he; How sweet and pleasant did I presently sind it to want those trisling Pleasures of Sin? How glad was I now to let go quite, what a little before I was so much assaid to lose? Thou didst make those seeming Sweetnesses vanish, O Christ seemin, who art the true and highest Sweetness, and didst come thy self in their Room and Stead, sweeter than all the Pleasures in the World.

The Word of God's Grace, is that holy * Seed of which you may be born again; and is able, when once you are truly converted from Sin and the World to God, to + build you up, and to give you an Inheritance among all them which are fantified.

(3.) Our reading the Scripture, is a ready Way, and proper Means of finding Spiritual Peace and Comfort. [g] That Place of Paul, was truly to me the Gate of Paradise: So faid Luther of the 17th Verse of the first Chapter to the Romans, The Righteousness of God is revealed in the Gospel from Faith to Faith: as it is written, The Just shall live by Faith. ney, or rather St. Bilney (as [b] Father Latimer did not stick to stile him) that holy and bleffed Martyr of God, that suffer'd Death for God's Word's fake, was raised and revived, cheered and refreshed by the 15th Verse of the first Chapter of the first to Timethy: He confelles of himself, that when the New Testament was first set forth by Erasmus, he Y 3 was

Scrito re-

was iction

and inning

t able

f ob-

pt to

y of ele to

good

and n in-

fhed

the do-

cast Cha-

ting

ness,

ful-

po-

er-

en-

ni

[[]f] Nec ultra volui legere, nec epus erat, &c. --- Fam liber erat animus meus à curis mordacibus ambiende, & acquirendi, & volutandi, atque fealpends feabsem isbalinum. Aug. Cont. 1. 8. c. 12. §. 3. & l. 9 c. 1. § 2.

^{* 1} Pet. 1. 23. † Acts 20. 32. [g] Locus sile Pauli fuit mihi ve: è porta Paradifi.

[[]b] In his first Sermon before the Dutches of Suffolk fol 5.
Fox Act, and Mon. 2 v. p. 919.

was drawn to buy it, more in confideration of the good Latine of that Edition, than out of any regard to the Word of God, (of which he was utterly ignorant at that Time) And, by the Providence of God, he fell at first reading on this Sentence, This is a faithful Saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the World to save Sinners; of whom I am chief. [h] O this Saying of Paul, was a sweet and comfortable Saying to me, faies he: This one Sentence, God inwardly teaching and instructing me, did so exhilarate and comfort my Heart, which before was wounded and ready to despair, through the Convi-Etion and Sense I had of my Sins; that I felt immediatly such a marvellous Tranquillity and Gladneß within me, that the Bones which had been broken did rejoice: and from this Time the Scripture began to be sweeter to me than the Honey and the Honey-comb. As Adam and Eve went about in vain to cover their Nakedneß with their Fig-leaves, and were never quieted till they had believed the Promise of God, that the Seed of the Woman should break the Serpents Head, so neither could Ibe healed, faies he, of the Stings and Bitings of my Sins, before I was taught of God that Lesson of which Christ speaks, Joh. 3. 14, 15. As Moses lifted up the Serpent in the Wilderneß, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up: That who soever believeth in him, should not peri fh, but have eternal Life.

Thomas à Kempis is faid to have uttered, and to have written this Sentence in his Books, [i] I have

Sought

Soug

is the

abo

Reft

mor

rea

red

the

to bef

on

ane

an

Eti

COL

an

OI

be

CC

ne

y.

n

t

[[]h] O mihi suavismam Pauli sententiam. -- Hac una sententia. Des intention corde mes docente, sie exhilaravit pettus meum, &c. Biln. ep. ad Cuth. Touttallum Lond. Episc. Fox Act. & Mon 2 v. p. 915.

^[1] In omnibus requiem quafiri, sed nusquam inveni praterquam in angulo cum isbello. S. Torshel exercit, in Malach, fought for Rest every where, but have found it no where except in a Corner alone with a little Book. The Bible is that blessed Book, which will either alone, or above all other Books afford a suitable seasonable Rest unto our Souls.

And now these Things considered, is it not well worth the while to bestow your Time and Pains in reading and studying the facred Scriptures?

3. It is moreover a Means and Help to the right redeening of our Time for the future: For, here in the Scripture we have the plainest Precepts given us, to oblige us to take due Care of our Time; the best Examples and worthiest Patterns of Redemption of Time set before us, in the Servants of God, and in the Son of God; and have here assorded us the strongest Motives and Encouragements to it, and the most prudent Instructions and proper Directions about it: For, all that has been historic difcoursed concerning it, has chiefly been setch'd from, and drawn out of the holy Scriptures.

And these divine and sacred Writings, will not only teach and instruct you, but also inwardly dispose and qualify, sit and enable you to make the best Improvement of your remaining Time, by converting and transforming, regenerating and renewing, purifying and sanctifying you: By giving you a new Nature, they will enable you to lead a new Life.

And therefore be fure to redeem fome competent Time for reading of the Scripture, that you may the better redeem the Remainder of your Time by reading of the Scripture. The noble Ethiopian * Eunuch would lose no Time, but as he

f the

gard

y ig-

ice of

This

that

s; of

oas a is one

me,

efore

mui-

diat-

thin

ice:

r to

lam

lnes

they

the

nuld

oich

the

2 be

not

to

ht

a

214

OX

^{*} Acts 8. 28.

was travelling, and fitting in his Chariot, he read Esaias the Prophet: And (as St. Chrysoftom well notes) if he was so religiously employed in a Fourmey, what a diligent Student of the Scripture was he at home? yea though he found what he then read to be to him difficult and [k] obscure, yet he would not lay that holy Book away, which he did not at present well understand. We must esteem reverently of the Word (saies the judicious [1] Hildersam) though we cannot at the first reading or hearing of it profit by it, or discern what use it may serve us unto. The Jews were so exactly versed in the Old Testament, that [m] Josephus gives this Testimony of them, Every one of our Nation being demanded of our Laws, can answer as readily as he can tell his own Name. * The Bereans are commended for spending

[b] Qua aperta sunt, & in quibus mentem suam Deus aperis, avide & prompto animo sus spere decet; qua adhuc nobis obscura sunt, praterire convenis, donce plemor sux affulgeast. Quod si legendo non satigabimur, siet tandem, ut scriptura assiduo usu samitiarii nobis reddatur. Calv. in loc.

[1] Mr. Arthur Hilderfam Lecture 1 on the Title of Pfal. $1.

The obscurity of any Place should increase our Diligence in searching the meaning of it: and teach us to acknowledg the necessity of a learned Ministry, and of that Gift of Interpretation God hath given unto his Servants: Ast. 8, 31. And to see the Necessity of joining with our reading humble Prayer unto God, that he would open our Understanding: 19. 18. And cause us to come to the reading of the Word with an Hear that is humbled and searful to offend God: For the secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will show them his Covenant, Ps. 15, 14. And this should move us to mark, and lay up in our Hearts, even those things which we understand not, because they may do us good hereafter, Luke 2. 50, $1. Joh. 2, 22, 1d, 1b. 149. 2, 3.

[m] Contr. Appion. l. 2.

· Acts 17. 11.

ing

tures

that a gr

Old ry 7

Kno

him

kno

ter

rea

ger

th

 T_{4}

fo

in d ing their Time every Day in fearthing the Scriptures. It is the honourable Character of Apollos, that he was * mighty in the Scriptures, one that had a great Infight and Skill in the Scriptures of the Old Teltament: But † Aquila and Priscilla ordinary Tent-makers, had attained to fuch a measure of Knowledg in the Gospel, that they were able to instruct an eloquent Apollos, and to expound unto him the Way of God more perfectly. | Timothy had known the holy Scriptures from a Child. Tertulian after his Conversion was taken up night and day in reading of the Scriptures, and did with great Pains get much of them by heart, and that so exactly, that he knew each Period. Origen having this daily Task fet him by his Father, to rehearse unto him fome Portion of Scripture; He, though a Child, not only committed the Words unto his Memory, but inquired into the Sense and Meaning of them; and diverse Times would gravel his Father with the Questions which he propounded to him: And when he was grown to riger Tears, he spent much of the Night in meditating on the holy Scriptures. [n] Erasmus gives this notable Testimony of St. Jerome, Who, saies he, did ever learn by heart the whole Scripture, imbibe, concolt, handle it, meditate upon it as he did? This very learned, and holy Father did moreover [o] inflame and ftir up diverse noble Matrons of his Acquaintance at Rome to an earnest

* Acts 18. 24. + Verle 26. | 2 Tim. 3. 15.

read well

ourwas

ead uld at

ent-

f it

nto. Fa-

of our con

dng

be-

bod

16

1.

n

-

n

e

[[]n] Quis sie unsversam civinam Scripturam edidicit, imbibit, concoxit, versavit, meditatus est e Eralin. ep. Nuncupat. ad G. Varam præsix. Epist. D. Hieron.

[[]e] Has onines Hieronimus ad divina Scriptura studium inflammanit, inflammatas sua dostrina provenit. Hieton. vita per Etalin. contexta.

nest and constant Study of the divine Scriptures, exhorting and urging those holy Women not to lay the Bible out of their Hands, until being overcome with Sleep, and not able any longer to hold up their Heads, they bowed them down, as it were to falute the Leaves below them with a Kifs: And by his instruction of them, and interpretation of the Scriptures to them, he affifted and promoted their pious Endeavours in those facred Studies, [n] that st might be the greater shame for any Bishops in any wife to neglect those sacred Books, which were so often read and so well understood by the weaker Sex. And he attelts particularly Marcella's Industry, and great Proficiency, in his Epitaph of her, exprelling himfelf in these Words concerning her; Because I was at that Time of some Repute and Note, saies he, for the Study of the Scriptures, [o] she never met with me but still she would be putting some Questions to me about the Scriptures: And he further adds there; [p] Whatever by long Study was gathered by me, and turn'd as it were into my Nature by continual Meditation, all that she pick'd out, tasted, learn'd, and possest d: So that after my departure, if any Controversy crose about the Testimony of the Scripture in any Matter, they had recourse to her as a Judg therein. Pro-Sper

[n] Quò fadiù eff et ab infis Episcopis sacros libros negligi, quos sexus insirmior amplesteretur. Id. ib.

[0] Nunquam me convenit quin de Scripturis aliquid inter-rogaret. Id. ib.

Inserant in aures margaritas verbi. Tertullian, de cultu foe-min.

Sper

ally

rab

and rea

Sc

od

hi

L

ti

a

[[]p] Quicquid in nobis longo fuit studio congregatum, & medisatione diuturna quassi in naturam versum, hoc illa libavis, didicit, atque possedit: ita ut post profestionem nostram, si in aliquo testimonio Scripturarum esset oborta contentio, ad illam judicem pergeretur. Id. ib.

fper was affiduous in reading the Scripture, and ufually had the four Evangelists in his Hands. rable Bede read the Scripture with fuch Devotion and Affection, that he would often meep in the reading of it, and would conclude his reading of Scripture with Prayer. The good Emperour, Theodosius Senior wrote out the whole new Testament with his own Hand, and read some Part of it every Day; [0] Theodosius the second dedicated and consecrated a good Part of the Night to the Study of the Scriptures: to which end he had (as Nicephorus relates) a Lamp so artificially made that it constantly supplied it felf with Oil; that none of his Servants might fuffer any Trouble upon those Occasions. He learned much of the holy Scriptures without Book, and when he met and confer'd with the Bishops he expounded and explain'd obscure and knotty Places of Scripture, as if he himself had been a Person in holy Orders. Maccovius reports of George Prince of Transylvania, that he had read over the Bible feven and twenty times. And it is storied of Alphonfus King of Arragon, that (notwithstanding all his Princely Affairs) he read over the Bible with a large Comment, fome fay, ten, others affirm, fourteen times. Bonaventure wrote out the Bible twice with his own Hand, and had most of it by heart. Antonius Walaus in his younger Years imprinted much of the Scripture in his Mind, and when he was[p] old could repeat without Book the Epiitle [] Vit. Ant. VValui ante Oper, Tom. 1.

s, ex-

to lay

rcome

their

o fa-

nd by

f the

their

that

wife

read

at-

reat

um-

was

for ith

a-

nd

li-

F-

Gy

[[]ο] Έπο νει δε σει τάυτας νύκτως, λύχνον εκ μικχανής κατ. εσκυατική 🗇 αυτόματον, τη θουαλλίδι το έλαιον επιχέοντα; τοις επισκόποις εντυγχάνειν κ) ίες εύση τα γείφα τη γραφών διημιώνυεν, άτε διὶ ίες εύς καθεςτών. Νίκερω, εκκιλιάτι, rintoria, 1.14 c.3.

ftle to the Romans, the second to the Corimbians, to the Galatians, Ephesians, and Philippians. Zuinglims wrote out St. Paul's Epiftles, and got them by heart. [p] Thomas Cromwel (afterward Earl of Effex) in his Journey going and coming from Rome, learned the Text of the whole New Testament of Erasmus's Translation without Book; which was a Means of bringing him to the Knowledg, and Savour, and Love of the Truth. [9] Bishop Ridley, in his Letter of Farewel to his Friends, bidding farewel to Pembroke-Hall, does thus attest his own Practice, with the comfortable Fruit and Effect of it: In thy Orchard, faies he, (the Walls, Buts, and Trees, if they could speak, would bear me witness) I learned without Book almost all Paul's Epistles, yea, and all the Canonical Epiftles, save only the Apocalypse: of which study although in time a great part did depart from me, yet the sweet smell thereof I trust I shall carry with me into Heaven: for the Profit thereof I think I bave felt in all my Life-time ever after. [r] Dr. Gouge did tye himself to reade every Day sifteen Chapters in English out of the Bible, five in the Morning, five after Dinner before he fell upon his other Studies, and five before he went to bed; which course he first took up when he was a young Student in King's Colledg in Cambridg. He was often heard to fay, that when he could not fleep in the Night time, he used in his Thoughts to run through divers Chapters of the Scripture in order, as if he had heard them read to him. The like Practice he used in the Day time when he was alone, whether within Doors, [] Fox A&. and Mon. 2 v. p. 1075.

Dog

little

the

Plac

at a

Boo

the

Ar

for

Pl

al

èπ

th

^[7] Id. ib. p. 1609, 1610. [7] His Life, inferted among Mr. Clark's Lives of lo em. Div. p. 97, 98.

Doors, or abroad; for which end, he wrote in a little Book, which he alwaies carried about him, the distinct Heads of every Particular Passage in every Chapter of the Bible, that fo, when in any place he meditated on the Word of God, and was at a loss, he might prefently find help by that little Book. By this means he made himself so expert in the Text, that if he heard any Phrase of Scripture, he could prefently tell where it was to be found. And besides all this, he had his fet Times of Study for understanding the meaning of the more difficult Places of Scripture. [s] Mr. Jeremy Whitaker usually read all the Epiftles in the Greek Testament twice every fortnight. [t] Mr. Ignatius Jurdain read the Bible above twenty Times over, and that with special Observation (as appeared by the Asterisks, and Marks in the Bible which he used) making particular Application to himself. ["] Bp. Usher had two Aunts, who, by reason of their blindness from their Cradles, never faw Letters, and yet taught him first to reade. Dr. Bernard tells us, that their readiness in the Scripture was marvellous, being able fuddenly to have repeated any part of the Bible. I have read of one, who was fo conscientiously covetous of redeeming Time for reading of the Scripture, that [w] being a Prisoner in a dark Dungeon, when a Light was brought to him for a little Time to eat his Diet, he would pull out his Bible, and reade

[1] His Life, ib. p. 163.

ms, to

Zuin-

iem by arl of

from

Testa-

hich

and

Rid-

ding

nwc

t of

and

) 1

md

of

ort

ry

5

^[1] He had read that voluminous Book of the Acts and Monuments of the Church feven times over. In his Life among Mr. Clark's Lives in 4.

[[]w] His Life written by Dr. Bernard, p. 22.
[w] Fox's Time and the end of Time. p. 7.

reade a Chapter, faying, he could find his Month in the dark, but not reade in the dark.

O mind the Scriptures, in imitation of these and the like excellent Examples. * Give attendance to † Search the Scriptrres, as Christ com-As Diggers in [x] Mines, with much Lamands. bour and Pains do fearch for Veins of Gold and Silver in the Bowels of the Earth; So labour diligently to dig deep in the rich and golden Mines of Scripture for hidden Treasures of faving Truth. Can you use your Eyes, exercise your Reason, improve your Hours in a better Employment? Content not thy felf with a flight and curfory reading, but get a right and good understanding of these sacred Oracles. Read them with Prayer to God, before and after the reading of them. Reade them with the [y] Help of the same Spirit that wrote them: Read them, and hear the Voice of the bleffed Spirit fpeaking in them. Read, receive, and keep the Word in an honest and good Heart : (Luke 8. 15.) Hide the Word of God in thy Heart, with David, (Pf. 119. 11.) as a precious Jewel and Treasure; as the Law was kept in a Chest or Ark: (Exod. 25. 21.) Let the Word of Christ dwell richly, copiously, plentifully in thee; (Coloff. 3. 16.) and in this manner make thy Heart Bibliothecam Christi, the Library of Christ; as [z] St. Jerome tells us Nepotian

* 1 Tim. 4 13. † Joh. 5.39. egeuvare.

[x] A Lapide in loc.

tian (

tatio

and

feasi and

Mou

the

thin

fair

and

in 16

the

int

tu

ar

R

^[7] Quo Spiritu sotta sunt Scriptura, co Spiritu legi desiderant, ipsoctiam intelligenda sunt. Bern. ep. ad Fratres de monte Dei, [[]z.] Lestione assidua, & meditatione diuturna, pestun sunm bibliothecam secerat Christi. Hier. ep. ad Heliod. Epitaph. Nepetiani.

tian did, by his constant reading, and daily Meditation.

Reade the Scriptures, and fully affent to the Truth and Goodneß of them: Reade them, and feed and feast upon them: With the Prophet Ezekiel, * eat, and fill thy Belly with this Roll; 'twill be in thy Mouth as Honey for Sweetneß. Do not only take the Scriptures into thine Hand, and get them into thine Head, but let them be deeply rooted in, and fairly printed upon thy Heart: Read them, [a] concost and inwardly digest them; do not only retain them in thy Memory, but turn them into a new Nature.

Do not offer to deal with the Scriptures, as little [b] School-Boys do with their Nuts, who often get them only to play with them, having no mind or intention at all to crack the Shell, and to taste the Kernel of any of them. Reade and regard the Scriptures, not only to get a notional Knowledg of them, and merely to make them matter of Discourse, and of Dispute, but with an honest Purpose to prost in Pietre.

h in

and to m-

La-

ind

ili-

of

th.

n-

nt

ut

d

e

t

^{*} Ezek 3.1,3.

[[]a] Alsmenta qua accepimus, quamdiu in sua qualitate perdurant, T solida innatant stomacho, onera sunt: at cùm ex eo quod erant, mutata sunt, time demum in vire: T in sanguinem transcunt. Idem in his, quibus aluntur ingenia, prastemus: ut quacunque hausimus, non patiamur integra esse, ne aliena sint. Concognamiu illa: alsoquin in memoriam ibont, non in ingenium. Assentamur illa sideliter, T nostra faciamus, ut unum quiddam siat ex multis. Sen. cp. 84.

[[]b] Culpands sunt, qui in lectione quidem Bibliorum versantur, non tamen eum sibs proponunt secoum ut conscientiam suam adificent. E in pietaie proficiant, sed tantum at scientiam alsquam sibs comparent, our velut artissico quodam apud alios se ostenent, ibi Spiritum minine quarentes, ubi maxime loquistur spiritus, non dissimiles pueris, qui naces ad ludendum quarunt, nucleo nec pustato, nec aperto. entid. Rivet. Ilagog. ad S. Script. C. 30. S. 16.

Piety, and practical Knowledg, by the frequent reading, and constant studying of them.

Reade, and receive the Scripture, * not as the Word of Men, but (as it is in truth) the Word of God: This will make all its Commands more strong and powerful, more sweet and acceptable, to think very feriously with thy felf, that they are the Commands of God, who has Authority to command us; and of a good God, who shews as much Love in his Commands, as he does in his Promises; who gave his Son to die for us, and therefore we may be fure, will command us nothing, but out of Love, and for our good; nothing but what will fome way ferve to fit us for, and bring us to that Glory and Happinefs, which his Son has dearly purchas'd for us. This also will mightily strengthen your Faith in Scripture-Promises, to consider that they are God's Promises, who understands what he promises, istrue and faithful, and cannot lie, and is able to perform whatever he promises, be his Promises never fo large and great. And this will render Scripture-Threatnings very terrible, and cause you to tremble at them, and stand in aw of them; to believe and confider that they are God's Threatnings, who is arm'd with Omnipotency, and able to execute to the utmost the most dreadful Threatnings that are denounced in his Word.

O bless and praise the good and holy Name of God, that you are not less to the conduct of your purblind short-sighted Reason, to the faint Light of the Candle within you, to the natural Darkness and Blindness of your carnal Minds, and corrupt Hearts; that you are not guided with the Turks

* 1 Theff. 2. 13.

ed to the P tain i

them the Wood clear God Savi and way Dei white growh fick the you and

and

ofv

free

cere

in D ta

a

by

by a ridiculous Alcoran, nor with the Jews directed to follow a few curious Rabbines, nor with the Papifts enflaved to humane, unwritten, uncertain Traditions; But that you have the Bible open and intelligible in the English Tongue.

Highly prize and value the Scriptures, and reade them with Thankfulness, Love, Joy and Delight, as the best Book you can possibly reade in the whole World, the most incomparable Writings, which clearly and certainly declare the infinite Love of God, and feafonably bring the glad Tidings of a Saviour to lost and undone Mankind; which shew and discover to a miserable Sinner the only happy way and means of firm Reconciliation to an offended Deity, and bring Life and Immortality to light; which are God's publick Ait of Indomnity, and his free Grant of a full Pardon, and of eternal Salvation to the penitent Believer. Will you not prize and use the Word of God, that incorruptible Seed, of which you are, or may be born again? and have frequent recourse to that Word, which is the fincere Milk, and frong Meat, by which you may grow and be daily nourished; the Wine, with which you may be refreshed when weak; the Phyfick, with which you may be cured when fick ; the Sword of the Spirit, with which you may defend your felves when affaulted, and relift and repet your spiritual Enemies? Will you not readily and gladly repair to the Precepts which counfel you in all your Doubts, and quicken you in all your Deadness? and get and keep a spiritual Acquaintance with those exceeding great and precious Promifes, that strengthen and stay, relieve and refrein support and comfort you, in all your Sorrov and Afflictions, Troubles and Trials, Dejections and Heart-breakings, Disquietments and Discou ragements?

uent

the

God:

and

very

om-

us;

his

ave

ure,

for rve

ap-

us.

in

d's

is-

er -

er

po

6-

t-

0

-

f

Me-thinks, a Man should never take up the Bible, when he reads in private, but with the greatest Comfort and Joy that can be, and should say within himself, Here's that which very plainly proposeth the most excellent End, and withal the most proper and fure Means to reach and attain it; which clearly holds forth a Sufficient Rule of Faith and Life; which plentifully affords me most admirable Precepts, and most select exact Patterns of exercising Graces and performing Duties, most rare Exemplas of strong believing and holy Living! Here's that which contains the grand Charter of all my Spiritual and Heavenly Priviledges! Here's that that keeps me from Horrour and Despair, notwithstanding all my Sin and Guilt! Here's that that teacher me how to live, and that makes me able to think of Death, without finking and dying at the Thoughts of it! Here's that that makes me hold my Head a., bove Water, in the blackest Hour, and saddest Condition that can befal me!

Love and delight in the Scriptures, chiefly and especially for their Santity and Purity, because they reveal and discover the holy Nature and Law of God, the Necessity and Beauty of Holiness, the Evil and Folly and Danger of Sin, and are apt to win and draw us off from Sin, and to bring us to a real universal Conformity to the Will of God, and to a Participation of the Divine Nature, an happy Participation of God's Holiness. And apply thy self to the daily reading and diligent studying of the holy Scriptures, with a sincere Desire to be transform'd and renewed, assimilated and made like like to

Prece

Hear

TY W

thou

Char

Hear

* cle

to I

Wo

fom

men

Wo

Port

ing

task

Tim

will

to p

Deg

it:

felv

upo

07911

for

Ev

tha

wi

Co

⁽b) This is the thankful Glafs that mends the Lookers Fyes: this is the VVell that washes what it shews, Herb, Poem. H. Script.

for-

The to God by them; to be conformed to Scripture-Precepts and Examples; and to gain a Frame of Heart, and a Conversation and Course of Life every way becoming the Gospel of Christ. Whenever thou takest the Bible into thy Hand, to reade a Chapter, or any Portion of Scripture, lift up thy Heart to God, and say, Now let me be made *clean through the Word which thou shalt speak unto me: Now let me be I sanktified through thy Word of Trush and Holines: Now let me gain some Degree of Grace, and make some Improvement and Prosiciency in Holines, by thy holy Word, by this sacred Writ.

Allot and allow, and ordinarily employ some Portion of Time every day for reading and considering the holy Scriptures. If we don't in a manner task our selves usually to observe some certain set Times for this Use and Purpose, our slothful Hearts will easily admit, yea, catch at any tristing Excuse to put by the Performance of this Duty; and by Degrees we shall be drawn to an habitual Neglett of it: We should therefore charge and enjoin our selves, not to dispense with our stated Hours, but upon very necessary and just Occasions; and in such Cases be very careful, that what we were fore'd to omit at such a Time, we faithfully and honestly en-

It is convenient to reade, commonly, if it may be, some portion of Scripture, every Morning and every Evening. [c] A worthy Divine well observes, that our reading some Scripture in the Morning, will be a good Antidote against the Insection of those Corruptions, which we live amongst, and is apt to deavour to supply and make up another.

Bible,

eatest

vithin

oseth

roper

clear-

Life;

Pre-

ciling

xem-

lere's

Spi-

that stan-

aches

hink

ights

ada.

Con-

and

aufe

aw

lefs,

apt

g us

od,

an

ap-

dy-

to

to ide

ike

es:

^{*} Ja. 15. 3. † & 17. 17.
[6] Luain's Introduct, to the holy Script. p. 28.

fortify is against the Temptations of the ensuing Day; as those who live where there is any Contagion, do usually drink something in the Morning to prevent Insection. And our reading Scripture in the Evening, will be a means to compose our Minds, and surnish is with matter of Meditation for the Night-season; as Cattel feed towards the Evening, that they may have something to ruminate or chew over again, when they lie down to take their Rest.

That nothing may prove an Hindrance and impediment in this Employment,

1. Redeem the Time from unnecessary wordly Busineffes; Nay, let no ordinary Occasions of your Calling make you generally careless and negligent of the sacred Scriptures. Do not idly pretend want of Leisure to reade the weightiest Matters in the World, things of greatest Importance and nearest Concernment to your immortal Souls. enjoy much Leisure from worldly Affairs, God expects that fuch should employ and bestow more of their Time in this spiritual Exercise: Yet they that have fullest Bufiness, and fewest Spare-hours, cannot wholly be exempted from this Duty. 'Tis very remarkable, that the * King himself was exprelly commanded to write him a Copy of the Law in a Book; to write out the Book of Deuteronomy, which is a Compendium of the Law; yea, to write out the whole Pentateuch, faies [d] Grotius; to write it with his own Hand, faies Philo, that the

* Deut. 17. 18, 19, 20.

div

fait

was

Wit

Play

ries

ver

ent

into

Ale

in t in a

in l

his

we

the

Aro

ftu

rat. Ed

ftin

his

Ar in Sec

810

[[]d] Totum Pentatenchum tenebatur describere, primium ut Ifraci, ta quiriu, deinde, sterum, ut Rex: ut sciret & in privatu & in publicio negotiis Legem sibi sequendam. Sic & legere cam debebat, & sibi privatim, & in Templo, andiente populo; ut sciret populus neminim à lege excépi. Giot. in loc.

Day;
do usufection. fa
will be
w
with
W Cattel Af

Cattel Somethey lie

Busiof the of the

that dexe of they ours, 'Tis

arest

Lap

the di-

atu atu an ut divine Precepts might be the better imprinted and fastened in his Mind: It was to be with him, and he was to reade therein all the Daies of his Life; not-withstanding the Multiplicity and Greatness of the Affairs of his Kingly Office.

2. Redeem the Time from fruitles Pleasures, from Play-Books, Romances, Fanfyful Poems, feigned Stories, common Histories, witty or elegant Speeches: Never suffer these, or the like, to hill your Hands, to entertain your Eyes, to please your Phansies, to get into your Hearts, lo as to keep the facred Scriptures and divine Oracles out of your Hands and Hearts. Alexander would find Time to reade Homer, even in the Camp; and chose to lay up Homer's Poems in a most precious Casket taken out of the Spoils of And the Emperour Alius Verus was fo in love with Ovid de arte amandi, as to reade it in his Bed, and to lay it under his Pillow, when he went to fleep: But these were utterly ignorant of the Scriptures: Olet not us Christians have such strong Affections for any profane Writings, as by means of them to be taken off from peruling and studying the Scriptures, which were given by Inspiration of God, and are every way profitable to the Edification and Salvation of our Souls. [e] St. Aufin confesses it as his great Folly and Fault, that in his unconverted State, the Scripture-file was a mean and contemptible thing in his Eye, and not to be compared for Dignity with the Eloquence of Tully. And [f] Dr. Bernard relates of Bp. Usber, that in his younger Years, in the Times of his private Sequestration and strict Examination of himself, he lamented his too much love of his Book and humane Learning, that he should be as glad of Munday to go to that, as of the Lord's-Day for his Service.

 Z_3

[f] The Life of Bp. Uther, p. 27.

[[]e] Scriptura visa mibi est indigna quam Tuliana dignitati compararem. Aug conf. l, 3, c. 5.

3. We should take care to redeem the Time from the most plausible taking Treatises of moral Philosophers, whose Precepts commonly make Men grow more in Knowledg than in Goodness: We have an Account indeed of one [g] Phadon, and one Polemon, that were famous Converts to Philosophy, and were reclaimed and reduc'd from a yery luxurious and impure Life by Socrates and Xenocrates : But what vast Numbers, and great Multitudes, have not only been brought to alter their Opinions, but have been really recovered from the inward Love and Liking, as well as the outward groß Practice of Sin and Vice, by reading and ruminating on the Writings of the Old and New Testament? St. Austin declares, that Plato's Writings have not the [b] Visage and Colour of that Piety, that is apparent in the facred Scriptures. The heathen Philosophy has nothing of that holy Nature, and transforming Power, which is to be found in Scripture-truth ; which has a rare Efficacy, not only to civilize, but to Sanitify. [1] The Wisdome of Philosophers (saies

(b) Non habent ile pagine vultum pietatu huju. August.

[1] Sapientia corum non excindit vitia, sed abscondit. Pauca vero Dei pracepta sic totum hominem immutant, & exposito petere novum reddunt, ut non cognoscas cundem esse. Lactant.

1. 3. 5. 25.

Damin virum, qui sit iracundui maledicui, effrenatui : paueissimu Lei verbu tam placidum, quam ovem, reddam, &c.
Kum

Last

them

chan

every

him !

lifts

they use

St.

ftro

the [k

you

lad

Ph

Mo

COI

of

Ch

th

cei

pr

di

li

La-

1

[[]ε] Πασό ωψ τοις Έλληση, είς τις Φάιδων, εὶ καδιδε εἰ δευτερος, κὶ εῖς Πολεμον μεταβαλόντες ἀπὸ ἀσώτα κὶ μοχ ποςτατε βία εριλοσόρησαν Οι igen. contra Celf. L. I. p. 10.

de-

Lastantius) it does not cut up Vices, but only cover them: But a few divine Precepts, saies he, do so change the whole Man, and putting off the old make him every way such a new Man, that you would not know him to be the same Person.

The most improved Discourses of heathen Moralists are also short in the relief and comforts which they offer to afford to troubled Minds. If you peruse the Writings of all the Platonick Philosophers, St. Austin will tell you, you can never find such strong Cordials in any of them, as those which the Gospel exhibits and holds forth to you: you [k] can never hear there any calling and crying to you, Come unto me all ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

Nor do the Writings of the most raised sublime Philosophers, furnish and sortify a Person with any Motives and Arguments, to help him quietly and contentedly to bear the Afflictions and Calamities of this Life, like those of the perfect Pattern of Christ's patient, though undeserved, Sufferings; and the great and gainful Reward in Heaven, that * exceeding and eternal Weight of Glory, proposed and promised in the Gospel of Christ, to those that endure the Evils and Sufferings of this present Life with Christian Patience. [1] Baptista Mantuanus

Num quis hac Philosophorum aut unquam prashiti, aut prastare, si velit, potest? qui cum atates sum sus studio Philosophia conterant; neque alsum quemquam, neque sespos (si natura paululum obstitit) possunt facere meliores. Id. ib.

[k] Nemo ibi quelt vocantem : Venire ad me, qui laboratio.

Aug. Conf. 1. 7. c. 21. §. 3. 2 Cor. 4. 17. [1] Feci ego per aper culum. -- fugs semper od Codices sacros. - 50 quod so in quarebatur tramen invens; nec à special me de desiderio mes fraudatus. Baptist. Mantuan, de patiencia, 1. 3. cap. 32.

um ane

se from

ophers,

more

n Ac-

Pole-

and

rious

But

have

but

e of

the

uftin

nt in

has

Po-

nich

to aies

La-

C9-

A.

4-ito

ıt.

.

declares it as his comfortable and constant Experience, that his recourse to the Scripture was on all Occasions a present happy Remedy against all Griess of Body, Anxiety of Mind, and Sadness of Soul, and that he never fail'd of Ease, in taking this course, and using this means. Once more;

4. We should religiously redeem the Time, not only from mere Philosophical Writings, but from the Ecclesiastical, Theological Writings of Men not immediatly inspired, to spend in reading over the Bible; which is the infallible Word of God, and is peculiarly accompanied with the special Operation of the Spirit; the Word of God being vehiculum Spirithis, the Charet in which the Spirit of God rides in Triumph. This made Luther folemnly profess, [m] that he haved the Books fet forth by himfelf, and often wish'd them perish'd and utterly abolish'd, lest they should be a means to divert and withdraw Men from the reading of the Scripture, which alone is the Fountain of all spiritual, divine and heavenly Wifdome : for fear of this, he could (like Saturn) have eaten up his own Children; destroyed his own Works, the Fruit and Islue of his Mind.

Thus, thus redeem and gain the Time from other Things, to apply it to the buffe fludy of the Scriptures: Let the Scriptures have the Preeminence above all Books and Writings in the World. Keep a conflunt course of serious reading those divine Writings: reade them prequently, reade them un-

mea-

wear

faie

three

Epi

read

they

to don figh

ani

in no de

in ir

0

[[]m] Ego i se cam ob causam odi m os libros. E sepe opto cos interire, quod metuo no morentur lettores & abducant alettione i sius Scriptara, qua sola omnia sapientia sons est. Acterror exemplo superioris aratis, &c. Luth. Loc. Con. collect. à Fabicio, prim. Closs. cap. 24. pag. 73. ex Tem. 2do in Genesiu, in cap. 19. p. 143.

medically. [n] It is a common proverbial Speech, faies Luther, that the Letters of Princes are to be read three times over; Surely then the Divine Letters, God's. Epiftles (as Gregory calls the Scriptures) are to be read seven times thrice, yea, seventy times seven; they are to be read even a thousand times over; they are to be read infinitely, because they are the divine Wisdome, which cannot be comprehended presently at surfish. If any one reade them by the by as things known and easy, he deceives himself.

Is not Time well spent in often and narrow searching into those things, which are of so strange and weighty an importance, that the * Angels themselves desire [o] slooping down to look, to peep and pry into them? In gaining Knowledg and Understanding of the Wisdome, Counsel, Mind and Will of God? In acquainting our selves with the Rule of our Lives, in learning the Laws of the Kingdome, and studying the Statutes of Heaven? in using the Means of getting and growing in saving Grace; in opening and reading our Elder Brother's Will and Testament; in sucking those sull Breasts of strong Consolation, and in drawing the restreshing Water of Life out of those Wells of Salvation?

Let it be the shame and sorrow and trouble of our Souls, that we have been careless of the Scriptures in any part of our whole Lives. [p] Dr. Robert Harris, President of Trimity-Colledge in Oxford, was not peri-

n all

oul;

irfe,

not

rom

the

d is

n of

iri-

s in efs.

and lest

len

the

if-

ve

(S)

0-ie

ce

p

e ·

a

[[]n] Septies ter, imo septuagies septiet, seu ut plus dicam infiatus legende sant, vel misses relegende sunt. Idem ibidem, pag. 70, 71.

[[]o] Hacexu Lu. 'Tis an Allulion to the Cherubime, which were made with their Eyes looking down towards the Mercy-

^[] In his Life wrieten by Mr. W. Durham, p. 2.

a little afflicted to his dying day, that even in his Childhood he was more willing of play, than of reading the Scriptures to his pious Parents at their Call.

And let's lament, and fadly lay to heart the flight Thoughts that too many have of the holy Scriptures, and their gross neglect and great disregard of the precious and venerable Book of God. Mr. Fuller, in his [p] History of the University of Cambridge, does give us a Relation of an excellent Meditation of the Reverend Dr. Richard Holdesworth, which the Relater himself heard drop from him a little before his expiring: I admire, faies he, at David's gracious Heart, who so often in Scripture, but especially in the 119th Pfalm extolleth the Worth and Value of the Word of God; and yet Quantillum Scripturæ, . bow little of the Word had they in that Age? the Pentateuch, [or five Books of Moses] the Book of Job, and some of the Hagiography [a little of other holy Writ.] How much have we now thereof since the accession of the Prophets, but especially of the New Testament? and yet, alas! the more we have of the Word of God, the less it is generally regarded.

Lastly; let's do our honest and utmost endeavour to win and draw others on to the Love and Liking, to the Reading and Studying of the sacred Scriptures: * Let them be in thine Heart, and teach them diligently unto thy Children, and talk of them when thou sittest in thine House, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thon risest up. +Teachthem, thy Sons, and thy Son's Sons. || Command thy Children, and engage thy Houshold and Servants to reade the Scriptures, and to mind what they

Bib

Wil

this

to cac

Ck

ti

f

[[]p] Pag. 148. Deut. 6. 6, 7. † & 4. 9. | Gen. 18. 19.

they reade, and allow them Time for so necessary a Duty; and let not any in thy Family want a Bible for their Use and Benesit. [q] In all the Wills made by the forementioned Dr. Robert Harris, this Legacy was alwaies renewed, Item, I bequeath to all my Children, and their Children's Children, to each of them a Bible, with this Inscription, None but Christ.

The eighth Direction.

If we would effectually redeem the Time, we must give our selves to frequent and serious [a] Meditation.

Meditation is more excellent than mere Study; for the End of Meditation is not the filling our Heads with Notions, but the quickening of our Affections, and frengthning of our Resolutions; the warming of our Hearts, and putting them upon Duty; the bringing them to an inward lively Sense of God, to the Love and Fear of God, to Thankfulness and Obedience to him, to the Enjoyment of him, and Fellowship and Communion with him.

Let's use and inure our selves [b] to raise and extract holy Observations, and spiritual Considerations, from all ordinary Occurrences and Occasions; and as the Bee sucks Honey out of eyery Flower, let's endeavour to distil heavenly and savory, sweet n his

ell. Iight

cres,

the

ller,

ion

ich bed's

al-

of E,

2-

),

y

^[7] The Life of Dr. Rob. Harris written by Mr.W. Durham, pag. 57.

[[]a] Meditatio foror lettionia, nutrix orationia, directrix operis, conniumque pariter perfectio & confummatrix. Gerion.
[b] See Dr. T. Good win of the Vanity of Thoughts, pog. 8, 9,10.

and useful Meditations, out of all God's Dealings with us and Dispensations towards us; out of all Accidents that befall m, or any about us; out of the Things we fee, hear, or hear of, and out of all the Objects that any way come into our Thoughts. This was the Practice of our bleffed Saviour; when he came to * a Well, he took occasion to discourse of the Water of Life. And this has likewise been the Usage of the most eminent practical Christians. The Reverend and holy [c] Mr. Jeremy Whitaker, as he was riding with one of his intimate Friends by Tiburn, (which he had not feen, or not observ'd before) he asked what that was, and being answered that it was Tiburn, where so many Malesactors had lost their Lives, he stop'd his Horse, and utter'd these Words with much Affection; O what a shame is it, that so many thousands should die for the Satisfaction of their Lufts, and so few be found willing to lay down their Lives for Christ! Why should not we, in a good Caufe, and upon a good Call, be ready to be hanged for Jesus Christ? It would be an everlasting Honour, and it is a thousand times better to die for Christ, to be hanged, or to be burn'd for Christ, than to die in our Beds.

When we are riding, walking, fitting alone in the day time; or when we are awake in the night feason; let us commane with our own Hearts, and fill up such spaces of Time, and employ such Space-Hours in holy Thoughts of the best Things: yea, let us set some Time apart for the solemn Duty of Meditation.

That which comes into our Souls by Meditation, deep

cogs

is a

of

ftra

a (

Th

of

fo

W

a

^{*} Joh. 4.
[c] His Life among Clark's Lives of ten em. Div.p. 166, 167.

is like a Shower of Snow, which falls foft, and finks deep. 'Tis a good Saying of St. Austin, Intellectus cogitabundus principium omnis boni; A thinking Mind is a Principle productive of all good. [d] The Father of a Prodigal lying on his Sick and Death-bed, straitly charg'd his only Son, that he would spend a Quarter of an Hour every day in serious solitary Thoughts; leaving to himself the particular Subject of his retired Meditation: The Son accordingly following this Advice, at last cast in his Thoughts what might be his Father's Intention in fuch Injunction: He concluded, that his Father, being a wife and a good Man, defigned to direct and lead his Thoughts to the confideration of fomewhat of Religion; which did so mightily operate upon him, that he quickly became rationally religious.

Upon all Occasions, particularly and especially often meditate, and frequently think of the sour last Things, Death, Judgment, Heaven, and Hell; the serious Thoughts of which will have a mighty Influence upon the whole Course of our Lives and Actions.

The first of the sour last Things proposed as the subject Master of Meditation in order to the right Redemption of Time. I. USE.

- I. Use in thy Life time to think much of the Day of thy own particular Death, and of the general Dissolution of all Things.
- I. [e] To think much of the Day of thy own particular Death.

 Be

[d] Dr. Annelly, M. E. Serm. i. p. 9.

llings

of all

f the

I the

ghts.

hen

arfe

een

ans.

er,

rds

p'd

T-

rs

t-

4

e

[[]e] Mortem ut nunquam timeas, semper cogita. Scn. cp. 30.

Be not thou of Lewis the eleventh's Mind, who ftrictly charged all about him, that they should not so much as name the terrible Word Death: Do not only patiently hear of it, but chuse to think, and often to think of it.

Men are too commonly regardles of their End, and unmindful of their own Mortality and Frailty. The very Heathen have acknowledged Man's natural Proneness to forget his End; and therefore they used several Arts to mind themselves and others of it. Some Emperours, on the Day of their Coronation, have had several forts of Marble presented to them, out of which to chuse their Tombs. Philofophers have had their Sepulchres before their Gates, that they might neither go out nor in, but they might still be put in mind of their Mortality: And many great Men have had them in their Places of Pleasure: And dead Men's Skulls have been served up in delicious Banquets : And Philip King of Macedon had a young Monitor, that came every Day, and rubb'd up his Memory with a MEMUNOO av Spa-TO an Remember thou art but a Mortal Man. And we plainly find in Scripture, that this is naturally Man's Temper: The Fool in the Gospel is a clear Instance of this; who * faid to his Soul, Soul, thou hast much Goods laid up for many Years, take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry: He never dream'd of a Stulte, bac notte, Thou Fool, this Night -That was the farthest Thing off his Thoughts. † St. James reproves those who promise themselves Viveme nor lethi: fugit hora : hec quodloquor, ande eff.

Perf. fat. 5.

Dun loquimue, fugerit invida atas.

Horat, carm, 1. 1. Od. 11.

to Luke 12. 19. † Jam. 4. 13, 14.

to m driv

in S

Me

and 100 bal

rul

ar

to morrow, and build upon the next Tear, for the driving of their Trade, and getting of Gain.

Men in their Health, think not of Sickneß; and in Sickneß, feldome reckon of Death. Even dying Men often times think of nothing but recovering, and living longer in the World. Men are apt to look upon Death as afar off; and when in all probability they have but a few Sands in their Glais to run, they are ready to say, that they | shall multiply their Daies as the Sand.

Men can willingly measure their Lands and Grounds, and number their Herds and Droves of Cattel, and count the Revenues of their Manours and Farms, and recken their daily or yearly Incomes: but who is willing to measure and number his Daies ?

vho

not

not

and

nd,

ty.

u-u

ey

of 4-

O

0-

y

Yea, we can willingly measure other Mens Daies, and learn to know their End, and take great Notice how frail they are: We can point at an old Man, and cry he is thus or thus old; his Daies cannot be many; he is past his best; he has one Foot in the Grave. Upon sight of one sick, or in a Consumption, we are apt to say, Such a one is near his End, he can't live long sure: But we take little notice of our selves; we make little Reckoning of our own End; we little consider what may become of us to morrow.

We do not actually think we shall not die; yet the most of us do not actually think we shall die. God frequently reads Lectures of Mortality to us, and yet we will not learn to remember them. The Arrows of the Almighty have slown thick on every side of us, and yet we live as if we thought to ef-

cape

¹ Job 29 18.

cape alwaies. Though others have fallen round about us, we are ready to count our standing sure. We securely lie in a dead Sleep amidit many awakening Providences. I am as a fraid many of us are too like your common Grave-makers, who often handle Skulls and dead Mens Bones, but are so daily us'd to them, that they are not at all mov'd or affected with them. What senseless filly Creatures are we, that we won't believe we are mortal, till we feel it; that we won't be persuaded we shall die, till we our selves are struck with Death? Ah Friends, we do not live as if we believ'd it, and were truly and really convinced, fully and throughly persuaded of it.

We are apt to overmeasure our Daies, to put more in than we should, to promise our selves what God never promised us, and to count those Daies ours which are wholly in God's Hand, and quite out of ours.

We are ready to measure by [f] false Rules: to reckon, that because we are young, we shall not die till we are old: That because we are strong, we shall last it out, and indure long: That because we are temperate, we need not fear Diseases and Death: That because some live much longer than others, that we may live as long as the longest.

The Guilt of Sin, makes many afraid to take a true Measure of their Daies. The want of a good and well-grounded Hope of a better Life, makes Men unwilling to know the End of this. And the inordinate Love of the World, makes Men loth to know their End, and to think of leaving what they love.

[f] Reade Dr. Patrick's Div. Arithm.

Has f that r fwer certain confice pray to Say to and to know the south the south to but to brite an o brite to the same of the s don

WOI

ed .

and

led

in De int

Hee facium invitos mori; These are the Things that make us unwilling to die; was a discreet Answer given by the Emperour Charles the fifth to a certain Duke of Venuce.

You are naturally backward and difinclin'd to the confideration of your latter End; and therefore pray to God to enable you to it, and help you in it. Say with David, * Lord, make me to know my End, and the Measure of my Daies, what it is: that I may know how frail I am. And with Mofes likewife; + So teach me to number my Daies, that I may apply my Heart unto Wisdom. We need but a little Arithmenick to number our Daies (as [g] one faies well) but we need a great deal of Grace to number them. A Child may be nife enough to number the Daies of an old Man; and yet that old Man a Child in rumbring his own Dais fo as to apply his Heart to Wif-Well then, heartily beg of God, that he would make you to know your End; to know it fo, as to have your Heart touched and affected with the Knowledg of it : To know your End, and to live fuitably and answerably to the Knowledg of it : To know your End, fo as to make a good End of it

Now give me leave to direct and affift you in this necessary Duty: Suffer me to serve in a Death's-Head, and to put a Turf of fresh Earth into your Hands; 'tis counted very wholsome to smell of.

Remember and consider,
(1.) That Death, thy Death, is certain.

(2.)

d a-

Sure.

cwa-

are

ten

aily

af-

res

till

lie,

ds,

ly

12-

ut

at

es

ut

11

e

r

^{*} Pfal. 39.4. † & 90.11. [g] Caryl on Job 4. 11.

(2.) That the Time of thy Death is very uncertain.

(3.) That when Death comes, a great change will be made by it.

(4.) And lastly; Consider seriously, what a fad and uncomfortable Thing it will be, to be found unprepared to die, at the Point of Death: And how fweet and happy a Thing it will be, to be in a readiness and preparation at the Hour of Death. Confider, (1.) It is sure and certain, thou must die at last.

Death entred into the World by Sin: The Wages of thy Sin, is thy Death. It is now appointed unto Men, to all Men, once to die. Death is the way of all the Earth. Every Thing plainly points thee to it. Thy very Sleep is an Image of thy Death. The very Meat thou eatelt, as it breeds thy Nourishment, fo, it breeds thy Diseases. Thou hast apparently died already in thy Friends and Relations, Neighbours and Acquaintance: Thou hast lost thy Parents, or Husband, or Wife, or Children, or Servants; and therefore thou hast reason to think thou shalt one Day lose thy own Life, and certainly die in thy own Person. Some one, it may be, that lately lay in thy Bed, and lay in thy Bosom, is now laid out of thy Sight, laid in the Grave : and Time will come, when, as lively and brisk as thou art, thou shalt lie by them, and be gather'd to them. Surely every Sickness, every Disease, every Toothach, Head-ach, every Pain, and Distemper, and bodily Weakness, is an Harbinger and Fore-runner of thy Death, and a plain Remembrancer to thee of thy latter End. Thou feest enough in others, thon findest enough in thy self, to make thee to know know

that

to t

WOL

thir

thy ny (

Acc

Di

ift

mo

old

tho

on rea

thi

ear

A

po

ha

ar

CA

pi

710 know thy own Frame, and to cause thee to remember that thou thy self art but Duit.

Xerxes viewing his valt Army, wepr over them, to think how within a few Luftres of Years there would be none of them all remaining. Be affected to think, how a few Years will wear out, and earry off thy felf, and all thy Family, the numerous Company of thy Friends and Relations, Neighbours and Acquaintance.

icer-

ange

at a

be be

ath:

be,

ar of

ages

unio

of

JI C

ve-

ent,

tly

gh-

Pa-

er-

nk

in-

e,

is

nd

ou

m.

h-id er

e

5, 0

D

The close Meditation of the Certainty of thy own Diffolution, this will keep thee from living here as if thou wert to live here alwaies; which is a common Faultamong Men, reproved and centured of old by [b] Seneca: And from building here, as if thou shoulds there continue for ever, as [1] Diogenes once severely charged the Megarenses. When thou rearest thy Building, this Course will cause thee to think of thy own Tomb and Grave, and that thy earthly House of this Tabernacie must be dissolved. And this will enable thee to live loose from the temporary Enjoyments of this present World, and to have lower Thoughts of all earthly Pleasures, which are but for a Season; and would engage you to be [k] learning to die, as long as you live.

The frequent Thoughts of thy latter End would prompt thee to fay thus to thy seli; How shall I dare to live in Jest, who am sure I must die in Earnest? Am I afraid to die, and yet shall I use all

A a 2 Means

[[]h] Tanguam semper victuri vivitu. Seneca ce brev. vic. cap. 4.

^[1] Diogenis distum est, Megarenses obsonani, quasi crastina ass morsturs; adissicant verò, quasi nu quam morsturs. Tert. Apolog. c. 29.

[[]k] Vivere tota vita discendum est: Saund magis forta se mirateris, tota vita discendum est mori. San C. ue b.ev. vit. cap. 7.

Means I can to make Death dangerous and terrible to me? Shall I venture [1] to live in that State of Life, in which I would not die?

(2.) Consider farther; That the Day and Means of thy Death is as [m] uncertain, as thy Death it self is certain.

Think when thou art eating, that then thou maiest be digging thy Grave with thy Teeth: and when thou art drinking, that then thou maiest sind and meet with Death in the Cup or Pot. When thou art ready to take thy Rest, consider, that God this Night may require thy Soul of thee, and before Morning may take away the [n] any Disserence between Sleep and Death. Here practise according to Seneca's Direction; [o] Say to thy self when thou geest to sleep, it may be I shall never wake again: and when thou risest, it may be I shall never sleep again. Say to thy self when thou goest out, it may be I shall never return home and come in alive again: And when thou [1] St. Jerom said w.ll, He deserves not the Name of a Christian, who will live in that State of Lite in which he will not die.

Bp. Taylor's great Exemplar, p. 558.

[m] Ah liulte, quid cogitas te diu victurum, cum nullum diem habeas securum? Quam multi decepti sunt, & ir sperate de cerpore extracti? Quoties audisti à discentibus, quia ille gladio cecidit, ille sabmersus est, ille ab also ruens cervicem se get, ille manduc ando obriguit, ille ludendo sinem secti? Alsus igne, alius ferro, alius peste, aisus latrocinio intersit. & sic omnium sinis mers est. & rata hominum tanguam umbra subsio pertransit. A Kempis, l. 1. c. 22. n. 7.

[] Vine's Effex's Hearfe, p. 12.

[6] Dic tibi dormituro, possum non experzici. Die experrecto, possum non dormitre amplicis. Die exeunts, possum non reversi: die redeunti, possum non exire. Sen ep. 49.

Cum mane sueret; utate ad resperum non perventurum ? respere autem sacto, manenon audeus tibi poliseris. Semper ergo pratue esto, & talster rive, ut nur quam te imparatum mors in reniat. A Kempis, l. 3. c. 23. n. 3.

th

Jh,

th

to

Rith

ar

m

B

th

th

la

fh

tì

tl

n

f

V

a

t

t

Ī

thou comest in at any Time, say to thy self, It may be I shall never go out of doors again. Consider, when thou art going a Journey, that thou maiest be going to thy long home: When thou art riding upon the Road, that thou maiest be pesting unto thy Grave; that the Horse thou ridest on may be the pale Horse, and his Name that fits upon him, though unfeen, may be Death. Conclude with thy felf, I must die shorely, I may die instantly: This Day may be the last that I shall see; this Hour the last that I shall spend; this Word the last that I shall speak; this Deed the last that I shall perform; this Place the last that I shall breath in. When thou goest into any Compamy, consider, that it may be the last time that ever thou thalt come in the Company of those Persons; that therefore it behoves thee to behave thy felf among them, and to fpend thy Time, and bestow thy Hours with them, like a Man, and a Christian; not like a Beaft, or an Heathen: to demean thy felf there foberly and temperately, and with good Government of thy Appetite and Passions, and with the Exercise and Improvement of thy Reason and of Grace, in some useful Discourse and profitable Converse; not childishly and unmanly, intemperately and luxuriously, rudely and uncivilly, wildly, and extravagantly.

The often renewed Meditation of the great Uncertainty of the Time of thy Departure. This will be a Means to hasten thy Repentance, which, if defer'd, may prove too late: And will surely help thee so to carry thy self continually, [p] as one that reckons and uses a single Day, as if it were a whole

Aa 3 Life:

ble to

Life,

Ieans

it self

thou

and

find

hen

God

fore

e be-

z to

1 go-

ain.

ne-

phen

hou

hri-

die.

di-

dio

alle

1 544

mis

fit.

er-

re-

go

[[]p] Id ago, ut mibi inflar totius vite fit dies. Sen. cp.

Life: To live every day, as if it were [q] thy very last: Not to promise thy self a Morrow, and to neglect thy present Work in Hope and Expectation of it; but to order thy self immediatly, as if thou didst never look to see and enjoy it: and to count it as [r] pure Gain as may be, if God shall be pleased to afford thee the Light and Benesit of a new Day.

As the Bird guideth her Flight with her Train, and the Ship is governed at the Stern, or hindermost Part; fo the Life of Man is directed and ordered by frequent Meditation of his latter End.

(3.) Think moreover of the great Change that will at lait be made by Death: which is lively represented in a Story, related by a learned [s] Doctor, of a fair young German Gemleman, who, while he lived, often refused to be pictured, but put off the importunity of his Friends Desire, by giving way that after a few Daies Burial they might send a Painter to his Vault, and if they saw cause for it, draw the Image of his Death unto the Life. They did so, and found his Face half eaten, and his Midriff and Back-bone full the qui nullum non tempui in usus suos comfert, qui omnes dies tanquam ritam suam ordinat, nec optat crastinum, nec times. Idem debev. vit c ~.

Vi.i, & quem dederat cursum fortuna, peregi.

[s] Bishop Taylor, in his Rule and Exercise of holy Dying, of Se

Anc

much

turn

ne s.

and

or (

deli

the

put

de a

by fen

tho

fha

it.

Bo

pa qu

to 0

t

t fi

T

^{[9] &#}x27;Oun isto the avestudar hulego nathe bloves: un nephroles of author is equito glocus. Mulantus apud Stob Serm. 1.

Sie or dunandus cit dies omnis, tamquam cogat agm. n, & confummes atque expleat vitam. --- In somnum itari, lati, bilatifique dicamus.

[[]r] Crastinum si adjecerit Dem, læis recipiamm. Ille beatifsumme est & securus su post for, qui crastinum sine solicitudine expectat. Quisquis dixit, vixi, quotidie ad lucrum surget. Sen. ep. 12.

of Serpents, and so he stands pictured among his armed Ancestours. Think how the Case will thortly be much alike with thee; that Death in a Moment will turn thy Colour into Palenes, thy Heat into Coldness, thy Beauty into Lothsomness; and will so alter and disfigure thee, that thy very Husband, or Wife, or Child, will stand afraid, and start at thee : That thy nearest, dearest, kindest Friends, who delighted in thy Company whilst thou livedst, took thee to their Board, took thee to their Bed, and put thee in their Bosom; will, as soon as thou art dead, take a speedy Course to remove thee out of their Sight, yea, to put thee under Ground, because by Death thou wilt become not only useless, but offensive to them: And what a frightful Spectacle thou wouldst be, if thy Body should be viewed, when once the Vermin have bred in it, and shall have devoured and confumed some Parts of it.

Think, how Death will make a Change in thy Body, a change in thy Mansion, Habitation, Companions: That when thou art dead, thou shalt quickly change thy Bed for a winding Sheet, thy Chamber for a Cossin, thy House for a Grave, thy Friends for Worms.

This Confideration will be hugely inftrumental to beat down Pride of any Beauty, Health, Strength, or Ornaments of the Body; and be useful to cause thee to walk humbly, and soberly; and will instruct thee to say to thy self, Why should I glory in any such transitory Enjoyment? As fair and sine as I may be apt to think my self, I know I shall be but a sorry Creature when Death comes. Why should I delight to stand long at the Glas, and there to view my own Face, and Features, and Dresses now, since Death will one Day so change me, that my Aa 4

V ve-

id to

on of

thou

Junt

be of a

ain,

10ft

red

hat

re-

0-ile

be

at

to ge

id

ell

of

3

most intimate loving familiar Friends will hardly endure to behold me? Why should I pride my self in any rich Attire and brave Apparel, who must ere long be strip'd to a winding Sheet? Why should I bestow so much cost upon that Tenement, which I shall dwell but a while in, and which will decay and fall to utter Ruin, when I have done all I can? Why should I make my Belly my God, which must be defroyed, and be Meat for Worms? Why should I be so high and stately, as to think no House good enough, no Room fine enough, no Fair dainty enough for me, who must quickly be brought as low as the Grave, and before'd to make my Bed in the dark, and to lay my Head in the Duft; to lodg, yea dwell in a black lonely defolate Hole of Earth; to say to the Grave, Thou art mine House; to say to Corruption, Thou art my Father; and to the Worm, Thou art my Mother, and my Sifter? Why should I spend all my Time in plealing and pampering this base Flesh, and in over-caring for this changeable vile Body, which must shortly suffer Rottenness and Corruption? Shall I not rather take care to beautify and adorn my inner Man; to get a Change wrought in my Soul by the good Spirit and Grace of God, before I suffer a Change in my Body, a Change by Sickness, a Change by Death? and fo to live, that when I am dead, it may not be faid of me, Here lies one that was dead while he lived, and whose Soul then stank worse by sinful Corruption, than his Body now stinks by Putrefaction?

(4.) Confider once more; What a fad and uncomfortable Thing it will be, to be found unprepared to die, at the point of Death: and how happy a Thing it will be, to be in a readiness and preparation, at the Hour of Death.

[1.] Think

E

Thin

when

thy

torc

or n

Go

difc

who

Co

thr

pre

ha

fte

T

[1.] Think well with thy felf, how miserable a Thing it will be, to be wholly unprepared for Death, when you come to die indeed: [t] to be driven away in thy Wickedness (as the * Wise Man speaks) and forced to go to thy own Place, whether thou wilt or no.

ar dly

felf

must

ould

hich

and

Vhy

I be

et as

in

de,

h; ay

m

di

his

ole

nd

ti-

ge

ce

y, ď

oe

be

il

-

To fay as Theophrastus of old, Dii boni nunc? Good God, mult I go now? How discompos'd and diforder'd, amaz'd and terrified wilt thou be, when thou art surprized? What a disconsolate Condition was that of Cefar Borgia? who, when through the Errour of a Servant, he had unawares bunk of the poison'd Wine, which he and his Father Pope Alexander the fixth had mingled and prepared for some rich Cardinals, and verily expected it would prove his Death, is faid to have broke out into this or the like Expression; I had made Provision against all possible Difafters, but only Death, for I did not think I should have died to foon.

How troublesome will it be to thee, when thy Soul is about to be divorced from thy Body, to be at best uncertain then what will become of thee? To express thy felf with dying Aristotle, [u] I die doubtful, not well knowing whither I am going. with the Emperour Adrian; [w] Ah dear departing wandring Soul, the old and sweet Companion of my Bo-

* Frov. 14. 32.

[[]t] Lua illos aliqua imbecilitas mortalitatis admonuit, quemadmodum paventes morsuntur, non tanquam exeant de vita, sed tanguam extrahantur? Seneca de brevitate vita, cap. 11.

^[4] Dubius morsor quo vadam nefcio.

[[]w] Animila, vagula, blandula, tiofpes come que corporse,

Body, into what Region art thou now going? surely thou wilt never be so merry and pleasant as thou hast

How intolerably vexatious will it be, to change for Uncertainties; or to make a certain Change for the worse? To die unsatisfied what will become of thee, as to thy future unchangeable State; Or, fure and certain that thou shalt enter into a worse State and Place, and shalt be miserable to all Eternity? To fee then but a Step, but a Breath between thee and everlasting Death: To have all the horrid and heinous Sins of a whole misled and misspent Life fiercely fly in thy very Face, and thy enrage furious guilty Conscience to be then most active to torment thee, the nearer thou apprehended thy felf approaching to the End of thy mortal Life: As usually bodily Aches and Wounds, do prick and pain and shoot most, the nearer it draweth unto Night.

What a lamentable sad Case was that of Cardinal Wolfey, to cry out in his extreme unhappy Circumstances, Had I been as careful and diligent to please and serve the God of Heaven, as I have been to comply with the Will of my earthly King, he would not have left and for saken me now in my gray Hairs and old Age, as the other has done? So think what a doleful Case it will be, for thee in thy last Hours to pour forth thy Soul in fuch Words as these; If I had ferved my God as earnestly and unweariedly, as I have constantly served the World, served diverse Lusts and Pleasures, served the Devil himself; Had I been at Church, when I was in Bed; been in my Closet

upon

upon the . drink

the K

tite :

God,

I ha

Fleft

had

OWI

ed,

nov

bly

tor

tho

and

no

W

fin

Qua nunc abibis in loca. l'alladula, frigidula, nudula Nec, ut fules, dabse jocos.

upon my Knees, when I was sitting tippling upon the Ale-bench, or was quaffing at Tavern, and drinking of Healths upon my Knees; Had I fatisfied the Reason of a Man, as I gratified my brutish Appetite and fensual Defire; Had I done the Will of God, and of my Lord and Saviour Jefus Christ, as I have done the Will of the Devil, the Will of the Flesh, and fulfilled my own carnal corrupt Will; I had then been own'd by God, and approv'd by my own Conscience, inwardly strengthned and supported, and fweetly comforted and refresh'd; who now am deferted and rejetted by God, and milerably perplexed and disquieted, rent and racked, torn and tormented in my own Conscience. thou wilt certainly count and call thy felf unhappy, and him the only happy Man, who (as dying [x] Theophilus faid of devout Arsenius) has had the Hour of his Departure ever before his Eyes.

That is the first; Consider what a dreadful Thing it is, to be found unprovided at the Hour of Death. When Friends and Physicians cannot keep thee, and God and his good Angels will not take thee, O then, O then what will become of thee !

Turely

baft

bange

e for

e of

fure

tate

ity?

thee

rrid

ent

thy

tal

do

eth

di-

r-

ıſe

/y

ve

ld

ul

r

.

e

[2.] Serioully think on the other hand, what [y] an happy and comfortable Thing it will be, to find your Time well improved, and your felf prepared to die before you die.

'Tis

[[]x] Beatus es, Abbs Arfoni, qui semper hanc boram ante ocu-

[[]y] Considera, quan pulchrares sit consummare vitam ante mortom, deinde expectare securum reliquam tempor is sui part ma Sen. ep. 32.

'Tis a true Saying of the Wife Man, that to a good man the * Day of Death is better than the Day of his Birth: For, is not that Day which perfeetly frees, and fully delivers a good Man from the many Vanities, and great Vexations, which the Life of Man is obnoxious to, and the Troubles and Sufferings which the Life of a Christian is expos'd to, far better than that Day which let's him into the Pollession of them? Again, The Time when a Person has attain'd the End of his Being, made good the Hopes of others, answer'd God's and Man's expectation concerning him, walked himfelfin the Fear of the Lord, brought up Children in the Nurture and Admonition of the Lord, walked worthy of his Vocation, fill'd up every Relation with fuitable Duties and Graces, ferv'd his Generation according to the Will of God, liv'd and acted with reference to Eternity; The Time when he most willingly leaves this wicked World, and leaves an holy Seed to stand up in his room and stead; leaves a good Name, and a good Example behind him, and goes to Heaven, to the Spirits of just Men made persect; goes to God his heavenly Father, and to Christ his Redeemer, to receive the gracious and glorious Reward of all his Works and Labours, and the Crown he has striven and contended for; Surely the Day when this falls out, which is the Day of his Death, gives cause of more abundant Comfort, than can the Day of his Birth, together with all the Daies of his Life. Is not that Day better, wherein a Man has truly and really answered the Ends of Life, than that in which he only began at first to live? Is not that Day better, in which

which

quitte

Itian,

with plans

than

The

Tria

Is no

able

Mar

into

wha

ing

Sar

Wo

A

ed

16

in

TE

7

^{*} Eccl. 7. 1.

which he has fully and compleatly acted his Part well, quitted and behav'd himself like a Man and Chritian, and is gone off the Stage of this lower World with Credit and Esteem, Approbation and Applause of God himself, good Angels, and Men; than the Day of his sirst appearing upon the Stage or Theater of this World, in a way of Probation and Trial, and in Hope of his survey good Performance? Is not the Day of his actual Admission, and honourable Reception into a blissful Condition and happy Mansion, sar better than the Day of his Entrance into a State of Preparation for it?

Think well with thy self, what a joyful Day, what a [z] lightsome Hour, what a Time of resteshing it will be to thee, to be able to say with thy Saviour, a little betore thy Departure, * Father, I have gloristed thee on Earth, I have sinished the Work which thou hast given me to do: And with the Apolitle St. Paul, i The Time of my Departure is at hand. I have fought a good Fight, [a] I have sinished my Course, I have kept the Faith. | My rejoicing is this, the Testimony of my Conscience, that in Simplicity and Godly Sincerity, I have had my Conversation in the World: To say with Hilarion, (as St. Jerom reports in his [b] Life) Go out my Soul, why are thou assaid? go out, why lingrest thou? thou hast served Christ

t to a

an the

per-

from which

oubles

is ex-

him

when

made

and

him-

dren

alk-

ela-

his

iv'd

ıme

id.

ind

ple

its

n-

ve

ks

d

re

tt

^[2] Cun ecquid lumen molestia afferret ! rogarent : pedus tangens Occolampation, abunde lucu est, suquet. Meich. Adam. in vita Occolamp. p. 56.

^{*} Joh. 17.4. † 2 Tim. 4 6, 7.

[[]a] Vixi, & quem de lerat curfum fortuna peregi.

² Cor. 1. 12.

[[]b] Egredere anima, quid times? Egredere, quid dubitas? Septangunta prope annia servisti Christo, & mortem times? Hier. in vita Hilar.

Christ well nigh these seventy Years, and dost thou now fear Death?

To fee, that it has been to thee * to live Christ. and to be able to look on thy Death as thy Gain: And, with good old [c] Dr. Gonge, in thy last Sickness to term Death, thy best Friend next to Jesus Christ: With + St. Paul, to desire to depart; and to be ready toutter fuch Language as this,

Oh loofe this Frame, this Knot of Man unty! That my free Soul may use her Wing, Which is now pinion'd with Mortality, As an entangled hamper'd Thing.

As the pious [d] Mr. Herbert pathetically exprefles it in one of his facred Poems.

Dwell upon these Considerations, That the Loss and Missimprovement of Time will make a Death-bed uneasy to you, and that the right redeening of Time will render a Death-bed comfortable to you; And this will be very apt to move you to prepare for Death, by dying to Sin, dying to the World, and living to Righteousness, before you die: 'Twill, help you to live every Day fo indeed, as others wish that they had liv'd, when they come to lie upon a Death-bed: To live fo now, that you may with comfort think of dying, and may be freed from the flavish Fear of Death, and be held no longer

ger

Life

of the

Twi

Hou

and i wher

but to

Spiri Soul

ving able

in y

mou with

> to] De

lut

tha

th

lu

W

Sa

P

co

[c] His Life inserted among Mr. Clark's Lives of ten emin-Div. p. 123.

+ Phil. 1. 23. [d] Home.

Phil. i. 21.

When his good Sifter faid to him in his Sickness, Brother, I am afraid to leave you alone; VVhy, Sifter, (faid ie) I shall, I am fure, be with Jefus Christ when I die. 16. p. 123, 124.

ger || in bondage by it? 'Twill cause you to live the Life of the Righteom, that so you may die the Death of the Righteom; die safely, and die comfortably: 'Twill make you careful to set, not only your House, but your Heart in order, your Life in order; and so to dispatch your Work and Buliness, that when you come to die, you may have nothing to do but to die, and freely and cheerfully to resign your Spirit to the Father of Spirits, and to surrender your Soul to your faithful Creator, and gracious loving Lord Redeemer. In a Word, it will enable you so to live, that you may have * Hope in your own Death; and that when Friends shall mourn for your Departure, they may not sorrow

And so much shall suffice for your Direction as to your Meditation of Death, your own particular Death, in order to your Redemption of Time.

2. Meditate here moreover of the general Dissolution of all Things, at least in this inferiour World.

Think well of what (*) St. Peter informs you, that all these Things shall be dissolved. Consider, that the Description which is there given of this Dissolution, is too august and [e] big by far for so small a Work as [f] the Destruction of the City of Jerusalem: That the Scoffers arguing there against the Promise of Christ's Coming, (that (†) all Things continue as they were from the Beginning of the Creation)

(†) Verfe 4.

without † Hope.

סרסנת אוכ

brift,

Gain:

y laft

Je sus

id to

ex-

019 bed

me nd for

nd

Illi

rs

p-

y

d

-

r

¹ Heb. 2. 15. Prov. i4. 32. + 1 Theff. 4. 13.

^{(*) 2} fet. 3.11. [e] Dr. More's Mylt. of Godl p 214.

^[] Of which Dr. Hammend in espiets it.

tion) does clearly shew, that this Coming of Christ was not understood by them (and consequently not by St. Peter) of the Burning of a Cuy by War; a Thing, which might as probably and easily happen to Jerusalem, as it had already sallen out in many other Places of the World: But of the sinal glorious Coming of Christ to judge the World; which [f] Judgment the Conslagration of the Earth is to attend.

Think very seriously with thy self, that * the Heavens and the Earth which are now, are reserved unto Fire: How t the Heavens shall one Day pass away with a great Noise, and || being on Fire shall be disolved, and the (*) Elements, or [g] Hoits, shall melt with servent Heat; the Earth also and the Works of Nature, or Art, that are therein shall be burnt up. That though the superiour, Athereal, starry Heavens may be exempted, (as [h] some with pro-

[f] Superest i'e ultimus & perpetum judicis di s; ille nationibus insperatus, ille derisus, ches tanta seculi vetusti, & tot ejus nativistates uno igni haurjentur. Tercull, lib de Spectac. cap 30. prob pute

circu

(hall stran

nihil

Bean

lower

and fhall

it w

Aros

abol

Pro

ed

sha

the

W

on otl

ma

abl

Pr

re

Si

di

O

cap 30.

* Verse 7- † Verse 10. || Verse 12. (*) Verse 10. 12.

[g] congest trom staye, or time mistrari incede. The bost of the Æthereal Heaven are the Stars and Planets: The Host of the Aereal Heavens are Clouds and Meteors, Fowls and styling Creater.s.

[[]b] He that confidereth both the fuper-eminent Nature and Immensity of the Æthereal Heaven, and of those income rable Bodies therein, in regard of which the whole Sublunary VVorld is but a Point or Centre; and that it no way can be proved that ever those Bodies teceived any Curse for Man's Sin, or Contagon by the VVo ld's Deluge, or that any Enemies of God dwell in them to pollute them; He that confidereth this will not easily be induced to believe that the Fire of the Day of Judgment shall burn them. It remaines therefore that the Sublumary Heavens only with their carpets are to be the Subject of this Conflagration. Air, Medd's Works, p. 614, 615.

probable Reason conceive) yet, that without dispute or doubt, [i] the Globe of the Earth, and the circumjacent Air, with all the Garnishings of them, shall be burnt up: That this Air and Earth shall be strangely and wonderfully alter'd, though not annihilated: That the present Order, and comely Beauty of the Compages and Frame of this visible lower World shall be dislowed: That this great House, and goodly Building, made for Man to dwell in, shall be taken down, and all the Furniture wherewith it was sitted for his Use and Service shall be defiroyed.

That it will be an Act of Wisdom for God to abolish these Things, when the Time appointed for Probation and Trial of immortal Spirits cloathed with Flesh is ended and expired; and Men shall enter into so different a State, in which there will be no need of any Thing that serves and ministers to this terrene and animal Life.

And though God think good to continue this World for a while, that it may be a Theater whereon his Wisdom, Goodness, Mercy, Patience, and other his glorious Attributes may be displayed and made conspicuous; yet it is convenient and reasonable, that this Stage of God's Acts and Works of Providence, when all is sinished, should be taken down.

And think yet farther; That it will be an Act of Justice for God to do this: That though he respite the Dissolution of the World, deserved by Sin, yet he does not revoke the Sentence; but in due Time will execute Judgment and Vengeance upon it, for the first Sin that Man committed, and for Bb

hrift

y. not

r; a

ppen

nany.

hich

s to

the

rved

Ba-

l be

ball

orks

rnt

ar-

ith

-01

14-

tot

ac.

f.c ift y-

L

d

it

^[1] Dr. More's Myft. of Godl. p. 231.

all the rest that have been acted in it: That Man, not only being a Tenant at will, but having unworthily broken his Covenant, and forfeited his Possession by breaking the Articles of his Lease; his Lord at last will turn him out of Doors, or rather pull down his House about his Ears, and not suffer it to be alwaies a Nest of Rebels and Covenant-breakers:

That this World, the Creature, made for the Use of Man, being defiled and abused by him to ferve him in his Sin; when the Sins of the Inhabitants of the Earth (as of the * Amorites of old) shall arrive to a * Fulnes, when once the rebellious Generations of Adam shall have fill'd up the Measure of their iniquities, and are ripe for Judgment; the Day of Dissolution will then certainly come, called exprelly the Day of Judgment and Perdition of ungod'y Men: That then the wicked, and abominable Men, shall be burnt in the Place of their Wickedness, and the Objects and Instruments of their Sin shall be destroyed with them, and become the Instruments of their Punishment: For so, the Garden of Eden, wherein Man was at first plac'd, was destroyed and defac'd, when once he had sinned in it. And what more usual even among Men, than to order the Execution of notorious Malefactors, in the Places where they have committed their Wickedness; and to fentence the Honses wherein themselves and their Families liv'd, to be demolished? | Their Houses shall be made a Dunghill.

You have heard of great and terrible Fires in the World, and of famous Cities consum'd thereby; and have seen not many Years since the devouring desolating Flames of London, the Metropolis

polis

with great

once

fing :

ven final

faies

that rain

char

do [1

come

ming

terr

feen

cho

be e low

the

fo I

(ha

Sea

Sn

vel

niy

^{*} Gen. 15. 16. † 2 Pet 3 7. | Dan. 3. 29.

polis and chief City of our Nation: But think with thy felf, that all this is nothing at all to that great Fire, which one Day God will kindle, at once fetting Heaven and Earth in a Flame together.

Let me here affift your Meditation, by propofing and prefenting to you a notable Description, given by a very learned[k] Doctor, of the general and final Conflagration of the Earth : Christ will cause, faies he, such an universal Thunder and Lightning, that it shall rattle over all the Quarters of the Earth, rain down burning Comets and falling Stars, and difcharge such Claps of unextinguishable Fire, that it will do sure Execution wherever it falls; so that the Ground being excessively heated, those subterraneous Mines of combustible Matter will also take Fire: which inflaming the inward Exhalations of the Earth will cause a terrible Murmur under Ground, so that the Earth will seem to thunder against the tearing and rating of the Heavens, and all will be fill'd with sad remugient Echo's: Earth-quakes and Eruptions of Fire there will be every where, and whole Cities and Countries swallowed down by the vast gapings and wide Divulsions of the Ground. - And this fiery Vengeance shall be so thirsty, that it shall drink deep of the very Sea; nor shall the Water quench her devouring Appetite, but excite it. - Wherefore the great Channel of the Sea shall be left dry, and all Rivers shall be turned into Smoak and Vapour; so that the whole Earth shall be inveloped in one entire Cloud of an unspeakable Thickness, which shall cause more than an Egyptian Darkness, clammy and palpable to be felt, which added to this choaking [6] Dr. Mere's Myst, of God's p. 238.

Concerning the Propolity of the Constagration of the Earth, See there Book 6, c. 7, 8.

Man,

wor-

offef-

Lord

down

e al-

the

n to

labi-

old)

ious

lure

the

lled

1611-

na-

zed-

hall

ents

len,

red

nd

der

la-Is i

nd

nu-

in

e-

e-

0-ing Heat and Stench will compleat this External

Consider, how the Scripture testifies that God will do this; and the Power of God assures us that he can do it; for nothing is hard or difficult to him, much less impossible. Think of the Creation, God's raising and building this Frame of the World out of nothing; and reason thus with thy self; Cannot he that made it by the Word of his Power, easily dissolve it? And argue further in this manner; Cannot he that destroyed the old World by a Floud of Waters, destroy this by Fire, and cause this to die of a Feaver, as that did of a Dropsy? Cannot he that turned Sodom and Gomorrah into Ashes, do the like with the World it self also? Is not he that made Mount Sinai shake and smooth, at the giving of the Law, able to dissolve all these Things?

The close and intent Meditation of this general Dissolution, will clearly convince thee, that Sin is an evil and a bitter Thing; and will move thee to hate and abhor, to shun and avoid Sin, which is of a Nature so mischievous and destructive, which is the meritorious procuring Cause of so dreadful a Judgment; which not only of old brought the Floud of Water upon the World of the Ungodly, and forced down Gehennam de Caso, (as Salvian speaks) caused God to rain Hell-sire and Brimstone from Heaven * upon Sodom and Gamorrah, and miserably destroyed Jerusalem, and the Temple, and turned their fruitful Land into a barren Wilderness; but will one Day set this World on sire, and put it in a stame, and turn this stately Structure and beautiful

Frame into a rude confused Chaos.

The

and

exc

the

Aw

T

ftle

all

Son

See

an

mo

inc wif

and

tha

luti

rish

thy get

in t bli

tio

the

out

fur

thy

unl

tra

wh

W

or

^{*} Jude 7. 2 Pet. 2. 5, 6.

. The deep and earnest Thoughts of this will affect and influence thy Heart and Life, and quicken thee exceedingly to all Sincerity, Diligence, and Zeal in the Exercise of Godliness; to an holy Fear and Aw of him who can and will destroy the World: 'Twill constrain thee to use the Words of the Apoftle, and to fay in good Sadness, * Seeing then that all these Things shall be dissolved, what manner of Perfon ought I to be in all holy Conversation and Godlines? Seeing this Destruction shall thus involve all, what an engagement does this lay upon me to live the most purestrict Life that ever Man liv'd ? It will incite thee, by a constant course of true Piety, wisely to provide for thy Escape in that Day, to fave and secure thy felf from the Evil and Danger of it. that thou maiest not be undone by this general Diffolution, nor fuffer Los in this Conflagration, nor perish in this Burning: 'T will put thee in mind to fit thy self for this Day of Dissolution of all Things, by getting the Works of the Devil throughly diffolved in thee, and the Kingdom of God fet up and eftablished in thy Soul.

The due Consideration of this general Dissolution, and final Conflagration, will certainly keep thee from setting thy Heart inordinately upon any outward earthly Things, from heaping up Treafure to thy self here, from dreaming that any of thy Houses here shall continue for ever, from having unlimited everlasting Affections for slitting, sugitive, transfory Things; for the World, the † Fashion of which passeth away; or, for the Things of the World, which either perish with the present using, or must at last be burnt up in the general Consla-

Bb 3

ternal

t God

that

him,

God's

out of

ot he

folve

ot he aters,

Fea-

turn-

with lount

aw,

neral

Sin 15

e to

is of

ch is ul a

the

and aks)

rom

ably

ned

but

n a

iful

The

^{* 2} Pet. 3. 11. + 1 Cor. 7. 31. | Col. 2. 2 2.

gration. It will preserve thee from placing thy Heaven and Happiness in any Thing here below; from being transported, and infinitely pleased with thy convenient Situation, thy well-built House, thy pleasant Gardens, fruitful Grounds, rich Furniture, gorgeous Apparel, store of Provisions, and all manner of Accommodations as to earthly Possessions, and outward Enjoyments; since all those Things, which sensual and voluptuous Persons now take excessive Delight in, shall be demolished at the great Day; and they themselves shall then like Bees be smother'd in their own Hives.

This Meditation will enforce thee to make this Inference and Conclusion; Shall all this Frame be certainly diffolv'd? then furely this is not the Place of my Rest: I will be wifer hereafter than to take this World for my Dwelling-house; I will only look upon't as my Cottage, my Tent and Tabernacle, wherein as a Pilgrim I am to sojourn for a Time: Nor will I reckon the Things of this World my Goods, but only my Lumber, which I can easily bear the Loss of: I will presently put my self in a [1] readiness to leave and torsake this Place which is fo near to ruin, and shortly will furely be burnt up. I have no communing City here; I will therefore feek one to come, look after an heavenly Countrey, fet my Affections on Things above, make fure of an enduring Substance, of something much more certain and lasting than any of the Enjoyments of this World: I will labour by charitable laying out, to lay up a TreaTrea terri

as ne

break

be e

Car

my

this

nitu

bett

with

Sen

tice

WO

qui

in i

thi

tho

ty,

and

ful

tho

fho

cei

fur

he

G

T

to

kı

^[1] Mundus ecce nutat & lab tur, & ruinam sui non jem seccetute rerum, sedsine testatur: & tu non Deo gratias agus, non toos gratatures, quod extra maturiore subtractus ruins. E mausingia, & plago immentilus ex aru ? Cypr. 8eim 4. de Mortas.

Treasure in Heaven, quite out of the reach of this terrible Burning; To store up such durable Riches, as neither Moth nor Rust can now corrupt, nor Thieves break through and steal, nor this staming raging Fire be ever able to devour: I will make it my constant Care to provide, that as when the little Honse of my earthly Tabernacle shall be dissolved; so when this great House of the World, and its sair Furniture shall be destroyed, I may have another, a better House to receive me, * an House not made with Hands, eternal in the Heavens.

I find [m] St. Chryfostome discoursing much to this Sense and Purpose; If some body should give notice to thee, that this City in which thou livelt would all fall down within a Year, or should very quickly be destroyed; and that it and all Things in it should utterly be confum'd with Fire, and nothing at all be left unburnt; and that of necessity thou must depart hence, and go into another City, in which thou shouldst spend thy whole Life; and in which thou shouldst have nothing at all to fultain and relieve thee, but fuch Goods only as thou shouldst fend from hence thither; If thou shouldst undoubtedly believe this, no reason certainly could ever induce thee to hord up Treafures in this City, to begin to build a great House here, to plant a Vineyard, to fet Gardens and Groves: but thou wouldst bend and turn all the Thoughts, and use and apply all thy Endeavoors, to transmit all into that City, into which thou knewest thou shouldst thy felf be forc'd to remove.

Bb 4

The

thy

low;

with

thy

rni-

and

Pof-

bose

OW

the

like

his

be ace

ke

ok

le,

e:

ny

ly

a

is

p, ek

ıy

10-

d

4

-

^{* 2} Cor. 5. 1.

[[]w] Homil. 7. de Poenit.

The second of the four last Things proposed as the subject Matter of Meditation in order to the right Redemption of Time.

II. Proceed to meditate of a future and final Judgment, Think, 2. That fuch a Thing will certainly be.

2. That the Time of it is to us as uncertain as can be.

1. Confider feriously of the Certainty and Neceffity of a Judgment to come in another Life. Think how the common univerfal Consent of all Ages of the World avouches and declares it: That the very Heathens had natural express Notions of a final Judgment, and a future Reward or Punishment, [a] which made some among them preser the Exercise of Vertue and Goodness before the Enjoyment of this mortal Life, and the outward Comforts of it; and abbor the Practice of any Dishonesty more than Death.

And do but give Audience to your own Conscience, and you will find internal Experiments, sufficient to convince you of a Judgment to be looked for after this Life; to cause you to conclude, that the private Session kept in the Conscience of a Sinner here, is but the Antecedent and Fore-runner of a publick and general Assize: That Conscience (which is God's Deputy, and keepeth Court for him here)

does

does great

upor

Cien

thy Gra

thy

ble Plea

tenc

Day

Hor Wi

the

of

fled

and

ate

an

do

Ex

OHI

en

is 71e

th

01

d

a

^[4] See Dr. Jackson 3 vol p. 375, 384, 385, 389.

does but begin now, what God hereafter at the great Audit will himself complete and finish. Look upon the fecret Checks and Rebukes of thy own Confcience, upon thy Commission of any base or unworthy Action; and upon the inward Applauses and Gratulations, the hidden Joys and Exultations of thy Conscience, upon the Performance of any laudable vertuous Action, to be fo many Tafts and Pledges, Earnests and Assurances of a twofold Sentence or Award, that shall be given at the Last Day; and fome Suggestion and Intimation of that Horrow and Confusion that shall seize upon the Wicked, and of that Peace and Comfort which the Righteous shall be filled with at the general Day of Judgment. Consider, how thy Conscience reflecting upon thy past Actions, does not only allow and approve thy good Actions, but does also create a wonderful Boldness and Confidence in thee; and does not only disapprove thy evil Actions, but does also breed a strange Dread, beget a fearful Expertation and Terrour in thee; and all this without relation to any Thing either to be suffered or enjoyed in this Life: and therefore that Conscience is not only a Judg in this Life, but is also a Witneß, bound over to give Testimony for or against thee, at some Judgment after this Life to pass upon thee.

Consider moreover, That the many remarkable particular Judgments, inslicted by God either upon Nations, or Cities, or Persons here in this World, do not obscurely seem to signify and foreshew, that a general Judgment shall surely come and certainly pass upon the whole World, and that Justice shall be infallibly executed upon all sinal impenitent Rebels hereafter.

do-

ef-

nk

of e-

al

ıt,

X-

y-

n-

e-

i-

i-

d

at

)

And confider yet farther, That in reason there must be a future final Judgment, that God at prefent may [b] rule and govern the rational World, by giving notices of future Rewards or Punishments, which all must unavoidably be adjudged to: And that God may one day salve the Honour of his own Attributes; that though Things feem to be carried very unequally here in this World, and Judgment be never fully executed here; but the Wicked are often suffered to escape, and the Good and Upright are frequently afflicted and evil-intreated; yet all may be rectified and regulated at last; and God may openly and evidently appear to be just in punishing the Wicked and Ungodly, and good in owning and rewarding every truly vertuous and righteous Perfon: And fo, may not only vindicate and right himself, but justify and right his People too, in the Eye and Face of all the World.

And then go on to think of Scripture-evidences and Testimonies; That * after Death the Judgment: immediatly after Death, a particular Judgment. Think of that awakening, startling Summons, † Give an Account of thy Stewardship: for thou mayest be no longer Steward. Alcibiades in Plutarch coming to Pericles his Door, and hearing that he was buse and solicitous about making his Accounts to the Athenians, [c] said, It rather concer'd him to stu-

Andy

the g

is no

the W

that all a

not

into

as Hea

Wo

exp

ver

Ihal

ence

Cie

ons

tho

mu

the

th

Bo

Bo

to

ti

Si

r

[[]b] The necessity of this Principle to the Government of Mens Lives and Actions, is the ground of that Saying amongst the Rabbins, that Paradise and Hell are two of the seven Pillars upon which sod is said to have founded the World. As if it could not be upheld without such a support. Bp. Wilkins Princip, and Dut of Nat. Rel. p. 170.

^{*} Heb. 9:7 + Luke 16.2. [c] 'Ou Geamor (son) σχεπείν ην όπω; μη κα απιθώσει. Plut. Apophthegm. p. 180.

study how he might best put by his Accounts, and avoid the giving of them up: But affure thy felf, there is no declining of it here. Confider, that God has * appointed a Day, a Day of general Judgment, in the which he will judg the World in Righteonfness, by that Man whom he hathordained: And that we I must all appear and | stand before the fudgment-seat of Christ: not only appear in Person (as those do that are cited into a Court) but be laid open and made manifest, as the Word paveque Suvai fignifies : have our Heart and Life ript up, and all our Thoughts, Words and Works prefented to our own view, and expos'd to the view of others; disclosed and discovered before Men and Angels. That (*) the Books shall then be opened: the Book of God's Omniscience, and the Book of every Man's particular Conscience: That the Rolls or Records of all our Actions shall be produc'd, and we shall be judg'd out of those Things that are written in the Books. That we must all appear before the Judgment-seat of Christ, that every one may receive the Things done in his Body, that is, the due Reward of the Works done in his Body, or in the State of Conjunction with the Body, according to, or by way of Retribution to, what he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

The fober serious Consideration of a most impartial Judicature and Tribunal, will mightily awe thy Soul. Felix himself trembled, when St. Paul reasoned (1) of a Judgment to come. I have read a [d] Story of a certain King of Hungary, who being on a Time marvellous sad and heavy, his Brother would needs know of him what he aited: Oh Brother, saies he, I have

there

pre-

orld.

ents,

And

own

ried

nent

of-

t all

nay

ing

ind

er-

ght

he

g-

g-

1-

286

h

e

S

0

-

^{*} Acte 17.31. + 2 Cor, 5.10 | Rom. 14. 10.

^(*) Rev. 23. 12. (†) Acts 24. 25. [d] M. Marthal's Serm. on 2 Kings 23, 25, 26 p. 20, 21.

been a great Sinner against God, and I know not how I Shall appear before him, when he comes to Judgment. His Brother told him, they were but melancholy Thoughts, and made light of them. The King replied nothing at the present, but in the dead Time of the Night Sent an Executioner of Justice, and caused him to sound a Trumpet before his Brother's Door, which according to the Custome of that Countrey was a Sign of present Execution: This Royal Person hearing and seeing the Messenger of Death, sprang pale and trembling into his Brother's Presence, beseeching the King to let him know wherein he had offended. O Brother, replied the King, thou hast loved me, and never offended me; and is the sight of my Executioner so dreadful to thee? and Shall not I so great a Simer, fear to be brought to Judgment before Jesus Christ?

The frequent Meditation of a Judgment to come, will exceedingly move and affect thee, and cause thee to live and act fuitably and answerably to thy belief of it: 'T will keep thee from spending thy Time and talk in rashly judging others, * lest God feverely enter into Judgment with thee: 'Twill awaken thee to endeavour to do every Thing, as one that is [e] accountable for all he does: 'Twill put thee upon examining and calling thy felf to an Account: and cause thee to get all thy Accounts ready against the great Audit: 'Twill help thee to judg thy self here, that thou maiest not be judged and condemned hereafter at the great and last Day: It will excite and flir thee up to Repentance, and provoke thee to the Performance of a course of new and fincere Obedience; to make that Law the Rule

* Mat. 7. 1.

Rule

of his

Men

God

ry se

St.

Rep

gum

men

repe

be T

the

bit

the

for

Gr

M

we

ful

br

th

R

in 21 k

W

T

[[]c] Semper ita vivamus, ut rationem reddendam nobis arbit emur. Tullius apud La Aant, de vero cultu, l. 6 §, 24.

Rule of thy Life, which God will make the Rule of his Judgment.

born 1

ment.

acholy

eplied

Vight

ound

ding

efent

the

o his

him

the

and

and dg-

ie,

ıſe

hy

yr

od

3-

le

ıt

The Wife Man makes this an Argument to induce Men to * fear God, and keep his Commandments, that God will bring every Work into Judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil. St. Paul very earnestly press'd the Athenians to Repentance, by this most powerful and cogent Argument, drawn from the Certainty of a future Judgment; + God now commandeth all Men every where to repent : because he hath appointed a Day in the which be will judg the World in Rigteousness. And this was the Reason of the Apostles Labour, of all his Ambition and Design to be | acceptable to God, whether living or dying; because we must all appear before the Judgment-seat of Christ: Yea, this was the Ground of all his Industry and Painfulness in the Ministry; Knowing therefore the Terrour of the Lord, we perswade Men, saies he; Considering the Dreadfulness of this Appearance of God, we strive to bring Men to embrace the Truth, and to live as those that are thus to be judged. And in Hope of a Resurrection to a Judgment of Absolution, () herein did he exercise himself to have alwaies a Conscience void of Offence toward God, and toward Men: he knew, if Conscience absolv'd him in this Life, it would also under God acquit him in the other. Thy (1) earnest looking for the glorious Appearing of the great God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ, is apt to engage and prevail with thee to deny Ungodiness and world-^{} Eccl. 12. 13. † Acts 17. 30, 31. † 2 Cor. 5. 9, 10, 11. (*) Acts 24. 15, 16. (†) Tit. 2. 12, 13.

world'y [f] Lusts, and to live soberly, righteously, and godlily in this present World.

Thy chinking of Judgment, will make thee careful of they Thoughts, because God will judg the Secrets * of Men, and † manifest the Counsels of the Hearts. And render thee watchful over thy Words, because of all thy || hard Speeches, and of every || idle Word thou must give an account; and || by thy Words thou shalt be justified or condemned: And will cause thee to be circumspest in all thy Waies, and narrowly observant of all thy Actions; because Christ will come to (†) convince Men of all their ungodly Deeds; and thou must be judged according to thy Works.

Didl't thou faithfully mind thy felf of a future Judgment, thou wouldit not be so frothy and soolish in thy Speeches, so vain and profane in thy Merriments, so deceitful in thy Trade, so formal in thy Duties: thou wouldit not sottishly sleep, or impertinently muse, or irreverently talk out Sermons, nor mumble and huddle over thy Praiers like so many Ave-Marie's: Thou wouldst certainly think, and speak, and act; buy and sell, hear and pray, carry thy self in thy Dealings with Men, and in thy Devotions to God, as one that must give an account of thy self to God.

O think and fay at the End and Close of every Day, Now I have one Day less to live, and one Day more to recken for. It is [g] reported of Ignatius Loyola.

Loyola

ftrike,

God f

past F

followi

to be not be anoth

terest

Devi

cate t

friena

of th ceive

ter l wilt

on th

ment

and

time

and ven

Tal

tho

the pofi

his

T

To

[[]f] Nec merevocabat à profundiore voluptatum carnalium gurgite, nisi metus mortis & futuri judicii tui; qui per varias guidem opiniones, nung cam tamen recessit de pediore meo. Aug. Conf. l. 6. c. 16. §. 1.

^{*} Rom. 2.16. † 1 Cor. 4 5. | Jude 15. (†) Ibid.
[g] Apoph hegms collected by George Herbert in his Remains.

Loyola, that he used to say, when he heard a Clock strike, There's one Hour more that I have to answer to God for. Such a good Meditation concerning the past Hour, would surely quicken thee to spend the following and succeeding Hour much better.

To conclude this particular; Consider thou art to be judged by Christ; and surely then thou wilt not be assumed of him now, less the be assumed of thee another Day: Thou wilt wisely labour for an Interest in him, who is to be thy Judg; that when the Devil shall accuse thee, thou maiest have an Advocate to plead for thee, and the Judg himself to besiend thee, and to deal according to the Mildness of the Gospel with thee: Thou wilt hear and receive his Commands now, that thou maiest hereaster hear the Sentence of Absolution from him: Thou wilt endeavour so to live, that thou maiest look upon the Day of Judgment as the Time of thy Resselment, and maiest *love the appearing of thy Lord and Judg.

The eminently holy [h] Mr. John Janeway, sometime Fellow of King's Colledg in Cambridg, had very [i] early arriv'd and attain'd to such an high pitch and great measure of spiritual Readiness, and heavenly Preparedness, that when once there was much Talk, that one had fore-told that Doom's-Day should be upon such a Day; although he blamed the presumptuous Folly of the salfe Prophet, yet supposing it were true, What then, said he? What if the Day of Judgment were come, as it will most certainly

ously,

are-

Se-

the

rds,

rery

And

ues,

mfe

un-

to

ure

ol-

hy

nal

ep,

ut

TS

n-

ar

n,

Ift

y

ay '

143

4,

^{* 2} Tim. 4. 8.

^[6] In his Life written by his Brother Mr. James Janeway, p. 95, 96.

[[]i] At about 20, for he died between 23 and 24, and this was his Condition for about 3 Years before he died, p. 97, 120.

ly come shortly? If I were sure the Day of Judgment were to begin within an Hour, I should be glad with all my heart. If at this very instant I should hear such Thundrings, and see such Lightnings, as Israel did at Mount Sinai, I am perswaded my very Heart would leap for joy. But this I am consident of, through insinite Mercy, that the very Meditation of that Day hath even ravished my Soul, and the Thought of the Certainty and Nearness of it is more reselving to me than the Comforts of the whole World. Surely nothing can more revive my Spirits than to behold the blessed Jesus, the Joy, Life and Beauty of my Soul. Would it not more rejoyce me than Joseph's Wagons did old Jacob?

O let us labour to be like him. Let's love Christ's Laws, that we may not dread, but love his appearing, when he shall come to reckon and calltoan account for our Observation or Violation of them, Let us love the Appearing and Manifestation of Christ in his Ordinances, his Word and Sacraments: love the Appearing, Enlargement and Encreasing of his spiritual Kingdom in the World: love his Appearing in the Hearts and Lives of his most faithful and obedient People: love his Appearing in our Houfes and Families, and his being formed and inthroned in our own Hearts, and in the Hearts of our nearest and dearest Friends and Relations; and by earnest and ardent Desire even hasten the coming of the Day of God, long for the second coming of the Lord Christ, when he shall appear without Sin unto Salvation, and very heartily pray and fay, * Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly: When wilt thou + come again, and receive us unto thy felf, that where thou art, there we may be also?

Thus

Thu the C

the gre Seafon that t think ? Thief: That where eth; 1 or to That shew ! ferve to ga and p derat of Ti them nor that ceal? may and Pati

God

in.

^{*} Rev. 12. 17, 20. † Joh. 14. 3.

Thus I have offer'd to your best Consideration the Certainty and Necessary of a future and final Judgment.

2. I come now to lead you to the Meditation of the great Uncertainty, as to us, of the Time and Seafon of this Judgment. O think with thy felf, that the Son of Man * cometh at an Hour when you think not: That Christ faies, + Behold I come as a Thief: That thou knowest not when the Time is: That () thou knowest neither the Day nor the Hour wherein () your Lord, (*) the Son of Man comub; to particular Judgment, at the Day of Death; or to general Judgment, at the End of the World. That there are indeed Signs of the Times, which thew when it is near; which the Faithful are to obferve and take notice of, to be instructed by, and to gather comfort from; But that the punctual and precise Time is hid from us : And that a considerable Latitude being to be allowed in the Accounts of Time, both as to the Beginning and Ending of them; we can therefore take no exact Measures, nor fix directly upon the very Time and Day, that God hath fet in his own purpose to judg the World in.

And here twill be nfeful to thee to consider, that (as St. Auftin speaks) [k] The last Day is concealed and kept secret from thee, that all other Daies may be observed, well-spent and improved by thee; and that there may be a due Trial of thy Faith, and Patience and Obedience, by a Course of holy Li-gment th all

r Such

did at

would infi-

hath

tain-

n the

more

the

more

rift's

ear-

ac-

lem.

of

its:

ing

Ap-

ful

OH-

ned

eft

est

ay

rd

4-

rd

n,

re

18

^{*} Luke 12. 40 + Rev. 16. 15. | Mark 13. 33.

^(*) Mat. 14 42. & 25.13. [6] Ideo lacet ultimus dies at observentur omnes dies.

ving: Whereas if thou knewest certainly the just Term of thy Life, and how long it would be before thou shouldst be called to be judged; thou mightst too probably take Occasion from it, to defer and put off thy Conversion and Repentance to a few Daies before Death and Judgment, and to live idly, loosly and voluptuously, all the Daies of thy Life, till the very last.

But surely thou wilt recken now, That the great Uncertainty of Christ's coming is a notable Spur to Vigilancy and Wachfulnes: That now not being fecure any one Moment, 'tis thy Wisdom to stand upon thy Watch continually, lest Christ come at a Time when thou doest least expect him, and find thee in a Posture uncapable of Mercy from him, unqualished to receive Benefit by his Coming.

Frequently and intently think, that the Time of thy Death and particular Judgment is very uncertain; That thou * knowest not when the Master of the House cometh; at Even, or at Midnight, or at the Cock crowing, or in the Morning: whether he will call thee in the Daies of thy Youth, or in the Midst of thy Daies, or in elder Years; — Whether he will take thee in thy Bed, or at thy Table, or in a Journey; At what Time, or by what Mean he will cite and summon thee to leave this World, and to cose to Judgment. Consider, that thou maiest drop into thy Grave before the fall of the Leaf from the Tree; Yea, that though now in perfect Health, thou maiest be dead, [1] and doomed

* Mark 13 35.

ed an

this

ofth

Hell

State

Fude

ment

on of

quie

find i

com

t (is)

#7071

thou

heec

char

Care

am a

and

of A

stan

may

thy

EXT

pro

to I

To

Con

Sin

Sha

Re

^[1] Qual in se judicii faturum est omnibus, hoc in fingulis die mortis impletar. Hier in c. 2 Joelis.

Tune unicuique venjer dies ile, chen venerir ei dies us talu bine exeat, qualis judicandus est slio die. Aug. ep. 80.

ed and damned before the next Lord's-day: that this very Day, this Hour thy Soul may be required of thee, and be prefently judged to Heaven, or Hell, and pass immediatly into an unchangeable State and Condition; And that the particular Judgment will confign thee over to the general Judgment, which will be conform to, and a Confirmation of the former for ever: And this will raise and quieken thee to watch alwaies, left coming suddenly he find thee sleeping, fecure in thy Sins; left this Day come as a * Snare upon thee; and when thou that + fay, Peace and Safety; then Sudden Destruction come woon thee, as Travail upon a Woman with Child, and thou couft not escape. This will cause thee to take heed to thy felf, left at any Time thy Heart be overcharg'd with Surfeiting and Drunkennes, and the Cares of this Life, and so that Day come upon thee unawares: To dread the Thoughts of being surprized and taken unprovided by the great and just Judg of Angels and Men. This will help thee to be constantly careful, as to thy Person, that it be such as may find acceptance in that Day; and careful as to thy Employment, that it be fuch as is fuitable to thy Expectation of Christ's Coming, and fit tobe approved by thy Lord: To be alwaies in a readiness to receive thy Summons, and give up thy Accounts: To reason and argue thus with thy sele; If Christ's Coming should surprize me in such a Course of Sin', what a moful Cafe should I then be in? Shall I dare to live in that State, which I shall tremble to be found in at the Day of Judgment? Represent thy Judg as standing at the Door, and this will excite thee to watch and gray alwaies, that thou Cc 2 before

ightst

and

a few idly,

Life,

great

ur to being

itand

ne at

and

from

ning.

lime

ncer-

er of

r at

r he

the

Vhe-

able.

le ans

rld,

hou

the

v in

om-

ed

ulis

alis

^{*} Luke 21. 35. + 1 Theff 5. 3.

thou maiest be *accounted worthy to escape the Sentence of Condemnation, and to stand before the Son of Man: To pray God to make thee such a wife Virgin, as may timely take care to trim thy Lamp, to surnish thy Vessel with the Oil of Grace, to put on the Wedding-garment, and to get thy self arraied with that sine Linen, which is the Righteousness of the Saints; that so thou maiest gladly go out to meet the Bridegroom; and when others are unprovided and miserably excluded, thou being ready maiest be admitted by him, and enter with him into the Marriage-Chamber.

The third of the four last Things, proposed as the subject Matter of Meditation, in order to the right Redemption of Time.

III. Let Heaven and its Joys be the subject Matter of thy Meditation. And here,

1. Think of the happy Condition of a pious Soul in the State of Separation. Confider feriously, that Christ hath throught Life and Immortality to Light, through the Gospel: [m] That thy Soul will subsignater the Shipwrack of this Body; and that in the State of Separation it shall not droop in an unactive Lethargy, nor be numm without Sence, void of all Apprehension and Operation, and in a drousy, sleepy, joyless, comfortless Condition till the Refure.

* Luke 21. 36. † 2 Tim. 1. 10.

Nonne vobis videtur animus is, qui plus cernat, E longius, via de rese admeliora proficese: ille ausem, cujus obeussor sit acies, non ridere ? Cic. de fen.

fur

Foh

he

der

his

tho

fait

cha

Ser

* (

pre

be har

WI

riv

the

wi

Th

fro

tec

ex

pe

tro

en

an

ble

of

te:

D

[[]m] Hodge experiar an anima fit immortalis? faid Paulm Quinting when he was about to die: A brave infallible Judg indeed, that doubted of the Soul's Immortality!

furrection: An erroneous Opinion, which Pope John the 22th was so stiff and peremptory in, that he not only taught it himself, but procur'd an Order in the University of Paris, that none should take his Degree in Divinity, unless he held it. thou believe, and confider, that if thou beeft a faithful Person, thy Soul at its Departure shallchange its State for the better, and have a delightful Sense and joyful perception of its good Condition; be * quickly with Christ in Paradife, † immediately present with the Lord, and | forthwith blessed; be (*) carried by a Convoy of Angels into Abraham's Bosom, received to him, and entertain'd with him: That as Ambassadours, when they a rive at forreign Courts, are conducted thither by the Masters of Ceremonies, fo thy holy Soul shall be translated by good Angels into a bleffed Mantion, and with Lazarus be (1) comforted in that Condition: That if thou art a just Person, thy (|) Spirit shall then be made perfect: thy Understanding be cleared from Ignorance and Errour, enlarged and illustrated at thy Departure; thy Will be endowed with exact Conformity to the Will of God, and with perfect Liberty from all Servitude of Sin, and be troubled no more with doubtful Choice, but fully embrace the Chief Good; thy Affections be duely and firmly plac'd; thy Spirit be [n] gather'd to blessed and perfected Spirits, and be made it self equal Cc 3

* Znuseov, Luke 23. 43. † 2 Cor. 5. 8.

| d лад , Rev. 14.13. (*) Like 16. 22. (†) Verfe 25.

(II) Heb. 11. 23.

e the

ore the uch a n thy race.

ly felf

rt eous-

o out

g rea-

him

Sub-

atter

ul in

that

ight,

ublist

1 the

tive

f all

uly,

Re-

fur-

mlus

g in-

, vi.

cies,

[[]n] The Oracle told Amelius, enquiring what was become of Polimus's Soul, that he was gone to Pythagerus, and Socretes, and Plato, --- 'Twas a comfort to Socretes, that feer Death he hoped to fee Homer, Hefted, --- O practarum diem, qual to the Angels, and so become fit Company for them: That thy Soul shall be in an happy Condition, and be secure, and certain that it shall never be dispessed and ejected out of it, depriv'd or bereaved of it.

Such Thoughts as these will never suffer thee to let thy Soul fleep in thy Body, which will furely make when it is out of it. This Meditation is likely to preserve thee from living and acting sensually and brutifily, as if thy Soul were material and mortal, and capable of no greater Happiness, or higher Preferment than to be imprison'd and buried in this grofs dull Flesh. This will cause thee to take care, that thy Soul may exercise and maintain a due Superiority over thy Body; that thy Soul may * keep under thy Body, and bring it into Subjection, and not be fervilely and fordidly subject to it; fince thy Soul is able to live without it, and shall from the Day of Death till the Day of Refurredion live better without it than ever here it liv'd with it. This will mind thee to bring thy Soul, which is a Spirit, to converse now with the Father of Spirits, and help thee to live like an Angel here on Earth, who after Death shalt be as an Angel of God in Heaven. Farther; the Consideration of a State of Blifs to departed Souls, will make thee labour to become fit for this State, by getting thy Soul made like to God by true Holineis, that God may love his own Image cim ad illud animorum concilium; , cathorque pr fic fear, & cim ex bac turos & colluvione difection! Cic. in cat. Maj. feu de Sin.

Image to the holy Li the d ternal on and of eter

[0] a Like fland thing prove der y becau of it, terva if it eartl Loß, but t perf Pain Rell If t Stat tain ly 1

27107 the big

Socrates Critoni ... - Amicos, inquite hine discedens in eniam, vohis ant sim. les aut etiam meliores, ne vestrà quid m confuetudine diu cariturus, quandoquidem vas bievis esden estis commissiaturi, Erosm. Apoplith. l. 3.

^{* 1 401 9. 27.}

Image and Likeness in thee, and delight to do good to the Soul he loves: By striving to lead a good and holy Life here, which is by the Ordination of God the direct and ready Way to an happy and eternal Life hereafter: By looking that every Action and Carriage of thy Life, be worthy of thy Hope of eternal Life.

[0] If a State of glorious Immortality were but a Likelyhood and Probability, you would notwithstanding, in all reason, do any thing, suffer any thing, part with any thing, that if at last it should prove a reality, you might make fure of it, and render your felt capable of obtaining and enjoying it : because if it should prove true, and you should miss of it, no prefent Enjoyment could any way countervail the Loss of an eternal State of Bliss. if it should not prove true, the denying thy felf these earthly fenfual Pleasures would be no considerable Loft, or great Unhappiness to thee: 'twould be but the Loss of a transitory, short, impure, imperfect Pleasure, which even in this World has Pain and Torment mixt with it, and has often fad Rellishes, and a bitter Farewel at the End of it. If there were but a bare Probability of fuch a State, the most obscure Notices, and thy uncertain Hopes of it, were enough to make thee diligently look after it: Surely then thou wilt much more feek and press after it, when God has given thee an absolute Certainty of the Thing, and the highest Satisfaction that can rationally be defired of the Truth of it.

Cc 4

And

for ndi-

ever

rea-

e to

vake

to.

and

tal,

her

this

re,

Su-

101 luc

of

hill

to lp

f-

27.

le

0

22

ş

^[0] See to this purpose Mr. Baxter's Reif. of the Christ Rel. part, p. 138, 139.

And this Meditation will be a Means, as to fit thee for thy Translation, so to make thee, with *St. Paul, have an earnest Desire to depart, to go hence, to go home, To breath out [p] Calvin's Ejaculation, Usquequo Domine! How long, Lord! To cry out as holy [q] Monica did, when she had newly been largely discoursing with her Son St. Austin of the heavenly Kingdom, Son, as for me, I now take no delight in any thing in this Life: Quid hie facio? What do I here? And to use such Words as those of Mr. Herbert, [r] What have I left, that I should stay and groan?

The most of me to Heav'n is sled:
My Thoughts and Joies are all packt up and gone,
And for their old Acquaintance plead.

2. Bendthy Mind to think of the Resurrection of the Body to a State of Glory. Consider, that as thy Soul at Death is not extinguished, so that thy dead and buried Body shall not sinally perish, and be quite lost, but at last be reproduced and restored again to thee, by the Agency of an omniscient and omnipotent God: That if thou + bast dove good, thou shalt come forth to the Resurrection of Life; come out of thy Grave, as Jonah out of the Whale's Belly; as Daniel out of the Lions Den; as Pharaoh's chief Butler, yea, as the innocent honest Joseph, out of Prison, to an high and honourable Condition.

Think, how the very fame Body that fell by Death, shall be raised again at the last Day; as

La-

the (

Same

gruos

ing 3

Part

Shar

ry B

and

and

Servi

hov

pla

oron

AP

fa

me

Gl

Im

H

ge

It

G

11 th

th

U

Phil. 1. 21, 23

[[]p] Melch. Adam in vit. Calv. p. 100.

^[9] Aug. Conf. l. 9 c. 10 5. 4. [7] Home. † Joh. 5. 29.

Lazarus rose with the same Body which had lien in the Grave four Daies; and as Christ rose with the Same Body that was crucified and buried : How congruous it is to the Wildom and Goodness and governing Justice of God, that the same Body, which was Partner with the Soul in good Actions, mouid be a Sharer with it in everlasting Rewards: That that very Body, which was the Temple of the Holy Ghost, and whose Members were the Members of Chast. and Instruments of Righteousness, and did God Service, and labour'd and fuffer'd for Christ here. should be raised and rewarded hereaster: And how reasonable to conclude, that God having planted in the Soul a natural Inclination to its own Body, will furely one Day fatisfy the Soul's Appetite by reuniting it to the same Body.

Think how thy Body shall rise the same for Sub-stance, but not the same for Qualities and Endowments: that it shall be raised * in Incorruption, in Glory, in Power; raised a spiritual Body, and put on Immortality: That thou shalt bear the Image of the Heavenly: That this Flesh and Bloud shall be changed and altered with a perfective Alteration, that it may be capable of inheriting the Kingdom of God: That Christ shall | change thy rule Body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious Body; and that thou shalt | shine forth as the Sun, in the Kingdom of thy Father.

These Thoughts will warm and affect thy Heart, and move and incline thee to study and endeavour to get thy Soul and Body sitted and qualified for a Participation of a blessed and glorious Resurrection.

To

as to

with

o go

lvins

ord!

e had

Son

me,

Quid

ords

oan?

n of

thy dead

uite

1 to tent halt

of

as

bief

of

by

as

a-

¹ Cor. 15. 42,43,44, 49, 50. † Phil. 3. 21. | Mat. 13 43.

To get thy Soul now transform'd, and made like unto Christ's gracious Soul, that thy Body hereaster may be transform'd, and made like unto his glorious Body: to get, I say, a santtified Soul here, that thou maielt not sail of a glorified Body hereaster; for the Body follows the Condition of the Soul: Not to spend thy Time, Care, Cost, Pains, in decking and adorning, in trimming and [s] beautifying thy Body, but to dress and adorn thy Soul with true Grace and Holiness here, that so at the Day of Resurrection thy Body may be made very glorious and beautiful indeed, and then may be changed for the better, never to suffer any Change more.

Yea, thy Meditation of the Refurrection of thy Body, will make thee labour to get thy Body fan-Etified, that it may be glorified: 'Twill make thee pray, that thy * Body may be preserved blameles unto the Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ; and cause thee, as thou wouldst have thy Body rais'd to Glory, to keep under thy Body here, and not to fuffer its Members to rife in Rebellion against God: 'Twill help thee to use thy bodily Members holily here, that they may fare well and happily hereafter: Considering how unfit it is, that God should raise the Instruments of Iniquity to a State of glorious Immortality; How unmeet, that Christ should take that Body, which in this Life vigorously oppos'd him, and bufily and violently acted against him, and fashion this wicked hellish Body like unto his heavenly and glorious' Body; How incongruous, that they

* 1 Theff. 5. 23.

tha

should

their

the la

their

Thy

direct

offer

de Chor

thoul haft I

mine

and

rioses

(*)

recti

Imn

ker

to h

of t

Vo.

and

div

dea

hea

on lat

Ch C:

I

T

^[1] Qui le pingunt in hoc seculo aliter quen creavit Dem, metuant ne cun venerit resurrectionse dies, artifex creasuram suam non recognoscat. Cypt.

* that live after the Flesh, and + sow to their Flesh, should in their Flesh see God; that they who use their Eyes chiefly to let in sinful Objects, should at the latter Day || see God for themselves, and that their Eyes should behold him with Consort and Joy. Thy Meditation concerning the Resurrection, will direct thee to say upon any Temptation, Shall I offer to abuse and dishonour this Flesh, to abuse and dishonour God with this Flesh, which I look that God should so highly honour, and greatly glorify at the last Day? Shall I sin against God with this Body of mine, which I hope shall shine at the Resurrection as the Sun in the Firmament, and as the Stars for ever and ever, and be chang'd and sashioned like the glorious Body of Jesus Christ?

This will engage thee to strive with the Apostle, (*) if by any means thou maiest attain unto the Resurrection of the Dead, a Resurrection to a glorious Immortality:

like .

after

rioms

that ter;

t to

king

ying

Wich

Day

glonan-

nge

thy

an-

hee

nto

ee,

to

melp

nat

n-

r-

at

n,

ly

y

at

To ftudy to be just, that thou maiest be Partaker of the (1) Resurrection of the Just: To labour to have part in the (1) strift, that thou maiest partake of the second Resurrection: [*] To hear now the Voice of the Son of God, speaking by his Word, and Works, and Spirit; and hearing, to live a divine and spiritual Life; that when thou art dead and rotten in thy Grave, thou maiest at last hear his Voice, and come forth to the Resurrection of Life, and lift up thy Head with Joy in the latter Day: To labour to be a true Member of Christ, and to live to Christ, that so thou maiest [1] sleep in Jesus, and by the Power of God be brought

^{} Rom. 8. 17. † Cal. 6 8. || Job 19 26, 27. () Phil 3. 11. () Acts 24 15. (||) Rev. 20 6. [] Jos. 25, 28, 29. [†] Th. fl. 4. 14.

brought from the dead with him: To feast and refrem the Bodies of the Poor, that thou maiest be * recompensed at the Resurrection of the Just: To endeavour to act spiritually and lively, as thou hopest to partake of the Resurrection unto Life: To be careful to have alwaies a + Conscience void of Offence, in Hope and Expectation of an happy Refurrection; and in Intuition of the Promise of it, with the | 12 Tribes, to ferve God instantly Day and Night: To refuse at any time to () accept Deliverance, upon base and unworthy Terms, and finful Conditions, that thou maiest obtain a better Resurrection: To be willing to put thy Body to any Pains, Labour, Suffering, for the fake of God and Christ, who will not fuffer so much as thy Body to be a Loser: To (t) glorify God in thy Body, fince God hath promised to glorify this Body: To resolve, that Christ shall be (1) magnified in thy Body, whether it be by Life or by Death; fince Christ will raise even thy dead Body, and give this very Body of thine an [] abundant Recompense of Reward at last : In a Word; to have thy Conversation [1] in Heaven, from whence thou lookest for thy Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, to change thy vile Body.

3. And lastly, Meditate much and often of that perfect State of heavenly Glory, that is to be enjoyed upon the Reunion of Soul and Body. Think, when thy Soul shall recover its own Body, what a glad and joyful Meeting there will of those old Companions and intimate Friends, which have been parted and lepar

will b

Soul :

only

Soul

Con

joyi

of t rece

g00

pear

neit

entr

bati

exc

ind

at fire

an

KE

f

d

^{} Luke 14.14. † Acts 24. 15, 16. | & 16. 7. () Heb 11. 35. (†) 1 Cor. 6. 20. (†) Phil. 1. 20. [*] 1 Cor. 15. 58. [†] Phil. 3. 20, 21.

feparated folong: and how the Glory of thy Body will be an Addition to the Joy and Happiness of thy Soul: and that from the Day of Refurrection, not only a Part but thy whole Person, consisting both of Soul and Body, will be settled in a persectly happy Condition.

(1.) Apply thy Mind to think in general, of enjoying an * Inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled. and that fadeth not away, reserved in Heaven for you; of taking Pollession of an heavenly Kingdom, and receiving a Crown of Life: That it thou beeft a real good Christian, t when Christ who is thy Life shall appear, thou also shalt appear with him in Clory: That neither | Eye hath feen, nor Ear heard, neither have entred into the Heart if Man, the Things which God hath prepared for them that love him. Think of an excellent State of heavenly Happiness, which cannot indeed be fully understood, till it is enjoyed; but yet at present is sufficiently revealed to provoke our Defires after it, and to encourage our Endeavours to gain and obtain it.

The Meditation of heavenly Happiness and Glory in the general, will cause thee to beware of such (*) Sins, as will meritoriously exclude thee from the Kingdom of Heaven, and formally unsit thee for the Enjoyment of it; and will make thee careful to get the Qualifications proper to a Person to whom it belongs, and to perform the necessary indispensable Conditions upon which the promised Benefit depends: To labour to be (†) made meet to be a Partaker of the Inheritance of the Saints in Light;

at and maiest

7: To

s thou

Life:

e void

nife of

tantly

*) ac-

erms,

ain 4

ody to ce of

ts thy

Body,

To

Bo-

lince

this

enfe

Con-

for

thy

hat

yed

nen

lad

ons

nd le-

^{* 1} Pet. 1. 4. † Col. 3. 4. || 1 Cor 2. 9. (*) 1 Cor. 6. 9, 10. Gal. 5. 19, 20, 21. Eph. 5. 5, 6. Rev. 21. 27. (†) Col. 1. 12.

by Grace to become capable and susceptible of Glary: to * be born again, that thou maielt fee the Kingdom of God: to be a † Veffel of Mercy, sitted and prepared unto Glory: To bow thy Knees to God, that he would work this Meetness and Fitness, this spiritual Aptitude and Idoneity in thee; that he would prepare thee for the inheritance of the Saints, an Inheritance among them which are suntified; by making thee Partaker of effectual Vocation, real Regeneration, gracious Adoption, and thorough Santiscation; that by Holiness he would qualify and dispose thee for Happiness.

And this Meditation will incline thee to put thy felr in God's Way, to be made fit : And when he begins to make thee fit, to do the best thou canit, under God, in his Strength and by his Grace, to fit thy seif; to inquire after the Means of eternal Life, and to charge thy felf with the Ufe of thefe Means, in order to the attaining of this great End: To cleanfe thy felf from all Filthines, that thon maieit be meet for an undefiled Inheritance: () To keepthy Garments undefiled, that thou maiest be worthy to walk with Christ in white: To glorify God both inthy Body and Spirit, that thou maiest receive and inherit the Promise of the Glorification both of thy Soul and Body: To endeavour to have (1) thy Fruit unto Holiness, that thy End may be everlasting Life: (1) To do God's Commandments, that thou maiest be bleffed, and have Right to the Tree of Life, and maiest enter in through the Gates into the City: [] By patient continuance in well doing, to feek for Glory, and Honour, and Immortality, that God

* Joh. 3, 3, † Rom. 9, 23. || Acts 20 52. () Rev. 3, 4. (†) Rom. 6, 21. (#) Rev. 22. 14. [] Rom. 2, 7. God won't

St. 1

Imm

it;

hap

whe Thi

it is for Wo

and

Ma

one tha

Bu

the

co

God may render eternal Life to thee : Believing, and confidering, that he that made thee without thee, won't fave thee without thee; (a known Saying of St. Austin) that God will never bestow glorious Immortality upon any that are loth to look after it; that he will never give eternal Life to any that are unwilling to receive it; that he won't make thee happy against thy Will; nor force Heaven upon thee whether thou wilt or no: That eternal Life is a Thing well worth thy looking after; and therefore it is that God will have it fought for; and fought for by well doing, in a way of Obedience and good Works; And that not only by Fits and Starts, but by Perseverance or Continuance in well-doing, and by patient Continuance in well-doing: That a Man may as well think to be able to [t] malk with one Leg, as ever expect to go to Heaven by a Faith that is separated from good Works.

But do not only think of Glory in the General; But consider seriously more particularly, how upon the Reunion of Soul and Body, thou shalt be made completely happy

In the Vition of God;

In beholding the glorified humane Nature of Christ;

In the Perfection of thy Knowledg, and the full Satisfaction of all thy rational Defires;

In the bleffed Place thou shalt dweil in; In the bleffed Company thou shalt enjoy;

And in the Uninterruption, Perpetuity and Eternity of this bleffed State.

Con-

f Glas

fitted

God,

, this

at he

the

Jan-Voca-

and

ould

thy

c be-

411-

o fir

rnai

nese nd:

hon To

be

ieft

ion ve

be

ts,

he

21-

5,

at

d

^[1] Qui fide solitaria putat se posse ambulare in Christo, is uno pede ambulare constur, quod est impossibile Dav. in Col. 2. 6. p. 174

Consider,

1. How thou shalt at last be made happy * in the Sight of God: That thy Understanding shall acquiesce in the highest Being: That then thou shalt fee him as he is, a Fountain of all that is desirable to thy Nature; fee him [a] | Face to Face, know him even as also thou art known; that in Heaven thou shalt have as clear a Sight of God, and as free Communion with him, as the State of a Creature can admit. That though thou shalt not then immediatly fee the very Effence of God (as the over-acute Schoolmen affirm) God being in this respect invisible to the Angels themselves; who though they be unspotted with any Sin, yet the fole Imbecillity of their Nature and Creature-State does hinder such a Sight of God : yet (as the learned Camero exprelles himfelf concerning it) thou shalt fee God, by [b] experiencing who he is, and what he shews and manifests himself to be to thee : by reaping the bleffed Fruit and Benefit of the Divine Power, Wisdom, and Goodness, so far as the Measure of a Creature can bear, in the Sanctity of thy Soul, and glorious Immortality of thy Body. And (as the ingenious, judicious

* Mar. 5 8. 1 Joh. 3. 2.

dicio this I

will b

bitat

and o

with

of C

of th

Man

in w fest i

certa

God

tues :

Grea

fulne

which

to h

him.

fee

not

posli

unit

as the mer by f

[0

10

Gla

Man and

The

T

[[]a] Nos non negamus quin Deum videaut anima separata: sed quia visioniu ilisus non est una ratio, sed varia partes, prout Deus sis calaritis vel'obse rincrevelat, libenter concedimus non-dum co pervenisse animas sidelium, ut eum sacte ad saciem intuers dici possint. Thes. Salmur. de vit. Etern thes 12.

^{† 1} Cor. 13. 12. [b] Videtur Dem experiundo quis sit, & qualem se erga mis prastes. Cameto Prælect, de Verbo Dei, c.7. p. 455.

dicious [c] Amyraldus does very intelligibly explain this Matter) thou shalt see God hereafter in his glorious Works and admirable Operations; fuch as will be the most bright Splendor and beautiful Habitation of Paradife, the Glorification of thy own and others Bodies, the Confociation of the Church with Angels, and especially the glorious Presence of Christ, in whose Manhood will appear as much of the Creator as is possibly visible in the Nature of Man: To which add whatever elfe there may be, in which the Majesty of the Deity shall then manifest it felf: Which rare Effects of the Divinity will certainly lead thee to a clear and full Knowledg of God's most excellent Properties, and divine Vertues; his Wisdom and Knowledg, Power and Greatness, Grace and Mercy, Truth and Faithfulness; the Knowledg and Contemplation of which, will Fire and inflame thee with Love to him, and ravish thee with Joy and Delight in him.

Think, how hereafter thou shalt fee God, and fee him as thy God, and Chief Good: fee God, not with a transfeut Sight; but fee him so as to possess and enjoy him, to close with him, and be united to him, and complacentially to rest in him as thy utmost and perfect End: See God, not by a mere speculative Contemplation of him, but so, as by seeing him [d] to become * like unto him, to Dd

* in

lac-

halt

le to bim

hou

om-

ad-

atly

-100

to

bot-

ieir

ght

im-

ex-

efts

uit

ind

can

m-iu-

us a: ut

N-

25

[[]c] Vide Thef. Salmur. de vita æterna, a Thef. 13. ad finem Thef. 27.

[&]quot;I Joh 3. 2.

[d] In the 1 ife of Glory our Souls become living polithed Glaffes, wherein the Divine Nature, wherein Christ, God and Man, may be feen as he is: and he is Truth it felf, Life it felf, and Goodness is felf; and we are transform'd into the Simili-be changed and transformed into the true and lively Image of him; to be made Partaker, in thy Measure and Proportion, of that Wisdom and Holiness, Love and Goodness, which thou shalt apprehend and behold in him: That thou shalt not only please and delight thy felf by looking on some Glory that shall appear before thee, (to use some Words of a [d] learned Doctor) but shalt be made all glorious within, and become thy felf a God-like Creature: That thou shalt not behold the Divinity only without thy felf, and be made happy by some external Enjoyment of God only; but thou shalt fee God withinthee, and feel his Power throughly working thee to the fame Mind, Will and Defire with himfelf: That thou shalt see God hereafter, and be like him; and reflecting upon thy felf, shalt fee that thou art like him, and be pleased and satisfied, joyful and delighted in thy Similitude and Resemblance of him.

This Meditation will move thee, to labour to be fit for the perfect Vision and Fruition of God, in the future State of heavenly Glory: To remember to turn away thy Eyes from beholding Vanity, as thou lookest to behold the Divine Glory: To make it thy Business * to follow Holiness, without which no Man shall fee the Lord; enjoy the glorious Sight, and behold the blessed Face of God: To labour to fee Godhere, that thou maiest be the futer to see him hereaster: To see him in his Works; to search after, behold and admire that infinite Power, Wisdom, and Goodness, which are visible and legible in his wonderful Works of Creation and Providence: But

more

more

he ha

lines

his C

Toi

to fe

exhi

enjo

publ

ceivi

to be

and

* [0 fleth

foul

clean

this S

See G

and

him,

from

Sun-

Glaf

Bod

mai

Co

bas d

with Sprin Hear

Thir

and

tude of all thefe his Attributes. Dr. Fact fon third Vol. p. 504, [[]d] See D. Patrick's Parable of the Pilgr. p. 89, 50.

Heb. 12. 14.

more especially, to study to see and know God, as he has reveal'd himself in his Word: to see his Holines in his Precepts, his Justice in his Threatnings, his Grace and Goodness in his Promises. Once more; To see and converse with God in his Ordinances; to fee him, as he prefents himfelf to thy view, and exhibits himself to be seen in the Santhuary; to enjoy Communion and Fellowship with him in the publick folemn Ordinances of Prayer, hearing, receiving the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper: And to be alwaies purging thy Sight, clearing thy Eyes, and cleanfing thy Soul, endeavouring to become *[e] pure in Heart, not defiled by looking after fleshly or worldly Lusts, nor polluted with other foul Mixtures; to be free from Hypocrify and Uncleanness, from Filthiness of the Flesh and Spirit; in this Sense, to be pure in Heart, that thou maiest see God; have a spiritual Sight, and inward Sense and [f] Tast, a favory affectionate Knowledg of him, and be capable and receptive of Impressions from him; as the crystal Spring easily admits the Sun-beams, and imbibes its Raies; and the clean Glass plainly receives the Species and Images of any Bodies: To get a cleanfed purified Soul, that thou maiest be able to see and enjoy God here, and so be Dd 2

* Mat. 5. 8.

[f] See Dr. Jackson 3. V. book 11. c. 31.

lively

leasure

Love

d and

pleafe

y that of a

lorious

ture:

with-

ternal

with-

thee

ifelf:

him;

art art

and

im.

tobe

1, in mber

y, 25

nake

ch no

ght,

ir to

af-

his

But

ore

5041

^[1] Punity speaks two Things, 1. Freedom from mixture with any Thing that is more vile; so Metal is pure, that is not embased with a worse Metal; and Wine is pure, that is not mixt with Water. 2. Purity speaks electrons and transparency: So Spring-waters, Fountains, Diamonds are pure. So Purity of Heart consists, 1. in Abstraction and Septration from every Thing base and filthy, and in gathering up the Soul into Communion with that which is pure: and, 2. in that Glory, Lustre and Beanty, which arises from such Purity.

fit for the Beatifical Vision hereafter: To behold in the * Glass of the Gospel the Glory of the Lord, and to be changed into the same Image here, as thou hopest hereafter to see God, so as to be fatisfied with his Likeness.

2. Think how happy thou shalt hereafter be in Heaven, by beholding the glorified humane Nature of Christ: That when he shall appear, thou | shalt see him as he is; see the Person of Christ [as he is] in Opposition to what he was, while he was here on Earth, in the Form of a Servant: That if thou beest a Servant of the Lamb, thou shalt see his (*) Face in the New Jerusalem: That thou shalt be (†) with him where he is, and shalt immediatly behold his Glory which his Father hath given him.

Sit down, and confider, when thou shalt arrive at the Court of Heaven, how transcendent, and ravishing, and pleasingly amazing the heavenly Glory of Christ will be to thee! That if the (1) Queen of Sheba pronounced Solomon's Servants happy, because they stood continually before him, and heard his Wisdom, and beheld but a temporal, fading, and earthly Glory; how unspeakable then thy Haspiness will be, constantly to behold the Presence, and heavenly Mediatorial Glory of Jesus Christ! That if here it be so sweet and pleasant a Thing [*] for the Eyesto behold the Sun; how pleasant and delightful then it will be, to view and behold the Sun of Rightconfness; to look upon the glorified humane Nature of Christ, which will appear more beautiful, and shine more bright than the Sun in the Firmament! If it were

wei

sn t

his tron

And in t

Thi

was

Glos

tisf

men

to

who

beca

Pou

here

bur

Bod

Wo

Chr

Lor

on:

thy o

him

him

and

ry;

to b

core

fam

in h

[8

^(*) Rev. 22. 3. 4. (†) Joh. 17. 24 (||) 1 Kings 10 &.

were so refreshing and joyful a Sight to the Faithful in those Daies, to see and enjoy Christ, though in his State of Humiliation; If the * Wife Men came from for to see Christ, though lying in a Manger; And | Zaccheus climbed up into a Tree, to fee him in the Daies of his Flesh; And one of the [g] three Things which St. Austin wish'd he might have seen, was, Christ in the Flesh ; Think, how Christ in his Glory and Advancement, will be a more taking fatisfying Object, than in his Humility and Debafement : How strangely it will affect and delight thee, to fee him fo highly exalted, and valtly emich'd, who humbled and emptied himself for thy fake, and became very mean and poor, that thou through his Poverty mightst be made rich: To see that Body, that here was laid in a Manger, nail'd to a Cross, and buried in a Sepulchre, now made a most glorious Body, and one of the rarest Sights, and greatest Wonders in Heaven: To fee Christ in Glory, and Christ in Glory, thine; thy glorified Head and Lord, and the Exemplary Cause of thy Glorification: To fee him | for thy felf, (as | Job speaks) for thy own unspeakable Good and Comfort: To see him, and be enamour'd of him, and be like unto him; to converse and enjoy Communica with him, and to rejoice in and with him: To behold his Glory; and not only curioufly to gaze upon him, but to be glorified with him; in fome proportion, and according to thy capacity, to be made Partaker of the fame Glory, and to be admitted (*) to fit with him in his Throne : Think, what a fablime and notable Dd 3 p.ort

old in

and

u ho-

with

be in ere of

It fee

in [

e on

beeft

Face

with

Gla

rrive

d ra-

lory

en of caule

Wif-

arth-

will

even-

ere it

yesto

en it

con-

e of

hine

If it

were

^{*} Mit. 2. t. † Luke 19. 4.

[8] Romam in flore, Paulum in ore, Christum in corpore, [Job 19. 27. (*) Rev. 3. 21.

part of thy Happiness this will be in Heaven. having * not seen Christ, thou lovest him; and believing in him, rejoycest with Joy unspeakable, and full of Glory: O then confider, how thou shalt love and rejoyce in him, when thou shalt actually fee him, and immediatly enjoy him in the heavenly Kingdom.

This Meditation will prevail with thee to labour to become meet and fit for the happy Sight and felicitating Enjoyment of the glorified humane Nature of Christ: 'Twill make thee study to attain to real Holines of Heart and Life, twithout which no Man Shall fee the Lord Jefus Christ in Glory : 'T will cause thee to endeavour to be a Partaker of the Diving Nature of Christ, that thou maiest be admitted to be a Spectator and Enjoyer of the glorified humane Nature of Christ: to be in this World, as he was in this World; that at last thou maiest be in the other World, as he is in that World: to purify thy self even as he is pure, if thou hast any Hope in thee to see him as he is, at his Appearance.

And this Meditation will move and incline the to labour, and love to fee Christ here, that thou maiest be fitted to have the Honour and Priviledge to fee him hereafter: To delight to fee him now in his Promises, to see and enjoy him in his Gospel-Ordinances, to behold him in his Graces shining in his Members, and to fee his Image formed in thy own Heart and Life: Confidering, that only Christ-like Creatures are in a capacity of being happy with Christ in Glory: That (as [b] one fais well) God and Christ, without thee, cannot possibly

make

make

Chris

form

'twi

look

the (

broke off fr

exce

gave shalt

and.

thy i

Defi

Glaf

that 1

Chall

is do

now

in S

Proz

and

Hea

man

ries

tion

of C

and

Dif

A

¹ Pct. 1. 8. + Heb. 12. 14. D Ruft in his Serm, at the Fun, of Br. Taylot, p. 8. f.

make thee happy: That it is not the Person of God and Christ, but their Life and Nature, wherein consists thy formal Happines.

And that thou maiest be sit to see him as he is, twill direct thee at present to see him as he was; to look upon him as humbling himself to the Death of the Cross, for thy Sins; till thy Heart be kindly broken for, and thy Heart and Life be truly broken off from all thy Sins; and to eye and imitate that excellent Pattern and rare Example, which here he gave thee in every Allion of his holy Life.

3. Freely and largely meditate, how happy thou shalt be made hereafter in the great Advancement and Perfection of thy Knowleds, and in the filling up of thy utmost Capacities, and the Satisfaction of all thy That though now thou * feeft through a Glass, darkly; and knowest but in part; yet when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away; as the Light of Candles and Stars is done away by the riling of the Sun: That though now [i] many Difficulties in Nature, and Mysteries in Scripture, and Secrets and Wonders of Divine Providence pose and non-plus thee, dazle thy Eyes, and are too high and sublime for thee; yet that in Heaven thou shalt have the Causes of natural things manifested to thee; the deep and profound Mysteries of Religion, and of thy Redemption and Salvation revealed to thee; the Intricacies and Riddies of God's Providence unfolded to thee; the Wifdam, and Justice, and Goodness of God, in his darket Dispensations, and most inscrutable and unscarchable Dd 4

16

nd bend full

love

lly fee

venly

abour

d feli-

ure of

o real

Man cause

) ivine

d to

Nan this

Torld,

s he is

s he

thee

thou

iledg

w in

fpel-

ning

med

t on-

hap-

faies

Tibly

make

í.

^{* 1} Cor. 13. 9, 10, 12.

^[1] See Bolton of the four lift Things , p, 143, 144.

able Actions, cleared up to thee: That there thou shalt know the Orders, Offices, Excellencies of the Angels; and the Nature, Operations, and Original of thy own Soul; which is given thee rather to use, than to know, in this present World: That in the State of Glory, thy Understanding shall be extraordinarily and supernaturally illuminated and irradiated, and thy Knowledg be wonderfully increas'd and advanced, and thy Mind exceedingly pleafed and delighted both by the Repetition, and new + Variety of Contemplation: That in the heavenly Glory, the Divine Manifestations and Communications shall be ample and liberal enough to fill all the Capacities, and richly to answer all the Desires of thy most exalted and perfetted Faculties: That there thou shalt never feel any Want or Indigence, but be so satisfied as not to be * satiated, cloyed or glutted ! That [k] in Heaven, thou shalt alwaies reckon that thou hast sufficient already to make thee throughly and completely happy; and yet still be receiving new Additions, and fresh Accruements, and an Accumulation of Satisfaction: That every. Participation of Truth and Goodness will stretch and distend the Capacities of thy Soul, and fit thee for further and further Receptions: That the Capacities of thy Faculties shall be continually widened and enlarged, and continually filled [k] See D Patrick's parab. of the Pilgr. p. 97, 98.

And D. Rust's Serm. at the Funeral of Bp. Taylor, p. 7, fol.

Tamets will desit ad plenam persett angue latitiam & incresibilen relaptatem gua fruemur in diet, "nulla tamen nos unquan rerum istarum satietas capiet, quin quotidie † nova quadam tum contemplandi & cognoscendi, tum latitiam ex contemp.a.:one pircipiendi materia ex rebus illu manabit ac essor (est.

Itas. Salmur. de vita aterna, thes. 27.

led

bere

Kno

futa

abi

in t

her

out

fro

ing

TI

ve

un

the

de

th

un

rie

da

OV

O E

led and fatisfied, until thou arrivest unto such Degrees as thou canst assign no Measure unto.

This Meditation will cause thee to carry thy self so here, that thou maiest be sit to attain a Persection of Knowledg hereafter.

hou

the

rigi-

at in

ex-

as'd

afed

Va-

Glo-

tions

Ca-

thy

nere

t be

lut-

rec-

hee

be

nts,

€-

will

bul,

nufil-

led

tin-

MA.

m-cet.

To be careful to know those Things now, which are necessary to the present, and preparatory to the fuure State; and [1] the Knowledg of which will abide and continue, and be heightned and perfected in the other World.

To beg of God, that he would open thy Eyes here, enlighten thy Understanding, translate thee out of the Kingdom of Darkness, and turn thee from Darkness to light: Believing, and considering, that grofs and fottish Ignorance here, is an ill preparation for Perfection of Knowledge hereafter; That if now thou wilfully continuelt ignorant of the very first Principles of the Oracles of God, thou art unfit to go on to perfection, and to be admitted another day to the Understanding of the Secrets and hidden Mysteries of God: That if now thou makest thy felf like a Beaft, in Ignorance; thou wilt be unmeet to be made like an Angel of God, in the glorious Perfection of heavenly Knowledg: If now thou darknest thy own Understanding, and blindest thy own Mind, thou wilt be unfit for the perfect Light of the heavenly Glory: If now thou shuttest the Eyes against the Light, and art afraid to come to the

^[1] Omnibus pietatus Christiane studiosis velut sectum acceddam suum commendate solebat distum stud Hierenymi de Perelinum, Discamus in terta quorum scientia nobis pertevere in celo: Quod etiam Auditorio Theologico, in qui quat die satras literas docebat, inscripti. Natrat, hist, de vita Dav. Patei, conscipti à Phil. Par. Dav. fil.

the Light, lest thy Deeds should be reprov'd; thou wilt be utterly unmeet to be Partaker of the Inheritance of the Saints in Light; thou wilt only be meet for the Kingdom of Darkness, sit to be call out into utter Darkness, and to inherit the Blackness of Darkness for ever: 'Twill make thee labour to get some competent Knowledg here, which will be a good Preparation for perfect complete Knowledg hereafter: Remembring, that to him that hath shall be given; which is true of Knowledg, as well as Grace.

And this Meditation will likewise stir thee up, to practise and live up to the Knowledg of those Things, which God hath been pleased most clearly to discover, and plainly to reveal in his Word to thee, as any way necessary to thy own and others Edistication and Salvation: Thou being assured and well perswaded, that practice and doing is the ready way to further Knowing; as * to increase thy Knowledg bere, so, to augment thy Knowledg bereaster: Twill cause thee to charge thy self to walk as a Child of the Light, and of the Day; to follow the Light of God's Word and Spirit, that thou maiest be meet to be made Partaker of the Inheritance of the Saints in Light.

The foremention'd Meditation will moreover make thee wife unto Sobriety, repress the itching Curiosus of thy Nature, keep thee from spending thy Time in boldly prying into God's [m] Secrets, and from immoderatly thirsting and reaching after the

Know-

* Pf. 111. 10 Joh. 7. 17.

Kno

brin

not whi

tha

mal

be l

of a bel

per der

aft

7107

fre

tie

th

fit

of

Ci

V

h

t

[[]m] Homo sum, non intelligo secreta Dei; investigare non audeo, E ideo etiam attentare sormido: q 12 E hoc spsum genus quasi sacriles a temeretatis est, si plus sene cupias quam senacis. Sale. de gub. Dei, l. 3.

Knowledg of Things too high for thee: Remem bring and considering, that in this Life thou canst not attain to clear and full and perfect Knowledg, which is a Reward referved for another Life; And that thou maiest enjoy it in due Time, 'twill make thee willing to wait and stay God's Time; to be humbly, and modestly, and contentedly ignorant of all those Things wherein God has been pleased to be filent, and has thought most fit, in this lower imperfect State, for Man to be ignorant. The Consideration that thy Knowledg shall be perfected hereafter, will bring thee at present to be quietly ignorant of those Things, which God fees meet and most convenient for a Time to hide and conceal from thee; and will help thee to wait very patiently for the Season of the fuller Manifestation of himfelf to thee; this being the Way to have thy Knowledg encreased and perfected another Day.

Further; This Meditation will also mind thee, to fit thy self for the sure receiving the full Satisfaction of all thy Desires in Heaven hereaster. Twill cause thee now to curb and restrain thy sensual Appetite, to moderate thy Desires, to submit thy Will to the Will of God, and to do his Pleasure here, that so thou maiest have thy widest Capacities and largest Desires every way satisfied and sulfilled hereafter.

4. Meditate how happy thou shalt be hereafter, by dwelling in a most glorious, beauteous, blessed Place; in thy heavenly Father's House, in thy * Saviour's Father's House, in which there are many Manssons; a stately Palace, a spatious House indeed, v'd;

the only

calt

ness

to

e a

edg

as

to igs,

lif-

ee, ifi-

ell

do

ill

of

of

et

in

er

4-

y

e

1-

^{*} Joh. 14. 1.

deed, fit to receive and entertain an innumerable Company of glorious Inhabitants: That thou shalt be placed and setled in the Seat of the Blessed, an Honse not made with Hands, a Building of God, Paradife, Heaven, the third Heaven, which is feated not only above the Region of the Air, but above the Moon and highest Stars; from whence thou shalt with Advantage take a pleasant Prospect of the admirable Beauty, and comely Order of the Universe, and of the Usefulness of all its Parts: That thou shalt inhabit a Place which is so incomparably glorions, that it is called in Scripture the Throne of God: That thou shalt dwell hereafter in the better and beavenly Countrey of the Saints: That thou shalt actually and personally enter into the promised Land, and not only have a Pifgah-fight of it afar off: That thou shalt be translated into the heavenly Canaan, transported into the hely Land, conducted and received into the holy City, in which there is no Night, and which has no need of the Sun or Moon to hine in it, the Glory of God inlightning it, and the Lamb being the Light thereof. Think, how the beautiful, glorious, precious Things (of which there is mention in the 21th and 22th of the Revelation) in the large Description of the new Jerusalem; if meant of the Glory of the highest Heaven, are but Umbrages and Shadows of the good Things to come, which are contain'd and treasur'd up in the heavenly Kingdom. Though Heaven be indeed more a State than a Place, yet think, how the Majesty and Amenity of the Place of Glory, will add to thy Joy and increase thy Felicity.

And this Meditation will provoke thee to labour to become apt and fit to live in so holy and blessed a Place as Heaven: To be alwaies travelling towards this heavenly Country, though thy Way lie through thro

ven,

cour

renc

atio

pare

venly

thy

King

here

thou

an .

cau

City

and

Cui

the

An

as l

wo

Son

thy

the

th

HI

Fe

ih

h

ar

fh

V

ta

a

through a Wilderness: To make the mention of Heaven, and the Way thereto, to be thy frequent Difcourse, thy most ferious and most refreshing Conference: To be careful to have thy constant Converfation in Heaven: To give all Diligence to be prepared and disposed by an heavenly State for an heavenly Place: To let the Kingdom of God enter into thy Soul, that thou maiest be meet to enter into the Kingdom of God: To become the Temple of God here, an Habitation of God through the Spirit, that thou maiest be worthy to be received hereafter into an heavenly Habitation: To cleanse thy felf, because no unclean Thing can ever enter into that holy City: To labour to get fuch a vertuous Disposition and generous Spirit, fuch holy Habits, heavenly Customs and divine Manners, as may fit and qualify thee to be admitted Citizen of the new Jerusalem: And to beg of thy Father which is in Heaven, that as he hath prepared an Heaven for holy Souls, so he would more and more prepare thy too too unprepared Soul for Heaven,

5. Spend thy Thoughts in the Confideration of thy future Enjoyment of the most blessed Company, in the most blessed Place. Confider seriously, that as thou shalt have Communion with the blessed Trinity in the heavenly Glory, fully enjoy God, and have Fellowship with Jesus Christ thy Head; So thou shalt associate and be conversant with Angels, and have sweet Familiarity with those blessed Spirits; and shalt there enjoy the Communion of Saints; shalt there meet with the holy Patriarchs, be received into the goodly Fellowship of the Prophets, be taken into the glorious Company of the Apostles, and be joyned to the noble Army of Martyrs; and with all the Faithful of all Ages recount the Mercies, and chaunt erable

1 shalt

d, an

Pa-

eated

e the

Shalt

dmi-

erfe.

thou

glo-

e of

etter

halt

and,

hat

lan,

re-

ht,

178

ul,

on.

ge

he

br

n-.

n.

a

of

e chaunt the Praises of thy bountiful Creator, and gracious Redeemer. Think with thy felf, how that good Company is a great part of the Pleasure and Comfort of a good Man's Life, and a kind of Heaven here upon Earth: But that hereafter thou shalt have the best Company that Earth and Heaven can afford; That there thou shalt converse with and delight in the most eminent Children, and faithful Servants of God, and famous Worthies of the Church of Christ: [m] That there thou shalt fee, and know those, whom thou never fawest before ; sit down * with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the Kingdom of Heaven: and shalt renew a blessed Acquaintance with thy old dear Christian Godly Friends and vertuous Relations: Not know them by former Stature, Feature, Favour, (for there will be a vast Difference between a mortal and glorified Body) but know them by Revelation, or by the [n] publick Testimony that Christ shall give concerning them, or by Passages occurring in some Opportunities of Discourse with them: Nor know them in a worldly or fleshly Manner, but know and enjoy them in a most pure and firitual, divine and beavenly Manner.

And think what a comfort it will be, to enjoy Society with those in Heaven, with whom thou didst use to go frequently to the House of God in Company! What an Happiness it will be to meet in Heaven with those, with whom thou wast wont to discourse of Heaven! to rejoice and join in Praises with those in Heaven, whom thou hast often wept, and [m] Efferor studio pates vestvos, quos colui I dilexi, videndi. Neque tes vei o solum convenire aveo, quos ipse cognovi: sed illos etram, de quibus audivi, I lego, I ipse conscrips. Cic. int. Cat. Maj seu de sen. * Mar. 8. 11.

[n] Vide thef. Salmur. de vit. atern. thef. 37, 36.

$21044Y

rejoi

Sain

Mea

of b

ing

to to

of th

cula

Pro

had

kind

whe

you

Dif

tisfi

folie

nef

Inh

tha

fion

be l

defi

cipi

onl

Ble

Co

wi

the

in

Tr

T

re-

mourned, and prayed with here on Earth! What a rejoicing 'it will be, to fee and enjoy those dear Saims in the heavenly Glory, whom thou wast a Means of bringing thither, or who were the Means of bringing thee thither! What a pleasing refreshing Converse it will be in the heavenly ferusalem, to tell one another there the most remarkable Stories of the Divine Love, and to receive a faithful particular Relation of the rare Passages of the Divine Providence, of which the good and vertuous have had Experience in all Ages of the World! How kindly and sweetly thou shalt converse with others, when all Corruptions on all fides shall be removed, your Judgments and Affections united, and your Dispositions exactly suited! How contented and satisfied you shall there be, where you shall live abfolutely free from all manner of Injury, Envy, Strangeness, Suspicion, Uncharitableness: Where all the Inhabitants shall alwaies live (as [o] one describes that State) in a rapturous Love of Godzand a most passionate Love of one another: Where every one will be loving, and every one will be lovely: Where every one will love others as much as they deferve, or defire; and look for no other Retribution but a Reciprocation of Love : and where all shall rejoice, not only in their own Salvation, but in the Glory and Blelledness of others, as if it were all their own! Confider that hereafter thou shalt be so pleased with the Place thou shalt be in, and fatisfied with the Company thou shalt be with, that thou shalt fay in the State of Glorification, * as Peter did in the Transfiguration, Lord, it is good for me to be bere: That as thy effential Happiness shall consist in the Frui-

and

isa

rood

pon

best

hat

the

of

it:

om

ım,

en:

old

la-

re,

een

Res

ilt

Ir-

ith

hly

oit

OV

lít

n-

4-

if-

th

id

C-

e.d

[[]o] See D. Patrick's Par. of the Pilgr. p. 92, 93, 94.

* Mat. 17 4.

Fruition of God, the Chiefest Good; so, that thy concomitant, circumstantial, accidental Joies will consist in the beauteous Place, and the holy Company thou shalt enjoy: But yet [p] that either the Place, or Society of Saints and Angels, can add or confer any Thing to thy Happines, proceeds from God's special Presence in both.

This Meditation will invite and provoke thee, to make it thy diligent constant Care here upon Earth to fit and prepare thy felf for the future Enjoyment of the most holy and blessed Company in the heavenly Glory: To get a Spirit suitable both to the Company and Employment of Heaven: To mortify thy unruly Lusts, and to moderate those violent boisterous Passions, which would cause a kind of Hell in Heaven, and make thee not only restless and uneasy in thy self, but apt and prone to trouble others and to disturb the Peace of that blessed Place: To labour to become truly holy, and fo to be meet for the heavenly Society: Remembring and confidering, that scandalous, unholy, disorderly Perfons, are by the Divine Ordination to * be excluded from the Communion of Saints even here below, to be shut out from the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, to be denied the Benefit and Comfort of brotherly Society, and Chistian familiar Converse: And that if by Scandal, and Practice of open Wickedness, thou shouldst render thy felf unfit for present Fellowship and Communion with the Saints, thou wouldst furely prove much more unmeet for their perfectly pure and unspotted Society in Heaven hereafter.

And

An

hold

maie

berea

Wick

count

ble an Godly

them

most

whor

gathe

bere,

al her

mong

fied I

ftians

in his

alitt

this v

muni

last,

God

Com

to all

upon

Perfe

ing t

cause

the

Con

God Com

Dr.

pany

[[]p] Dr. Jackson, 3 vol. p. 508.

And this will cause thee to keep Company, and to hold Communion with the Saints here, that thou maiest be fit to enjoy blessed Communion with them bereafter: To shun and avoid the Company of the Wicked, as a kind of Hell here upon Earth; to count their unavoidable Neighbourhood a daily Tronble and an heavy Burden to thee: And if any truly Godly live in the Place where thou dwellest, to find them out, and to prize and improve them to the utmost: To fort and fuit thy felf with those now, whom thou wouldst defire to be ranked with and gathered to another Day: To feek to live with those here, whom thou wouldst earnestly wish to live withal hereafter: To make account, that now to live among the Good, to converse with regenerate fanctified Persons, and real spiritual experimental Chriftians; and to enjoy God in his People, and Christ in his Members; that this is a great Happiness, and a little Image of Heaven: To use such reasoning as this with thy felf; Should I hate or decline the Communion of Saints here, what should I do in Heaven at last, where next to the Fruition and Enjoyment of God in Glory, the best Entertainment will be the Company and Society of bleffed and glorified Saints to all Eternity? This would keep thee from fitting upon Thorns, when thou art in Company with gracious Persons, with serious favory Christians, and wishing thou wert well rid of thy Trouble; and would cause thy Heart to spring and leap within thee, to see the Face, and bear the Discourse, and enjoy the Converse and profitable Company of the truly Godly: It would direct thee to chuse and use such Company all thy Life long, that when thou dieft, (as Dr. Preston said of himself upon his Death-bed) thou maiest only change thy Place, and not thy Contpany. This would help thee to labour that God

thy

on-

any

ace,

any

Pre-

to uth

ent

ea-

the

tify

ent

of

ind

ers

To

eet

nfi-

er-

led

be

to 50-

if

ou

nd

ly

nd

nđ

may now dwell in thee, that hereafter thou maiest dwell with him: That Christ may now dwell in thy Heart by Faith, that thou at last maiest dwell with Christ in Glory: To have at present Fellowship with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ, and with those who have the Image of God and Christ stampt upon them, the Beauty of Holiness and the Glory of Heaven shining in them; to have thy Soul Sympathize, and thy Heart harmonize with them, and thy Affections closely embrace them, and freely run out to them; to love and rejoice to men and confer with them here, that thou maiest be fit to meet their Persons, and to enjoy their boly Company and happy Society in the heavenly Glory hereafter.

6. And laftly; Love and delight to enlarge thy Thoughts in the frequent Meditation of the Uninterruption, Perpetuity and Eternity of this bleffed State: To sit down and consider, that thou hast the Promise of eternal Life, eternal Salvation, eternal Glory, a continuing City, an everlasting Habitation, a House eternal in the Heavens, an Inheritance incorruptible, an everlasting Kingdom, a Crown of Glory that fadeth not away: That, if thou art a righteous Derfon, thou shalt be ever with the Lord, and as a Son abide in thy heavenly Father's House for ever, and reign in the Kingdom of thy Father for ever and ever; that thou shalt be a Pillar in the Temple of thy God, and go no more out: That if once thou entrest in, thou can't never pass out of that State of Blis: that the Eternisy of thy Felicity, will be the Compleatment of thy Happiness: That there will be no fear of ever losing or relinquishing thy pleasant Possession: That to admit any fuch Thought, would be a leffening and diminishing, a fouring and imbitter-1710

eng

aki fore

Pra

labo

tya

of L

Seea

fit f g00

this

Prep the

here

Glor

A

bore

fit to ther

thy

Hol D₄i

back

conti

him

ing the Joys and Delights of that blessed State, and a kind of Hell even in Heaven it self: That therefore in Heaven thou shalt surely live an immortal Life of endless Love, and continual Joy, and perpetual Praise.

This Meditation will fweetly confirmin thee, to labour earneftly to become meet to enjoy a Perpetuity and Eternity of perfect and confummate heavenly Felicity.

Twill make thee mindful to lay the Foundation of Life eternal in thy felf here in this World; to puffrom Death to Life even in this Life; to get the Seed of eternal Life here; Grace, the Seed of Glory: to get eternal Life initial, that thou maiest be ht for eternal Life perfectional: To obtain the good Beginnings of Life everlasting, as an earnest in this Life of that which is to follow, and a good Preparation for Life everlasting to be conferred in the World to come: To begin by Grace to live here, that thou maiest be fit to live eternally in Glory hereafter.

And this Meditation will engage thee to give God bere thy whole remaining Time, that thou maiest be fitto enjoy his blessed Eternity: To be careful that there be no voluntary Intercision or Interruption of thy Obedience; To endeavour to serve God in Holiness and Righteousness before him, * all the Daies of thy Life; without any wilful departing, backsliding, withdrawing, declining, or moral discontinuance of thy holy and religious walking with him, by groß Neglest of what thou oughtest to do,

aiest

n thy

with

with

with

d the

Soul

hem,

free-

meet

It be

Com-

thy

Inin-

leffed

haft

ernal

on, a

that

Der-

and

ver;

t in,

that leat-

fear cfli-

l be

ing

[.] Luke 1. 75.

or by doing the contrary to thy Duty. This will incline thee to deal with God, as thou wouldst that he should deal with thee; and move thee to fay thus to thy felf; Would I have God give me Admission into Heaven, and afford me only a Taste of Happiness, and then presently put an end to those transporting ravishing Joys, and ere long annihilate me, or at least turn me quite out of Paradife, and for ever deprive me of that joyful, blissful State and Place, and thrust me into far a meaner and lower Condition; Would I be well contented with this? If not; why then let me not only enter into God's Service, but continue therein to my Life's End. If I expect a perfect perpetual Happiness from God, is it fit and reasonable, that I should give God a broken, imperfect, flitting, inconstant Obedience? Would I have God's Goodness last for ever? then let not my Goodness be as a * Morning-cloud, and go away as the early Dew: Let not me be off and on with God: Let not me ferve him by Fits and Starts, but let my Heart stand alwaies bent for God, and let me perform a constant Course of Obedience to him: Let me not only emer into the Race, and run for a Spurt; and then fit down, or start aside, and fly out of the Way; but let me here hold out to the End, or I shall be unfit for an endless Felicity in another and better World.

The Consideration of all that has been spoken, both in general and particular, of the glorious Happiness of Heaven, will be of further Use and Advantage to thee, as to the Redemption of thy Time, in several respects: for,

(1.)

and

W

ofc

thos

hea

ftre fuffe

per

enco

and

ty,

ced

war

Dut

thee

gott

the 1

whom

Inher

Gift

unde

cour

A

[.] Hof 6.4.

to

(1.) Twill hearten and encourage thee to do and suffer any thing for God.

(2.) 'Twill help and enable thee to answer and oppose the fair and furious Temptations of Satan.

(3.) To live in an holy Contempt of this present World; and in the serious, real, visible Exercise of constant heavenly-mindedness.

(4) And lattly; To live in delightful fore-thoughts and fore-taftes of the Glory to come.

(1.) The foregoing Meditations of a perfect, heavenly, glorious Reward, will quicken and ftrengthen, hearten and encourage thee to do and suffer any thing for God.

[1.] The ferious frequent Confideration of a perfect State of heavenly Glory, will animate and encourage thee to lay out thy felf to the utmost for God, and to act vigorously in the performance of thy Daty, in this State of Probation, in which thou art placed in this lower World.

All the forementioned Particulars of this Reward, will be so many Cords to bind thee to thy Duty; and as so many Magnetical Hocks, to draw thee to Obedience. Thou wilt up and be doing, upon this Consideration, that there is enough to be gotten by well doing; Thou wilt * heartly serve the Lord Christ, that Christ that died for thee, of whom thou knowest thou shalt receive the Reward of the Inheritance; who hath promised a Reward to the Gift of a † Cup of cold Water only, and therefore will undoubtedly give a great Reward to a constant course of sincere Obedience. Thou wilt be so werd

Ec 3

in-

thus ission

appi-

rani-

e me,

1 for

and

ower

this? God's I. If

is it oken, uld I

ot my

as the

God:

it let

t me

for a d fly

) the

ano-

oken,

Нар-

Ade ime,

(1.)

^{*} Col. 3. 23, 24. | Mat. 10. 41.

to do any thing * for the Hope that is laid up for thee in Heaven; confidering, that all thy good Duties and faithful Performances shall be † found unto Praise, and Honour, and Glory, at the appearing of Jelus Christ.

The deep Thoughts of the heavenly Glory, will render the Daties of Religion easy to thee. The Meditation of an everlasting heavenly Rest, will facilitate the Yoke, and lighten the Burden of Christ to thee. The Greatness of thy Reward will lessen and take off the Dissiculty of thy Labour. Thou wilt surely think no Task, no Duty, no Diligence, no Care, no Cost, no Pains too much to get to Heaven, which at last will fully make amends for all. Thou wilt strive to do thy best in all thou doest, because, as Apelles sa'd of his great Care in drawing a very curious Picture, Pingo Atternitate, I limin for Eternity; so, whatever thou doest, thou doest for Glory, Honour, Immortality, a blessed Eternity.

If by the Eternity of thy Felicity, were meant only an Avam of very long Duration; yet it would feem a weighty Motive to any confidering rational Man, to engage him to Godlinefs and Christianity, and to oblige him to Industry and Activity: But when the Gospel-revelation does give thee Afstrance of the Perpotuity, and endless Duration of this Felicity; the due Consideration of so great and infinite a Reward, will have a more forcible powerful Instrume upon thee. It greatly raised, and much affected David's Heart, to be able to say to God, thou hast spoken of thy Servant's House for a great while to come; How then is it likely to spirit fpo

and

and

ed

felf.

ly S

thin

*

ple i

fon

far

of a

wit

tob

Glo

PACI

Poil

in 1

of

-ear

wat

not

. (

yen

ana

By

.

[.] Col. 1. 5. + 1 Pet. 1. 7. 1 2 Sam. 7. 19.

and encourage thee, to confider that God has spoken of an heavenly Happiness to be bestowed upon thee, that shall last as long as Eternity it self, that shall last as long as God himself?

[2.] The ferious Thoughts of a perfect heavenly State of eternal Blifs, will quicken and encourage thee not only to do, but to [9] suffer any thing for God and Christ and the Gospel: to chuse * with Moses rather to suffer Affliction with the People of God, than to enjoy the Pleasures of Sin for a Seafon; esteeming the Reproach of Christ (or, for Christ) far greater Riches than any Worldly Treasures out of a respect unto the Recompense of the Reward: And, with Christ, for t the Joy that is set before thee, to endure the Cross, and despise the Shame : | To rejoice to be a Partaker of Christ's Sufferings, that when his Glory shall be revealed, thou maiest be glad also with exceeding foy: To be ready to (*) take joyfully the poiling of thy Goods, knowing in thy felf that thou hast in Heaven a better and an enduring Substance. But of this I shall speak more under the next Head. That is the first; The serious Consideration and earnest Expectation of a vast and ample Reward in Heaven, will encourage and enable thee not only to do but to suffer for Christ Jesus.

(2.) The Confideration of a future perfect heayenly Happines, will help and enable thee to resist and repel both the fair and furious Temptations of Satan, By Meditation put on for an Helmet the Hope of Salvation, and that will defend thee against the As-

fault, Ee 4

(*) Heb. 10. 34, 35, 36.

thee

nties

unto fge-

will

The

ll fa-

hrist

and

wilt

, no

wen,

hou

aufe,

very

tor

loest

ter-

eant

ould

onal

iani-

ty:

Al-

n of

reat

po-

and

y to or a pirit

and

^[5] Nihil crus fent it in nervo, quando a umus est in cal: Terrul.

^{*} Heb. 11. 25, 26. + & 12. 2. | 1 Pc. 4. 13.

faults, and will ward off the Blows of the Devil.

It will,

[1.] Enable thee to answer and oppose the subtil and powerful Temprations of Satan, when he fairly promises any pleasing Good to thee. The consideration of what God offers thee, will make thee reject and disdain whatever Satan for the present proffers thee; because he can make no proffer valuable and considerable, equal and answerable to what God bas made in the Gospel to thee. This Sun will prefently put out the Light of all his winkling Stars. As Saul fild to his Servants, to keep them from falling away to David, * Will the Son of Jesse give every one of you Fields, and Vineyards, and make you all Captains of thousands, and Captains of hundreds? So thou wilt fay to thy considering felf, are the Devil and the World able to afford me those Honours and Dignities, Riches and Treasures, Delights and Pleasures, and to entertain me with such a Paradife as Ged hath prepared for me, and promifed to me? Are the Devil, and the World, and all the Pleasures of Sin, which are flight, and short, and last but for a Season, ever able to make me amends, if I make a refusal of God's Kindness? Are they ever able to countervail, and make up the Lois of God, and Christ, and the heavenly Kingdom to me? What's all the outward Splendor and Glory of this World, to the incomparable unconceivable Glory of Heaven? What are these Meats and Drinks here below, to the celestial Food, and the full Satisfaction of all my spiritual Desires? What signify all the filthy impure Pleasures here, to the Enjoyment of the Society of immaculate Angels, and the gloglori

Balla

ther

are a

Tre

Cott

ous :

beau

Wh

Gar

Orr

pha

ble

HOR

and

Cro

me

COV

Lo Go

Ete

lan

lue

my

the

Fe

be.

fh

by If

L

^{* 15}am. 22. 7.

glorious Presence of the immaculate Lamb hereafter? How are all the Pleasures of Sin, put in the Ballance against the Joys of Heaven, but as a Feather against a Mountain? How poor and beggarly are all the Riches on Earth, to the vast and fure Treasures laid up for me in Heaven? How mean a Cottage, what a very Dunghil is the most sumptuous Building, and stately Habitation here, to the beautiful, fpatious, glorious, heavenly Palace? What vile Weeds, and forry Rags, are the cofflielt Garments and richest Apparel here, to the white Ornaments, and glorious Robes of Saints triumphant in Heaven? How contemptible and despicable is all Honour with Men, in comparison or Honour with God and Angels? any secular Preferment, and worldly Power, in respect of the heavenly Crown and Kingdom? What Invitation or Inducement is this carnal Company to me, that I should so covet and fondly embrace their Society, to the Loss and Forfeiture of all bleffed Fellowship with God and Christ, with Saints and Angels to all Eternity? Shall I ever become fuch a meer Bedlam and humane Beaft, as to flight and undervalue a perfect State of heavenly Glory and to place my Happiness in Sensuality and Flesh-pleating? Further, Felicity and Glory, will ferve to counterpoise the beaviest Temptation, when Satan or his Instruments shall terribly tempt thee, and sharply assault thee, by threatning any great and grievous Evil to thee. If Satan threaten thee with Persecution, with the Loss of thy Estate, or of temporal Life it self; this will instruct thee to tell him what Cheist himself

hath

vil.

ibtil

pro-

tion

and

iee;

nfi-

bas :

ore-

ars.

om

give

you

ds?

De-

urs

ghts

h a

mi-

and

ort,

e a-

Are

ois

om

ilo-

ble

nks

tis-

ify

y-

he

0-hath told thee, that * Bleffed are they which are persecuted for Righteonsnes Sake, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven: That bleffed art thou when Men shall revile thee, and persecute thee, and shall say all manner of evil against thee falfely for Christ's fake; that then thou must rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is thy Reward in Heaven: That t every one that bath for saken Houses, or Brethren, or Sisters, or Father, or Mother, or Wife, or Children, or Lands for Christ's Name's sake, shall receive an hundred-fold, and shall inherit everlasting Life: That I whosoever will save his Life, shall lofe it : and who soever will lose his Life for Christ's sake, shall find it. It will enable thee to tell the Devil, what the great Apostle of Christ has told thee; That () if thou sufferest, thou shalt also reign with Christ, and be glorified with him: but if thou deniest him, he also will deny thee: That thou (†) reckonest, that the Sufferings of this prefent Time are not worthy to be compared with the Glory which shall be revealed in thee: That thy (1) light Affliction, which is but for a Moment, not only worketh, but [] worketh out for thee a far more exceeding and evernal Weight of Glory. This will cause thee to be [t] in nothing terrified by thy Adversaries (the Agents of Satan, and Instruments of the Devil:) which is to them an evident Token of Perdition, but to thee of Salvation, and that of God. The Confideration of a fure, full, everlasting, heavenly Reward, will keep thee from sticking at any Suffering. Satan can never terrify and dishearten thee with the Fear of Death, or temporal Torments; but thou wilt be able patiently to endure, and cheerfully to go through thro

Reco

nal!

Chr

fore

ofa

enal

the 1

hea

Con

al,

fect

the

all

ten

lot

COL

T

fo

ter

A

to

T

th

OI

V

vi

^{} Mat. $. 10, 11, 12 † & 19. 29. || & 16. 25. () 1 Tim 2. 12. (†) Rom. 8. 17, 18. (||) 2 Cor. 4. 17. [*] Kategya (et al. [†] Phil. 1. 28.

through any Suffering, if thou doest but weigh the Recompense of Reward, and well consider, that eternal Salvation will richly compensate the suffering Christian. That is the second Advantage of the fore-mentioned Meditations; The Consideration of a perfect State of heavenly Glory, will help and enable thee to resist and repel the taking, or terrible, the flattering, or affrighting Temptations of Satan.

(3.) The due Consideration of a perfect State of heavenly Glory, will enable thee to live in an holy Contempt of this present World, and in the serious, real, visible Exercise of constant heavenly-mindedness.

[1.] The often renewed Thoughts of a future perfect heavenly Happiness, will effectually provoke thee to live in a manifest, rational, holy Contempt of all external and earthly Things; and in quiet Contentment with what Share and Allowance God allots and affords thee of outward Comforts and Accommodations here in this World.

'Twill cause thee to slight and undervalue the Things of the World, which God in the Gospel has so disgraced and disparaged', To despise and contemn them in thy Judgment, Assections, Speeches, Actions, in comparison of the nobler, richer Things to be enjoyed in the other World. The raited Thoughts of a celestial Happines, will teach thee to take all sublunary Glory for a Shadow, or a Dream; and move thee to complain of the World's Dotage in the pathetical Words of that divine Poet, [r] But Oh the Folly of distracted Men, Who Griefs in earnest, Joies in jest pursue;

Pre-

per-

g dom

Hre-

anner

then

ar is hath

her,

rift's

hall

ave

e to

has

alfo

it if

hou

amé

hall

077

but

er-

be nts

2 23

of

of

ill

an

of

be

h

-

7.

[[]r] Herb. Poems, Dotage.

Preferring, like brute Beafts, a loathfome Den Before a Court, ev'n that above so clear, Where are no Sorrows, but Delights more true Than Miseries are here!

These Thoughts will preserve thee from being so fooligh as to mind Baubles, and to follow after Butter-flies: from being excessively fond and greedy of a tickling, transient Pleasure; from catching earneitly at a Vapour, a Puff of Honour; from flooping low to a base and filthy Clod of Earth; from striving over-eagerly for any of this World's Goods, which thou must certainly soon part with, and which if thou couldst hold never so fast, and keep never fo long, thou couldit find no folid, real, rational Happiness in: From envying those that have * their Portion in this Life: And will cause thee to dread the Thoughts t of receiving thy good Things, | thy Confolation here: To tremble to think of going shortly out of this World, and leaving all thou halt behind thee, and of having nothing at all that is truly good to reap and receive in another The Meditation of heavenly Provisions and Enjoyments, will wean and loofen thy Heart from, deaden and disaffect it to the droffy or kexy Things of this base and dull Earth, which are wholly unworthy of the choice Affections of thy heaven-born Soul. It will direct thee to use this World, as if thou didst not use it; to use earthly Things, but not to mind them, nor with thy whole Heart to defire them, nor to place thy Happiness in them, nor to dull thy Appetite to heavenly Things by them.

To

Rich

this i

dinat

Desi

to ha

and

thy

mak

the

Blag

Solo

Var

thi

He.

fer

WO

rat

and

W

gin

po

pr

ho

in

fi

^{*} Pf. 7. 14. + Luke 16. 25. | & 6. 24.

To consider seriously, that God has provided such Riches and Treasures in another World for thee, this is a likely Means to free thee from affecting inordinately Worldly Greatness, and to moderate thy Defires and Endeavours after earthly Things; to enable thee to live without them, to live above them, to have thy Conversation here without Covetousness, and to be content with fuch Things as thou hast in thy Passage and Way to Heaven, fince Heaven will make up all at last: Reckoning with thy felf, that the Discontent of thy Life would be a kind of rude Blashberry against Heaven; a pronouncing and proclaiming of all the promised Glory of Heaven, what Solomon does of all earthly Glory, that this also is Vanity: A telling all the World, that thou verily thinkest, either there is no Heaven at all, or that Heaven is not enough to fatisfy thee. The fixed Thoughts of a promifed heavenly Reward, will ferve to confirm and stablish thy Heart against worldly excessive Fears, and Cares, and immoderate Labours for outward and earthly Things; and will prompt thee to argue thus with thy felf; Why should I fear the Loss of any Thing here in this World, when it is my Father's good Pleasure to give me a Kingdom? and why should I doubt of earthly Necessaries, when God has allotted and apportioned an heavenly Kingdom to me? If he hath promised me an heavenly Kingdom, he won't withhold fuch temporal Supplies as are necellary for me in my present Pilgrimage: And what need I cark and care, labour and fweat, toil and trouble my felf for meer Unnecessaries, and vain and hurtful Superfluities?

[2.] The Meditation of a perfect heavenly Happiness, will help thee to live in the serious real visible Exercise of constant heavenly-mindedness; to seek,

and

Z fo

But-

edy

ning

om

th;

ld's

th,

ind

re-

ofe

use

ood

nk

all

at

er

ns

rt

e.

is

n

and care for, to * favour, and fet thy Affections on Things above; to have thy Soul, like the Flame of a Candle, alwaies aspiring upward; to live by Faith; to affect the Kingdom of Heaven (which the primitive Christians had so much in their Hearts and Tongues, that the Heathen [s] suspected they affected Cafar Empire) To desire a better, that is, an heavenly Countrey, and to look for a City which has Foundations, whose Builder and Maker is God; To have thy Conversation in Heaven; to lead and frame thy Life according to beavenly Rules and Patterns, To order and to judg of every thing with respect had to these heavenly Things; To be so taken with their Beauty and Excellency, Sweetness and Pleasantness, as to thirst after them with an unfatiable Defire, and to refer every thing to the obtainment of them.

(4) And lastly. If God bath wrought such due and requifite Qualifications in thee, as may fit and prepare thee for an heavenly State; thy Meditation then of a perfect State of heavenly Happiness, will provoke thee to live in daily thankful, delightful Fore-thoughts, and sweet refreshing comfortable Foretaftes of a perfect State of heavenly Glory, and bleffed celeftial Immortality. It will invite, and constrain thee to think and speak well of God and Religion; to laud and magnify the Divine Munificence, to admire and extol the Bounty of God, who fweetly and kindly allures thee to Piety by a most ample and inestimable Reward; and ingages to give thee such great Wages for so little Work, eternal Life for the Labour and Service of a few Years;

* Ta dra perritt. Col. 3. 1, 2.
[5] Juit Mart, Apol. 2, ad Antonium.

Yea

fuch

tho

ble

war

thy

bera

mea

of co

cite

thee

in I

and

Her

wh

VOL

and

He.

Ch

cee

He

rit

thy

pa

de

ve

of

Years; an exceeding eternal weight of Glory for fuch small Pains spent in a short Race; who, though thou maiest sometimes start aside, or stumble in the Way, yet will not deny thee thy Reward, nor letten thy Crown; but, if thou doest thy best, will reward thy Sincerity largely and liberally, and will abundantly recompense the very meanest faithful Performance, the giving but a Cup of cold Water in the Name of a Disciple. It will excite thee to give thanks to God, who hath begotten thee again to a lively Hope, and made thee very rich in Hope. It will enable thee to live comfortably, and walk cheerfully, as an Heir of the Promises, an Heir of the Grace of Life, of eternal Life or Glory, which will be bestowed by the free Grace and Favour of God: To rejoice with Joy unspeakable, and full of Glory; as one whose Name is written in Heaven, and that hast a Mansion prepared by Christ in Heaven for thee: To rejoice and be exceeding glad, to confider that great is thy Reward in Heaven: To rejoice in the first Fruits of the Spirit, in the earnest of the Spirit, which is the earnest of thy Inheritance, given by God as a Pledg, or first part of Payment of that Inheritance which he hath destin'd to thee: To sit down, and express and vent thy Thoughts in the feeling affectionate words of the fore-cited freet Singer, [t] If thy first glance so power ful be,

A Mirth but opened, and sealed up again;

What wonders shall we feel, when we shall see

Thy full-eyed Love!

When thou shalt look us out of pain,

And

ns on ne of

e by

hich

earts

they

at is,

phich

iod:

and

Pat-

with

fo

eet-

vith

the

due

and ati-

ess,

t ful

ore-

and

nd

nd

ih-

d, zes

e-

W

S;

^[1] Herb. Poem, The Glance.

And one Afpett of thine spend in Delight More than a thousand Sun's disburse in Light In Heaven above!

If thou shalt use to think much of Heaven, thou wilt rejoice in that Sight which thou gettelt of God and Christ here, as a real Pledg of a clearer Vision, and nearer Fruition of God and Christ hereafter: Thou wilt rejoice in that Communion which thou holdest with the Saints in the Church here, as an earnest and affurance of thy Fellowship with them in the heavenly Glory hereafter: Thou wilt delight in that measure of spiritual Knowledg, and those Beginnings of eternal Life thou attainest here, as Tokens and Pledges of a perfection of Knowledg, a perfection of Life eternal to be received and enjoyed hereafter: Thy thankful, cheerful Life will answer the Reward, the Riches, the Crown, the Kingdom, which God hath plainly promis'd thee, and given a fure Earnest, and certain Pledg of to thee.

The last of the four last Things proposed as the subject Matter of Meditation in order to the right Redemption of Time.

Let [a] Hell and its Torments be the Subject of thy folemn and frequent Meditation, which will be of great Use and Advantage to thee, for prevening the mis-spending, and promoting the right redeeming of thy Time.

Hope

Engine cible from in the upon for the our

in the on fir other pure St.

Cou

while

fty,

final Tab into Dev thou rectal of P to b thou

71.70

[

Mia

[[]a] Reade Mr. Bolton of Hell, in his 4 last things: And Mr. Richard Adams's serm. of Hell, in the M. E. at $t. G.

Hope of Heaven, and Fear of Hell, are the great Engines apt to turn about our Wills, and the forcible Spring of all our Actions; and nothing fo frongly affects as Fear: And we have need enough in this present State to get every Affection wrought upon, and to use all possible Motives with our selves for the furthering and promoting the Salvation of And therefore furely the was overhaour Souls. fly, and acted rashly, that ran about the City with a Brand of Fire in one Hand, and a Bottle of Water in the other, and faid, her business was to fer Heaven on fire with the one, and to quench Hell-flames with the other, that there might be neither of them left, only pure Love to move and incite her Piety. The devout St. Bernard puts us upon a wifer and better Course; [b] Let us go into Hell by Meditation, while we live, faies he, that we may not go into Hell when we die.

Seriously consider, that if thou shouldst prove a final impenient Sinner; when thy Soul shall quit the Tabernacle of thy Body, it shall pass immediatly into a State of Misery, and dwell in the Region of Devils, and of evil discontented Spirits; and that thou shalt be raised at the last Day to the * Resurrection of Damnation, to † Shame and everlasting Contempt; be raised, as a Mulesaitor is setched out of Prison, to appear in Judgment sirst, and then to be had to the Place of Execution: be raised, though thou wouldst [e] rather chuse to be annihilated, than to be restored and raised again to Punishment.

Ff That

thou

God

fion,

ter:

hou

an

m in ight

bo e

, 25

, a

en-

will wn,

is'd

edg

of

ng

pe

dr.

^[6] Descendamm in infernum viventes ne descendamm mo^{*} loh. 5. 29. + Dan. 12. 2.

[[]c] Malunt excingui pensius, quam ad su plicia reparari.

That then thou shalt be ranked among the Goats on the * left Hand, and sentenced to * depart: That then thou shalt be excluded, and banish'd from the Face and Favour, the comfortable † Prefence, and blessed Enjoyment of God and Christ in Glory. That thou shalt suffer the Los of all thy outward and earthly Enjoyments; have impetuous Desires after terrene and sensual Things still remaining, and yet want the Objects which should suit and satisfy, please and gratify those Desires: But that thy greatest Punishment shall consist in the Loss of God and Christ, and of all real substantial Good, by the Loss of God and Christ, the chiefest Good.

Consider further; That thou shalt be forc'd to depart from Christ into Hell-fire; not a purging, but plaguing; not a purifying, but tormenting Fire: That it will be no small Pain, that will arise from an acute Feeling and lively Sense of the unutterable Losses, and unrecoverable Damages thou shalt then fustain by reason of thy Sin; from a quick and terrible Apprehension that thou art bereaved of God, fortaken of Christ, and utterly deprived of all the glorious Good that was fo fairly offer'd to thee; and from the fad Consideration, that they whom thou didst despise and vilify, and trample on here on Earth, and account the very Off-scouring of the World, are at last posses'd and made Partakers of that blifsful State which thou findest thy self deprived of: As it heightned and aggravated Dives's Misery, to behold Lazarus in Abraham's Bosom.

But

BI

but t

well

Mem

have shalt

Facu

more

outa

laxat

That

Confo

fider.

in Ve

way

volui

them

riety

nishu

of T

into

ther

the f

thou

ved F

Prepa

Lord

great

must

Dev

muft

A

^{*} Mat. 15. 41. † 1 Theff 1. 9.

But well consider, That this will not be all; but that there shall be a real Presence of all Evil, as well as a privation of all Good: That as all the Members of thy Body, and Powers of thy Soul, have been Weapons of Unrighteousness, so thou shalt be punished in all the Parts of thy Body, and Faculties of thy Soul; which then shall be made more capable of Torment, and shall fuffer Pain withoutany Diversion or Intermission, Mitigation or Relaxation at all, finding * no Rest day nor night: That then thou shalt be fill'd with Horrow of Conscience, troubled and vexed to think and confider, that all the Torments thou indurest are sent in Vengeance, and inflicted by Divine Justice by way of Punishment for thy wilful Faults, and voluntary Crimes, and according to the measure of them.

And think again; That as thou shalt suffer variety of Punishment, Punishment of Loss, and Punishment of Sense; so thou shalt undergo extremity of Torment: That thou shalt be forced to depart into Fire, the Fire, emphatically; which whether it shall be material, or metaphorical, speaks the sharpness and severity of thy Torment. That thou shalt be cast into Fire prepared; suffer a contrived Punishment, that falls under the solemnity of a Preparation: Prepared by God, the wise and just Lord and Judg: For the Devil and his Angels: A great and inevitable Punishment; such as the Devils must suffer, and such as show must suffer with the Devils: That if thou servest the Devil here, thou must dwell with him in Hell-sire.

Ff 2

And

Goats

part :

nish'd

Pre-

ift in

thy

tuous

l re-

nould

De-

COII-

of all

hrift,

d to

ging,

ire:

from

rable

then

and

d of

d of

d to

they

nple

our-

nade

dest

ava-

am's

But

^{*} Rev. 14. 11. + Ta mug, Mat. 25. 41.

And if it be so great an Affliction to the People of God, who have a true Sense and a right Judgment of Things, to be necessitated to live among * the Wicked here in this World; Think then what a grievous Misery it will be to thee, when thy Eyes are open'd in Hell, to see thy self under a necessity of dwelling continually with the Devils, and cursed Fiends of Hell.

Think how it would [d] scare thee almost out of thy wits, to have the Devil frequently appear to thee here; and what Horror then shall fill thy Soul, when thou shalt be banish'd from the Face of God, and Presence of Christ, and from Angels Society, and be joined in Fellowship with the Devil and his Angels; be shut up in the darkest Den with that roaring Lion, and be chained with the Devil in stery Fetters.

Nor will it at all relieve thee, to have Companion in all thy Pain and Distress in Hell; But the more there be that shall suffer with thee there, the less ease and comfort shalt thou enjoy: for (as [e] one of profound Judgment well observes) there will be m Concord or Consort there, nothing but perpetual Discord, which is alwaies so much the greater, by how much the Parties descording are more in number: It being a Thing too well known, that to live in continual Discord, though but with some few, is a kind of Hell here upon Earth.

Think yet further; That thy Punishment in Hell will be perpetual, thy Torments be endless, 2s well as easiless; thy there everlasting, and unquench-

able:

abl

Fir

Th

fpe

the

ed

Th

Arm

fhal

Th

pre/

priv

to 1

puni

Nei

was far ,

cert

nish

cum

Frie

that grai

[b]

men

If

think pare this b

that :

Div.

^{*} Pl. 120. 5.

[[]d] Shepheard's S. C. p 97.

[†] Mat. 25. 41, 46, & 3. 12.

able: That thou shalt be * tormented in the Lake of Fire and Brimstone, day and night, for ever and ever: That if it were poslible for one Eternity to be spent, for one ever to expire and come to an End, there should be another ever for thee to be tormented in: That in Hell thy Worm shall never die: That thou shalt be punished with | everlasting Defruction from the Presence of the Lord: That thou shalt be destroyed in a moral, not in a natural Sense: That thy Essence and Being shall be everlastingly preserv'd; but thou shalt be everlastingly depriv'd of God, and Glory, and of all that makes to thy well-being; and everlastingly afflicted and punished with all that tends to thy ill-being: That as Nero refus'd to put [f] Apollonius to Death, who was very desirous to die, because he would not so far gratify him; And as Tiberius Cafar, when a certain Offender petition'd him to hasten his Punishment, retur'd this Answer, [g] Nondum tecum redii in gratiam; Stay, Sir, you and I are not Friends yet: So, if thou provest a dammed Person, that God won't be mov'd by all thy entreaty to grant a quick and speedy Dispatch to thee, nor after [b] thousands and millions of Years spent in Torments, yield to let thee die at last: And that the

If thou hadft an Head as big as Archimedes, and couldft tell how many Atomes of Dust we ein the Globe of the Earth ; yet think that fach a valt number is but as one little Atoms in compare with those endles Sorrows and those endles lays. -- Let this be thy Impress, or Motto, let this be writ upon the min , that a learned man wites upon all hi Books, Etern titem cagita, Think of Eternity. (Johan, Meurfine) D. Patrick's Div. Arsshm p. 40, 41.

eople

Judg-

mong

what

y Eyes

recellity

curled

out of

o thee

when

, and

and

nd his

that fiery

anions

more

B cafe

ne of

lbc no

Dif-

much

eing a Scord, : проп

nt in

B, 25 cench-

able:

^{1 2} Theff 1. 9. * Rev. 25. 10. + Mark 9. 44, 45, 48. [f] Philoftr. in vi a Apoil. Tyanzi.

^[7] Suetonius l. 3. c. 6. [6] See Mr. Bolton's 4 last Things p. 107, 108, 109, 110.

Eternity of thy Torments, will be the Hell of Hell; and the very Sting of the second Death; That the Eternity both of Loss and Sense will even break the very Heart of thee.

If good Men here do grieve and mourn, when God withdraws and absents himself but for a Moment from them; Think then how lamentably and intolerably it will perplex and punish thee, to be made sensible hereafter, that God will hide his Face from thee for ever. That if here thou art unable to bear a tedious Fit of the Tooth-ach, Head-ach, Cholick, Gout, or Stone; what then thou wilt do to en. dure those akings of Heart, and wounds of Spirit, and convulsions of Conscience, and complicated torments of Soul and Body, which will be the Portion of damned Persons to eternal Ages. And if it be so sad a Misery for any to be burnt to Death here; Think then how incomparably greater a Mifery it will be, to be alwaies burning and frying in Hell, and yet never to be burnt to Death there. Nay, if here to lie long on a Bed of Down, or on a Bed of Roses, and not once to rise in several Years together, would prove a grievous fore Trouble and heavy Affliction; what an overwhelming Thought is this then of lying in Flames to all Eternity?

Confider here, that so great is the Folly of Man's Mind, and the Hardness of his Heart, and the Power of present sensual Allurements, that [i] nothing less than the Threatning of an endless Misery was an apt and sit Instrument of God's ruling and governing the World: That Men would not have been sufficiently awed, and effectually restrain'd and deterr'd from Sin, and kept in order and obedience,

ence

the c

Puni

dent

and the g

Thr

and

vail

whe

that

to 4

Tha

Alm

he r

of e nal

be

tho

Dif

for

ma

bre

rio

equ

ty

befo

MO.

^[1] See Baxter's Real of the Child. Rel. p. 171.

ence, if God had not intimated and foretold that the obstinate Sinner shall certainly suffer perpetual Punishment in another World. That it is too evident, that the Denunciation even of eternal Pain, and infinite Torment, does [k] not move and fway the greatest part of Men; and therefore that the Threatning of meer Annihilation or of some lighter and shorter Punishment would furely shave less prevail'd and wrought upon the World. And now, when everlasting Punishment is plainly threatned, that the just and holy Law-giver doth not intend to affright thee with a Lie, or with an uncertainty: That his Threatning is not like the prediction of an Almanack; It may be fo, it may be not; But that he meaneth really to execute and inflict the Penalty of eternal Punishment upon thee, in case of thy final Impenitency and Disobedience.

Consider moreover; That thy Punishment will be [1] justly and deservedly everlasting, if now thou finnest with a [m] Mind, and Will, and Disposition to sin to Eternity, and wouldst fin on for ever here, and persevere in eternal Contumacy, without end or term, if God should not break off the course of thy Sins, by putting a Period to thy Daies.

That thy eternal Torment will be reasonable and equitable, if now when Life and Death, an Eternity of Happiness and an Eternity of Misery are set before thee in this Time of thy Trial and Probation, [6] Id. ib. p. 164, 170.

Hell ,

That

break

God

oment

d in-

made

from bear

Cho-

to en-

pirit,

cated

Por-

if it

ere;

ry it

Hell,

y, if

d of

her,

hea-

ught

an's

Po-

20-fery

and ave and edi-

ice,

^[1] How the infinity of Punishment is answerable to the infinity of the Fault ; fee Baronisse de peccato M. rtals & Vens de, § 6.

[[]m] Dem punit nos in aterno fas, quia nes peccanius in aterno nostra.

thou art grossy wanting to thy self, [n] slightest and despisest eternal Happiness, and so puttest it away from thee for ever, and drawest wisfully eternal Misery upon thy self. If here thou closest with what is present, and lettest go what is future; (as that vile and wretched Cardinal did, who preser'd his present part in Paris before his suture part in Paradise;) hadst rather have any thing in possession, than never so much in reversion; and so greedily catchest at the present Pleasures of Sin for a season, and refusest the Favour of God, and the Joys and Blessedness of the World to come; thou hast nothing to complain of for thy Loss of Heaven, but thy own [o] free Choice.

And as for Pain of Sense, though thou doest not expressly chuse it in its self, yet if thou chusest it implicitly in the causes of it; If now thou chusest that Sin to which such Torment is by the Law of God [p] annex'd, and deliberately and resolvedly to the very last eagerly pursuest those sinful Pleasures and Profits, which God hath plainly told thee will be surely followed with no less than everlasting Torments; And takest [q] as much or more pains in

the

thev

ierv

blam reaso

haft

Goo

thee

only

evil

Rui

ther

haf

the gri

fen

Co

and non

tho

the

beg

Spi

Br Vi th

of

T

ar

be

al

[0] See Dr. Jac'don vol. 3. p. 496.

[[]n] Vide Episcop. Resp. ad 64. quaft. qu. 62. p. 68.

[[]p] See Bayier's Reaf. of the Christ. Rel. p. 155, 169, 170. [7] Paradife was created for man; the everlatting Fire was prepared for the Devil, and his Angels; But ungodly men with their Words and Works called it to them, World I. 16. committed a kind of riot upon Hell, invaded Lucyfor's peculiar, and thrive more vehamently for their portion in that Lake of Brimftone, endure more temporal handhin in their passing thicker, than any Martyr in his stery Charlot of Ascent toward Heaven: An the that take if sch pains for it, is worthy to take his portion with it, to have that pay which he hath merited so dearly. Dr. Hammond, 1744. Cat. see there p. 412,413 in 12.

the waies of Sin to go to Hell, than would have ferr'd to get to Heaven; thou wilt have none to blame at last of Cruelty toward thee but thy self; no reason to cry out of the Divine Severity, when thou hast but the consequents of thy wilful choice: For God puts things to thy own Choice, and intreats thee to be careful to chuse aright, and will at last only suffer thee to inherit thy own foolish option, and evil Choice, which here thou madest to thy eternal Ruin.

Consider once more; That all Hell is not in another Life: That if thou beeft a wicked Person, thou hast an Argument within thee to convince thee that there is an Hell, when thy Conscience pains and gripes thee, and is too hot for thee: That the prefent fecret Checks, and fevere Rebukes of thy own Conscience, are an Embleme and Representation, and a kind of Anticipation of Hell Torments: That now thou livest even in the Suburbs of Hell: That thou feelest the [9] Vultur preying betimes upon thee; the Worm crawling early in thy Bosom, and beginning to gnaw thee even in this Life: That thou hait an Atna, or Vesuvini, at least some Sparks of the hellish Fire already kindled in thy own Breast; some prelibations and fore-tastes of those Vials of Wrath that are prepared and referved for thee; some Drops let fall upon thee of that Ocean of Wrath that is likely at last to overwhelm thee: That thou carriest the Sulphur of Hell about thee, and thy Hell is already, even here upon Earth, begun within thee: That though thou beeft not actually in the very Place of Heil, yet thou knowest

hteft

it a-

eter-

with fer'd rt in eedi-

or a

l the

thou

ven,

not

ft it

usest

God

the

and

be

or-

s in the 0.

wih

mit-

and timther, en :

Dr.

^[4] The Heathen feigned Prometheus his Liver to be continually gnawn upon by a Vultur or Cormorant without washing the Substance of it, or deading its capacity of Pain.

that eternal Woes are due to thee; and findest that this is a present Torment to thee, in the midst of thy greatest outward worldly Enjoyments; as a Person is scorch'd with a burning Fever, though he lie upon a Bed of Ivory, in a Chamber richly furnish'd and hung with the finest Tapestry, or adorn'd with rare and curious Pictures, and rendred as delightful and pleafant as can be.

Call here to mind, how some that have been only sing'd by this Fire, and have had no more than the Smell thereof passing upon them; have been most rueful amazing Spectacles to all Beholders, through that Horrow and Terrour of Conscience, which was but an Image and Resemblance of Hell-Torments: And if the beginnings of these Sorrows be so dreadful here in this World, Consider how unsufferable then the full measure thereof will certainly be in the World to come.

Think earnestly and often of these Things, and see how strangely they will operate with thee. [r] Mr. Bilney the Marryr did diverse times in his Imprisonment put his Finger to the Flame of the Candle, to seel and try the Heat of the Fire before his Execution: Do thou by Meditation slass Hell-fire in thy own Face, and burn the Brimstone of Hell at thy own Nostrils: Use thy self to serious Thoughts of Hell: Sit down and consider, whether thou art able to bear those Torments, to dwell with that consuming Fire, to abide with those everlasting Burnings. Pursue these Thoughts, and often renew and repeat these Considerations; and this is likely to startle and awaken thee, to rouse and by A

tole

the ?

thy and

ning

beg

Sin

even

from

live

Wor

Ign

wil

of C

fide

will fan

the

the

Spe

rid

the

WI

[[]r] Fox Acts and Mon. 2 vol. p. 922, 923.

and raise thee out of thy carnal Security. Labour by Meditation to presentate, and to reallize the intolerable Torments of Hell to thy self; and work the Thoughts of the Things forementioned upon thy Heart, until thou art suitably affected with them, and fully resolved to answer the Ends of the Threatning of them.

that

thy rion

up-

fhid

with ght-

peen

han

een

lers,

nce,

Iell-

OWS

un-

ain-

and nee.

his

the

belash

one

ous

he-

vell

ofe

and

use

Thy Meditation of Hell-torments will be apt to beget [s] stirring and lively Affections in thee: It will be useful to with-hold or with-draw thee from Sin, which has fuch a dreadful Iffue; To keep, or take thee off from living in fuch a course, wherein every Act is after to Perdition: To restrain thee from great Sins especially. Thou wilt not chuse to live without God in this World, for fear thou shouldst be fore'd to live without God in the other World. Thou wilt not dare to continue in wilful Ignorance, or Disobedience, confidering that Christ will come * in flaming Fire, to take Vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gofpel Thou wilt not give way to Unbelief, confidering it is the damning Sin; Nor live and die in wilful Impenitency, lest thou perish eternally. Thou wilt not furely be boldly guilty of fuch open Profaneness and gross Impiety, as to bid Goddamn thee, damn thee Body and Soul; and the Devil take thee: Thou wilt never use such cursed Forms of Speech thy felf; and wilt tremble to hear fuch horrid, and worse than hellish Words proceed from the Mouths of mad and desperate Sinners. Nor wilt thou offer to cherish and nourish hidden Hypocrify;

[[]s] Mr. Perkins Would pronounce the Word Damn with fech an Emphasis as left a doleful Echo in his Auditors Eass a good while after. Mr. Fuller in his life, Holy State, p. 8 s. 2 Tl eff. 1. 8, 9.

crify; fince Hell is prepar'd of purpose for Hypocrites, and the Punishment of Hypocrites is made the Standard of the Infernal Sufferings of other Sinners; whose * portion shall be appointed with Hypocrites. Thou wilt not indulge thy felf in Senfuality and Voluptuousness, which has a terrible t Wo denounc'd against it : Thou wilt not destroy thy Soul for the Pampering of thy Body, lose fulness of Joy for the plealing of a single Sense, rivers of Pleasures for a Superfluous Cup of drink, Pleasures at God's Right Hand for evermore for the Pleasures of Sin which are but for a season, for a minute, for a moment. Thou wilt not take thy short Pleasure, to pay so dear as to suffer eternal Pain for it. Thou wilt not allow thy felf in Intemperance; Nor venture to walk after the flesh in the Lust of Uncleannes. remembring that the Lord knoweth how to | referve such Persons chiefly unto the Day of Judgment to be punished: And well knowing, (*) that neither Fornicators, nor Adulterers shall inherit the Kingdom of God. Thou wilt not burn in the fire of Lust, left at last thou beest scorch'd in the slames of Hell: Thou wilt fet the Fire of Hell in opposition to the Fire of Lust, that the one may abate and put out As it is storied of a vertuous Christian Woman, that being tempted and earnestly folicited to yield to commit Folly with a certain Wanton, who made profession of great Love to her, and how ready he was to do any thing for her fake. To convince him, and to deliver her felf out of the Temptation, she strait requested this one thing of him, that he would hold the Tip of his Finger in the

the

Hou

tion

dur

y026

to fi

and

fol

frai

par

wil

fay

hee

ing

tin

wi

the fire

of

U

in

an

fle

W

ſa

V

Ca

Id

in

h

a

^{*} Mat. 24.51. † Isa, 5. 11, 12, 14. | 2 Pet. 2 9, 10.

the Flame of the Candle for one Quarter of an Hour: He shrunk, and wondered at the Proposition: But if you be loth, faid she, at my desire to indure such Pain for a Quarter of an Hour; hore can you expect that I for your pleasure should expose my self to suffer for Ever in Soul and Body the Wrath of God, and the eternal Flames of Hell-fire. Thou wilt refolve deliberately, and endeavour carefully to refrain bad Company. Whenever idle and evil Companions tempt thee, and fay, Come, to thee; thou wilt be ready to think presently how Christ will fay at Last Day, Depart from me. Thou wilt take heed of doing the Devil's Work, for fear of fuffering the Devil's Punishment. Thou wilt have no Intimacy and Familiarity with the Devil now; thou wilt not give him heart-room, nor house-room, lest thou beest compell'd to bear him company in Hellfire for ever hereafter. Thou wilt by no means be of the Devil's Party, nor fide and affociate with the Ungodly, and so deserve to be kept and continued in that Society which was formerly chosen by thee, and acceptable to thee. Thou wilt also zealously flee Idolatry, and hate and abominate that Religion wherein the practice of gross Idolatry is made necesfary; the Worshipping of Images, of Bread and Wine in the Eucharist, the Worshipping and Invocating of Saints and Angels; Confidering, * that Idolaters are of the Number of those that shall not inherit the Kingdom of God, but are appointed to have their t part in the Lake which burneth with Fire and Brimstone. Nor wilt thou fall inconsideratly into damnable Herefy, nor hold fo grofsly corrupt Opinions as may bring upon thee | Swift Destru-Etion ;

Hypo"

made

r Sin-

Hypo-

Hality

o de-

Soul

Foy

ures

jod's

FSin

mo-

, to

hou

ven-

neß.

erve

PH-

rni-

of lest

ell:

the

out

ian

ed

on,

nd

ke.

he

of

in

he

^{* 1} Cor. 6. 9. † Rev. 21. 8. | 2 Pet. 2. 1.

Him; nor be deluded to believe the Lies of Antichrist, to thy utter * perishing, and eternal undoing. Thou wilt abhor wisful Lying, to save thy Credit, or get Gain; and hate to set thy [t] Servants to tell Lies, to vend thy Wares, and put off thy Commodities. Thou wilt be loth by a gainful Lie to cheat thy Brother of Twelve-pence, and to lose thy Soul by the bargain: remembring that Lying is a damnable Sin, and that † all Liars shall have their part in the Lake which burneth with Fire and Reimforces which is the Second Death Brimstone: which is the Second Death.

Thou wilt be fearful of speaking any thing that looks like Detraction; still minding thy self, that || Whisperers and Back-biters are join'd in the Catalogue with Haters of God, who are worthy of Death: And that he that (*) Back-biteth with his Tongue, and taketh up a Reproach against his Neighbour, is not likely to dwell in God's holy City: That if thou shouldst prove such a Devil incarnate, thou wilt be sit to keep company perpetually with the Devil and his Angels: That if thy Tongue should here be so set on Fire of Hell, it would presage that without Repentance and Resormation it will surely be set on Fire in Hell.

Thou wilt watch against the rising of rash Anger, which is a Sin that has Hell at the heels of it; and be careful to prevent its breaking out in Expression or Action; revolving in thy Mind that of thy Saviour; (†) Whosever shall say, Thou Fool, to his Brother, shall be in danger of Hell-sire. Thou wilt dread the Thoughts of Unstructulates under Means,

having havir

* 00

bewn

perna

joym

of ar

Hell.

ciful

Hell

ter,

com

red

Day

Nor

wich

delir

ftriv

FA

[1

Eigh

He o

this

this

take fpea him

com

and

Hel

who mon him

his

can

^{* 2} Theff. 2. 10, 13.

[[]t] S. rrum nolle mentiri nova religio est. Plant.

f Rev. 21. 8. 1 Rom. 1. 29, 30, 32. (*) Ph. 15. 1, 3.

having fixed and imprinted this in thy Mind, that * every Tree which bringeth not forth good Fruit is bewn down, and cast into the Fire : + And that Capernaum, which was exalted unto Heaven by her enjoyment of special Means, was threatned for want of answerable Improvement to be brought down to Thou wilt not harden thy Heart in Unmercifulness; pondering in thine Heart how Dives in Hell wanted the refreshment of a ["] Drop of Water, for refusing to give poor Lazarus the small comfort of a Crumb of Bread, when he himself fared fo fumptuously, and feasted deliciously every Day. Thou wilt not be unmerciful in not giving; Nor in not forgiving; never forgetting how the wicked uncompassionate Servant in the Parable was delivered by his Lord to the Tormentors. Thou wilt strive and labour against finful [w] Fearfulness,

* Mat. 3. 10. † & 11. 23.

[u] Desiderabat guttam, quia non dedit micam. Aug.

nti-

ndo-

thy

Ser-

t off

inful

to

Ly-

ave

and

hat

hat

ita-

th:

rue,

not nou be and be

th-

be er.

nd

on

a-

nis

ilt

IS,

ng

[[]w] Mr. Latimer having in a Sermon at Court in Henry the Eighth's daies much displeased the King, he was commanded the next Lord's-Day to preach again, and make his Recantation : He coming prefaced to his Sermon with a kind of Dialogism in this manner; Hugh Latimer, Do'lt know to whom thou are this day to speak ? to the high and mighty Monarch, that can take away thy Life if thou offend; therefore take heed how thou speakest a Word that may displease his Majesty: But (as recalling himself) Hugh, Hugh (faies he) do'tt know from whom thou comest, and upon whose message thou art fent ? even the great and mighty God, that is able to cast both Body and Soul into Hell-fire for ever; and therefore take heed to thy felf, that thou deliver thy message faithfully; and so came to his Sermon; and what he had deliver'd the Day before, confirmed and urged with more vehemency than ever. --- The King that day called for him, --- and taking him off from his Knees, embraced him in his Arms, faying, he bleffed God, that he had a Man in his Kingdom, that durft deal fo plainly and faithfully with him. Mr. New. comen's Serm. on Heb. 4 13 . p. 37.

and not be drawn to do any Evil, or omit any Good against clear and full Light of Conscience, for Fear of any outward Trouble or Danger; recollecting in thy Thoughts, that the Fearful shall have their part in the Lake which burneth with Fire and Brimstone. Thou wilt be ready (*) to set the Fear of God, and the Fear of Hell against all carnal Fear of Men, or of any temporal Evil what soever: As the Primitive Martyrs did; who when they were folicited by Heathen Emperours to facrifice to their Idols, with these Arguments, That then they should fave their Houses and Lands, and Liberties and Lives, but should otherwise lose all; They put off all with this Answer, [x] Pardon us, O Emperour, you threaten a Prison to us, but God threatens Hell to us. So Biblis (as [y] Eusebins relates the Story) a Woman who having fainted before, and renounced her Profession of Christianity, out of fear of fuffering Perfecution, and being brought to the Place where the Christians Bodies were burnt to Ashes, that others might be drawn from their Profession by means of her expected publick blasphemous Denial and Recantation; was, at the very Hour of Suffering, thoroughly awaken'd as out of a dead Sleep, by the fight of those Flames which were the Instruments of the Martyrs Torments, to confider the intolerable eternal Torture of Hell-fire, which she must unavoidably suffer, if the should dishonour Christ and his Religion, and afperse the innocent and unblameable Professors of it: And thus expelling the leffer Fear by the greater, and

Per st. 8. (*) Mat. 10.28. Luke 12.5.

and

point ing f

Mari

the C ence o

ferna

deter

bere,

berea

ties v

blefo

Pains

dom]

ferin

Punil

more

[2]

who

extre

fence

endle

of d

Tori

Plead

to be ly to

quity

that thing

ferie

[[]x] Da veniam, Imperator, tu carcerem minaris, ile gehen-^[] Eccl. Hift. 1. 5. c. I.

and happily returning unto her felf, she disappointed her Persecutors Expectation; and by being faithful unto Death obtain'd the Crown of a Martyr of Jesus, and animated others to endure the Cross with Christian Fortitude, and the Patience of the Saints. Fix thy Cogitations on the Infernal Flames, and this will make thee resolve and determine to chuse rather to do, or suffer any thing here, than to suffer the sad and bitter Pains of Hell bereaster: Concluding, that the Pains and Difficulties of Duty, are no way comparable to the troublesome uneasy Condition, and piercing raging Pains of Hell: yea, that the Suffering of Martyrdom here, is a light Affliction to the dreadful Suffering of Hell-sire hereaster.

The ferious frequent Meditation of the exquisite Punishments, and dolorous Torments of Hell, will moreover powerfully perswade thee to be far from [2] envying the greatest Prosperity of wicked Men; who shall one day change their present Felicity for extream Want, and utmost Misery; lose the Prefence of God and Christ, and the full Fruition of endless Pleasures in Heaven, and suffer an Eternity of distracting Pains, and racking heart-renting Torments in Hell, for a few bitter-sweet transient Pleasures here on Earth. Yea, this will help thee to bear any outward Affliction patiently, and quietly to accept of any temporal Punishment of thy Iniquity; considering, thou deservest Hell it felf, and that all thy present Straits and Sufferings are nothing to the Wants and Losses, the Pains and Miferies of damned Persons. That eminent Pattern

Gg

[2] De horribili corum exitio admoniti fideles, prasentem illa serem non invidedat. Calv.

Good

Fear

ting

their rim-

ar of

of of

As

were

their

they

rties

put mpeatens

the

and

t of

at to urnt

heir

laf-

the

as

mes

or-

ure

, if

and

s of

ter,

and

hen-

of Christian Patience, the holy [a] Mr. Jeremy Whitaker, did humbly adore God's Goodness in the midst of his sorest sharpest Sufferings, and violent, excruciating, racking and grinding Pains, which were caus'd and continued by a complication of acute Diseases, the Stone, Ulcer, Gangrene; and expressed himself with marvellous Meekness in such Words as these; Lord, thou givest me no occasion to have any hard Thoughts of thee. O who would not even in Burnings have honourable Thoughts of God? Blessed be God, there is nothing of Hell in all this.

Again; This will throughly awaken and quicken thee to take heed of beginning that Hell here, which will be compleated and confummated hereafter: of being now of an hellish frame and temper of Mind: of departing from, and living without God and Christ; which is not only Man's Sin, but Misery; which is a very Hell upon Earth, and will be agreat part of the future Hell: of contracting and strengthning vicious habits here, and of expofing thy felf to the Misery that naturally arises from Sin; to the Rebukes and Upbraidings of a guilty Conscience: Considering with thy self, that an hellish Temper and Disposition, if thou livest and diest in that Condition, will furely continue and be confirm'd in the other World; and that an bellish State will prepare thee for, and bring thee to the place of Hell. This will also engage thee to blefs God for Christ, for giving his only begotten Son to * deliver thee from the Wrath to come, by fuffering Tribulation and Anguish for thee; and + not appointing

thee

And

desc

not b

and

mig

Thi

and flee f

Dan

hate

Wa

drea

py I

And

Souls

ble,

into

duft

(+)1

the (

Sodo

to h

Brot

ved :

the I

[*]

[6]

[[]a] His Life among Mr. Clark's Lives of ten em. Div. p. 178,

thee to Wrath, but to obtain Salvation by Jefus Christ. And to be truly thankful to Jefus Christ, who condescended to be forfaken of God, that thou mightst not be totally deferred, and eternally for faken of him; and endured the Fire of God's Wrate, that thou mightst be perfectly freed for ever from Hell-fire. This will provoke thee by Faith, and Repentance, and bringing forth Fruits * meet for Repensance, * to flee from the Wrath to come, and to feek to escape the Damnation of Hell. And this will cause thee to hate and abandon the curfed Arts and wicked Waies of + making others the Children of Hell; to dread the Thoughts of ever becoming the unhappy Instruments of hurrying any others to Heil: And will incline thee, in Pity and Charity to the Souls of Sinners, todo thy beit, by all means possible, to keep all about thee from running and falling into that | place of Torment : to be zealous and industrious to [b] (*) fave Sonis from Death, to fave (+) them with Fear, Julling them ant of the Fire; (as the (1) Angels of old plackt lingring Lor out of Sodom:) Not to fuffer thy Neighbour ever to go to Hell quietly; but rather to territy thy unful Brother, than to permit him to miscarry for ever.

Obj. But is not this a flavish Temper, to be moved to my Duty out of Fear of Hell? Should not the Love of God be the Principle that als us? and [*] perfect Love is faid to cast out Fear.

Gg 2

I

[*] 1 Joh. 4. 18.

remy

ss in

Vio-

ams,

ation

ene;

efs in occa-

rould

its of n all

quic-

nere,

iere-

nper

hout

but

Will

ting

xpo-

rom

uilty

t an

and be

ellich

the

God

t de-Tri-

thee

178.

^{*} Mat. 3.7,8. † & 23.15. | Luke 16. 28.

^[6] Si fier poffit, ab ipfis inferit exitabitade nobis funt homi-^(*) James 5. 20. (1) Jude 23. (1) Gen. 19. 16.

Ianswer; When all the Motives and Incentives that possibly can be made use of, will scarcely effe-Etually put us upon Duty; furely we have [c] little reason to let go or lay aside any one of them; but to use whatever may work upon us, Love, or Hope, or Fear. And as for a Christians Love to God, it does not here exclude all Fear, because it is not perfect in this Life. It will indeed in the future Life cast out all Fear of Damnation: And it may be so perfect in this Life, as to banish and expel all distrustful tormenting Fear; which consisteth in terrifying disquieting Apprehensions that God will deal with a Man as a Slave; take Advantages of him, condemn and destroy him whenever he does amis: But the true sincere Love of God is fairly confiftent with a filial, cautelous, preserving, preventing Fear. [d] A judicious Divine well obferves, that it is a great Mistake to think that filial Fear is only the Fear of temporal Chaftisement, and that all Fear of Hell is flavish: Even filial Fear is a Fear of Hell; which yet is join'd with fuch a Perfwasion of God's Love to m, that we conclude he will not cast us off upon every provocation; and is accompanied with some Love in us to God, and with Care and Watchfulness, lest we should by Apostasy and final Impenitency miscarry eternally.

The

dea

WO

VOI

Re

ryc

in C

men

ty,

may

to f

Con

Buf

Chr

abo

than

acti

fron

a R

Serv

bear

the !

time by the fpen other

Suffic.

[[]c] Bonum tamen est, ut sinecdum amor à malo terevocat, saltem timor genennalu cotrecat. Thomas à Kempis, l. 1. c 24.

[[]d] Mr. Baxter in his Directions for Peace and Comfort, Doult 6.

The ninth Direction,

If you would redeem the Time, you must endeavour to spiritualize your common and ordinary worldly Employments: and must take care that your natural, as well as civil, Actions partake of Religion.

1. You must endeavour to spiritualize your ordinary civil or domestical Employments, by doing them all in Oi edience of Faith, and making them the Instruments, whereby to shew forth your Honesty, Equity, Righteousness, Justice, and whatever Vertues may be exercis'd therein. You must make conscience to follow your Calling out of an awful respect to the Command of God; to do what you do even in civil Business in the Name of Christ, as the Work of Christ, so as you may fay at that time, Now I am about the Work of God, and of Jefus Christ: I thank God, my Conscience bears me witness I am acting in Obedience to Christ, expecting a Blessing from Christ upon what I do: and I look to receive a Reward from Christ. The Apostle commands Servants, * what soever they do for Men, to do it beartily, as to the Lord; to serve the Lord Christ in the Service they do to their earthly Masters.

Thus to work for God and Christ, is for that time to honour God and Christ as much, nay more, by the meanest service worldly Act, than if you should spend all that time in Prayer, Meditation, or any other spiritual Employment, to which you had no sufficient Call at such a time. The devout Herbert,

Gg 3 in

ives effe-

litem;

or

e to

le it

e fu-

d it ex-

steth

God

ages

r he

d is

ving,

l ob-

filial

and 15 2

Per-

e he

and

and

1 by

eter-

The

pocat,

C 24

nfort,

[.] Col. 3. 23, 24.

in one of his facred [a] Poems, desiring God to teach him, what he did in any thing, to do it as for him; expresses himself thus sweetly and spiritually:

All may of thee partake: Nothing can be so mean, Which with this Tincture (for thy sake)' Will not grow bright and clean.

A Servant with this Claufe Makes Drudgery divine.
Who sweeps a Room, as for thy Laws, Makes that and the Action sine.

This is the famous Stone That turneth all to Gold:
For that which God doth touch and own Cannot for left be told.

2. We must take care, that our natural, as well as civil or economical, Actions partake of Religion; be inscribed with * Holings unto the Lord; and, by the parity of our end and intention therein, become as acceptable [b] Surrisices unto God: That on all occasions we [c] eat and drink, not merely to indulge and gratity our Appetite, [d] as it is a sensitive [4] The Elixir. + Zech. 14. 20, 21.

[c] In cilo & potu, -- homines facri er unt Deo & fanctita-Pleaf the fi Aufti And per or our felve take fin as Meat ties, * ful may

Appet

be en

hono

Place

W

makes preme thirity the may be chearf

Stoma
lar's R
[f tentu]

c. 31.

[[]b] De quiequid aggretiantur homines fit facrificium Calv.

[[]d] Seeing there must be in us a fensitive Appetite, whilst we are in this enimal State, it is to be endeavoured, as far as may be, that we, gratify the Appetite, nor as it is a fensitive Ap-firive Apperite; not only, or chiefly to [e] pleafe our Taste: That we do not cover a Buliness of Pleasure under a pretence of preserving Health, or the fair colour of supplying Nature; (as [f] St. Austin confesses he found himself too apt to do): And more especially, that we never offer to pamper our Bodies that we may be the stronger to ferve our Lufts: That we do not eat and drink our. felves either into Lust, or out of Duty: But that we take our Meat as our Medicine : (as [g] St. Anfin acknowledges God had taught him to do) use. Meat-and Drink as remedies to cure natural Infirmities, not to cause moral Distempers; as means to * fustain and refresh our Bodies, that our Bodies may be fit to ferve our Souls; and our felves may be enabled with vigour and alacrity to ferve and honour God in the proper Duties of our particular Places.

We should eat our Bread before God (as the Expression is Exod. 18. 12.) that is, not only as in the Gg 4

Appetite, but under this notion, as the thing that it defires makes for our real good, and tends to the enjoyment of the furreme Good: to eat and drink, not because we are hungry or thirtly, because the Appetite defires it; but with reference to the main end, with respect to the highest Good, that the Body may be enabled, strengthned and quickned to wait upon the Soul chearfully in the Actions of a holy Life. Mr. S. Shaw in his Voice of one Crying in a Wilderness, p. 149, 150.

[e] It is lawful in all sences to comply with a weak and a nice Stomach: but not with a nice and curious Palate. Bp. Taylor's Rule and Exerc. of holy Liv. c. 2. § 2. meaf 3.

[f] Adhoc incertum hilarescit infalix anima, -- nt obtintus salutus, obumbret negocium voluptatis. Aug. Conf. l. 10. C. 31. S. 2.

[8] Hoc me docussiti, ut quemadmodum medicamenta, sic alimenta surpravus accedam. Id, ib. S. 1.

* Eccl. 10, 17.

to

Dirie

by ome

all

in-

Ten-

ive

alv.

114-

hill

IT 48

ive

Ap-

fight of God; but (as the * Apostle speaks) when ther we eat or drink, we should do all to the Glory of God.

Remember to direct these natural Actions to spiritual Ends, and to make them an occasion of some Exercise of Religion. Be never wanting to beg a Bleffing of God before you eat : And when you fit at Table (as [h] St. Bernard advises) be not wholly employed in eating and drinking; but your body requiring, and receiving its due repast, let not your Mind neglect its proper refection. Refresh your Soul, when you feed your Body: and use such holy Meditations, as may keep and preserve you from t nourishing your Hearts, from ministring fuel to your Lusts, and making provision for the Flesh to fulfil the Lusts thereof. [i] Mr. Fox reports of the holy Brad. ford, that in the midst of Dinner he wsed often to muse with bimself, having his Hat over his Eyes, from whence same commonly plenty of Tears dropping on his Trencher.

Whenever you recruit and repair your Nature, strive then to provoke and stir up in thy self and others || hungrings and thirstings after Righteonsness; Remember, meditate, and discourse of the Sweetness of Christ, of the resreshing strengthning Ordinances of Christ, of being (*) abundantly satisfied with the Fatness of God's House, and of drinking of the River of his Pleasures: of seeding and living by Faith

* 1 Cor. 10. 31.

Faith

the *

the V

Food,

know

1 five

fwee

the (

of th

ritua

of th

long

indee

+ bid

Fore

Ifaac

(*)

dom.

Tab

the

Con

pure

thee

to fa

Spir

[[]b] Ch w manducas, nequaquam totus manduces. Sed corpore ton suam refectionem postulante, mens suam non negligat; memiria suavitatis Domini vel Scriptur arum poscat Meditationes. Bernard.

[†] Jam. 5. 5. Rom. 13. 14. [1] Fox Act. and Mon. 2 vol. p. 1457. § Mat. 5 6. (*) Pf. 36. 8.

Faith on the Promises of the Gospel, and receiving the * Comforts of the Scriptures: With Job, jefteem the Words of God's Mouth more than thy necessary Food, or appointed Portion: With David, acknowledg the Laws and Judgments of God to be | Sweeter than Honey, and the Honey-comb; than the fweetest and purest Honey. Think, and speak of the (*) living Bread which came down from Heaven, of the Bread of Life, the (1) Water of Life, of spiritual (1) Wine and Milk: * Defire the sincere Milk of the Word, that you may grow thereby: Have a longing Mind to that spiritual Food which is Meat indeed, and Drink indeed. Taste and relish the thidden Manna. Delight thy felf in the ferious Fore-thoughts of | fitting down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the Kingdom of Heaven: of (*) eating and drinking at Christ's Table in his Kingdom. Raise and lift up thy Mind to the Celestial Table: strengthen and sharpen thy Appetite to the most delicious heavenly Banquets: Let the Consideration and Hope of the spiritual Joys, and purer higher Pleasures of the other World, cause thee to despife these gross and brutish Pleasures; to fay in the Words, and with the Affection and Spirit of Mr. Herbert, [k] What is this weary World, this Meat and Drink, That chains us by the Teeth so fast?

Look

whe-

y of

firi-

lome

eg a u fit holly

equi-

Mind

vhen

tati-

rifh-

your

the

rada

muse

ence

ren-

ure, do-

neß:

cet-

rdi-

spied the

by aith

pore me-

Mer.

^{*} Rom. 15. 4. + Job 23. 12. | Pf. 19. 10.

^(*) Joh 6. 48, 50, 51, 55. (†) Rev. 21. 6. & 22. 17. (1) Ifa. 55. 1. * 1 Pet. 2. 2. † Rev. 2 17.

Il Mat 8. 11. () Luke 21. 30.

[[] E] Home.

[1] Look on Meat, think it Dirt, then eat a Bit. And Say withal, Earth to Earth I commit.

Entertain thy felf with better fare, and richer cheer. Thank God you have * Meat to eat which the World knows not of. Let others † labour for the Meat which perisheth; but do thou resolve rather to labour for that Meat which endureth to everlasting Life. Account and reckon it thy Meat and Drink, with thy blessed || Saviour, to do the Will of thy heavenly Father: And with (*) him have a greater care of making provision for others Souls, than of Supplying thy own bodily Necessities.

When at usual seasons thou nourishest thy Body, be sure thou doest not then forget to (†) nourish up thy self and others in (||) wholesome Words, in the Words of Faith, and of good Doctrine, which is according to Godliness: Even while thou are feeding thy Body, as thou hast occasion and opportunity, let thy * Lips feed many. I remember Cicero introduceth Cato giving this good account of himself, that he loved to feast with his Friends and Neighbours, not so much for the [m] corporal Pleasure of eating and drinking, as for the delight and refreshment of the good Discours that were used among them at such Meetings.

And

[1] Church-porch, p. 5.

And was n Meals not off the the That the were to Bed felves, might er, an those the cowas a that A his Stilke med witte least the made been

then

their

m tur:

Ado: A

mit.

Apol.

PPIE at ta du

n

God t

[[]h. 4. 32. † &6. 27. || & 4. 34. (*) & 4. 31, 32. (†) 1 Tim 4. 6. (1) & 6. 3. * Prov. 10. 21.

[[]m] Neque esim sporum convincerum delettassonem corporu voluptatibus magu, quan catu amicorum, & fermonibus mesistas. Bene enim majores nolivi, &c. Ego viso projetr fermonis delettassonem tempeftivis convivis delettor, &c. Cicero de finett.

And Tertullian informs us, that much of Religion was mingled with the Meals, the very common Meals of the Primitive Christians: That they did not offer to [m] take their Meat before they had tasted the spiritual sweetnesses of Prayer and Devotion: That they fed as those who well remembred, that they were to go upon their Knees to God, before they went to Bed: and therefore narrowly watch'd over themfelves, that no degrees of Intemperance at Supper might dull and indispose them to the Duty of Prayer, and unfit them for the Worship and Service of God that night: That they talk'd and confer'd as those that knew God heard: And after Supper, as any was able either out of the holy Scriptures, or out of his own Invention, he was called forth into the midst of the Company to fing a Pfalm or Hymn to God; which was a manifest Proof what temperate measures he had at that Meeting kept in drinking; having loaden neither his Stomach, nor his Understanding. Prayer in like manner dismissed the Company: who then departed with fetled dispositions, and firm resolutions to lead most modest, chast, vertuous, godly Lives : as those who at that very season had not so much made a Meal as kept a Discipline: had at that time been at a Lecture, rather than at a Supper; and then had more replenish'd their Souls, than fatisfied their Bodies. And both [n] Possidonius and Eraj-

[m] Non printe descambitur, quam oratio ad Deum pragustetur: -- Ita sutura atur, ut que menimirus etiam per noctena ado andum Deum sibs esse, &c. Equè oratio conversum divimit. -- non tam canaus canaverns, quan disciplinam. Tert. Apol. C. 39

[n] la sife menfe magis lest onem vel disputationem, quan epu acconem potatio é nque d ligebat, &c. Possidonius de vita dag att.

cher

phich

the to

Life.

vith

nea-

ater

n of

dy,

h up

in

n is tu-

cro

mind

eand

ed

nd

rù

20-10-

de

[o] Erasmus certify us concerning St. Austin, that he had a Table richly furnish'd rather with fruitful Dis. courfes than exquisite Dainties: That he took great care that their Table-talk should be serious and pion, or some way profitable, at least charitable and innocent: To which end he ordered that a certain Distict or two Verses should be written on it, or hung at it, as a necessary Law, forbidding those that fed at his Table to gnaw the good Names of others, or to fasten their Teeth in them by back-bis ting of them, by detracting from or speaking evil of absent Persons: A Disease (as Erasmus there well observes) almost peculiar to those who otherwife make a profession of Piety, when nothing is more alien from true Piety: for this Pest usually steals upon Men under a shew of Probity, and guise of Goodness; while it would appear to be an batred of Vices, and a Zeal of Vertue. Which great Evil was fo abhorr'd by this holy Man, that sometimes he would not yield to the Authority of the very Bishops; but when some of his most familiar Fellow-Bishops were forgetful of that Writing, and spake what was not agreeable to the Direction of it; he would very sharply reprehend them, and be fo mov'd as to tell them, Let them either blot out those written Verses, or he would rise from the Table in the midst of his Refestion, and go to his Chamber, if they would not forbear fuch Tales and Stories. He would not fuffer his Table to be polluted with fuch Talk; but either required some Seripture he w wond mean Mind ctical times learne cially 1

favor we a the we

Doe

mon

ling the his l thus ackr ved Ctr.

^[6] Men'am habebat magis frugiferis fermonibus, quàm exqui ficu e lulus epiparam. -- Eo que fice vel facram luctionem adhibebat menja, vel dese quaptam frugifera commentabatur, ut non minks anami conveyarum refi erentur, quà n cerpora. Lrafin. epist. ad archiep. Toletan. ante Op. August.

pure to be read while he fat at Table, or held some useful Disputation, or discours'd concerning some fruitful Matter at Meals, that the Minds of his Guests might be no les refresh'd than their Bodies. How instructive and edifying were the Table-colloquies of the excellent Luther, and the holy Mr. Greenham? And [p] Dr. Bernard acquaints us, that the Discourses which daily fell from Bp. Usher at his Table in the clearing of Difficulties in the Scripture, and other Subjects (effecially when learned Men came to visit him) were of great advantage to such as were capable of them: To others he would apply and accommodate himself with wonderful Humility and Condescention to their meaner Capacities, to inform and fatisfy their Minds, and to work upon their Affections in pra-Aical Matters; and in his Discourses would sometimes rather incline toward such, than to others more It put me often in mind (faies that worthy Doctor) of that Speech of the Queen of Sheba to Solomon; Happy are these thy Servants that continually stand about thee and hear thy Wisdom.

We should all ordinarily stir up our selves to use savoury Expressions, and shew holy Affections, when we are eating: We should still taste and commend the Goodness of God in the variety of his Creatures we partake of, and give God solemn hearty [9] thanks after every Meal for his satherly Care of us,

and

[p] In the Life of Bp. Uffer, p. 57, 58.

that de Dif-

great pions

nd in-

ertain

it, or those of o-

ck-bin

g evil

there

ther-

ng is ually

guise

h4-

reat

me-

the

iliar

and

of

l be

out

his ind ol-

ri-

ure

ex-

m

^[7] A young man lying upon his Sick-bed, was alwaies calling for meat, but as foon as he faw it was brought to him, at the fight of it he shook and trembled dreadfully in every part of his Body; and so continued till his Food was carried away; and thus being not able to eat, he pired away, and before his Death acknowledged God's Justice, in that, in his Health he had received his meat ordinarily without giving thanks. Mr. Swinnock's Christ. man's Call. p. 409.

and seasonable bountiful Provision for us and ours; and charge our selves to spend the Strength we receive from his Creatures in doing him faithful and cheerful Service.

And as we should be spiritual and heavenly in eating and drinking, so we should use Recreation and Sleep to holy ends; that by doing for the prefent little or nothing, we may become more up to do some good thing, to be usefully occupied, and morthly employed,

The

If

make

tance

and

The gency fitron approach Choi Choi and mad ners men Eter with

Con and

1

UMI

The tenth Direction.

If we would wifely redeem the Time, we must make a good Choice of our Friends and Acquaintance, and a good Improvement of our Company and Society.

1. A good Choice of our Friends and Acquaintance. The fense Man has of his own Weakness and Indigency, makes him naturally much [a] addicted and ftrongly inclin'd to Company and Society, which he apprehends fo necellary for the * Help, Relief and Comfort of his Life: But of all Society, that is the most inward and intimate, which has its Rife from Choice and Election: In the making of which Choice, great Caution and Confideration, Care and Prudence is to be exercis'd; for Men are either made, or marr'd, as to the forming of their Manners; and further'd, or hindred, as to the Improvement of their Time, and their Preparations for Eternity, according to the Company they fall in with: And therefore we need Direction in no Action of our Life more than in the Choice of our Company, especially of our Friends, our closest and most familiar Companions. They are excellent Conn-

[4] The Philosopher fitly calls him Coor marrixor. * Gen. 2.18. Eccl. 4.9, 10, 11, 12.

e rely in

pre-

to do

rthily

Counfels that are given by [a] Pythagoras, and [b] Theognis, to guide and conduct our Choice:

[a] Where Vertue dwells there Friendships make.
[b] But evil Neighbourhoods for sake.

[c] Tully tells us, that Friendship is given and intended by Nature to be an Assistant, Heiper and Advancer of Vertues, and not a Companion, Prompter and Promoter of Vices: It therefore greatly concerns and becomes you, so to pick and chuse your Friends and Acquaintance, as may best serve some excellent End of Vertue.

And yet we find, when Persons are to chuse their most boson Friends, the Companions of their Youth and Age, that they and their Relations, who are their Guides and Governours, do too commonly regard bodily Beauty and worldly Portion, more than Piety and Religion, and all the Riches and Ornaments of Grace, and Helps for Salvation, and Advantages of living and growing in the Knowledg, and Faith, and Fear of God.

Lalius in Cicero relates of Scipio, that he was wont to complain, that Men were exceeding diligent in all other Provisions, would take what care could be expected like this fing of it requisite and just receive directs to the Trial fome we de embra

· * -

ciety,

nefs.
whethe
Life b may fi carna
Time
them, profa

feek

not n what Cufto

[a] quada judica

[b] [c] quibn

[[]ab] Bp. Taylor of the Measures and Off c s of Friendship, ^[4] उक्र विभोक्ष बेश्वम् मार्थि क्रिक ठडाड बेराइड

[[]b] Μύποτε τον χακον αναθεα φίλον ποιεί δαι έται ερν.
'Αλλ' αικί φω γειν ως ε χακον λιιβρία.

Theogn. fent. 113.

[c] Virtutum amicitia adjutrix à natura data est, non vitiorum come: ut quontam folitaria non posset virtus ad ea, qua summa sunt, pervenire, conjuncta, & sociata cum altera perveniret. Læl. apud Cic, de Anic.

and e:

Adr and erns ends

their outh are only nore Orand

Was gent d be ex-

fhip,

viqua expected in making choice of Goats and Sheep, and such like things; but were extreamly [a] negligent in chufing of their Friends, nor in this case made any use of requisite Signs and Notes, by which they might discern and judg what Persons were sit and well qualified to be received and taken into Friendship. And he there directs, that Men would prudently put some stop to the Stream of their Assection; and as we make Trial of other things, so that we would make some [b] Experiment of the Manners of the Persons we design for our Companions, and accordingly embrace or decline Familiarity with them.

O be nice and choice of your Company and Society, delicate and curious in that Matter and Busi-Consider beforehand (as [c] Seneca advises) whether they be worthy or no to have any part of your Life bestowed upon them, whether any share of your Time may fitly and warrantably be allowed them: for idle carnal Friends are the Thieves that steal away our Time from us; and 'tis a coftly Entertainment of them, to waste our Time upon them. profane Friends and Acquaintance do rob us of the opportunity of doing and receiving good: They feek nothing but idle and empty Talk, they will not maintain ferious and favoury Difcourfe: O! what Loss have many of us fultain'd by fuch ill Customers as these? Call to thy remembrance (fays Hh

To an be have quelificated

[[]a] In amicis cligendis vegligentes offe, nec hober e quali figual quadam, & notas, quibus cos, que ad amicitiam offent idoneis judicarent. Cic. de Amic.

[[]b] Aliqui parte periclitatis moribus amicorum. 16.

[[]c] Hominum utique del Am hab n lun e.t. an digni fint; quibus partem vira mostra impend mus, an ad ilos tempens notei juttura perreniat. De trang An c.6.

Seneca) [d] How many have cheated thee of thy Time, thou in the mean time not understanding what thou hast lost. * Men give away part of their Years (saies he) to them they mightily love, nor do they perceive or know in the least what they do: And they give it so, that others receive no prosit by that which they deprive themselves of: But they are ignorant that they themselves lose any thing by it, and therefore the Detriment that is so latent is tolerable to them.

If we be wise, let's look well who they be that we spend and lay out our Time upon. Let's not * sit, customarily sit with vain Persons: nor be the common + Companions of Fools: but rather say, in our Hearts at least, with holy David, | Depart from me, all ye Workers of Iniquity: (*) Depart from me ye evil Doers: for I will keep the Commandments of my

God.

Avoid Communion with the Lepers of the World. O never offer with Nebuchadnezzar to keep Company with Beafts: Do not so degrade, and debase your selves: Do not lose your Time, and lose your selves in such unprostable, contemptible Society. Take here the Counsel of St. Jerome, [c] In this respect learn an holy Pride, scorn such mean and low, vile and base Company, and [d] Quam multi vitam tuam diripuerint, te non fentiente quid preferes Debiev. vit. c. 3.

raife

By k

and like infer

H

close

al F

with godl

Ener

Spiri

Wai

are t

ver

haun

no in

and I

bega

not a

[f] prove Ch

to be

and

but 1

this

·C

En quos validigime diligunt, partem suorum annorum dant, nec inteligunt: Dant autem sta, ut sine illorum incremento sibi detrahant: Sea hoc ipsum an detrahant, vesciunt: ideo tolarabilis est stas jastara detrimenti latentis. Id ib. c. 8.

^{} Pf 26. 4. & I. 1. Prov. 4. 14, 15, 16. † P ov. 13. 20. † Pf. 6. 8. Mat. 7. 23. () Pf. 119. 115 know your felves to be better than they: Be of more raifed Spirits than to be Companions with them. By keeping ill Company, thou wilt lofe thy Time, and lole or lessenthy spiritual Beauty: thou wilt, like him that walketh in the Sun, be quickly tann'd insensibly.

[[]c] Difce ex hac parte fantam superbiam, sciso te illis effe meserem. Hicion.

Have no frequent chosen Converse, no inward close Friendship with those that are none of God's real Friends, that have no spiritual Acquaintance with God, but are manifestly prosane, openly ungodly, and alienated from the Life of God; that are Enemies to God, and his Religion; his Son, and Spirit; his Word, and Worship; Laws, and Waies; and whose * Friendship is Enmity with God; whose Friendship is Friendship with Hell, and who are themselves but a kind of familiar Devuls: Never chuse to join in Company with these; to haunt the Places they use, which commonly give no small occasion of Sin; and to refort and repair to such Houses in agreed Meetings to sinful Ends and Businelles.

Chuse not those for thy Friends, who never yet began to be true Friends to themselves. He that is not a Friend to himself, will never be a Friend to thee. 'Tis only he that is a Friend to himself (saies [f] Seneca wisely and discretely) that is likely to prove a truly prositable Friendio others.

Chuse not such for thy Friends, that are not likely to be Friends to thy Soul. How can he be reckon'd and reputed a Friend to thee, who is not a Friend, but rather an Enemy to the better Part of thee? Take this for a Rule, That if a Person be not a good

Hh 2 Man

Time, s haft

s he)

know

pat o-

themselves

that

that

not e the y, in t from me ye

of my

f the

ar to

rade,

Time,

emp-

t. Te-

fcorn

and

know

stiente

dant,

n10 [i-

o cola-

is effe

^{* 1} m 4 4.

1 La fibe énicus est, seite hunc anicum emnitus este.

8 m. co. 8 e in tine.

Man, though he love thee, he is not a Friend to thee. A Master of Morality will tell thee, That [g] he that is a Friend, does love: but he that loves, is not for that reason presently a Friend: for Friend-Ship does alwaies profit a Person; but Love doth hurt fometimes: Now hurt to the Soul, is the greatest Hurt that can be done to any. And therefore acquaint not with those that will study to bring Vice into your Acquaintance, and whose Acquaintance will breed your Estrangement from God: Keep free from that Company that will make you part Company with God, and Christ, and a good Conscience: Cleave not unto those that will be Clogs and Pullbacks, Deadners and Quench-coals to you; that will cool and damp your Heart and Spirit, in the Practice of Piety and Exercise of Religion, and make you * hold your peace even from Good: That will only love, and respect, and care for you, upon condition that you love not Christ, nor regard Holiness, nor care in the least for your immortal Soul, and eternal Happiness: That will by all means labour to bring you to esteem lightly of the Lord's-Day; and to give them your Time and Company, in an idle, truitless, profane, ill-exemplary private Retirement, when you should be conscientiously and awfully present at the Publick Affembly.

Be fure you beware of fuch Company, as will only give a treat and entertainment to your Sense and Palate, load your Body with Meats and Drinks, passthe Time in Sport and Play with you; fill your

Pf. 39 1, 3.

an

yo

YC

an

to fer

Wi

COL

Fee

itı

and

ten

the

ves

bei

hav

Th

Infi

nef

end

Lif

cont

perio rum quin Sen

941

[[]g] Qui amicus est, amat; qui amat, non utique amicus til. Itique amicus a semper prodest; amor etiam aliquando notti. Sen 62.35.

Ears with unprofitable, atheistical, profane, loose and lewd Discourse; vitiate your Mind, pervert your Judgment, debauch your Fancy, corrupt your Manners, help you to forget God and your felves, teach you to become [g] Beafts in Courtefy, and by their foolish mad Mirth, and cruel Kindness to you abroad, make work enough for your earnest, ferious Sorrow and Sadness, your dear and costly Repentance at home: But will make you neither wifer, nor better, add nothing to your Vertue, contribute nothing to your Graces, and to the Feeding and Nourishing of your Souls: Who will, it may be, feast and pamper your Body, but starve and pine, yea poifon your Soul; and by a pretended Civility and Courtefy to you, labour to be the Bane and Undoing of you: Who will either vex, or [h] taint all that are near them; Who being themselves infested with the Plague of Sin, have a strange and strong defire to infect others: The only mode of whose Kindness is an artificial Infinuation of variety of Temptations, and an earnest importunate Solicitation to Evil; Who will endeavour to turn you off from a diligent holy Life; and, if it be possible, will laugh or mock Hh 3 vou

[g] Herbert's Church porch, p 2.

Ot folent visia in corpore alibi connata in aliud membrum perniciem suam estlare, sic improborum visia in cos derivantur qui cum il is vita habent consucutinem. Tert. advert, Valent, nd to

That

loves,

riend-

h hurt

reatest

re ac-

Vice nt ance

p free

mpany

ence :

that

n the

That

, up-

egard

nortal

by all

of the

Com-

mpla-

con-

k Af-

s will

Senfe

inks,

Your

Ears

ms eif.

mocet.

^[6] Serpunt vitia, E in proximum quemque transsigunt, E contactu nocent. It aque ne en jestiscutas curandina cet, ne corruptis jum corporabum E morbo stagrantibum assidenum, que a pericula trademus, assiduntaque ipse laborabimum, Ita in anscorum legendis ingenim dabimum o cram, ut quam minime inquinatos assimum. Institum morbs est, agris ana missere. Sen de Trang An. c. 7.

You out of Heaven: Who having no Seed, or Spark of Vertue in themselves, must needs hate, beliege and undermine it in others, as being a constant standing Reproach to themselves.

[b] Abandon those Companions, that are good Companions only in finning; who will lead you to Atheifmand Profaneness, provoke you to Lust and Wantonness, Anger and Rage, or draw you into Drunkenness; urge and impose their [i] sukly Healths upon you, and will not let you live by Rule; but will unweariedly tice and press you to Sin, and be fick with them; fweetly perswade you into Inconvenience, fairly and finely allure you into fafhionable Folly, and inevitable Mifery; court and complement you into eternal Ruin; civilly bear you Company, and lovingly befriend you into Hell; and so really shew less Kinduess, and worse Nature to you, than * Dives among the Devils in Hell express'd toward his Brethren here on Earth, who contrived and laboured to keep and preferve them from that Place of Torment. Make not them the Joy and Entertainment of thy Life, who, by thy leave, will be thy eternal Destruction and Death.

Have

* Luke 16. 27, 18.

wick their may them fome not them

from

our '

turn

B

Perf Fried best Vert Ama fons ftab trac

ly L

God

Con

tur,

[[]h] Nisi in bonis amicitis esse non potest. — Nec sine virtute amiciti cesse ullo pacto potest. — Chom conciliatrix amicitis virtutis opinio suerit, dissicile est amicitiam manere se d virtute deseceris. Læl, apud Cic. de Amic

^[7] Slight those who say amidit their fickly Healths, Thou liv'th by Rule. What doth not so but Man? Houses are built by Rule, and Common-wealths. Entice the trusty Sun, if that you can, From his Ecliptick Line; becken the Sky. Who lives by Rule then, keeps good Company.

Herb. Church-porch, p. 5.

Have no Intimacy, hold no Familiarity with wicked Persons: you may go see and visit them as their Physicians, but not as their Companions: you may sometimes call upon them, to cure and heal them, to prescribe somewhat to them, to leave some good Directions with them: but you must not be so often with them, nor stay solong with them, till you get their Discase, and take Infection from them.

But now on the other side; If we would spend our Time prositably and comfortably, and have it turn to any considerable good Account; let's study to contract Friendship and Union with vertuous Persons: esteeming them the most valuable Friends, and (to use Tully's Expression) [k] the best and fairest furniture of Life. Let's reckon [l] Vertue and Grace to be the weightiest reason of Amability; the Worthiness and Excellency of Persons Dispositions and Manners to be the most solid stable Ground, the greatest Allective & strongest Attractive of Love and Dearness. Let's chuse with holy David to be * [i] Companions of all them that fear God, and of them that keep his Precepts: To be their Companions out of true Affection, not out of Facti-

h 4 on:

Spark

eliege

stan-

good

0 A-

and

into fickly

ule:

and

In-

fa-

and

bear

into

or le

s in

rth,

rve

not

ho,

and

ave ir-

10:1-

6 4

^[6] Optimam & pulcherrimam vita supel estilem. Cic.

^[1] Nibil est am ibilius virt ite, nibil quod magis alliciat homines ad diligendum: --- Si tanta vis probitatis est, ut can vel in eis, quos nunquam vid mus, vel quod majis est, in hosteetiam diligamus; quid mir in si anun hominum moveatur, chin coram, quibuscum usu conjudit est postat, virtutem, & bonicatem perspicere videantur. Id.ib.

Pf. 119.63.

[[]i] Bon s bini diligunt, affifeuntque fibi quafi propinquitate emiunitos atque natura. — Constat bons enter binos quafi necufariam benerolentiam effe. Id. ib.

on: because they are Godly, not because they are Persons of such and such an Opinion and Party: To be Companions of them, and of all them: Let not any difference in outward Quality, nor in Opinion a. mong the Godly, in things remote from the Substance of Religion, be a cause of sinful Partiality. David a great King fcorn'd not the Company of any fuch, nor was ashamed to be seen in their Company. As his was, fo let * all our Delight be in the Saints, and the Excellent that are in the Earth. Let's join with him, and fay, + Let those that fear thee, turn unto me, and those that have known thy Testimonies. Let's chuse to walk with wife Men, that we may be mife: to be frequently in Company with those, (*) whose Fruit (that is, actively, the Fruit which they bring forth, the Profit which they yield and afford to others, in their Communication and Conversation, by Information and Example) is a Tree of Life; and who are wife to win Souls.

Be conversant with those (saies [i] Seneca excellently) who are any way likely to make thee better: and receive those into thy Friendship and Acquaintance, whom thou maiest probably some way or other make better. I say in like manner; let us sort and suit, allociate and familiarize our selves with those among whom we may do most spiritual Good, or from whom we may reap and receive most spiritual Benefit.

Study and strive to chuse such an one for thy Friend, to whom thou maiest give such reverential Respect in thy Carriage and Behaviour, as may restrain

ftrai

which

other

Con

care

Sou

Ang

pre

will nun

tim

to t

ly d

tha

giv

who

W

he

Git

Lu

wa

wi

Fr

th dil

ob

an

Se

^{} Pl. 16.2. f & 119 79. ¶ Prov. 13. 20. () & 11. 30. [i] Combis versave, qui re meliorem sasturi suns villos admitte, quos tu potes succere meliores. Scn. cp. 7.

strain thee from many uncomely finful Actions, which you might take more Liberty to commit in other Company.

are

To

not

on 3.

Sub_

ality.

v of

heir

be in arth.

fear

y Te-

that with

Fruit

they nica-

Ex-

win

ccel-

ance,

betfuit,

e a-

itual

thy ntial

re-

rain

. 30.

ad-

Take him for thy special Friend and peculiar Companion, who will be a constant Physician, careful Tutor, and spiritual Benefactor to thy Soul; who will be a familiar, tutelar, guardian Angel to thee: who will be (as [k] one well exprelles it) an [k] affiftant Conscience to thee: who will not fail to perform that Office, which the benumm'd or fleepy Conscience within thee shall at any time neglect. Who will be as faithful a Monitor to thee, as thy own Conscience should be: Who daily does fo improve in Vertue, and Profit in Piety, that whenever he comes into thy Company, he will give thee the great Pleasure, not only of feeing whom you would, but of feeing such an one as you would: Who will be careful to [1] falute himself, before he visits thee; and will furely bring himself a great Gift to thee : (as [m] Seneca counsels his Friend Lucilius to order, compose, and carry himself toward him.)

Chuse such Persons for thy intimate Friends, who will be Friends and Helps in the best things to thee; Friends in the concernments of the Life to come; that will prize and value, and on all occasions readily shew some real Kindness to thy Soul; that will observe thy Motions, and help to guide and direct and Correp p. 8.

thy

[1] Herb. Church-porch, p. 6.

^{[&}amp;] Dr. Alle. 1 , Serm. p. 17. The fecond Soul and Conference. Dr. Han of frat. Adnos.

[[]m] Confectus, 5 prafentia, & conversatio al quid habet viva voluptatis: utique si non tantum quem velis, sed qualem velis videas. Affer it aque te mihi ingens munio . -- Propera ad me, fed alte pr. m. Sen. ep. 35.

thy Actions; that will have a constant watchful Eye upon thy Life and Manners, and not willingly suffer thee to miscarry to Eternity, for want of careful looking after. Acquaint and accompany with those, in the enjoyment of whom you may enjoy somewhat of God himself; and whose sweet and gracious Converse will be a little Image of Heaven to you: Take those for your Consorts and Associates here, with whom you may desire and hope to keep joyful Company for ever hereafter. If we make any Reckoning of our Time, let us first make a good Choice of our Friends.

2. And then a good Improvement of our Company and Society with them. Be prudent and pious in the Use, as well as in the Choice of your Friends. Let not your Friendship be a meer nominal, formal, empty, juiceless thing.

Let your ordinary Visits to your Friends be out of Conscience, as well as out of Courtess: out of a real Design to do some Office of Love, especially to their Souls; and to bring some spiritual Advantage.

tage to them.

[m] Time is commonly lost by meer complemental Visits, wherein no civil Business is dispatch'd, no Service done to the Bodies, Estates, or Souls of others.

Let Christian Friends take heed especially that they come not together of purpose to waste their Time in unseasonable, immeasurable Play and Sport; that they be not found notoriously guilty of spending commonly and customarily as many Hours in Play together, as if Gaming were, not

their

their I

profe

this b

Daies

more

cation

you h

Wor

feafo.

Divin

in di

have ver fi

of yo

plyin

of yo

perce

steal

then

Detr

Bp.

fome

himf

took

be a

[m rela

rient.

amue, rogat kone,

Le the n

[[]m] See p. 216. to the end of 219.

their Recreation and Diversion, but their Trade and Profession, their Calling and Occupation. Can this be reckon'd a well redeeming the Time in evil Daies? Would not some of that Time be spent more fruitfully and comfortably in the Communication of your Experiences, and the Observations you have made relating either to God's Word or Works? or in reading together some select and seasonable Scripture, or else some part of practical Divinity, or good Morality, or useful History; and in discoursing and conferring thereupon, as you have Ability, and find Occasion?

Let not Cards and Dice swallow up and devour the most of the Hours you spend together: Nor ever fuffer any Friends and Companions to rob you of your Time, by [m] yielding to them, and complying with them, when they unreasonably exact of you to hold out with them in their Sports. perceive that any particular Game or Play does steal away your Heart and Time; 'tis high time then rather to lay it quite aside, than to suffer such Detriment by Continuation of the Use of it. When Bp. Usher, in his tender Years, was taught by fome of his Friends to play at Cards, and found himself so delighted therewith, that it not only took place of the Love of his Book, but began to be a Rival with the spiritual Part in him, upon apprehension

hful

igly

t of

any

may

veet

Tea-

and

and

eaf-

ime,

any

the

Let

al,

out

illy

an-

ital

no

0-hat eir nd

lty

ny

not

eir

[[]m] Nalla est excusatio peccati, si amici estus di peccavali.

Serectum statuerumus rel concedere amicis que equal relevante lumpetrare ab amicis que equid relimius, persona di que en initia semas si initial babeat res vitta. — line prima les en amicita sanciatur, at neque rogenus res viuper, nec factarius rogetti. Co. — ur ab amicis bonesta perannu, amicorum cas a bonesta saciamum. Lul. apud Cic. de Amic.

prehension thereof (as [n] Dr. Bernard informs us) he gave it over, and never played after.

When Christian Acquaintance meet together, let them be as useful and profitable, as helpful and beneficial, as holy and heavenly in their Discourses as may be: You may do more good by an honest Hint, and a serious savoury Speech in Company, than it may be a Minister may do by many Sermons.

Labour to firitualize and ennoble your Friendship, by making it a State of Love and Purity, an Opportunity and Advantage of amending and reforming, of benefiting and bettering one another.

[o] Let such as live either with or by one another, by solemn Compact and Agreement strictly and strongly oblige one another to take some special spiritual Care of one another's Souls; This would be real spiritual good Neighbourhood; an high Advancement, a rich and gainful Improvement of Friendship.

You that are Intimates and Familiars, look upon your felves as one another's * Keepers: Take a spiritual Charge one of another: † Naturally case for one another's spiritual State: | Watch over one another's Souls, as they that must give account: an Account of one another, as well as of your selves: that you may do it with Joy, and not with Grief: Be (*) jealous over one another with a Godly Jealous; and shew your selves such fast Friends to one another's Souls, as to do your best to prevent one another's sinning, and to promote the Work of Grace and Holiness in one another's Hearts. Take Occa-

[n] In the Life of Bp. Usher, p. 24.

() 2 (or, 11. 2.

fion i vensi

at le

* Sp

that conc

Build

fort 1

day:

fpee

ceitf

deal

his !

ctec

pan onii

put

mi

wit

can

tur

fall

rec wh

fur Fri

^[0] Dr. Ham. of frat. Admon. or Corrept. p. 29.

Gen 4. 9. † Phil. 2. 20. | Heb. 13.17.

gether, ful and fcour-

ms us)

pany, rmons. riend-

other. e anoy and

pecial would high ent of upon ake a care r one

ves:
Be

anorace

ccafion sion to warm not so much one another's Honses, as one another's Hearts. Visit one another in the Evening, meet together, and confer one with another at leisure hours, and on daies of Recreation: *Speak often one to another, concerning the things that belong to the Peace of one another's Souls, and concern the Condition of the Church of Christ. Build up tone another on your most holy Faith. || Comfort your selves together, and edify one another.

(*) Exhort one another daily, while it is called, To day; Let your Exhortation be mutual and reciprocal, frequent and continual, feasonable and speedy; lest any of you be hardened through the Deceinfulness of Sin. Take the sirst Opportunity of dealing with thy Friend, as the case and need of his Soul requires, lest Death remove him unexpectedly out of the reach of thy Charity to all Eternity. Consider with thy self, that should thy Companion live longer, yet he may continue in the omission of some Duty, because you only purpose to put him upon it. Or, he may go on in the commission of some Sin, grow more and more in Love with it, and fall more under the Power of it, because you have only some thought and intention to turn him from it.

Support, preserve and keep one another from falling; and, in the Spirit of Meeknes, raise and recover, (1) restore and (||) convert one another, when overtaken and fallen, in any degree and measure, either into Sin, or Errour. * Hate not your Friend or Brother in your Heart: in any wise rebuke

уонт

^{*} Mal. 3. 16.

⁺ Jude 20. iaura's may be put for and indus.

^{| 1} Treff. 5. 11 (*) Heb. 3. 13. (†) Gal. 6. 1.

your Neighbour, and never suffer Sin upon him, when you find him offending against God, or Man. And * if a Friend or Brother shall plainly trespass against thee, go and tell him his Fault between thee and him alone: not seeming to repreach him, by chiding and reprehending him in publick; nor offering to back-bute him, by talking privately to others against him.

+ Teach and admonish one another : and let it appear that you practife your own Precepts, and take your selves the Counsel you give to others : Follow Tertullian's excellent Advice; [p] strengthen your friendly Admonition and Exhortation with the Authority of your own Conversation, that your want of Deeds may not make you blush at your own Words: and let me add, that your Friend and Companion may not neglect and reject your Sayings, because he knows too well your Doings: As oftentimes you thrust away the good Light of a Candle, for the ill Savour which the stinking Tallow yields. Let none have reason to retort, and say, | Physician, heal thy self: (*) Thou which teachest another, teachest thou not thy felf? What Mr. Herbert speaks of Ministers may be fitly accommodated to the Exhortations and Admonitions of Christian Friends;

[9] Doctrine, and Life, Colours, and Light, in one When they combine and mingle, bring A firong Regard and A:v: but Speech alone

Doth

good 1

one

Wor

glect

thers

other:

you:

you

voca

you

you

timu

the I

whe

grov

Elta

of o

one

cito

care

nal

not tou

Sid

ly p

1

GHO

Si

- Mat. 18. 15. + Col. 3. 16. Rom. 15 14:

[4] The Windows

[[]p] Oportet constantiam commenced proprie conversationis authoritate durger, no ida facts afficientibm ernbescant. Tert, de patientia, initio.

[|] Luke 4. 23. () Rom. 2 21.

Doth vanish like a flaring thing, And in the Ear, not Conscience, ring.

(1) Consider one another to provoke unto Love, and to good Works; or, to [r] sharpen or provoke [in one another] Charity and good or laudable You are apt to forget, and prone to neglest your selves: you have need enough of one anothers spiritual Care and Help: 'tis necessary that others should watch and observe, incite and affift you; be at some trouble, and take some pains with you: your own and others Confideration and Provocation of you, is little enough to stir and move you: Ponder and [s] weigh all Advantages that you can have one upon another, to excite and extimulate, to engage and quicken one another to the Exercise of Charity, and all Actions of Piety, whenfoever you find any thing of fainting, or growing cold in one another.

Search and enquire into one anothers spiritual Estates: mind and study the Cases and Conditions of one anothers Souls; the Causes and Cures of one anothers spiritual Distempers. Be very solicitous for one anothers present and suture Good: carefully consult the spiritual Prosperity, and eternal Welfare of one another.

Consider one another to provoke one another, not to Sin and Wickedness, to Vanity and Folly, to uncertain Opinions, to Faction and Division, to Siding and Party-taking; not to that which is highly provoking, but exceeding well-pleasing to God;

not

(†) Heb 10 24.

[s] Dr. H.m. Par. in loc.

hen

And

him

ling

g to ainst

ap-

take

low

your

Au-

t of

and nay

he

Vou

ill

one

heal

heft

Mi-

rta-

0228 oth

mis

200.

[[]r] Dr. Ham of frat. Admon. or Correp. p. 7. eis zaestu-not to Wrath, but to Love; not to Evil, but to Good Works. Consider and provoke one another, not as the Devil confiders and provokes Men by his Temptations; but as God confiders and provokes Men, who watches over us continually, prevents us daily with his Grace, strengthens us against Temptations, affords us his Counfel, inftils many good Motions into our Minds, and often incites and stirs us up to the Duties incumbent on us: And as Christ confider'd and provoked Sinners, when he was here on Earth, to Faith and Repentance, good Works and Obedience; who went about doing Good; doing good to Mens Souls, as well as Bodies: who freely convers'd with them, frequently instructed them, affectionately exhorted them, powerfully press'd them, plainly reprov'd them, was grieved for the Hardness of their Hearts, lamented and wept over their Impenitency and Infidelity.

Consider thy Companion at such a feason, when it is most likely that he may consider what you say to him: Provoke him to Good, when in all probability it may do most good.

Remember to consider and provoke one another in a ferious manner. Never offer to utter a few cold, dull, dead Words, between Jest and Earnest; but earnestly perswade, and pathetically expostulate one with another; and let one another plainly see that every Application does arise and proceed from Love and Compassion, and that it is the Desire of your Souls to save one another's Souls. Let your Words be as * Goads (as the Wise Man speaks) to prick one another forward in the way

unbe

one:

othe

Beed

Hoft:

live (

vou.

End

with

and

and

Let (

anot

bear

one :

Buli

venl

look

that

and

Frui

[1]

Offic

find

ny c

to h

that

rales, quia s apud

^{*} Bccl. 12. 1'.

way of Religion. Instead of detaining one another unnecessarily from the Publick Assembly, fir up one another with an holy Zeal, and fay one to another in the Words of the Prophet, * Let m go speedily to pray before the Lord, and to seek the Lord of Hosts: I will go also. Be not Quench-coals, but as live Coals, begetting Heat in those that are next you. Let Christian Acquaintance use their utmost Endeavours to bring one another more acquainted with God, and with their own spiritual States and Conditions. Let Christian Neighbours study and endeavour to make one another nigh to God. Let Christian Toke-fellows exhort and encourage one another to take Christ's Toke upon them, and to bear his Burden. Let Christian Servants stir up one another to work out their Salvation, to do the Business, and to finish the Work which their heavenly Master has given them to do.

Consider, exhort, provoke one another, and look what becomes of all the Labour, Care and Pains that you take with any Friend or Acquaintance; and if it obtain not at present its much desired Fruit and Effect, yet be not disheartened, nor [r] desert your Duty, and give over this necessary Office and excellent Part of Friendship, though you find it dissipant and uneasy; though you seem to any carnal Friend as one that mocks, (as * Lot did to his Sons-in-law). † In Meekness instruct those that oppose themselves: | Reprove, rebuke, exhort with

* Zech. 8. 21.

Gen. 19. 14. † 2 Tim. 2. 35, & 4 2. | 1 Theff. 5. 14.

to

her,

by

pro-

pre-

s a-

in-

of-

bent

Sin-

and

who

ouls

vith

tely

inly

of

pe-

hen

fay

ba-

an-

to

Fest

eti-

an-rife

tit

r's life the

ay

[[]t] Angor iste, qui pro amico sape capiendus est, non tantum valet, us tollat è vita amicisiam, non plus, qu'am us virtutes, quia nonnullas curas, & molestias afferent, repudientur. Læl. apud Cic. de Amic.

with all long-suffering: which will be a becoming Imitation of God, who (you may remember) endured you with much long-suffering; who did not leave you to your felves, when you first rejected his heavenly Admonition; who called you often before you would hear, and often provoked you before you would stir: who fuffers finful Men fo long, till at last he suffers for his Suffering: who is so patient, till at last he loses by his Patience: whose extream Patience (as Tertullian excellently observes) seems to [u] detract and derogate from his Power: for many believe (faies he) that there is no Governour of the World, because they do not see him angry with the Patiently continue thy Confideration and Care of thy Friends, for though they do not confider what you fay at present, they may consider it bereafter. Consider them, because this will be a comfortable Consideration, that though you do no good upon them, yet you did your honest, faithful, and best Endeavours to do them good, and are therefore clear from their Blood.

Think how greatly you will gain in your own Experience by considering your Acquaintance, and dealing in a spiritual way with them; and how much you will heighten and firengthen your own good Affections, by exhorting, provoking, and exciting your Friends. by rubbing and change your Companions, you will not only get warmth into them, but will with the same labour make your selves a great deal hotter than you were before. The more you perswade and stir up them to the Love and

Fear

Fea

war

and

you

your

good

fpiri

Joys

and

ritua

care

fider

your

you

Selve

Instr

ning

* ga

and to y

fron

Work

and

knor

upor

der (

their

gref

Sted

lines

paffi Circ

A

[[]N] De fea fibi patientia detrabat : plures enim Dominum idence non credunt, quis seculo tratum sama u nesciant. Tente de patientia.

483

crease

Fear of God, the more your own Heart will be warmed and inhamed with the Love, and filled and possess'd with the Fear of God: The more you quicken and itir up them to good Works, you your felves will become much more ready to every good Work.

And as this will increase and improve your own spiritual Gifts and Graces, so it will entarge your Joys and Comforts; and be matter of Satisfaction and Pleasure to you, to see some of their Souls spiritually profper, whom you have taken a special care of. What a comfort will it be at last to conlider, that you have done much good by considering your Allociates; that by your consideration of them you have brought them to consider God and themfelves; that, under God, you have been the happy Instruments of awakening, convincing, strengthning, and quickning your Acquaintance; of * gaming your Brethren; of gaining them to God, and gaining and endearing them more and more to your felves; and of faving some precious Souls from Death, which are more worth than the whole World ! How will they be your ! Glory and Joy, and Crown of Rejoicing, who shall contess and acknowledg that you were the bleffed means of working upon them, and prevailing with them; that, under God, they ow their spiritual Light and Life, their Growth and Thriving in Grace, their Progress and Procedure in Faith and Holiness, their Stedfastness and Advancement in Religion and Godliness to your care and pains with them, your compassionate Consideration of them, and watchful Circumspection over them? yea, will not this in-mita-

d you

ou to

enly

you

you

il at

ient,

ream

cems

many f the

the

and onli-

er it

be a

on c hful,

are

OTON

and how

good

ting

om-

bem,

es a

nore

and

Fear

Test.

^{*} Mar. 18. 15. † 1 Theff. 2. 19, 20.

crease the Joies of Heaven, and heighten the Pleafures of Paradise to you, to meet with those Acquaintance there, whom you were a means of helping thither, by prompting and encouraging them to do those Works which are the way to the heavenly Kingdom.

Consider moreover, that your considering your Friends and Neighbours will be consider'd and accepted by God, though they should never consider any thing at all : that your Labour of Love shall not be in vain to your felves, though it should be ineffectual to others: But if by dealing with them, you do fome real confiderable good upon them; that then very great will be your Reward in Heaven: that if you * turn many to Righteousness, you shall shine as the Stars for ever and ever: That if, from a Principle of the Fear of the Lord, you t feak often one to another, to animate one another to Faith and Obedience, to Courage and Constancy; the Lord will hearken, and hear it, and a Book of Remembrance shall be written before him concerning it: and you shall be his in that Day when he maketh up his Jewels, [his peculiar Lot, Inheritance, choice Portion, chief Treasure,] and he will spare you as a Man spareth his own Son that serveth him. If you consider one another for good, God will consider you for good: If you provoke one another to Love, this will provoke God to love you for it: If you provoke your Acquaintance to good Works, this will provoke God to reward you as well as them, for all the good Works that are done by them, by means of your Exhortations and [w] Examples. But if you provoke

VC

by

m

Co

ane

OW

ban

Fri

be

and

and

Fri

imp

fpir

ove

Cou

on t

and ty o

Felia

the 1

thee

thee

part

And

cife o

towa

* E

^{*} Dan 11. 3 + Mal. 3.16, 17.

[[]w] Quantoscinque aliquis exemplo santa vita adificaverit, com tantis & pro tantis mircedem beata vita retributionis accipiet. Aug. tom. 10. p. 209. Paris.

voke not them to do good Works, you shall one Day be found guilty of all the evil Works done by them, which you might have hindred by any means, and any way prevented the Commission of Neglect not the ferious Exhortation, loving Consideration, and zealous Provocation one of another; for furely when you come to die, your own Hearts will not condemn you for labouring too bard in the grand concernments of the Souls of your Friends, who are as * your awn Souls: But you will be ready to challenge your selves for want of Care and Diligence in that Performance, and to grieve and mourn that you have been so usels in your Friendship and Society; that you have no better improved Christian Fellowship and Communion; no more awaken'd, quicken'd, comforted, and spiritually served one another.

Grudg not to bestow a little Labour in watching over thy Friend and Neighbour; this Work and Task will be quickly over.

And take not amiss anothers taking care of thee. Count the Christian Religion lovely and amiable, upon this Consideration, that it makes such excellent and admirable Provision for the Welfare and Safety of Souls, for the spiritual Security and eternal Felicity of the Profesiors of it. Prize and value the rich Mercy, and abundant Kindness of God to thee, that he should appoint every Friend about thee to be a spiritual Help to thee; and make it part of his Office and Business to take care of thy Soul. And when you find any Friend faithful in the Exercise of his Duty, and Discharge of his Conscience toward thee, bless God that he is so; And be truly

lea-

Ac-

ping

m to

renly

your

d ac-

l not

inef-

you.

that

that ine as

Prin-

n one

d O-

Lord

rance

(hall

This

chief

th his

ano-

ood:

pro-

your voke

good

your

provoke

verit,

^{*} Deut. 13. 6.

hankful to him also, for so high an expression of his charitable Affection: Let his fincere and hearty Love to thee make him appear * good in thy fight as an Angel of God, and cause his t Feet, as well as Face, to be truly [x] beautiful to thee. Never be provoked with an ill Provocation against the Person of a Friend, who sharpens and provokes you with a good Provocation. Be not angry with any that provoke you to Love; nor render evil for good to luch as labour to provoke you to good Works. If thy Friend and Companion rebuke thee, know how to accept a great Kindneß; take his Love and Good-will well, and shew that thou hast good Flesh to heal. Say with holy David, Let the Righteon Smite me, it shall be a Kindneß; and let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent Oil which shall not break my Head. And reckon this to be one of the saddest Strokes that God inflicts, for God to fay, (*) Let no Man strive, nor reprove another. Be so wise, and good water d, as to [y] Suffer a Word of Exhortation and Admonition from a truly loving Christian Friend. When thou art in Company with thy Friends, do (1) & Benhadad's Servant did in the Presence of Ahab; diligently observe whether any good thing will come from

* 1 Sam 29. 9. † Rom. 10 15.

pleas

is It:

to th

mit

of p dy t

ving

boure

thee

ftime

thee,

all m

thou

* F

B

[[]x] Quidtum at fuedum, quan delettari multir inanibm rekus, ni honore, ut glorid, ut adificio, ut restitu, cultituse corporti: autimo autem ristuste pradito, ca qui rel amare, vel su tia dicam) redamare possis, non advoid m delettari. Nishi est enim remuntratione benevolentia, utbil ricissiudine studiorum, assici rangue jucundib... Lal. apud Cie de amic.

Pf. 41.5. (*) Hol 4.4.

[7] Plurum men amiciria amicorum bene fundentium reteat autoritum, eagut adhibeatur ad monendum non moad aferte fed criam acriter fi res postulabit: & autoriteri adhibita pareasur. Id. 10. (†) I kings 10.23.

from any, and hastily catch it. Shew thy felf much pleased and delighted with any good Discourse that is started, and labour to keep it up and maintain it.

But know, that if now thou refuselt to hearken to the Counfels, and follow the Advices, and fubmit * thy felf to the Reproofs and Reprehensions of prudent, pious, Christian Friends; and art ready to frive against all their earnest passionate Strivings with thee; then they that contended and laboured in vain with thee here, shall furely + judg thee at Last Day, and bring in Evidence and Teftimony against thee, that they would have healed thee, and thou wouldst not be healed; that they, by all means, would have helped thee to Heaven, and thou wouldst haften and hurry to Hell.

half a day in the sail , amid I hear man are the hand Area Shaha

a series Lyange of Attige to a law a The

li 4

uraajere pil-

of

ar-

ig bt

as

· be fon

vith

Dror

luch

end

ot a

vell,

vith

Il be

ex-

kon In-

nor tion hen) 36

bab;

ome rom

milan e cor-

ul off rum,

UMI

^{*} Eph. 5. 21. + 1 Cor. 6. 2. | Jer. $1. 9.

The eleventh Direction.

If we would earnestly redeem the Time, we must remember and consider, perform and answer our solemn Sacramental Vows, Occasional Promises, and Sick-bed Resolutions.

1. Our folemn Sacramental Vows.

(1.) Our Promise and [a] Vow made in Baptism, Which Promise made by Persons baptized when adult, or of full Age, is called (as some understand and interpret that Place) the stipulation or * anfwer of a good Conscience towards God.

At the time of our Infant-Baptism, we were dedicated to the Service of God the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, and solemnly entred into a sacred Covenant. Then we indented and engaged to renounce the Devil, the + Ruler, | Prince, and (*) God of this World; And all his Works: All that the Devil labours by any means to fet us about and employ us in: But especially and principally all those Sins, which carry particularly the stamp and character, the image and resemblance of Satan upon them, and have (†) from the beginning been practifed by him; fuch as Pride, Lying, Slandering, Malice, Envy,

* 1 Pet. 3. 21. † Eph. 6. 12. & 2. 2. 1 Joh. 12 31.

(*) 2 Cor. 4. 4. (†) Joh. 8. 44.

Killin other and a and

Vani often Work

and t

and i

care To di finfu

to a ofthi

to fu

dera

of G ence obed

and

Same

but A

wer und

ly a

take

con

ed 1

Dif blei goo nev

tial

if v

Ver

^[4] Of the Vow of Baptifm, fee Dr. Hammona's Pract. Cat. 1. 6. the latter part of feet. 2, and 3. And his notions contracted in the VVhole Duty of Man, partit. 2. par. 33, &c.

Killing and Destroying, Tempting and Soliciting. others to Sin: We covenanted expressly to abandon and abomine all Diabolical Works; And to forfake and disclaim the Pomps and Vanities, or Pompous Vanities; the profane Spectacles, the Luxury, the oftentatious vain-glorious Bravery of this wicked World: To abhor and avoid the evil Company, and to refift the applauded vile vicious Customs, and popular Temptations of the World: To take care not to accompany the Ungodly in their Sins: To deny Ungodliness and worldly Lusts; and all the finful Delires, Affections, Appetites of the Flesh to abstain from fleshly Lusts, and from all the Works, of the Flesh: to make no provision for the Flesh. to fulfil the Lusts thereof: To endeavour to moderate and subordinate all our Desires to the Will of God: And by God's Grace, and under the influence of Divine Affifance, according to our Abilities, obediently to keep God's boly Will and Commandments; and not only to take a few Steps, but to walk in the same; and that not only for a spurt, or a few dates, but all the daies of our Lives.

And fince we came to years of Discretion, and were of age sufficient to use our Reason, and act understandingly; we have personally owned, openly and deliberately confirmed our Baptismal Vow, taken the obligation in our own names; by actual consent yielded and resigned, devoted and delivered up our selves to become the teachable tractable Disciples, the ready and voluntary Servants of the blessed Trinity: Now to make this grand Promise good, were to redeem the Time indeed. Let's never offer, or dare to live, as if we had been initiated in the impure Mysteries of the Heathen; as if we had been baptized in the name of Bacchus, or Venus; baptized in the very Devil's name, devoted

nust

lemn

bed

ıſm.

na-

and

an-

de-

and

Co-

re-

God

evil

loy

ins,

and

m;

vy,

Red

to his Drudgery, and deeply engaged against God, and Christ, and the Holy Spirit; against the Gospel and Godliness; against the Members of Christ, and the People of God: But look and see we live as those, who did so early and so solemnly dedicate our selves, Souls, Bodies, and Interests to God; and vow to give our Time and Opportunities to his Service. We are in Justice obliged to keep this Promise, to pay this Vow; which if we fail to do, we are miserably perjured and forfworn.

CI

(2.) And then for the other Sacrament, that of the Lord's Supper; In our preparations for the receiving of it, we have, it may be, fearched and tried, proved and examined our felves; inquired into our hearts and waies; taken special notice of many passages of our misled Lives, and mis-spent Time; ferroully considered our many partial Covenant-breaches; renew'd and repeated our Baptifmal-contrait with God, and our Lord Jesus Christ; determined to mortify those hateful Sins which crucified our Saviour; fetled our purpofes of returning to our Duty with greater care and diligence than ever; strengthned and reinforced our Covenant of reforming our Lives, and redeeming our Time; and refolved upon a stricter Observance of God's Laws, for the rest of our daies: And at every time of our participation of the holy Communion, we openly offer'd, and publickly presented ourselves, our Souls and Bodies, to be a reasonable, boly, and lively Sacrifice unto God: O let's remember, and stand to our Word; and take care, in God's Fear, through Christ strengthning us, to perform the Covenant we have so often ratified, and frequently reiterated.

2. And

and ft

Provid

ly pre

Was t

comi

broup

TY Co

Felax

Speece

of Si

the 1

Phy/

all o

wha

goo

gruf

ver

our

Ser

fore

cin.

gua Eu

Q

2. And then again; When God hath roused and startled us by some awakening Ordinance, or frevidence: When some * Son of Thunder has plainly preached as if Death were at our backs (which was the Character King James once gave of a lively Minister that preached before himself) Or when some affectionate zealous Ambassadour of Christ, coming to us in the Spirit of St. Panl, has so convincingly reason'd of the Judgment to come, and brought his Discourse so close and home to our very Confesences, as to cause us to tremble again, with Felms, we then came to sudden Resolutions, and speedy Purposes of Emendation of our Waies.

of, when at any time God has cast us upon Beds of Sickness, brought us to the very brink of Death, the very Mouth of the Grave: when Friends and Physicians have been doubtful of our Lives; when all our own Hopes of Life sickned and died; when our Souls have almost sat upon our Lips; O then what [a] fair and large Promises, and specious goodly Resolutions have we made, if God should ever restore us, lend longer Life to us, and try and trust we once again, to become new Men, to turn over a new Leaf, to lead a new Life, to improve our Time to all possible Advantage, to do God more Service in a Day, than we did him in a Month before?

Have

God,

Gof-

hrift,

live

dedi-

s to

tuni-

1 to

we

for-

t of

re-

and ired

of

ent

Co-

if;

ich

reili-

our

ng

r-oly

n-

1e

e-

d

^{*} Mark 3. 17.

[[]a] Se aliqua nos agritudo corripiat, si signa agritudina ritinam mortem denuncient, inducias revendo quarimu, ut peccasa nostra desteamus. Se as cum magno astra desideris setimus, quas acceptas modo pro nibilo habemus. Gregor. Homil. 12. in Euang.

Have we not been sometimes so sick, that we verily concluded we were really feized by the Ar. rest of Death, and seemed to hear God saying to us in particular, * Give an account of thy Stewardship; for thou maiest be no longer Steward: and thought of nothing but the tolling of the Bell, and expected (fome of us) that the feveral parts of us within a few daies, or hours, should be shared and divided between the Grave and Hell? Then we experienced in our selves Philosophantes metus, & agra fortuna sana consilia: (to use the elegant expressions of the most ingenious [b] Moralist) Then our Fears read Lectures of Philosophy, [Lectures of Divinity] to us; and the fad and forrowful circumstances of a fick, and declining, and dangerous condition, did minister salutary Counsels and healthful Advices Let's recollect and remember, what were our ferious fecret Thoughts, the inward workings of our Hearts, the lively stirrings of our Consciences; yea our open Confessions, free Professions, and large Promises and Protestations at such a time as that.

Men are too commonly of a Temper much like that of Navelus in Martial, of whom we find there this [c] Character, that when he was fecure and prof-

· Luke 16. 2.

[6] Sen. ep. 94. in fine.

profpe but wh none w

to refe Engag vous this el malig eafes our B

Pli

acqualate la me thi when is amu tous of fes, he must prement himself on un injurtinus perfe Ep. :

bapp this

fopb

Nam quasi ist. inter se contraria sint, bona fortuna, & mons bona : ita melius in malis sapimus, secunda rectum auf runt. Ibid.

[[]c] Securo nibil est te, Navole, pejm: eodem Sollicito nibil est, Navole, te melina, &c. --- Esto, Navole, follicitus. Martial 1 4. Epigr. 83.

prosperous, none was more arrogant and insolent; but when he was folicitous, and press'd with care, none was more modest and humble, and of better condition and carriage than he.

We generally appear sensible and serious, ready to reform, and forward to enter into Vows and Engagements, in Affliction and Adversity, in grievous Calamities and deep Distresses; and to do this especially, when confin'd to our Chambers by malignant Distempers, violent or painful Diseases; and forced by Sickness to take, and to keep our Beds.

Plinius Secundus writing to his Friend Maximus, acquaints him with this observation of his; The late languishing Condition of a Friend of mine taught me thus much, faies he, that we are usually [d] best when we are sick and weak: for what insirm sick Person is amorous or lascivious, ambitious of Honour, or covetous of Riches? How little soever such a Person possesses, he reckons he has enough, because he supposes he must shortly relinquish what ever he has. Then a Man remembers that there is a God, faies he, and that he himself is but a Man: Then he envies, admires, despifes no body: then he does not hearken to, nor feed upon uncharitable Discourses: nor is he malicious, or injurious to any : but only designs, if he should continue longer in the World, to lead an innocent and a happy Life. And he ends that notable Epistle with this very wife and wholfome Counfel; What Philosophers endeavour to deliver in many Words and Volumes ;

at we

he Ar.

to us

dihip;

ght of

ected

hin a

vided

rienfortu-

ns of ears

nity]

es of

ion,

ices

vere

ngs

en-

ns,

ime

ike

re

nď

of-

ns s.

^[4] Optimes elle nos dum insirmi sumus. * Ut tales elle sani perseverenus, quales nos suturos profisemus insirmi. Pin. 1 7. Ep. 16.

lumes; that I may thus briefly hint, by way of Instruction, to thee, and to my self, saies he; * That we continue to be such when we are well, as we promise we will be when we are sick. When Sigismund the Emperous enquired of the Bishop of Colen what he should do to be happy eternally; he only advised him to take care to live, as he promised to do the last time be had the Gout or Stone.

Olet's but pay our Sick-bed Vows, and we shall redeem the Time indeed. Let's be the [e] fame when our Actions are seen, as when our Words are beard. Let's never offer, when we recover our Health and Strength, to resume our old-acquaint ance Sins, or to * turn again to Folly.

Did we but answer our sacred Voms, and solemn Promises, we should no longer be expensive and wasteful of our pretious Hours: We should not be [f] alwaies beginning to live, but should live indeed and in good earnest: We should in time make so sure of a blessed Eternity, that we should never more have cause to sear either Sickness, Death, the Grave, or Hell.

The

must ?

tle our

thy D

the L

is nea

gree 1

the W

Not

bold

witti ften i

tot

when

Bloc

[a]

and the

and com.

[

[6

* Pf. 85. 8.

Considera quan seda sit hominum levitas, quotidie nova vita fundamenta ponentium, novas spes etiam in exitu inchoantium.

[[]e] Ille promissum sum emplorit, que & cum redeas illum, & chen audian, edem eft. Sen. cp. 75.

[[]f] Inter catera mala, hoc quoque habet stultitis proprium, femper incipit vivere. Epicuri dictum à Seneca laudatum, cp. 12

Male vivunt qui semper vivere incipiunt: quia semper illis imperfetta vita est. Non sotest autem stare paratus ad mortem, qui modo incipit vivere. Id agendum est, ut satis vixerimus: nemo hoe putat, qui orditur chen maxime vitam. 1d. cp. 23.

The twelfth and last Direction.

If we would effectually redeem the Time, we must not give way to any Delay, but strengthen and settleour Resolution against any farther Procrastination.

* Know the Time of thy Visitation: † Know in this thy Day the things which belong unto thy Peace. || Seek the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near. (*) Acquaint now thy felf with God. (†) Agree with thine Adversary quickly, whilst thou art in the Way with him. (||) Flee from the Wrath to come: Not go, nor run, but flee. * Flee for Refuge to lay bold upon the Hope set before you: as of old, the unwitting and unwilling Man-slayer was wont to hasten to take hold upon the Horns of the Altar, and to † slee for safety to a Sanetuary, or City of Refuge, when hotly pursued by the enraged Avenger of Blood. Be able to say with holy David, || I made [a] histe, and delayed not to keep thy Commandments.

Where the Prophet expresses it both affirmatively and negatively, and so the more Emphatically, after the manner of the Hebrews, to shew his promptitude and readiness, speediness and quickness; in [b] comparison of those dull and lazy Procrastinators,

who

Martial 1. 2. pigr. 90.

nstrue cone will erour

d do

e had fhall

Tame

are

Our

ance

emn

and

not

in-ake

ver

the

The

42229

im,

ita

Ess

68-

88.

ld.

Luke 19. 44. † Verfe 42. # 1f. 55. 6. Pf. 32. 1.

^(*) Job 22 21. (†) Mac. 5. 25. (|) & 3. 7. * Heb. 6. 18. † Exod, 21. 13. Num. 35. 6. Deut. 4. 414 | Pf. 119. 60.

[[]a] --- Projerat vivere nemo fatis.

^[1] Calv. in loc.

who come not at all, or come but foftly and flowly to God. And [c] though the Words speak of the time past, yet (as Calvin observes) they note a continual act: I made haste and delayed not; and I still make haste, and now do not delay to keep thy Commandments. Remember, how Abraham rose up early in the Morning, and without objecting or disputing, or letting slip the first opportunity, was ready to offer, and forward to facrifice his only Son, at God's command. (Gen. 22. 3.) And how Christ's Disciples, at his first Call, immedia. ly left their Nets, the Ship and their Father, and followed him. (Matth. 4. 20, 22.) And take Example by the wife Merchant in the Parable, who difpatch'd his necessary business immediatly, without cunctation or delay: The account there given of him is express'd all in the present Tense; He * goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth the Field in which the Treasure was hid. t While you have opportunity, do good to your felves, and do good to Let me fay to you concerning Time and Opportunity, as Bosz faid to his Kinfman concerning the Land, If you will redeem it, redeem it: Stand no longer dallying and trifling in a matter that requires hafte and speed. For here consider,

1. The fooner, the better. 'Tis better,

(1.) In respect of God.

(2.) Of our felves.

(1.)

(

F

Ler s more

rede

bono

Tin

our

Ret

teol

ing

It a

it is

Call

An

our

his

Just

mab

fma

and

tol

and is 1 ma

diff Go

Us

me

por vic

1 Ruth 4 . 4.

[[]c] Quanquam verba funt prateriti temporis, continuum tamen actum notant. Ibid.

^{*} Traju, moder, a poed Les, Mat. 13. 44.

[†] Kalegy & XOVTES, Gal. 6. 10.

(1.) The fooner we redeem the Time, the better it is in respect of God: for God is abundantly more honoured, and better serv'd by it.

He is more honoured by it. Our making hafte to redeem the Time, prevents the doing of much Difhonour, which by great and gross misspence of our Time would many waies be cast upon God; by our affronting his Authority, continuing in open Rebellion against him, breaking his holy and righteous Laws, abusing his Creatures, and misemploying his Gifts from day to day. And more than fo, It actually and positively does much honour to him, as it is a ready, present, obedient Answer to God's Call, who cries, * To day; while it is called, to day: And a real demonstration, and high expression of our ardent Love and hearty Affection to him, and his Laws, and Waies: and an open and constant Justification of their Equity, Bonity, Suavity and Amability, in the eye of the World. And it is no fmall Honour done to God, that by making hafte, and not delaying, we devote the best of our Time to him, and put him not off with the very dregs. and refule.

And further yet; as God is more honoured, so he is much better served by it. The more haste we make to redeem the Time, we shall be the better disposed, more adapted and sitted for the Service of God; become more meet Vessels for our Masser's Use: and not only acquire greater Abilities, but meet with larger, more frequent and various Opportunities of doing God saithful and acceptable Service. The sooner we enter in, the longer we shall flow-

Kk la-

eak of note a

; and

o keep

raham

ecting

unity,

us on-

edias-

ed fol-

xam-

o dif-

thout

en of

goeth

ld in ve op-

od to

Op-

ning

tand

t re-

(1.)

And

[.] Heb. 3. 7, 13.

labour in our Lord's Vineyard, and do the more work for our Heavenly Master.

(2.) The sooner we redeem the Time, the better it is in respect of our selves. Tis more honourable, more pleasurable, more prostable to do it sooner than later.

1. It is more honourable to hasten, and not to delay: for this is a Sign that our Acts and Deeds are free and volumary, not forced and constrained: That what we do in Religion, we do of good will and choice. On a Sick or Death-bed, a Man is scared into a fudden and unchosen Piety, and frighted into fits of involuntary Devotion. He that never fets himself to redeem his Time, till a mighty Fear forcibly drives and impells him to it; till he finds he approaches and draws near to the Gates of Death and Hell, and is ready to give up his unready and unallowable Accounts to the great and righteons Judg; This Man acts dishonourably, for he does nothing out of disaffection to his Sins; nothing at all for the Love of God, and for the fake of Vertue. But it is an Honour and a Credit to a Christian, to redeem the Time by his own Election, and to act for God out of a free and ingenuous Principle of Love.

2. The more haste we make to redeem the Time, it is so much the more pleasurable to us: For, if we take up Christ's Burden betimes, we shall account it a light Burden: Use will alleviate it to us. If we enter early into God's Service, we shall more easily reckon his Service persets Freedom. The somer we turn our Feet unto God's Testimonies, we shall run the way of them with more Freedom. The sooner we address and apply our selves to the keeping of God's Commandments, we shall bring our f and them when and to re to ro Com Piety the the h the Cand I

it will We f

Divining Cod and God drought to Habe

encre

indul provi lents dance

our

our felves with fo much lefs pains to keep them, and shall taste more Sweetness in our Observance of them: We shall not meet with fuch Difficulties when we fet upon the Work, nor have fo great and vast Prejudices against God's Laws and Waies to remove; fuch strong Biasses to sinful Courses to knock off, feel grown and radicated finful Habits to root out: We shall enter into the Way of God's Commandments, and fall upon the Practice of Piety with less reluctancy and contranitency: and the longer we have walked in the holy Path, the better we shall like it: the longer we have kept the Divine Precepts; the more we shall experience the Goodness, and find and feel the Comfort of them : and so still be more and more pleased and satisfied with them, and delighted in them.

3. The more haste we make to redeem the Time, it will prove the more profitable and beneficial to us: We shall get the more Grace, the more Peace here; and a greater reward of Glory hereafter.

The more we shall get of God's Grace. Grace is encreased by degrees: and this is the Method of the Divine Wisdom, for God ordinarily to give out his Grace as a help and encouragement to usefulness and Diligence; a Reward and Remuneration of it. God does not use to communicate his Grace to drousy, sleepy, idle, lazy Losterers; but to impart it to waking and stirring, active and busy Persons: Habeni dabitur. * Unto every one that hath, and industriously useth what he hath, in a faithful improvement of his Time, and trading with his Talents; to him shall be given, and he shall have abundance. The more work we do, the more strength Kk 2

ore

bet-

able,

han

de-

are

ed:

will

Sca-

bted

fets

for-

he

eath

un-

ous

no-

all

tue.

to act

the

or,

ac-

to

hall

he

we-

m.

the

ng

^{*} Mat. 15. 19.

and Grace we shall receive: and therefore let's early be up, and quickly be doing.

Again; The fooner we do redeem our Time, the more peace we shall have, as well as the more Grace. An early painful, a constant laborious Christian must needs be ordinarily a comfortable Christian. [d] Some degree of comfort attends and follows every good Action, as Heat accompanies Fire, and as Beams and Influences iffue from the Sun: and many degrees of comfort will certainly usually accompany many good Actions. The more we haften to redeem our Time as we ought, we shall the sooner attain to a high degree of Probability, and a comfortable Affurance of our Justification and Right to Salvation. But as long as we wilfully waste our Time, and mif-spend our Hours; so long we shall be troubled with disquieting Doubts, and perplexing Fears. * There is no Peace, Saith my God, to the Wicked; faies the Prophet : But t great Peace have they which love thy Law; faies David: which love it so well, as to make very great halte to keep it.

Once more; As the sooner we redeem our Time and Opportunities, the more Grace and Peace we shall get here; so we shall receive a greater Reward of Glory hereaster. God will remunerate us according to our Works: The more we have done for him, the more we shall receive from him. The more acts of Obedience we have performed, we shall be recompensed with the higher Degree of heavenly Glory. The sooner you do it, so much the better. That's the first.

Con-

de

to

up

Ho

wil

thi

an.

the

who ving

pen

it.

of S

ness

all

thef

fide

ana

tred

have

ledg

ofth

Chri

after

fo m

man

and Drin

Godl times

bear

[[]d] Se. Dr. Si bs's Picface to the Soul's Conflict.

Confider,

(2.) We must make haste, and not delay to redeem the Time, because they that make most haste to redeem it, do find they have work enough to fill up all their Time, and take up all their Daies and The Well-doing the business of Religion will fully employ us all our life long. 'Tis a strange thing, for any to think that the work of a Day, of an Hour, of an Instant, which Wisdom's Children, the most understanding People of God, think a whole Life little enough for. Do you dream of believing in an Instant, of repenting in an Instant? Repentance has many Acts and Exercises belonging to To remove and expel long contracted habits of Sin to arrive to a confirmed fetled state of Goodness, to give an Example of Christian Graces in all Relations and Conditions of Life; certainly these are things that require a large and very considerable traft of Time, and cannot be crouded into a narrow Room.

If we do but consider, that they that have entred the most early into the Service of God, and have done many Years work for God, do acknowledg themselves, even after the pains and industry of thirty or forty Years Piety to be but very imperfect Christians: If the most devout, religious Persons, after their using so much Diligence, do find at last so much Indevotion and Unholiness in themselves; many bad reliques of Selfishness, Worldliness, Pride, and Passion; many initial excesses in Meats and Drinks; much Coldness and Deadness in holy Duties, much Slackness and Remissies in the waies of Godliness; some strong Temptations, which sometimes shake them, and are ready to foil and overbear them; some Weaknesses and Untowardnesses,

UMI

Time, more Chri-

let's

Chriid fole, and many pany deem attain le Afation.

and roub-Fears.

cked; which well,

Time e we ward ccore for The

, we ee of nuch

Con-

which they can never free themselves wholly from: If we well and seriously consider this, we shall be forced to confess, that the Redemption of Time, and Business of Religion, is not to be delaied and put off to be a late, much less the last Work to be done by a Christian.

(3.) We must make haste, and not delay to redeem the Time; for Delaies are Hazardom and difingenuous. Foolish and unreasonable,

1. Unworthy $1. In respect of God.

1. Unworthy in respect of God. Every Delay of the Redemption of our Time for God's Service, it argues our want of Refrect, our lack of Aflection and Love to God: It shows we prefer our Sins before * What an unworthy thing is it, that we should put God off, who should be served in the first place by us, if we had Christianity, or Reason? That we should ever expect to receive the Remard of Eternal Life, and unconceivable Happiness from him, and yet grudg to devote the few Daies of this temporal Life to him? That we should refuse to give our good Daies to God, and strongly presume that God at last will be contented, well-pleased and fatisfied with the weak, and faint, and fickly Service of those evil Daies, which we our selves t shall say we have no pleasure in? What a disinge-MOUNT 71410

tel

tal

an oth

Sa

mo

afi

ly we un me

La

an

we fta

ap

ou

mo

pr

cri

W

^{*} See p. 15. + Eccl. 12. 1.

rom:
Il be
Time, d and
to be

ay to

ay of e, it ation before t we first uson?

from this fe to fume cafed fickly elves ingemom nuous thing is it, not to go to God till we cannot tell whither to go? Just as Men go into an Hospital, when they apprehend they are quite useless, and find themselves utterly disabled to do any Work, and wholly unfit for Labour and Service?

What baseness is it to deal worse with God, than fair condition'd and ingenuous Men deal one with another? * Say not unto thy Neighbour, faies Solomon; Say not unto God, fay I; Gos and come again, and to morrow I will give; when thou hast it by thee. Thou haft thy Endeavours, and thy Heart and Affections more by thee now, than thou art likely to have hereafter: and therefore do not causely and trislingly put God off. The + Wages of an bired Servant, were not to abide with an Ifraelitish Master all Night until the Morning. Nor may we defer the Payment of the Debt which we all ow to our great Landlord, when it is at present justly demanded, and he cannot in honour remit, or forbear it. we unworthily and wickedly oppose our Wills to the Wisdom and Will of God, who best understands what is the fittest Time, and has Right to appoint, and Authority to determine the Time of our Work, as well as the Work it felf. When God fo plainly faies, To day; Is it meet for us to fay, To morrow? Shall we continue to delay, when we promise so often to break off our Delaies? Shall we make God wait, who fo pathetically calls, and cries, O that there were such an Heart in them! (*) When shall it once be? 'Tis unworthy to deal worse with God than we would deal with Men.

Kk4

But

^{*} Prov. 3. 28. † Lev. 19. 13. | Dect. 5. 29.

But how highly unworthy is it to deal worse with God, than we have dealt with Sin, and with the Devil himself? To come on in the Service of God as slowly as a Snail, when we used to *turn to our sinful courses as eagerly and violently as the Horse rusheth into the Battel? To deny God continually what he requires, and reasonably expects; when we have so frequently satisfied and suffilled the Desires of the Flesh, and not once said Nay to the Devil's Temptations? To linger, and delay to keep God's Commandments, who have made the greatest haste and speed, and never in the least delayed to do the Luft's and Works of the Devil?

Once more; What shameful Unworthines is it, to deal worse with God, than God himself deals with w? When we stand in need of God, God makes no unnecessary Delay. Christ is represented as + coming leaping upon the Mountains, and skipping upon the Hills. [e] When the Time of Deliverance is come, Christ makes haste, and rejoiceth to save: and no Mountains nor Hills, either of Sin or Misery can stop him: And shall we secretly justify, maintain and plead for our Delaies, by objecting the many Mountains of Difficulties that stand in the waies of Christ's Commands? When at any time we want any thing, it does not content and fatisfy us that God at last will give us the Mercy, but we are impatient till he does it : We are ready to cry with David, O Lord, make baste to help me: make no tarrying, O my God. We would be loth to be ferv'd fo by God, as we do usually ferve God. When God himself has no delight to put us off, what unworthinefs

wor

to p

Del

men

lay ,

an s

any

thei

ning

chea

con

pto

pati

evil

neß

to f

can

ung

be l

be 1

He

will

ear

ed

lon

Co

age

and

Lif

vat

Ric

^{*} Jer. 8.6. † Cant 2. 8. [e] Bp. Reyn. in loc. [Pf. 40. 13, 17.

worthiness is it for any of us to find in our Hearts to put God off.

with

the

God

our

for se

ally

hen

De.

De-

eep

teit

l to

it,

rith

kes

as

up-

nce

7e:

ery

in-

the

the

me

sfy

we

ry

be en

n-

ſŝ

God makes indeed many great and very long Delaies, with relation to the Execution of his Judgments: But here it is highly disingenuous for us to de-Is it not an indication of lay, because God delaies. an ill Nature, a plain discovery of a bad Temper, for any to defer their Repentance, because God defers their Punishment? and by prolonging and lengthning out our Disobedience, to make God suffer from m, because we do not suffer from him? What wretched baseness is it to take liberty and encouragement to continue still in an evil way, and run on presumproufly in a course of Sin, because God is merciful, patient and long-suffering, and * Sentence against an evil Work is not executed speedily? whenas the Goodneß and Patience of God should lead and oblige us to speedy Repentance; And nothing in the World can possibly appear more unbecoming, and a more ungrateful return to the Kindness of Heaven, than to be bold to be evil, because God is good. What can be more contrary to all Ingenuity, than to fay in your Hearts, and fignify in your Lives, (though you will not for shame speak out such a thing) that you earnestly desire to have some further Time afforded you to live in Sin, and offend God, yet a while longer, by abusing his Mercies and disobeying his Commands; and when all isdone, to receive at last a general Pardon, upon a short and slight Repentance and Confession; and without the Trouble of a boly Life, or taking any pains in working out your Salvation, to be freely and fully made Partakers of the Riches and Treasures of Mercy and Glory?

Shall

^{*} Eccl. 8. 11.

Shall we shew our selves so monstrously disingenuom, as to delay to repent and obey; when in the case of his Judgments, God is so gracious as to delay: But in the case of his Mercies he is so kind as not to delay to give what he sees we are sit to receive?

2. Delaies are unworthy in respect of our selves.

ror,

(1.) The very Act of deferring plainly discovers a false, rotten, corrupt, unsound and unsincere Heart. Some are so weak as to think, there is some. what of Goodness in them, because they resolve to redeem the Time, by becoming penitent and obedient hereafter: But I think it is a Sign of great Baseness. A Man that purposes to keep God's Commandments hereafter, and delaies to keep and obferve them at present; the plain truth of it is, he has no real honest good Mind to keep them at all. He is just like a cheating Debter, that puts off the Payment from day to day, with good Words and fair Promises; not because he really designs to discharge the Debt at the Time appointed; but because he never intends to pay it, if he can possibly shift and avoidit. That which makes you now defirous to defer the Redemption of your Time, will make you loth to redeem it hereafter, as well as now.

(2.) To delay the Redemption of our Time, is very unworthy in respect of our selves, because it insers the misimprovement and misemployment of our rational Faculties, and the great Abuse of our bodily Members during our Delaies. When every one of us have Souls capable of doing God and our Generation good Service, what an unworthy thing is it either not to employ, or to misemploy the noble Powers of our reasonable Souls, which are alwaies

fit

fit fo

dilat

ly fr

to c

to t

fet :

Mo

as Itea

Me

Lar

ing

TIO

me

all

Gi

bu

So

T

R

fit for higher Services, and better Uses, than the dilatory Sinner puts them to. Does it not too plaintly speak a mean and low and base Spirit, to chuse to continue a Slave to Sin, a Drudg and Bondman to the Devil; when thou might'st be busied and set a-work in God's Service, and very honourably and gainfully employed by the great and mighty Monarch of the World? To yield your Members as Instruments of Unrighteousness unto Sin, instead of yielding your selves to God, and your Members as Instruments of Righteousness unto God?

2. To delay the Redemption of our Time, is hazardous and dangerous, as well as unworthy and difingenuous. For,

renu-

n the

de-

nd as

re-

elves.

vers

ncere

ome-

obe-

reat

om-

ob-

, he

He

Par

fair

arge

he

and

to

iake

e it

of

our

ery

our hing

oble

aies

fit

(1.) The Time of our Life is very uncertain. Seriously consider, that if thou dost not take the present Time, Time with thee may quickly be no more. [f] He that is long forborn, is often snatch away of a sudden. * Thou maiest go down to the Grave in a Moment. Thou maiest be dead, and buried; thy Body be rotten in the Grave, and thy Soul grievously tormented in Hell, long before the Time comes which thou didst fix and set for thy Repentance, and the amendment of thy Life. [g] Delay, saies Seneca, is the greatest Loss of humane

[[]f] Subito tollitur, qui din toleratur. Gregor. Hom. 12. in [&]quot;Job 21. 13.

[g] Maxima vita jactura, dilatio est. Illa primum quemque extrahit diem, illa eripti prasenta, dum ulteriora promittit. Maximum viventi impedimentum est, expectatio qua pendur ex crassino. Quò spectas, quò te extendis è emnia qua ventura sunt, in incorto squent: protinus vive. Sen, de brev. vit. Cap. 9.

mane Life: It deprives us of that which is present, while it Promises that which is future. The greatest hindrance of living well, faies he, is, Hope of living to morrow. But it is a noted Saying of St. Gregory, [h] He that hath promised Pardon to him that repents, he has not promised to morrow to repent in. And if God has not promifed it to us, we have no reason to promise it to our selves: for, 'tis a Rule in Civil Law, [i] No Person can promise that which is anothers. He spake prudently and piously, who when he was invited to come to morrow to a Feast, returned this Answer, I have not had a morrow for these many Years. It was good Counsel which a wife Rabbi gave his Scholar, that he should be fure to repent one Day before he died. But if you delay to be penitent and pious, holy and religious, the present Day; you may never have the Benefit and Advantage of another.

Toung Men too commonly lavish out the present, in hope of redeeming the future Time: But they build their Hope upon the greatest Uncertainty in the World. [k] Young Men (as Tully brings in Cato discoursing) in some respects, are in greater danger of Death than Old Men: They fall into Diseases more easily, sicken more violently, and are cured more hardly: and therefore there are but very sew that reach to an Old Age. The Jews tell of Ben Sy-

ra

ra ye

ry)

Lan

be w

then

Chu

my J

wha

lear

Ma

WOI

lear

begi

lear

liger

100

Our

Ma

this

Da

like

are

pelle

cape

faci

vari

ceda

conc

2730r

[[]h] Lai panitenti veniam fopondit, peccants diem craftinumnon promisit. Greg. Hom. 12. in Euang.

[[]i] Nemo potest promittere alsenum [k.] Quu est tam stultum (quamvu sit adolescens) cui sit explorarum, se ad restrum esse victurum? Quantitam atau illa muli oplures, quam nostra, mortus cassus habet. Faculiu in mortus incidunt adolescentes, gravine agrosant, tristini curantur. Itaque pauci veniunt ad senectutem. Cicero in Cat. Maj seu ce Senect.

ra yet a Child, (as [1] Dr. Stoughton relates the Story) that he begged of his Master to instruct him in the Law of God, who defer'd it, and put him off; saying, he was too young yet to be entred into Divine Mysteries: then he replied, But Master, Said he, I have been in the Church-yard, and perceive by the Graves which I have lain down by, and measured, and find shorter than my self, that many have died younger than I am, and what shall I do then? and if I should die before I have learned the Law of God, what would become of me then Master? The consideration of our short Life, saies that worthy Doctor, should cause us to [m] make haste to learn to know, and serve God, and to think we cannot begin to study that Lesson too soon, that can never be learned too well. And withal to use all Speed and Diligence, lest, as Children have usually torn their Books, Jo, we have ended our Lives, before we have learned our Lessons.

* Work while it is Day: the Night cometh, when no Man can work. † Tet a little while is the Light [of this Life] with you: walk while ye have the Light, lest. Darkness come upon you. Do not carry your selves like idle Boies, who play away their Candle, and then are forced to go to bed in the dark,

Thy Life is uncertain; and therefore, with Apelles that curious Painter, let no Day go with-

out

Joh. 9 4. † & 12. 35.

while

thin-

ng to

gory,

ents,

God

1 to

Civil

ano-

hen

re-

for

1 a lure

lay

the

nd

nt,

ey

in

a-

er

if-

ed

W

yra

^[1] Dr. Stoughton's Heavenly Conversation, p. 81, 82. [m] Adhec quarenda natus, aftina, quam non multum acceperit temporie, etsamfi illud totum fibs vendicet, cui licet nihil facilitate cripi, nibil negligendo patratur excidere, licet borus avarifin è servet, & usque in ultima atatu humana terminos procedat, nec quicquam illi ex to quod natura constituit, fortuna concutsat: tamen homo ad immortalium cognitionem nimu mortalis eft. Sen. de Otio fap. c. 31.

out fome Stroke, or Line drawn to the Life: Let no Day pass without dispatching some lawful Business, without performing some good Work, and doing some laudable vertuous Action. Do every Day the Work of that Day: Make Religion thy business every day of thy Life.

(2.) Delaies and Prorogations are very dangerous, because many other things are exceeding uncertain as well as our Lives. Thou dost not know, but that by some Disease thou maiest quite lose the use of thy Reason, and the natural right Exercise of thy Rational Faculties, and so become in a manner dead, even while thou liveft. Or if still thou retainest the free use of thy Reason, yet thou maiest be deprived of the means of Grace, and helps to Salvation: * Thy Teachers may be removed into a Corner. Thou maiest be pinch'd with a Framine of hearing the Word of the Lord; and be ready to perish for want of Vision. Or through Sickness, or some fad Providence, thou maiest be hindred and detain'd from making use of those common Means, which others comfortably and profitably enjoy. Or, if thou hast Liberty to attend on the outward means of Grace, thou maiest (*) receive the Grace of God in vain, not (+) know and understand in this thy Day the things that belong unto thy Peace. maiest have a (||) Price in thy hand to get Wisdom, and be fuch a Fool as to have no heart to it. Mind may become more unprepared, and thy Will more indisposed to receive the Truth, and embrace the Goodness of the Word. Thou maiest be ready to * refift the working of the Spirit in the great OrOrdin ordina

Grace

are lik

untrac

more i

and ft

higious

Courf

on fin

prove left, a

Roots

pard's

wilt b

is to d

ther (

tinati

God 1

verais

fluenc

tions,

and f fectua

cial G

ment

laies

Peace

tan's

thee u of M

.]

† 2

that if

^{} Ifa. 30. 20. † Amos 8 11, 12. || Prov. 29. 18. () 2 Cor. 6. 1. (†) Luk. 19 42. (*) Prov. 17. 16. * Acts 7. 51.

Ordinances of the Gospel; and majest render its ordinary Motions ineffectual, and the common Grace of God unfuccessful. Thy continued Delaies are likely to render thee more unteachable and untractable, more incurable and unchangeable; more full of false Opinions of God and his Waies, and ftrong Prejudices and Heart-risings against Religious Practices; more fetled in fintul Waies and Thy chosen Delaies will insensibly draw on finful Habits, and evil Cultoms, which will prove and become a second Nature, and be hardly left, and difficultly laid down. These poisonous Roots will not be easily pluckt up. These * [a] Leopard's Spots will not be quickly fetcht out. Thou wilt be as unable to do it thy felf, as an Ethiopian is to change his Skin: and it is a t peradventure whether God will cure a customary, habitual procrastinating Sinner. Upon thy wilful long Delaies God may deny thee the feafonable Aids, and foveraign Auxiliaries of his Grace; suspend the Influences, withdraw the Assistances, cease the Motions, and discontinue the Strivings of his Spirit; and fo all outward Means enjoyed may prove ineffectual for your Good. God may withhold his special Grace, in Judgment for your Non-improvement of common Grace. Yea, thy obstinate Delaies may provoke God to hide the things of thy Peace from thy Eyes, to deliver thee over into Satan's Power, to leave thee to thy felf, to (*) give thee up to thy own Heart's Lusts, to judicial Blindness of Mind, to dreadful carnal Security, and horrible et und

TY

hy

97-

1275 ut.

fe-

of

er

e-

ft.

to.

of

P-

or

d

9,

y.

d

ce.

115

וצו

7,

y

11

-

t

^{*} Jer. 13. 23.

[4] Naturalits say, that Spots are so deep in the Leopard, that if you take off the Skin, they will appear in the very Flesh.

† 2 Tim. 2. 25. || Luk. 19. 42. (*) Pf. 81. 13.

ble [b] Hardness of Heart; to a * reprobate Mind, and a + feared cauterized Conscience. Punishment of thy Delaies, God may suffer thee to fin on, till thou comft to be | past feeling; and not help thee to recover any spiritual Sence in a dying Hour: but at last (*) give thee the Spirit of Slumber, or let thee fall into the lamentable Condition of downright Desperation. Of each of which, a lear. ned [c] Writer gives us a very notable and remarkable Example: Of the former, out of [d] Petrus Damianus, of one Gunizo, a factious and ambitions Person, to whom the Tempter gave notice of his approaching Death; but when any Man preached Repentance to him, out of a strange Incuriousness, or the Spirit of Reprobation, he seem'd like a dead and unconcerned Person: in all other Discourses he was awake and apt to answer. And of the latter, out of Venerable [e] Bede, of a drunken Monk, who upon his Deathbed seem'd to see Hell open'd, and a Place assign'd him near to Caiaphas, and those who crucified our dearest Lord. The Religious Persons that stood about his Bed, call'don him to repent of his Sins, to implore the Merties of God, and to trust in Christ; but he answered, This is no time to change my Life, the Sentence is past upon me, and it is too late.

There may be no room and place for Consideration and Repentance upon thy Death-bed, either through fenslessness and stupidity, caused by the special

Divi

too de

fite ?

ter b

Conf

and .

faint

der t

much

thou

Tho

thy |

thy I

thy I

thy f

Wor

a ftra

ching

taskt

diftw

conce

Thou

ginat

the I

yet is ing a bout Cond

Divi

man

Bu

B

[[]b] Illud eff cor durum quod non trepidat ad nomen cordu duri. Bern.

^{*} Rom. 1. 28. † 1 Tim. 4 2. | Eph. 4.19.

^(*) Rom. 11. 8.

[[]c] Gr. Exempl. part. 3. $. 15. p. 559. [d] Biblioth. Frat. Pol. Tom. 3.

cial Disease of thy Body, or the sad and direful Divine Judgment: or through too quick a feeling, too deep a sense of pungent corporal Pain, or exquisite Torture of Mind and Conscience: the Tempter busily setting in with thy own guilty awaken'd Conscience, to aggravate thy Sins to thy Terrour and Amazement, and to load thee heavily till thou faintest, sinkest and fallest, crusht and broken under the Burden.

But suppose thou shouldst stand at that Day in much more moderate tolerable Circumstances, yet thou maiest be distracted and diverted with the Thoughts of making or altering thy Will, setling thy Estate, disposing and ordering the Assairs of thy Family, stating and clearing the Interests of thy Relatives. And when thou art about to bid thy final and last Farewel to every thing in this World that is near and dear to thee, and art under a strange and strong apprehension of hastily approaching Death and Judgment, 'twill prove a very hard task to gain and maintain a well-composed and undisturbed Mind in the management of thy great Soulconcerns.

But admit thou shouldst enjoy much Freedom of Thoughts, and have the greatest Advantage imaginable of a quiet sedate Frame and Temper, in the Procedure of that most busy Day and Hour, yet is there a very formidable Danger of thy dying and departing without rational Satisfaction about the Goodness and Safety of thy State and Condition, or any comfortable Evidence of the Divine Acceptance of thy Death-bed Performance.

3. To delay the Redemption of thy Time, is high-

Mind,

ay of

ee to

not

ying

mber,

n of

lear .

d re-

Pe-

is ap-

epen-

Spi-

cern-

d apt

able

ath-

bim

arest

Bed,

Mer-

ered,

past

ati-

ther

special

or die

highly umeasonable, and very [c] foolish: to put off the building of a spiritual Temple in thy Soul, as the Jews excused their Neglect of re-edifying the material Temple, by saying, * The Time is not come.

What Folly is it, to [d] lose the present, which God has put in thy ownhand, and to determine and dispose of the surre Time, which only and wholly relts in the Hand of God, and is quite out of thine. To Put all to the venture of repenting and securing thy State hereafter, when so many have ruin'd and undone themselves without Remedy or Recovery, by lingring and loitering Delaies?

What a plain and apparent Self-delusion is it, to except against, and wave the present Time, because it is present; since when that Time which now is future shall become present, you must then put that off for the same reason that now you put this

by ?

What a filly Cheat dost thou put upon thy self, while thou dost pretend a purpose to make but a very short Delay; a Desire to enjoy thy Sin but a little longer, it may be but this once more; and a Resolution then to part and shake hands with it for ever? when as the very next touch may deadly insect thee, the very next taste poison thee; one other Closure with sensual Pleasure will in all probability more deeply enamour thee; one farther

em-

em

bri

car

hol leav

112 to c

and

it?

and toc

whi

Th

mai

kee

hol

thei

ther

mon

to v cou

repe

of a and

fore

din

felf and wha

tion

Sins

dica

whe

him

ŀ

Cras vives: hodie jam vivere, Postume, serum est.
Ille sapst, quisquis, Postume, vixis heri.

1d. 1. 5. epigr. 58.

[[]e] Non est, cre le mihi, sapientis dicere, Vivam. Sera nimis visa est crastina, vive hodie. Matriol I. r. epigr. 10

Hag. 1. 2.

Hag. 1. 2.

Alf Perdis hodiernum: quod in manu fortuna positum eff, disponis: quod in tua, dimittu. Sen. de brev. vit. c. 9.

embrace of Sin more bewitch and fascinate, inebriate and intoxicate thee; one step more presently carry thee into a Snare, that will entangle and hold thee fast for ever. Is it likely that thou wilt leave thy Sin, when thou shalt be more in love with it, more enflaved to it? and that thou wilt be able to deny thy Luft, when thou hast greatly provoked and inflamed it, by farther gratifying and fulfilling it? Dost not thou take a direct course to befor and infatuate thy felf, and to bring thy felf at last to delight in the Remembrance of those beloved Sins, which thou shalt not be able to act any longer? Thou Fool darest thou venture to break the Commandments of God now, and pretend a purpose to keep them hereafter; when every breach of God's holy Laws will leffen thy Aw and Reverence of them, make thee more unfit and unable to keep them, more averse to the Observation of them, more ready to contemn them, more prone and bold to violate them for the future?

How lamentably dost thou abuse thy self, by encouraging thy self to Sin at present, upon hopes of repensing hereafter? that is, in plainterms, in hopes of accusing and condemning thy self, of blushing and becoming asham'd and consounded; of being forely troubled, greatly grieved, and sorry exceedingly at thy very heart; of falling out with thy self at last, calling thy self Fool, Mad-man, Beast; and punishing and taking Revenge upon thy self for

What a vain Confidence and groundless Expectation is it, to think thou shalt easily get rid of thy Sins, when they will be much more riveted and radicated: and presently recover the Favour of God, when thou hast more highly provoked and incensed him with thy aggravated Sins, and multiplied Pro-what thou hast done.

Ll 2 vocations:

est,

it off

is the

ma-

come.

vhich

e and

holly

bine.

iring

and

very,

t, to

caule

w is put

this

felf,

but

out a id a

h it

ead-

one

oba-

ther

em-

vocations: and quickly regain the Motions of God's Spirit, when thou hast grieved and driven him away by thy very tedious long Delaies?

What a false and imaginary Hope is it, to look at last to obtain the Pardon of all thy Sins, without having respect to God's Commandments in the course of thy Life? when God does intend and promise Pardon in order to Holiness, and chiefly design it as an Encouragement to chearful faithful sincere Obedience. * There is Forgiveness with thee; that thou maiest be feared: saies the Psalmist.

How unreasonable is it, to live in a continual Neglect of thy present necessary indispensable Duty, and to expect that God at last should yield to accept [e] the Will for the Deed, when the Deed is out of thy own Power meerly through thy onn

Default?

What Weakness is it, to delight to delay, when nothing is to be gotten by it? when thou canst not hope that God hereafter will alter his Law, change his Covenant, accept and save thee upon cheaper Terms and easier Conditions than now he is pleased to propose to thee. When God's Will is not likely to alter, northy own Will more likely by Delay to be wrought to a Compliance with the Divine Will, what is the meaning of all thy tarrying? Is it prudent to delay thy Duty, when thou canst not retard thy Punishment? when though thou lingerest and delaiest, yet * thy Judgment now of a long time lingreth not, thy Damnation slumbreth not.

Yea, what an unaccountable carriage is it, by making Delaies to cast thy self into grand Inconveniences;

nie

fta

ful

in,

fro

and

ons

and

 $\mathsf{E}f$ leif

and

[g full

con

[b]

and

Wor

alon

and

limi

[1]

[]

N

3

Eg

[h] fitan lulun

1. 8.

^{*} Pf 130 4. [e] See the Gt. Exemp. p. 302. * 2 Pet, 2, 3.

mences; to run thy felf into fuch unhappy Circumstances, that thou shalt have hereafter a more painful difficult Work to do than ever, less time to do it in, less strength within, and smaller aids and helps from without, from Heaven above, to do it with; and shalt meet with more hindrances and obstructions in the doing of it from the Devil, the World, and thy own Corruptions?

s of

riven

k at hout

the

pro-

de-

lin-

hee;

nual

Du-

d to

Deed

onn

hen

ope

his

rms

to

y to o be /ill,

ruard

and

reth

by

ve-

es;

What an absurdity is it to multiply Delaies, and [f] never to make any end of them? to find no leifure in all thy Life to live well? to lengthen out, and let thy morrow grow till it reach the years of [g] Priamus or Neftor ; and, if it were possible, the full Age of Methuselah? St. Austin confelles and condemns his former lingring dilatory Temper. [h] I was clearly convinced by the Truth, faies he, and had nothing to answer but only lazy and sleepy Words, another time, shortly, a while hence, let me alone but a little longer: But my Delaies were endless and infinite, and would keep and observe no measures or I prayed in this manner to thee, faies he; [i] Lord give me the gift of Chastity and Continence:

[f] Victures agimus semper, nec vivimus unquam.

Cras hoc fiet. Idem eras fiet Quid? quasi magnum Nem; e diem donas ? sed cum lux altera venit, Fam cras hesternum con um simus : ecce alinderas Egerst hos annos, & femper paulum erit ultra. Perf. fat. 5. v. 66.

[2] Die mihi cras ift ud, Postume, quando venit ? - Jam cras iftud habet Priams vel Neftoris annos. Martial. 1. 5. epigr. 58 Vide & l. 2. epigr. 64.

[h] Non erat omnino quod responderem verstate convictas, nifitanin verbalenta & fomnolenta, Modo, ecce modo, fine panlulum. fed modo I modo non habebant modum. Aug. Confess,

[i] Da mibi caftitatem & continentiam, fed woli modo : ti-

But I faid in my heart, pray do not give it yet to me, for I was afraid left thou shoulds hear me too quickly, and heal me too soon, &c. And at last he reasoned himself out of this unreasonable Humour, in this manner; How long, how long shall I put it off till to morrow, and next day? Why not now? Why should not this very Hour put an end to my lewd and loofe Life?

What unhappy Folly is it to delay the Time of thy Youth, and so to lose the [k] Flower of thy Age?

What a Reproach and Disparagement to thy Judgment and Understanding, that when thou art come to years of Maturity, arriv'd to thy Middle Age, thou shouldst shew thy self so inconsiderate and indiscreet as still to delay, and not to use thy Reason and Judgment aright?

What a farther and higher degree of Folly is it, to defer the Redemption of thy Time till [1] Old Age? The Stoick will tell thee, [m] Tis late to spare

wh

The

leap

not

Rel

Self

and

ed

the

Lif

as t

Tea

Lif

thei

Epi

toli

ly l

or j

of (

Inft

TV

fta

ing

Go

Ti

ful

Ca

diff

Fel

13.

mebam enim ne me cità exaudires, & cità sanares, &c. Ibid cap. 7.

Quamdiu, quamdiu cras & cras ? Quare non modo ? Quare pon hac hora fivis turpitudinis mea ? Ib. c. 12. § 1.

[t] See p. 22.

[1] Our feeking all Summer, withered and dry, and beginning to shoot out a little, about Michaelmass spring: of which kind of shooting fruit can never come. Bp. Andrew's Serm. pag. 174.

[m] Sera parsimonia in fundo est. Non enim tantim mivimum in imo, sed pessimum remanet. Sen. ep. 1.

Non susiet eveliquias vita tibi ve evave, & id solum tem pui bona menti dessinave, quod in nullam rem conferts possie? Quana serum est tune vivere iacipire, chin dessinadum est? qua tam suita mortalitatis oblivio, in quinquagesimum & se agesimum annum disserve sana conssia: & sinde vestem inchoare, quò pauci perduxerunt? Id de brev. vit. e. 4.

Quidam vivere tunc incipiunt, cum desinendum est. Quidam ante vivere desecrunt, quan inciperent, Idem, epitt, 12.

in fine.

when thou comest to the Bottom: for it is not only the least, but the very worst, that is left to the last. Art not thou asham'd, saies he, to reserve nothing but the Reliques, the Drofs, the Dregs and Refuse for thy self; and to set that Time for the bettering of thy Mind and amendment of thy Manners, which can be bestowed on nothing elfe? Is it not extreamly tate, faies he, then to begin to live, when thou shouldst make an end of Life? What is so foolish a Forgetfulness of Mortality, as to defer wholsome Counsels to the fiftieth or sixtieth Tear of thy Age, and to think to enter upon a vertuous Life at such a time, as very few have lengthned out their daies to? I may here apply those Words of Epicurus, commended and adopted by Seneca, [i] What is more uncomely than an Old Man beginning to live? Though the Truth is, in the case of Godly Living, Better late than never. But is it any act or part of Wisdom, to resolve to begin to redeem the Time at fuch an Age, when thou wilt blush, in confideration of thy Years, to discover to any thy wonderful, shameful, gross Ignorance of the things of God, in order to thy receiving Information and Instruction, and furnishing thy Mind with necessary Knowledg; and, through Weakness of Understanding and Memory, be more uncapable of learning the great things of the Christian Religion, and Gospel-Institution, than thou wast in thy Younger Time: And wilt be backward to attempt so ungrateful a Work as openly to censure the Actions and Carriages of thy past Life, and to condemn and discontent thy old Companions, by forsaking their Fellowship, and taking up a course of Life so whol-Ll4 ly

o me,

ickly,

oned

this ill to

l not

thy

art

and

, to

Old

pare

when

loid

ware

gin-

hich

cym,

01221-nfill

NEW YOR

tam

Qui-

[[]i] Quidest turpim quam fenex virere incipiens? Sen. cp.

ly different from, and directly contrary to theirs: And when thou wilt find it so [k] tough an undertaking, so troublesome and uneasy a task, to conquer and master, to expel and extirpate inveterate vicious Habits, which have been growing all thy Life, and to get vertuous Dispositions and gracious Habits introduced and planted in thy Heart? Is this to conclude and act rationally, to think to turn thy self at large to the full Exercise of all thy Christian Duty, when thou art reduc'd to a little Nook and Corner of thy Life? What lamentable wretched Folly is it, to defer all to an [l] Old Age?

But is not this the most marvellous Folly and Madneß of all, to adjourn the necessary Work and weighty Business of Redemption of Time to a dying Day and Hour ? or to put off all to a Death-bed; and fo to make that the Time of beginning, which should be only the Time of renewing Repentance; and to cast thy self into such straits, in which thou shalt have no time to receive, and make use of that variety of God's Grace, his preventing, restraining, affilting, furthering, quickning, ftrengthning, confirming, persevering Grace, which it is his usual sapiential Method to dispense and afford for the gradual bringing returning Sinners, in the way of Obedience and Holy Living to a participation of the great Rewards of a blelled Eternity. conclude and thut up thy felf within fuch narrow Can-

[1] Ante sonectutem cur andum est ut homo bene vivat, in see schute autem ut bene moriatur. Sen.

Ca

he

par

qui cle

un

the

do

Ob

D

CO

an

Rig

Mo

WE

no

(*

W

172

th

pe

fc.

th

fee

ki

to

of

^[6] God in Wissom will have the Conversions of such as have gone on in a course of Sinning (especially after Light revealed) to be rare and difficult. Births in those that are aucienter, are with greater danger than in the younger fort. Cavendum est vulnus quod delive curatur. Dr. Sibbs's Soul's confl. p 327.

Cancels, Bounds and Limits, wherein thou fhalt be utterly unable to discharge and perform a great part of that Duty, which the Gospel expresly requires as the ordinary Qualification, and common clearly revealed Condition in order to Salvation; unable to * do the Commandments of God, tokeep the Commandments of God, and the Faith of Jesus; to do, to keep them all; when thou shalt want the Objects and Opportunities of performing the feveral Duties, and exercifing the feveral Graces, which a course of Obedience plainly includes: unable to answer the end of Christ's Death, by | living to Righteousnes: to exercise Chastity, Temperance, Mortification, as acts of Election, when thy Body is weak, and low, and languishing; no Lust stirring, no Temptation to fuch a Sin alfaulting: unable to (*) live soberly, righteously, and Godly in this present World; to (t) run a Race; () patiently to continue in Well-doing, * without fainting: For these are things, which cannot be dispatch'd on a sudden, perform'd in a trice, or shrunk up into a narrow scantling, so small a pittance of Time. How can thy Light sufficiently shine before Men, that they may fee thy good Works; when thy [k] Candle is just finking into the Socket?

What a wild Fancy, and idle Imagination is it, to [1] flatter thy felf into the Perswalion, that some fudden

[4] Dr. Tillotfon's ferm. 2. vol. p. 80.

irs:

der-

COII-

rate

thy

ious? Is hri-

Vook

tch-

lad-

igh-

Day

and

nich

ce;

hou

hat

ain-

ing,

ulk-

the

of

row

an-

(cd)

are

1201-

fe-

^{} Rev. 22. 14. † & 14. 12. || 1 Pet. 2. 14. () Tit 2. 12. (†) Heb 12. 1. (|) Rom. 2. 7. * Gal. 6. 9.

^[4] VV hen we are come to the very laft cast, our Strength is gone, our Spirit clean spent, our Senses appalled, and the Powers of our Soul as numb as our Senses; when a General Prostration of all our Powers, and the shadow of Death upon our Eyes:

fudden flashings of a passionate Repentance, some fhort gleams of Piety, and little scatterings of Devotion; a few good Thoughts, or Godly Words; fome weak ineffectual Purposes, imperfect Promifes, fallacious Refolutions; or, at most, the Performance of some single Actions, will, upon a Death-bed, be acceptable to God, without babitual Santtity, and an industrious persevering Piety. That a few Prayers and Tears, Sighs and Groans, an extorted Sorrow, and enforced Sadness; a compulfory Confession of thy Sins, and a Gift of Charity left to the Poor, out of that Estate, which now is [m] rather another Man's than thy own, fince thou thy felf art able to keep it no longer; That fuch little flight things as these will serve as a sufficient Composition to be offer'd to God, and prove available to cross and cancel all the Debts, and wipe off the many and great Guilts of a fifty or threefcore Years Impiery and Iniquity: And that the Pardon of all thy Sins will be comfortably fealed, and thy Soul

Then fomething we would fay or do, which should stand for our seeking: But (I doubt) it will not serve. This is the Time we allow God, to seek him in. Is this it? would we then seek him, when we are not in case to seek any thing else? VVould we turn to him then, when we are not able to turn our selves in our Bed? Or, rise early to seek him, when we are not able to rise at all? Or enquire after him, when our Breath faileth us, and we are not able to speak three VVords together? No Hour, but the Hour of Death? No Time, but when he taketh Time from us, and us from it? Bp. Andrew's serm. p. 180.

[m] Defer not Charities till Death: for certainly, if a Man weigh it rightly, he that doth so, is rather liberal of an other Man's, than of his own. Sir Fr. Bacon's Effaics, of Riches,

p. 211.

Let thy Alms go before, and keep Heaven's Gate Open for thee; or both may come too late. Herbert's Churc' parch. Soul

and

of t

part

thy

befo

as p

on

tho

Corp

of t

I fide

fuck

to

ple

ly:

for

W

tin

the

of .

gr

Soul be certainly configued to the Joys of Paradife, and Glory of Heaven, by receiving the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper immediatly before thy Departure. That it thou canst but form and frame thy shortest Breath to call upon God with these sive Words, Lord have Mercy upon me, but a little before thy last Gasp; they will really [n] prove as powerful and available for the happy Translation of thy Soul to Heaven, as the mumbling over those sive Words of Consecration, Hoc est enim Corpum meum, for this is my Body, is by the Papists imagined to be effectual for the Transubstantiation of their Host.

Is this confishent with the use of Reason and Confideration, to venture all upon a Death-bed Repentance? to take a wisful Course to bring thy self into such a Condition, in which thou shalt be utterly unable, with all the help that can be afforded thee, to find out one Promise, or to meet with one Example in the whole Bible, that will fully reach, or plainly and properly speak to thy particular case, and afford thee sufficient support, relief and Comfort, in that dark and dismal Day and Hour?

Obj. No Promise? may some object, and say; Why what do you make of those Words? At what time soever a Sinner doth repent him of his Sins, from the bottom of his Heart, I will put all his Wickedness out of my Remembrance, saith the Lord.

Answ. For answer, give me leave to tell you what others make of these Words, and those very great Divines too: 'There are no such Words in 'the

ome

De-

ds;

mier-

itu-

ety.

ns,

m-

ha-

WO

ace

nat

ent il-

off

ore

on hy

oul

ur

we

n.

13

ne s,

[[]n] D ke.

the whole Bible, (faies the very Learned [1] Bp. Taylor) nor any nearer to the sense of them than those Words of the Prophet Ezekjel, chap. 18. 21. But if the Wicked will turn from all his Sins that he hath committed, and keep all my Statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he Shall not die. Or those, chap. 33. 14, 15. in which you shall find Repentance more fully described; When I say unto the Wicked, Thou halt surely die: If he turn from his Sin, and do that which is lawful and * right : if the Wicked restore the Pledg, give again that be had robbed walk in the Statutes of Life without come mitting Iniquity; he shall surely live, he shall not die. Here only is the condition of Pardon; to leave all your Sins, to keep all God's Statutes, to walk in them, to abide, to proceed, and make progress 'in them; and this, without the interruption by a deadly Sin, [without committing Iniquity] to make restitution. - Satisfaction for all Injury to our 'Neighbour's Fame, all wrongs done to his Soul: · — When this is done according to thy utmost Power, then thou hast repented truly, then thou 'hast a title to the Promise; Thou shalt surely live, thou shalt not die, for thy old Sins thou halt formerly committed. This Place of Ezekiel is it which is so often mistaken for that common Saying, At what time foever,&c. Repentance as stated by the Prophet cannot be done [at what time foe-"ver not upon a Man's Death-bed. that Saying therefore no more deceive you, or be 'made a colour to countenance a persevering Sinoner, or a Death-bed Penitent. And it is observable what a free reflection the judicious Chillingworth, in a [m] Sermou preached bebefor

on th

to or

"faic

car

" cal

of of

har

" the

an.

ane

rea

'ver

as 1

· fai

it,

'ver

"T

eal

" wh

" the

· W

· Pe

" all

'in

ea!

e ve

c ri

· He

· bu

is is

· la

· W

· yo

the

^[1] Serm, of the Invalid, of a Death-bed Rep. part, 2.

before King Charles the First, was bold to make upon that Pailage, which then stood in the entrance to our Common-Prayer-Book: 'I would to God, 'faies he, the Composers of our Liturgy, out of a care of avoiding millakes, and to take away Occasion of cavilling our Liturgy, and out of Fear of encouraging Carnal Men to fecurity in finning, 'had been so provident, as to set down in Terms, the first Sentence taken out of the 18th of Ezekiel, and not have put in the place of it an ambiguous, and (though not in it felf, yet accidentally, by reason of the mistake to which it is subject) I fear very often a pernicious Paraphrafe; for, whereas thus they make it, At what time soever faith the Lord; the plain truth, if you will hear it, is, the Lord doth not fay fo, these are not the 'very Words of God, but the Paraphrase of Men: 'The Words of God are* — where, I hope, you easily observe that there is no such Word as, At what time soever a Sinner doth repent, &c. and that there is a wide difference between this (as the Word repent usually sounds in the Ears of the 'People) and turning from all Sins, and keeping 'all God's Statutes: That indeed, having no more in it but Sorrow and good Purposes, may be done easily and certainly at the last Gasp; and it is very strange that any Christian, who dies in his 'right Senfes, and knows the difference between 'Heaven and Hell should fail of the performing it: but this Work of turning, keeping, and doing, is - ordinarily a Work of Time, a long and 'laborious Work (but yet Heaven is very well 'worth it) and if you mean to go through with it, you had need go about it prefently. And I find the Reverend and Learned Mr. Robert Bolton exprefling

Bp.

than

. 21.

at he

d do

, he

hich

ed;

die:

and

that

om-

die.

all

in ress

ya

ike

our

1:

oft

ou

ve,

1-

it

y-

be

e-

et

be

1-

1-

^{*} EZEK 18. 24.

fing himself to the same purpose; [n] I marvel, faies he, that any should be so blindfolded, and baffled by the Devil, as to embolden himself to drive off until the last, by that Place before Confession: At what time foever, &c. Especially, if he look upon the Text from whence it is taken; which, me-thinks, being rightly understood, and the Conditions well considered, is most punctual, and precise, to fright any from that desperate Folly: The Wordsrun thus, Ezek. 18.21, 22, &c. Hence it appears, that if any Man expect upon good ground, any portion in this pretious Promise of Mercy and Grace, he must leave all his Sins, and keep all Now what space is left to God's Statutes. --come to Comfort, by keeping all God's Statutes; when thou art presently to pass to that highest and dreadful Tribunal, to give an exact and strict Account for the continual Breach of all God's Laws all thy Life long?

But I must defire the Objector to remember, that when some Alterations were made by Authority in our Liturgy, the Paraphrase was removed, and the proper Words of Scripture put in the room of it: and now the self-deceiving Procrastinator will not well know what to do for want of a What time soever, &c. which is nowhere now to be found or met with in all his Bible, or Common-Prayer-

Book.

Obj. But a Friend to Delaies may further object, and fay; Though, I confess, I was out in alledging the Promise, yet certainly there is an Example that affords sufficient ground of Comfort to a late and Death-bed Penitent. You cannot deny, saies

faie

the

cept

that

OCC

Dir

per awa

gre

rath

fure

Stre

Sins

mal

Sick

diat

ftar

you

con

ous

for Rob

the

Ron

tog

1

I

[[]w] Mr. Bolton's Instruct, for a right comf. Affl. Confe. pag.

faies he, but that the Thief was converted upon the Cross, in the last Hour of his Life; and, not-withstanding his extream late Repentance, was accepted and received by Christ to Mercy.

Answ. It is especially from this Example abused, that ignorant Dawbers, and untaught Teachers take occasion to prepare and make up that [o] Opiate Divinity, which they minister to the Souls of superficial Death-bed Penitents, and so fend them away into the Paradise of Fools. And this is the great Rock of Presumption, which many build, or rather split upon: They resolve to enjoy the Pleasures of Sin during the Season of their Health and Strength; and intend and hope to repent of their Sins, and turn to God, to accept of Christ and make sure of Heaven upon the Cross of their last Sickness, and with the beatisted Thies to slip immediatly into Paradise.

But I shall labour to convince you, that the Instance of the Thief upon the Cross will [p] not suit your Condition, nor serve your turn. For here consider with me these few things:

1. That, it may be, he was not so vile and vicious a Person, as he is commonly taken to have been: for λης μς and Latro do not alwaies note a Thief or Robber, but signify a Souldier; and out of Zeal to the Jews he might have somewhat transgress'd the Roman Laws: It may be otherwise he was not altogether so bad a Man: But thou knowest the hei-

210146

vel

fled

ntil

rom

bily

nost

ate

&c. ood

rcy

all

to

hen

lful

the

g?

er,

Wi-

ind

of vill

ime

er-

b-

in

x-

to ies

ag.

^[0] Bp. Andrews feim. 1. of. Repent. and Fast. p. 181.

[[]P] Vid. Chillingworth's ferm. 6th on Luke 16. 9. p. 397.

nous circumstances of thy own misled and ill-governed Life.

2. Suppose him to have been a notorious Ill Liver: yet it is to be confidered, that the Conversion and Salvation of the Thief is an extraordinary Instance: For.

(1.) The Thief was converted at a very remarkable Time, when the Son of God and Saviour of the World shed his precious Blood, and suffer'd a painful shameful Death, to satisfy the Divine Law and Justice, and to redeem and recover lost and miferable Mankind: And certainly if ever God would work a Miracle, he would do it then. Dost thou hope to exercise Repentance unto Life at the Hour of Death, and to fue out a Pardon with thy last Breath, when thou hast not heartily and devoutly call'd upon God in all thy Life, because God had Mercy on the Thief upon the Cros? 7 ell me, canst thou expect that Christ should come another Time into the World, and fuffer again, and die once more for Mankind? if fo, then thou maielt conceive great Hopes indeed that God will do the like again, and it may fare as well with thee as it did with the Thief. Christ then triumphing on the Cross, (faies the Worthy [p] Mr. Daniel Dyke) did as Princes do in the Triumph of Entring into their Kingdoms; they pardon groß Offences before committed, such as they pardon not afterwards. And [9] Mr. Robert Bolton useth an Illustration somewhat like it; A King sometimes pardons a Malefaltour at the Place of Execution, saies he; wilt thou therefore run de-Sperately fper at hopin If liv'd to hi ordin fion o expr an A And pect what plain MATY read $\lceil n \rceil$ ftrong > ral F bits ; shoul ence. of G graci ned I think felft

Impr

ner,

12 action ram s tanta

ARINIA 9 40 111 ordina

[[]p] Treat. of Repent, p. 162.
[q] Instruct. for a right comf. Affl. Confc. p. 251.

fer ately into some horrible Villany, deserving Death, hoping to be that One amongst many Thousands?

If God do good to any Sinner, that has fecurely liv'd in his Sins all his Daies, and bring him home to himself at last; he goes out of the way of his ordinary Grace and Providence; and the Converfion of a Sinner upon his Death-bed, it is a high expression of extraordinary Grace and Mercy, and an Act of God's absolute Power and Soveraignty : And furely it is fateft and most comfortable to expect from God not meerly what he can do, but what he has promis'd in his Word, and given us plain notice that he will do; and what in the ordinary course of his Providence he declares himself ready to do. I make no Question, but God is [n] able in the shortest Time to work such clear and frong Convictions, and to make fuch powerful deep Impressions upon the Mind and Heart of a dying Sinner, as should have the virtue and power of a general Habit, or be equivalent to many particular Habits; and in case of longer continuance of Life, should be effectual to a lasting persevering Obedi-And I readily acknowledg, that the Nature of God is infinitely merciful: and that it was the gracious Nature of God, which mov'd and inclined him to make the Evangelical Promise; and, I think, he has not so restrain'd and bound up himfelf by the New Covenant, but that, if he pleafe, M m

ver_

Li-

rfi-

ary

irk-

rof

da

aw

and boi

oft

the

hy

de-

od

ne,

her

die

eft

he

it

he

(3) eir

ir-

ke he

le-

ly

[[]n] Agentis naturali mode, debilius agunt quàmut pollist uni actu habitum informare, tatoque opus est subinde repeticie actibus. — At res longe aliter se hibet in divinie, chin nemiram u qui product actum Deus ist, Deus, inquam, agentantà ri Tessaccia, us statimprimo illo actu — in uti aque anima parte seu sotentia habitus sides & chiritatus ingeneral, atque infundat quisse. Carretonis oper. p. 712. But I thick, that ordinarily Habitus infulbiasunduntur ad modum acquescoura.

he may use [p] Prerogative Royal, and act beyond his own Covenant-obligation, and ordinary, certain and express Promise, to the faving of a Sinner upon the change of his Mind and Heart, and his having [9] an eternal desire of pleasing God, begotten in him by special Grace ; who has no time to perform the constant Obedience of a holy Life: But, is it easy for thee to expect, that an infinitely wise, holy and just God should at last act in a very extraordinary way, to save thee who wouldst destroythy felf, and hast long neglected the ordinary Means of thy Soul's Salvation; and wouldst by no means know and do the things that belonged unto thy Peace? How very justly may God at last * [r] laugh at thy Calamity, and mock when thy Fear cometh?

(2.) The Learned Author of the [s] Great Exemplar thinks it probable that the good Thief was much advantaged by the intervening Accident of dying at the same time with Christ; there being a natural Compassion produced in us towards the Partners of our Mi-

Mil

thoug

and t

St. P

canfe

the fir

nary

tring

been

fer'd

the f

form

Man.

Lufts

Obed

was I

but y

the or

Thie Instantant b

duced

the H

one th

bed P

pente

uncor

ventu:

thou v an unl

before

(3.

If

⁽p) Divina tum libertati, tum gratia ac misericer dia detratia aut decedei e non partin videtur, si dicatur, Deum non posse, aut no o u iguam tempore velle extra ordinem, id st, preser aut supra qua n promiste, panitentium & respissamentium, licèt se o admodum, & sa capulo quasi vita sua, misereri. Non enim astrimente suite legibus propriu Deus, sed jus suum supremum semente suite um sin servat agendi pro arbitrio suo. Annon licet mis facere de meo quod volo? Mat. 20. 15. Ad jus autem Divinum hoc priticet astimatio panitentia & respissamenta qua in sine vita sit, pro panitentia & respissamenta qua se venia digna est. Episc. Resp. 2d 64 Qualt, qualt. 15.

^[7] See Dr. Sibbs's Soul's Conflict, p. 327.

Prov. 1. 26.

(r) Rifus Dei longe gravior est irâ Dei. Quod Deus loquitur cum rifu, tu legas cam: luctu. Aug.

(s) P. 581, 582.

Miseries. For Christ was not void of humane Passions, though he had in them no Impersection or Irregularity; and therefore might be invited by the Society of Misery, the rather to admit him to participate his foics: and St. Paul proves him to be a merciful High-Priest, because he was touched with a feeling of our Instructies; the surfer expression of which was to this Blessed Thief.

If the Thief had not met with such an extraordinary Opportunity of Sussering with Christ, and entring with Christ into Paradise; though he had been converted, he might have tarried till he had susseried many Years Afflictions and Persecutions for the sake of Christ and his holy Gospel, and persorm'd a long and tedious Work of crucifying the Old Man, crucifying the Flesh, with the Affections and Lusts; of Mortisication, Self-devial, and sincere Obedience. The good Thief, by special Favour, was let into Paradise at a privy Door, as I may say; but you and I must look to go thither, and enter the ordinary Way. Consider,

(3.) That the Conversion and Salvation of the Thief is not only an extraordinary, but a singular Instance. The Example of the Thief, it is but one; and besides this one there is not one more to be produced out of all that Sacred Book, which contains the History of several thousand Tears: and for this one that sped how many millions of late and Deathbed Penitents have eternally miscarried, sadly repented of their late Repentance, and inherited the uncomfortable Portion of Fools? And if thou so all venture to drive off all to the very last, hast not thou very great cause to sear that thou shalt become an unhappy Cast-away, as well as so many have been before thee? Thou dost not think it prudent or sefe

Mm 2

vond

cer-

nner

d his

got-

e to

But,

wife,

ex-

oy thy

ns of

eans

thy

laft

Fear

Ex-

Tras

dying

tural

OHY

Mi-

trahi

, dut

18 fin-

drin-

meer

mabi

4 17 14 194

pilc.

ss 10-

to follow [t] or rely upon single or very unusual Precedents in other things. If a thousand Persons should have perished by the taking of any poisoned Meat, and one only have been miraculously preserved; wouldst thou dare to tafte of that or the like Food, and hope to do well, because one once escaped, when a thousand died? Wilt thou expect to be accommodated, and upon any great Occasion provided for by Miracle, because God once * divided the Sea, and caused his Israel to pass through, and made the Waters to stand as an heap; † rained down Manna upon them to eat, and gave them of the Corn of Heaven, so that Man did eat Angels Food; rained Flesh also upon them as Dust, and feathered Fowls like as the Sand of the Sea; let it fall in the midst of their Camp, round about their Habitations; | clave also the Rocks in the Wilderneß, and gave them drink as out of the great Depths; and fed Elijah the Prophet by the Ministry of (*) Ravens, whom he commanded to bring him Bread and Flesh both in the Morning and in the Evening? Because the Thief was happily converted at the last Hour, dost thou conclude so thou maiest be in like manner? But why shouldst not thou be startled and affrighted by the [u] fad Example of the other Thief, who still lay in his accustom-

(1) It's at if a Man should spur his Asstill he spoke, because Ba'aam's Asstild once speak. Mr. Greenham.

* Pf. 78. 13. 4 Verf. 24, 25, 27, 28. 4 Verf. 15, 16.

(*) 1 Kin 17.4,6.

ed

the

abi

fer

rity

Thi

by till

ry

dea

of t

Thi

fam

Mir

that

this

he h

Day

nion

ches

his I

fider

ces,

futte had Grac Spea

this !

invit

to C

Mear

the C

the jo

motio

Though fome have found a Purse in their way, let us not trust to like hap, but carry money with us. Bp. Andrew's seem, p.sp. 80.

⁽u) ldes conjungatur exemple latrenis conversi exemplum latrenis alterius, qui in peccatus, quibus assurerat, manet, & a aternam damnationem incidit, ne quis adsecurstatem bac in drina abutatur. Gethard. Harm, in loc.

ed Sins, died and perished in his Iniquities; and though his Saviour was so near him, fell irrecoverably into eternal Damnation? The one Example may serve to keep thee from abusing the other to Security.

(4.) Do not offer any longer to draw the good Thief into Example, and to embolden thy felf thereby wittingly and willingly to defer thy Repentance till the last Hour, and to hope for Mercy at the very last; for, let me tell thee, There is a great deal of difference between the case and circumstances of the bleffed Thief, and thy felf: for, suppose the Thief had heard somewhat of Christ by general fame before, some commendation of his Doctrine and Miracles, and an intimation of Christ's Profession that a Kingdom belonged to him, though not of this World; yet thou canst not prove, that ever he had in all his Life a clear direct Call before this Day and Hour, in which he was Christ's Companion upon the Crofs, and heard his gracious Speeches, and his compassionate Prayer poured out to his Father for his Crucifiers; and beheld and corfidered his excellent Vertues and admirable Graces, in the time of his deepest Sorrows and forest fufferings. This was the first time that the Thief had any Converse with Christ, and the first Day of Grace that probably was ever vouchfafed to him. Speak now, is this thy case? Art thou able to use this Plea, that hitherto thou wast never plainly invited to Repentance, nor expresly called to come to Christ? Hast not thou liv'd long under the Means of Grace, and frequented the Ministry of the Gospel? Hast not thou heard, yea often heard the joyful found of the Word, and felt the sweet motions of the Spirit? May not Christ complain Mm 3 10

UMI

nufual ersons oif oned oreserne like caped, be acprovided the made Manna f Heal Flesh like as f their e also as out net by nanded

y conthou It not Exam-

Itomed

ot trust

um la-G in of thee, and such as thee, * How often would I have gathered you even as a Hengathereth her Chickens under her Wings, and ye would not?

The Thief had no distinct Knowledg of Christ before: His case was as if a [m] Turk or Heathen should turn Christian, and receive the Sacrament of Baptism, and therewithal the Remission of the Sins of his State of Ignorance, upon his Death-bed. But thou wast very early baptized into the Name of Christ, and halt folemnly entred into Covenant with Christ, and frequently ratified and confirm'd that Covenant, and all along openly and outwardly profest'd thy felf the Disciple of Jesus, and Servant of Christ: And therefore, if still thou livest in Sin, and deferrest thy Repentance, and puttest off thy Obedience; thou failest in the performance of thy solemn Promise, and grand Obligation; and art false and treacherous to the Lord Christ; and art to account for Breach of Contract, and plain Rebellion against thy Heavenly Lord and King. And how canst thou hope, when thou hast refused and denied to present the Service of thy Life to him, that God will be fatisfied with the weeping and thowling of a careless Sinner, unwillingly departing, and forced to go to a freedy reckoning in another World.

Consider,

(5.) That the [x] good Thief redeemed and improved his Time at last in so notable and wonderful a way and manner, as no Man ever did, or can beside. Surely thou canst never hope to do that Ho-

T

[4] Vid. Chryfoft. eig ron gaveor at dis This eggeston man de Ang 8.

Hon

the

Thi

tim

ther

the

pro

him

gra

crue

and

ed .

dyin

ner.

fes,

me

Gao

ther

0000

the

the

Ign

ed,

end

yet

[z

Th

Wen

I

exe

Reg

ad,

the

erg

F Mat. 23, 37.

[19] See Bp. Taylor's ferm of the Invalid, of a Death-bed Rep. Part. 2, p. 78.

† Hof 7.14.

Honour to God and Christ upon a Death-bed, which the Thief did in a short time upon the Cross. The Thief brought more Glory to God and Christ at the time of his Departure out of this World, than another Man's whole Life can do [y] What Age of the World can give Example of so strong a Faith, or produce a Pattern of greater Piety? for he believed him to be the Saviour, whom the Jews accused as a grand Malefactor, and Pilate condemned, who was crucified by the Gentiles, and vilified by the Jews, and openly reviled by the other Thief: He expected Life and Salvation from an afflicted, fuffering, dying Person, hanging in a publick shameful manner, full of Pain, upon a Cros, under the Sadnesfes, Sorrows and Pangs of Death; who was effecmed smitten and seemed to Man's Sense for saken of God, whom he had alwaies profest d to be his Father: In the very Extremity of Christ's Passion, the good Thief believed him to be the holy Son of God, the Lord of Life, able to fave in Death: He beheld the Beauty and Glory of Christ, through the dark Ignominy of the Croß: He faw him naked, wounded, a Partner of the Same Torment upon the Tree, enduring the fervile Punishment of the Cross: and yet was heartily perswaded Christ was a King. [z] Speak, O Thief, faies St. Austin, where is the Throne of Sapphire? where are the Cherubims and beavenly Hosts? where is the Crown, the Scepter, and the M m 4 [7] See Bp. Taylor's Great Exemp. p. 581.

have

s un-

Christ

athen ent of

Sins But

ne of

with

t Co-

feßd

rift:

de-

bedi-

lemn

and ount ainst

anst

d to

God

g of rced

Imler-

can

that Ho-

-bed

158.

^[2] Dic, o latro, ubi thronus ex Sapphyro? ubi Cherubim & exercitus cali? ubs coronis, fce:trum & purpura, ut eum dicas Regem? videfne coron.sm aliam, quam fpine im; sceperum alsad, quan clavos; aliam purpuram, quan langusaem; alium thronum, quan crucem ; alsos minifetos, quam carasfices ; quel ergo Regium viles & Aug.

Purple, that thou shoulds count Christ a King? Dost thou see any other Crown than that of Thorns, any other Scepter than the Nails in his Hands, any other Purple than his Blood, any other Throne than the Cross, any other Officers and Ministers than the Executioners? [z] See, saies St. Berned, how sharp-sighted Faith is; what quick and piercing Eyes it has; how it apprehends and discerns Christ to be the Son of God, though hanging, bleeding, dying upon the Cross: How evidently it discovers the great King appearing in the mean form of a Servant, and taking a Journey through the strait way of painful shameful Susse.

ring into his heavenly Kingdom of Glory.

How far did the rare and noble Faith of this Thief excel the Faith even of all the Disciples and Apostles of Christ, who now at last fearfully [a] stumbled at Christ's Cross, though sometime they had seen him raising the very Dead? [b] Peter believed, when he saw Christ's making upon the Sea; but the Thief believed, when he saw Christ's Feet fast nail'd to the Gross, and beheld him slowing all over in Blood from Head to Foot. The Apostles believed, when they saw Christ's transfigured before them; and his Face shining as the Sun, and his Raiment white as the Light: but the Thief believed, when he saw Christ, not transfigured, but strangely disfigured, miserably mangled and deformed; [z] Videte quà noculata sit sides, quam Innces oculos habeat diligentius considerate. Cognoscit Des Filium -- in ligno pendentem, cognoscit morientem: siquidem latro cognoscit in patibulo, Cc. Bern. serm. 2.in Epiph Don.

[a] Titubaverunt qui viderunt Christum mortuos suscitautem; credidit ille quem videbat secum in ligno pendentem. Aug.

ferm. 144 de Tempore.

[6] Gerhard. Harm in Luc. 23. 40, 4', 42.

Mat. 14. 28. † & 17 2.

me

fad

* /

full

the

but

in pir

bel

M

Ac

Ti

ftr

Wa

Me

an

 H_0

pta

ly

for

hi

th

lik

du

Si

tie

med; and his Face, not shining, but sullied, and fadly befmeard with Spittle, Wounds and Blood. * Martha believed, when she saw Christ powerfully raising a dead and even stinking Lazarus, from the very Grave, who had been dead four Daies; but the Thief believed, when he faw Christ hanging in the Valley of the Shadow of Death, almost expiring, and very near giving up the Ghost. believed, when they faw Christ daily working divine Miracles, and honoured by the People with folemn Acclamations; but the Thief believed at fuch a Time, when Christ wrought no Miracles to demonstrate his Divinity, and testify his Innocency; and was rejected, despised, and had in open derision of He cleaved to him, when the very Apostles and Disciples themselves for sook, and fled from him. He believed in Christ, when he had the strongest Temptations to the contrary; when Christ was seemingly in as low a Condition as himself. Verily Christ found not so great Faith, no not in Israel: no not in his [c] own Disciples even after his Resurrection. All the holy Actions of another Man's Life, are not likely to amount to the Service done to God and Christ by this one act of the Thief's Faith.

Besides; his pregnant Faith was eminently productive of many good Works, [d] both internal, and external: He seared God; acknowledged his own Sin and Guilt, with Godly Sorrow, true Contrition, and hearty Repentance; condemned himself, justified Jesu, and publickly testified that

Christ

Doft

ber

rple

rs?

uith

re-

ugh

VI-

the

ney ffe-

his

ind

a]

ie-

a ;

all

end

e-

out or-

d;

beno Dal-

ıg.

^{* *} Joh. 11. 27, 39.

[[]c] Recolamus filem latronie, quam non invenit Christus post resurrectionem in Discepulis sun. August, serm. 144. de l'empore.

[[]d] Vid. Daven, Præled, de Just, Ad. p. 390.

Christ was a Person perfectly just and righteous, unblameable and innocent: This Man hath done nothing * [e] amis, faid he. He commiserated his caufelelly calamitous Condition, when the other vile [f] brutish Thief was void of Humanity, and instead of pitying mock'd and scoffed at a dying Perfon. He maintain'd the Honour of his Saviour against the Railery and Blashemy of his Fellow-fufferer, who derided the Office, especially the Kingly Dignity of Christ. He called him Lord, his Lord; embracing him as the true Messias. He honoured him, whom Judas betrayed: He boldly confess'd and defended him, whom Peter timorously denied, and fearfully forfwore. He plainly declared that he fought and look'd for a future State, and better Life. He freely acknowledg'd that this fame fuffering dying Person should have immediatly the Power of Paradife, and Authority to place him in the Seat of the Bleffed. As I Daniel prayed toward Jerusalem and the Temple, when it was in its ruins and rubbish; so the penitent Thief prayed to Christ, when he was in the lowest State of his Humiliation: When Christ was almost entring into his Grave, he begg'd and intreated that Christ would remember him when he came [g] into his Kingdom. Which of the Eleven were heard to utter for gracious a Word to their Saviour, in his last Pangs, and

* Luke 23. 41.

(f) Belluinum est, non human : 1, non compate morients.

an Fa

th

fre

th

ci

no

be

CC

a

ne

0

a

20

a

b

[[]e] & fer itotove reas, nivil abjurdum, absonum vel indecent fectt. Non so win hine concern non est promeretus, sed nec ullo etiam levissimo peccato est contaminatus. Gerhard. Harm. in loc.

[†] Dan. 6. 10.

⁽⁸⁾ To ev fonstur pro eis.

and dying Agonies? This penitent Thief prayed in Faith, and look'd for | Healing from the Wings of this Sun of Righteousness, when this glorious Sun rose from the West, as I may fay. He was so humble, that he would not prefume to ask of Christ a participation of his Kingdom, or any great and high Honour in it; but only requested that he might not be forgotten by him: the way of remembring and considering him, he left wholly to him. He shewed a very exemplary Patience upon the Cross: he did not murmur against God, or the Magistrate; but owned the Dueness and Justice of his Punishment, and was content to bear it, and defired not the removal or abatement of it: he meekly and quietly accepted his corporal temporal Punishment, being only solicitous for his Soul's Salvation. He charitably [i] reprehended his Fellow-Thief, and [i] forbad him to proceed in his Blasphemy, invited him to Repentance, and fought to further the Salvation of his Neighbour. Thou canst not expect ever to meet with such an Occasion, to try and exercise thy Faith and Obedience: and therefore thou hast no imaginable reason to nourish up thy felf in Security, upon prefumptuous Hopes of faring as he did, fince thou canst not do as he did.

(6.) And lastly; Suppose thou shouldst at last redeem thy Time so well, as, by God's help, with the good Thief, to act and exercise unseigned Repentance upon thy Death-bed; yet, I pray, shew me, and help me a little to understand, how thou artilizely to get that Comfort, and gain that sweet Peace of Conscience, which a more early Redemption

us,

nohis

her

er-

a-

ng-

his

lly

nf-

lc-

bis

t-

ce

in

d

is

n-

A fo

s,

d

-

Mal. 4. 2.

⁽i) la k. 23. 40 Emmudo fignificat repreto ido & interdico. Gerhard Harm in loc.

tion of thy Time would in all probability bring thee in, and bless thee with in thy last Hours. A thinking, understanding Heathen will tell thee, [1] He only can chearfully entertain, and gladly welcome Death when it comes, who has a long time been fitting and preparing himself for it.

The Thief upon the Croß, had indeed full Affurance that his Soul was in a good Condition at prefent; and fure Ground of strongest Confidence and most comfortable Acquiescence, that he should be very quickly in a pure and holy, a blifsful and happy State in another World. But it is not to be expected that thou shouldst arrive to such Assurance in the same or the like way that he did : for Christ then hung upon the Cross by him, and had compassion on him, and reveal'd it to him, that his Repentance (which was God's extraordinary gracious Gift) was Repentance unto Life, that his Perfon was accepted, and his Prayer heard; and that a higher Favour should be shewn him, and a greater Good be bestowed upon him, than was expresty defired by him: That his Lord was ready to take the Key of Paradise into his hand, and would very quickly open the Door and let him in, and give him entrance into the Joy of his Lord. All which is included in Christ's gracious Answer to the humble Petition of the penitent Thief, which he strengthned and confirmed with an earnest Alleveration, Verily I say unto thee, I will not only be mindful of thee, but thou shalt be with me; and that not only fome time hereafter, but [1] to day, immediatly af-

entin

⁽i) Mercem renientem nono helaris excipit, nesi qui se adellam diu composuerat. Son. ep. 30. (l) Nec sine ge, sva cansa expressione illust hosic; Censekant after thy Death and Departure ; To day shalt thou be with me in Paradise; be joyfully received, and pleasurably entertain'd in that happy Repository and Receptacle of Spirits, which God hath prepared for holy Souls.

ing

iee,

dly

ong

Tu-

reice

ıld

nd

to

u-

or

ıd

is

1+

C

r

But when thou shalt come to lie upon a Deathbed, and be conscious to thy felf that thou hast led a very finful and ungodly Life all thy daies; and that this is the first time that thou hast in good earnest minded this great Work; Suppose that the workings of thy Heart should be sincere, how canst thou evidence thy Uprightness to thy felf; prove and make out to thy felf, and fatisfy thy felf, in any ordinary way, that thy Conversion is true and realfound and lincere? When thou shalt plainly apprehend, that thou art changing thy Place and Habitation, State and Condition, all of a sudden; thou canst not but conclude, that it highly concerns thee to humble thy felf to God, to beg his Pardon, and promise him fair; and to resolve, by all possible means to shake off thy Sins, which are too grievous and dangerous Companions to carry along with thee into the other World; to cast away thy Sins, at least as a Man in a Storm begins to cast away his Goods, because if he keeps his much valued Goods, he must lose his dearest Life. But dost not thou remember the famous remarkable Story of * Amiochus, who when she Judgment of God followed him, and smote him with an incurable and invisible Plaque. with a Pain of the Bowels that was remediles, and fore Torenents of the inner Parts, fo that the fithines of bis ensim Judas non quorumvis animas featim in felicem Paradifi flatum recips, fed eas demum que bene purgate ex bac vita excederent. Grot, in loc.

^{* 2} Mac. 9.

his Smell was noisome to all his Army, and no Man could endure to carry him for his intolerable Stink, and he himself could not abide his own Smell; Then he began to leave off his great Pride, - This wicked Per-Son vowed also unto the Lord that he would set the holy City at Liberty, make all the Jews equals to the Citizens of Athens, garnish the holy Temple with goodly Gifts, become a few himself, and go through all the World that was inhabited, and declare the Power of God. But the Lord would now no more have Mercy upon him; having suffer'd grievously, he died most miserably. And halt not thou [k] known some, and heard of others, who being condemned by Law, or cast upon Beds of Sickness, have outwardly manifested as great and probable figns of true Repentance, upon feeming near approaches of Death and Judgment, as thou canst now be well supposed to do: and yet when God by a kind and merciful Providence has restored them, all that look'd so lively and lovely has quite vanish'd and come to nothing; these fairly promiting, hopeful Penitents have afterward fallen to their old Biass, prov'd as vile and vicious, as bad and worse than ever they were before. And, it may be, thou thy felf halt been in the like case, and done as much heretofore as now; and hast reason to remember thy false, deceitful, treacherous dealing with God in former Instances, on the like Occasions; how many of thy own Purposes and ProPro

cau

Go

abl

ret

no

wil

to

Co

Li

on

Co

ve re

an wl

du

an

fee

171

ar

OL

as

G

ty

bi ai In

fa

⁽b) I never knew, nor heard of any, unwrought upon under confesonable mans, who after Recovery performed the Vows and Promifes of a new Life, which he made in his Sickness, and times of Extremity. For if he will not be moved with the Ministry, God will never give that honour unto the Cross, to do the deed. Mr. Bolton's Instructions for a right comf. afficied Consciences, p. 255.

Promises have fail'd and been quite lost; and hast cause enough to suspect and question the Truth and Goodness of all the present fairest shews, and goodliest Appearances of thy Repentance.

And here this great Difficulty will at last unavoidably lie before thee, whether thou dost not feek, return and enquire after God, only because he now begins to * flay thee in good earnest. Here will be the doubt and dispute, How thou wilt be able to determine, that the Confession of thy Sins, and Condemnation of thy felf, thy Resolutions and Promises of better Obedience, in case of longer Life, are not all the meer effect of flavish Fear, and only the product of trouble of Mind and terrour of Conscience; rather than the genuin proper iffue of a vehement hatred of Sin, for the Turpitude and Urreasonableness of it; of a strong Affection to God and his Laws, and a hearty Love to Holiness; when thou halt no time to make sufficient Proof and due Trial of the Truth and Sincerity of thy Faith and Repentance. And what comfortable joyful fecurity canst thou have, that God will certainly and infallibly fave thee, by an act of extraordinary Grace and Favour, in the want of the Actions of a vertuous and holy Life, which he requires in the Gospel as ordinarily necessary to Salvation? It is here but a may be, a peradventure: 1 It is lawful indeed for God to do what he will with his own : but the posibility of an extraordinary Grace is not likely then to bring thee that clear and full Light of sweet Peace, and folid spiritual Comfort, which an early diligent Improvement of the Grace of God ordinarily vouchfafed in the course of thy Life, and time of thy Health

br

r-

ly

ns

s,

ıt

1

^{*} Pf. 78.34. + Mar. 20. 15.

Health and Strength, would in all probability have produced. The same of the same of the

If therefore thou wouldst wisely provide for thy Peace, take no encouragement to delay the Redemption of thy Time, from the Instance and Example of the Thief upon the Cross, who was sincerely converted to Christ, and fully ascertain'd of Salvation by the infallible Oracle of the Mouth of his Saviour, in the very close of his Life, the final and ultimate Hour before his Departure.

Obj. But some or other may be ready and apt to say; Alas! I have deferr'd so long already, that though I entertain some serious Thoughts of redeeming the Time, and use my honest Endeavours; yet I fear, do what I can, it is now too late for me to obtain Eternal Salvation.

Answ. I answer; Hast thou made very long Delaies, spent and wasted a very considerable part of thy Life, the most of thy precious Time in the Service of Sin and Satan? Why truly thou haft reason to be so much the more humbled, the more forry for it, the more ashamed of it; the more penitent at present, and the more obedient for the future; great cause to purpose and intend to give unto God the whole remainder of thy Time: And though thou hast but a small Time, but a few Years more to live here in this World, yet let this be the Frame and Temper, the settled Disposition, and invincible Resolution of thy Soul, that if God should prolong thy Life beyond thy expectation, that if thou hadit never so much Time to spend upon this Earth, thou wouldst, by the help of God, compose and set thy felf to the study of knowing, and an endeavour of doing the Divine Will; to a Renunciation of thy paf

UMI

Aff

the

thy

int

are tent

thee

of a

vet

late diti

dan

tho

bec

mo

dic

est He

1

Au

age

t MI

de pit past Life and Actions, and a Conformation of thy Affections and Manners to the Rule and Prescript of the Gospel of Christ: that thou wouldst employ thy whole Time, expend and lay out all thy Strength in the Service, and to the Glory of God only.

And here confider for thy Comfort, that there are to be found feveral forts and degrees of late Penitents: and there is fo much the more Hope for thee, that thou art not of the lowest rank, and form Indeed, if thou wert a death-bed Penitent, of all. though I will not fay thy case would be absolutely hopeles, utterly helples, and altogether desperate; yet because it is so feldom and rare a thing, that so tate Repentance proves found and ferious; thy Condition would be exceeding [1] dubious, and very dangerous, and thy spiritual Comfort extreamly uncertain, if not ordinarily impossible : and supposing thou wert to begin thy Repentance upon a Deathbed. I should not much wonder if thou shouldst almost begin thy Hell there.

But (as [m] St. Auftin discourses wisely and judiciously) if now thou forsakest thy Sins and turnest to God, while thou dost enjoy some measure of Health and Strength; and chusest to serve God, n when

ave

thy

1m-ple

on-

on

vi-

ul-

to

ng

r,

7-

e-

of

ne

R

re

1-

: ;

duced

u

^[1] Panitentia qua ab insirmo petitur, insirma est. Panitentia qua à moviente tantum petitur, timeo ne & ipsa moviatur. Aug. de Temp. serm. 57.

[[]m] Vn te de dubio liberare, vu quod incertum est evadere? age pemisentiam dum sanue e:. Si enim agio viram panitentiam dum sanue es, Si invenerit te novissimum dies; securus es. Ergo curre ut reconcilierie; si sic agis, securus es. Quare securus es? quia egisti pemisentiam eo tempore, quo S peccare potussi. Si autem vu agere pemisentiam ipsam tunc, quando peccare mon potes, peccata te dimiserunt, non tu illa. Aug. Tom 10. de vere vocaitentibus, Hom. 41, ex 50. Amb exhoitat, ad Posnitentiam.

when Het thoo loould forve Sin and Satangolf thou wenth; theneris forme man and place for on bag Com forty fuch as may buier they proubled wind a fand fatisfy the afflicted Conftience of a Sidnery Pholiph thou beeft but a late Panionalivet if thou could'the be attalden Sihmer, and will monog of this art wittings to break off from Sin, when shoo half yet former Time to fine and friengeb to find and Occupions of Shr voffer'd thee, and Temptations to Sin lying before thee, and prefling inpun thee; When thon artoinwired and it may be promoked to it, and thy Barnhies are not yetifo weaken'd and difabled but that thou misbuff feveral waies with v Pleasurev first thou madelt aif now thou refuselt, and will forgitals a fign thy Repentance, though late Repentance, yer, is or we Repentance for all that. Thou, who couldst go over thy old Sins again, if thou dolt heartily saft them off, when thou couldit commit them afresh; It thou deliberately leavest thy Sins, before thy Sins leave thee; If thou stedfastly resolvest and earnestly endeavourest to work the Work of God won, when there is fome Opportunity remaining and Power left, which, if thou wouldst, thou couldst employ in the Devil's Work; if indeed this be thy cafe, if truly it be thus with thee, then be of good comfort, for I dare affure thee, that God in Christ will gracionfly accept thee, and glorioufly reward thee;

Remember and confider, that they that were hird about the * elevemb Hour, received every Man a Penny, and were made equal unio those which had born the Burden and Heat of the day. This indeed gives no Encouragement to any that study to delay from day to day; because these Persons in the Parable

the

lea

th

ful

CO

ne

gri

GG

ge

le

CC

fa

0

th

h

th

Mat, 10. 9, 11.

table were mener sulled before the eleventh Hourly they frond to longer idle, but went into the Vines yard, ha for a state went called, without any the least delay to Non-does it afford sufficient winfort to a Latt, lahowed foundly, and wrought full hardfor the state, lahowed foundly, and wrought full hardfor the spart of the Penines, before they received their Ray, which Death-bed Peniness have no since to do a But yet this Pallage gives good ground of great Comfort to all such Persons, as timely think upon their Waies, turn their Feet unto God's Testimonies, and enter into the Race of Godliness, when they could frank idle a while longer, so thill continue and run on further in solish Waies, and further in solish

To conclude all; I exhort and befeech you, and let me effectually persuade and prevail with you, by all that with any reason has been offer'd to your consideration, to [n] break off all your Delaies, Excuses, Discouragements; and to give all speedy, careful, chearful Diligence to redeem the Time, to work out your Salvation, and to make your Cal-

il. which it the 2 n Mit, then couldi employ n] Q are vin procrastinare proposition toum? Surge, & in instanti recipe, & dic: Nunc tempon off factends, nunc tempon oft pugnands, nunc tempon of temend ands. A Kemis, 1. c. 22.

11. 5.

nd

gh be

to

me

of-

ee,

rd.

ire

ni

(Oil

2

et.

dft

tiy

m;

ins

A-

mi.

DET

loy

rt,

ra-

hi-

lan

had

ed

lay

2-

ble

...

[[]m] As concerning the man which was called the last Hour of the day to labour in the Vineyard. I pray you take notice, that this man was a Laboure, and though he took pains but for a short time, yet Labour he did; whereas, he that shall defer his Repensance, and Amendment of Life, till his last Hour, is the indeed prove forry for his Sins, yet labour he cannot the best that he can do, is to make Ofters, and Resolutions to work the good VVork of God, if it shall please him to scare him Life to But that the feel lutions of his shall be accepted with God, instead of real very Labour sudeed, I find no Commission to affure you. Chillingworth 1 serm. 6. on Lute 16 9. p. 397.

548 Redempt. of Time a good Daty, &c.

ling and Election fare, by bringing forth the feafonable, proper, plentiful Fruits of an undelayed Repentance. Take the excellent Counfel of the wile Son of Sirach ; * Ufe Phyfick, or ever thou be sick. Before Judgment examine thy felf, and in the day of Visitation thou shalt find Mercy. Humble thy self before thou be sick, and in the time of Sins shew Repentance. Let nothing hinder thee to pay thy Vow in due time, and defer not until Death to be justified. Follow likewife the Advice, and practife according to the profitable Direction of the Learned Gerhard; Timely and faithfully [o] ufe the means of Converfion and Salvarion, live in the true Fear of God, pray without ceasing, resist the Beginnings of any Sins, left an evil Thought raife Delight Delight draw on Confent Confent produce an evil Work, evil Works beget an evil Plabit, an evil Habit induce a kind of Necessity of finming, and fuch Necessity breed Pertinacy, Pertinacy canfe Defpair, and Defperation end in Damnation.

* Ecclus 18. 19, 20, 21, 22.

FINIS.

^[0] Tramur media conversionia & salutia, vivamus in verò timore Dei, infistamus precibus, resistamus peccatorum principiu, ne cogitatio prava delectationem, delectatio consensum, consensus gignat, opus consue ulumm, consuendo necessitate pertinaciam, pertinacia desperationem, desperatio dalconimon pariat. Gerhard. Harm. c. 201. p. 2000.

eather the beather in to different, will fin-ero iu, en-m,